DEAR MR. WEBER: Reading the Advocate of the present week—which I always enjoy—my eye fell upon a short article in the column of "Views and Reviews," first page and column. You say there: "We've got to have more of it (independence) before we get right in politics in South Carolina;" and again: "We want the Hampton of 1876, who openly preferred political defeat to victory by methods of indirection and fraud."

I ask, in a spirit of truth-seeking, what you mean by such language? You surely recognize the difference between independence to express one's opinion within the Democratic party, and independence to organize a party opposed to the Democracy. The former sort of independence has never been gainsaid in this State. But the latter sort of independence represents disorganization; it proposes nothing in the place of Democracy; it seeks to destroy alone. Your second expression is as strange as the first. Are you willing that the State should go back to the government of 1868—76, in order that the negro may enjoy the elective franchise? If you are, then you may stop your printing press and prepare to be missionary to the blacks, for in a few years the white people—the young white men—of this State would find homes in some enlightened and well governed States.

The negroes of South Carolina have a voting majority of 30,000! That majority has always been given, when given at all, against the whites, and in aid of corrupt government.

Does law, does justice, does right conscience demand that we lay down our civilization, our homes and our families to such a majority?

These considerations are presented in the best of faith, trusting that one accustomed to study government in the calmer atmosphere of Christian truth and philosophy may give me some light on a dark question. Your paper has a large circulation in the State, and its readers are in the main practical men, who rely upon opinions as they are put. Opinions like those you have expressed, and which I quote, will surely find root in many minds to bear, I fear no good fruit.

Trusting you will not consider this impertinent, and that you will reply to it for my benefit, I am, very truly yours, etc.

We certainly do not resent the right of our excellent friend to except to our editorial deliverances upon this or any other subject. Certainly not. We claim with him an interest in "our civilization." Shall we lay it down? Never. And yet, before God, we solemnly believe that just about the surest way to lay it down is to debauch the public sentiment of the State to such a degree that private virtue is to be heroically (?) and patriotically (? ?) surrendered to what is speciously claimed as political necessity. It is little that we know about politics. We have always voted on opportunity, and with a party that has thus far uniformly presented our choice of the candidates in the field. And yet we are candid to say that loyalty to party does not always mean fealty to truth and virtue. When it does not and to the extent it does not, independence of judgment and action, within party limits or without, becomes at once necessity and duty. We have no confidence in infallibility in Church or State, and especially in State.

We are asked if we would go back to 1868–76? We answer, No. We don't want to go back at all. We want to go on, on, on. Nor do we want our leaders to go back. No, nor to go back on their promises nor principles.

If in what we have written here or elsewhere we have done wrong, we ask the Lord's forgiveness—both as to commision and omission—but especially omission.

Louisiana and Kentucky are the only States in the Union that tolerate lotteries within their corporate limits.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Notes from Nashville.

The 31 of July was showery, a bad omen of the 4th, when so many anticipate a day of recreation. By railroad and stage, fifty miles east of Nashville, nestled in the hills of the geological rim, surrounding the basin of Middle Tennessee, we find a country village, Alexandria. There are several churches, stores, pleasant residences, and the "old academy" building in a state of semi-dilapidation. The old academy or rather "college" building is an institution found in nearly all the villages of the State. It is a monument of the old regime, when there were colleges, but comparatively few public free schools efficiently managed. Hence while the country could boast of many so called colleges, seminaries and academies, there were most meager provisions made for the education of the masses. Under these circumstances it is not wonderful that Tennessee should find herself nearly at the lowest round of illiteracy, in the sisterhood of States. In the transition which is now taking place in educational matters, these old school buildings of high grade are comparatively neglected, while the school house is going up in many hitherto neglected places, and the education of the masses is a matter of deepest interest to all enlightened citizens. It is creditable to Tennessee that she has never made a distinction by law, as to the amount paid for each child's education, as her neighbor Kentucky, whose school law has been so arranged that only about one-half as much is allowed for the education of a colored, as a white child. The new education of the South will need these academies in the future, not to educate the few in their primary studies, but to supplement the work of the public free schools, and to prepare many for the real college and university. The morning of the fourth was cloudy and gave promise of a stormy day, but later the sun came out, and the hearts of the brethren who had prepared for a large gathering at the laying of the corner-stone of their new church in Alexandria, were gladdened.

Rev. H. W. Key, Presiding Elder, and Rev. C. Seward, pastor, conducted the opening services. Addresses were made by Rev. Mr. Lea, of the M. E. Church South, Col. W. B. Stokes, and the writer. The new Church is to be a frame 32x60 ft. The old church has been used for a school house for several years, and a new church is a real necessity; especially as the old one is much too small to accommodate the congregation. The colored people in this neighborhood have not been troubled with the Kansas fever as badly as in some places, though many have left for the West. The situation of the church is really a beautiful one, overlooking a large scope of country and the village of Alexandria. It is a great mistake that our people have made in locating their churches so far from the public roads. This church though in a beautiful place is quite out of the village, and away from the main road. It was the excuse in the past of men who had lots for sale, that a colored church was so noisy that it disturbed the peace of the neighborhood, and such churches were not wanted in villages, or in thickly settled communities; hence a lot was given or sold cheaply in some out of the way place, greatly to the disadvantage of both white and colored. The location of the Church strengthening the prejudices of the whites and tending to foster the idea that the Negro is an inferior, and not worthy of the rights of manhood, while at the same time taking away the influence of the better education, culture, and clearer views of religious life of the whites, which might have influenced the colored people most favorably. The colored people of the M. E. Church should see to it that their churches are located where they are accessible, in good places, and then so conduct their worship, that it will not be regarded as annoying by any reasonable community. In building churches have in mind the future. The children may not be willing to go out of the town, through storm, or heat, or cold, or mud, because their fathers were compelled to do so by an unfortunate prejudice against locating their churches in the most convenient places. After the addresses the collection was taken up, the corner-stone laid with the usual services, and the large congregation enjoyed a few hours of social intercourse, and as the brethren had provided an abundance to eat, the inner man was not forgotten. At night the writer preached by invitation in the Methodist Episcopal Church South, to which service the colored people were invited, and they responded by forming the principal part of a large congregation. There was no rowdyism during the day, no noisy demonstration of any kind. No whisky is sold in Alexandria or the regions about. The "Four-Mile" law, which forbids the sale of intoxicating drink within four miles of a chartered institution of learning, is in force, and the entire community rejoice in the increased peace, quiet, and prosperity which temperance brings. If Christians are true to the cause of temperance, it will not be long till its blessings are enjoyed in all the State. J. BRADEN.

Our Work in Europe.

A NOTE FROM BISHOP HARRIS

I have been well, so far as my general health is concerned. My visit to the missions has been full of interest. Our missions are everywhere prosperous. Yet I believe that in some places where the results seem small there has been really more hard work done than in other places where the fruit seems much more abundant.

The work in Italy is simply marvelous; with but a single missionary in that field, the Lord has raised up an annual conference of about twenty preachers, whose average ability, learning and devotion are, as I believe, higher than can be found in any other conference of the Church. On the last Sabbath in May (Pentecost) I dedicated a beautiful church in Florence.

Our Conference in Germany is doing well, and some of the preachers suffer persecution for Christ's sake. Our preacher in Chemnitz has been before the police magistrate forty times during the past year, and while at Conference received another citation to appear immediately on his return home. He is persecuted because he is "winning souls" for Christ.

I am now in the midst of the annual meeting of the mission in Denmark. Here, as everywhere else in Europe, the Lutheran preachers are our most hostile foes. The world, the flesh and the devil combined are far less wicked towards us than they. They preach against us, they write against us, they instigate the persecutions that our people endure. Still we are slowly but surely gaining the victory. May the Lord help us. I go hence to Sweden and then to Norway. Then I shall set my face homeward. Will be in New York sometime in August, perhaps the last part of the month.

The editor of the New York Methodist, Dr. Wheeler, writing from Italy, deplores the lack of moral fibre in the Italian people, but is not entirely without hope for the future. Methodism he considers the most effective Protestant force, and he speaks highly of it as really leading souls to Jesus. He says: "Of Dr. Vernon I saw much, and my sense of his fitness for his work grew with knowledge. He is building safely and cautiously, so far as men and means are concerned—and here caution is nine-tenths of the human work. But the time has come when much more ought to be laid upon him and entrusted to him. He needs a theological school to teach our preachers the rudiments of religion. My wonder is how a conference of thirty ministers has come to exist without a school to train them."

Governor St. John in his speech at Osage, Kansas, said: "If there is one of you here to-night who should catch your wife loafing around a saloon, you would apply for a divorce inside of twenty-four hours; you would think that if she were guilty of so infamous a thing she would be unworthy of such a specimen of manhood as yourself, and yet for all this you can linger about these places week after week. There are men who loaf about saloons for days together, who, when they go upon the witness-stand, under oath, are so demented that they do not know cider from whisky, or beer from 'sea-foam.'"

Wm. M. Springer was renominated for Congress by acclamation by the Democrats of the Thirteenth District Illinois.

How Can I Win Men To Christ?

By having the life of Christ as your model, His thoughts in clear, cleanly-cut outlines in your mind, and His motives the energies to direct your movements. That a man may speak a language with power he must do his thinking in that language; likewise, that a man may speak the words of Christ with effect, his meditation of the words must be in the spirit of Christ. The thoughts of Christ must flow out of him as fragrance from the rose, as eloquence from heart-oratory. He must have not only knowledge, but the life of truth. The words of Christ are the words of the Eternal Word; they have the ideas of the eternal reason and are the incarnation of the breathing of eternal life. We may expect the fire of inspiration wrapped up in them. Brooding over them will bring into them the breath of the Spirit. By this inspiration the dry bones of the letter will live, stand upon their feet an exceeding great army, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against them. By secret communication with Christ His words become instinctive with energy, warm and palpitating, the very cloven tongues of Pentecost. They give inspiration, "put a soul under the ribs of death," and create "thoughts that breathe and words that burn." This kind of study is one element of success in winning souls.—Thomas Parry.

The victory for prohibition in Iowa has occasioned much comment, and the question is often asked: "How was it gained?" The facts are coming to light and it seems the women, God bless them, have had a good deal to do in the matter. They were present at the polls with tables loaded with coffee, sandwiches, cakes, cookies, and various other reminders of the excellencies of temperance. While some were serving at the tables, others were conducting processions of little children, neatly dressed and smiling, past the voting places. When the thought of what whisky might bring to the innocents suggested itself, no wonder the ballots dropped were for their protection. We have utmost confidence in the ability of women to gain their point, and why shouldn't we have? We have been living with a woman for thirty years.—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

There is no doubt that a warm contest is on hand both in Indiana and Ohio. There will be an endeavor on the part of some political leaders to shirk all square issues on the subject of temperance legislation. Others will endeavor to have resolutions favoring or opposing prohibition adopted by county conventions. But no matter what is done or left undone in this way, the issue is bound to come. The battle must be fought. Moral conflicts go on to find victory or defeat; they will not down at the call of the time-serving.—Western Christian Advocate.

The Georgia Democracy have settled things for the campaign. They resolved that we "reaffirm the principles of Jeffersonian Democracy." It is said the convention received the announcement with uproarious applause. Of course it will not be necessary to tell Georgians what "the principles of Jeffersonian Democracy" are. But we are glad that they did not reaffirm Jeff Davis' Democracy, which they have long practiced.—Inter Ocean.

Harper's Bazar, in a recent suggestive editorial, invites attention to the fact that there are physiologists who do not hesitate to assert that "the European races are deteriorating as their civilization is crystallizing," and that this deterioration "is to be ascribed, as much as to anything else, to the constant excitement more or less of the brain through the daily use of strong beers and wines and spirits by the mothers of the race there."

The just wise and conservative treatment of the negro is the way to build up both races in the South. Of course there must be great patience where there is so much ignorance on one side and so much prejudice on both, but true statesmanship is to make the best of the situation and to utilize all citizens without regard to the color of the skin.—Vicksburg Herald.

How Men Pray.

If we should address any earthly king as we do the Deity, nine times out of ten it would astonish the king to say the least. How strange it sounds for a puny mortal to get down upon his knees, close his eyes and then proceed to tell the Almighty what is going on in the community where he lives. And yet this is about all many people do when they pray. If any person doubts let them go into any prayer-meeting, whether in the South or North, and listen for himself.

Nor is this strange way of praying confined to the lay members. Clergymen who have made the Scriptures their special study, and are supposed to be competent to instruct others in theology, frequently adopt the same irreverent practice. They frequently manifest a strong desire to keep the Lord well instructed as to themselves, their church and congregation.

Some years ago we read of a good old father in the church who is now doubtless in glory. They were about to begin a camp-meeting, and in his opening prayer this dear old man told the Lord that the presiding elder, who was expected to preach the opening sermon had such a cold that he could not speak a word, and that as everything depended on him he was anxious to have the Lord come and help him, adding that if He did not the meeting would be a failure. Perhaps it is true that this dear old brother meant no irreverence, but then the news items of that prayer must have had a queer sound.

It is not at all uncommon to hear persons start off in this way, 'O Lord, we are in a sinful world, where nothing is substantial, where everything is changing, and decay is stamped upon all. But thou, O Lord, art in Heaven, where all are pure and happy. We are here today but to-morrow we are gone. There is nothing here upon which we can rely; if we have riches they take to themselves wings and fly away, our friends frequently forsake us, or are cut down and we see them no more; and we ourselves often feel the seeds of death sown in our perishable bodies, and we must soon pass away, and we find nothing upon which to lean or rely for safety and comfort but the religion of Thy Son, our Saviour, Jesus Christ." Now this may all be true, but it is not praying. God knew long before any of this generation were born all about the sin and wickedness of this world and what kind of a place Heaven is, and we submit that it is not exactly respectful to Deity to pretend that we found it out first.

We remember being at a camp-meeting. A brother, in his prayer, told the Lord that there would be on the ground full one thousand sinners during the meeting, and that he wanted Him to convert an even hundred. Soon as he had closed his so-called prayer another began. He told the Lord that there would be full four thousand unconverted men and women on the ground during the meeting, and that he did not want the Lord to pay the least attention to the man who had asked for but one hundred converts, he wanted the Lord to hear him and convert not less than a thousand; and then added, seemingly to encourage the Lord a little, that he could convert a thousand as easily as one hundred.

Croaking is not pleasant work; no one but a croaker enjoys it. There is a serious trouble here. These talks are not meant for prayer at all. In spite of the kneeling posture, closed eyes and clasped hands, these were mere addresses to the audience. No one ever prays that way when in his closet. When we are alone with God we accept our real position as sinners and our language is appropriate. Then ascriptions of praise, and thanksgiving, confession of sin and humble petition for mercy come spontaneously from the heart to the lips, and that God who made the heart understands it and hears it when it speaks.

Notes from the Churches.

There are at least two ways in which most all men work. There are things they deliberately plan to do. Sometimes they spend years in fitting themselves to do them. They take pains and are anxious to do them well.

Then there are other things men do which are no part of their plan. Not that these persons are drifting. They have a plan and a purpose, and yet they are constantly doing things that were no part of their morning plan. They are the opportunities of usefulness that open up to us as we pass along. The Christian minister meets with all sorts of people; he cannot talk much to each, and yet he may drop into the heart of each a word of kindness that will greatly strengthen and comfort the almost staggering soul.

At Franklin, Bro. Williams has a plan, business all mapped out before hand, but not so stereotyped that he cannot adopt himself to the exigencies of the hour; he seizes upon the wayside opportunities to sow the seeds of life. Under his ministry, the M. E. Church is having another year of religious peace and prosperity. Whenever I write about Franklin, my pen has a wonderful gift of continuance, our reception is so cordial. The hospitality is so generous one cannot help saying a word. It is a fact, however, that these extended pen excursions are most always out of place.

Franklin is a good place for a man who is a man, and loves God and hard work.

It is said that in primitive days some earnest Christians became slaves, that they might gain access to the homes of the noble, hoping thereby to win souls to Christ. We know of young ladies who have something of this spirit; they study medicine, and go as missionaries that they may have access to the homes of the heathen people as physicians, and thus while administering to their physical ills, they have opportunities of sowing gospel seed. Here one can see a little of the holy fragrance of Christ's love. What is wanted now is a deep, sincere piety, that breathes out unconsciously in words, acts and manner of life, like the fragrance of the rose or the shining of a star.

Few charges have a more faithful pastor than La Teche, and few men are doing a better work than Bro. Lyon. A marked improvement is going on in this charge. The young people are coming to the front; they are showing a love for the Church, and a desire to be employed for its benefit. Bro Lyon's letter tells of the work done on the church, but nothing about the parsonage, which is nearly complete and will soon be ready to be occupied. A good church, a good parsonage and a good people will make La Teche a good place for any itinerating Methodist preacher. C.

Senator Kellogg's Position.

The officers of the government in charge of the prosecution of the Star-route plunderers do not entertain a very exalted opinion of the grand jury of the District of Columbia. John A. Walsh, a Washington banker, presented to this grand jury, besides his own positive statements, some letters and documents showing the division of Star-route money between James Price, a contractor, and Senator Kellogg, of Louisiana. The jury unanimously acquitted Senator Kellogg, yet for some reason Mr. Price seems to have felt very uneasy, and absented himself from Washington for a time. The District Attorney says the evidence was sufficient, and the grand jury should have found indictments. Mr. Walsh repeated the substance of his evidence to members of the press, and the New-York Times, the leading Republican paper of the country, published an interview between its Washington correspondent and Mr. Walsh. Some parts of it corroborated evidence of a previous witness (Rerdell) as to the manner of expediting Star routes, and told how Price and Kellogg attempted to get Walsh to shield them by giving a business explanation of the joint division of a Star-route draft negotiated through him. There has been a great deal of mud thrown, mainly by the defendants in the Star-route investigations, and it is not surprising that we should be told that Mr. Walsh is a bad man, his testimony is unreliable, etc; but there is a directness about his statements that has made a decided impression upon all who have read them. Subsequent to the incidents above mentioned, Judge Wyly decided to admit Mr. Walsh's evidence, he was placed on the stand and for two days was subjected to a searching cross examination by attorneys for Star-route defendants, who "utterly failed to shake his testimony or to impeach him," says the Times dispatch of July 24th. Many may feel satisfied that Senator Kellogg has been legally acquitted, but the question is not so easily answered, "Is he morally guilty?" We think Senator Kellogg needs something more than the failure of the grand jury named to indict before he can be declared innocent of the charge. It is also charged that his exceptional position, his vote being necessary to Republican control of the Senate, has had some influence on the grand jury report. This may be false, yet it increases the demand for more evidence to completely disprove what the banker Walsh has alleged. This is a matter of deep regret with numerous friends of the Senator; and because they are preparing to extend his term of usefulness in Congress, it is time to examine his record closely. No amount of ability or tact can compensate for a lack of integrity in a public servant; and until another tribunal passes upon the Senator's case he will be hampered by suspicion and distrust.

Public Education in Louisiana

The census of the United States for 1880 lets us see what is being done in each State, in the way of providing for the education of the people.

The school age in Louisiana is from six to eighteen. The number of school population is 273,845. The average attendance of the actually enrolled is 45,626. According to this showing we have but a fraction over 40 per cent. of the actual school population enrolled. The State paid for the education of each scholar enrolled $6 74. Louisiana has a population of 939,096; of this number there are 297,312 who cannot read that are ten years of age and over.

The white population of the State is 454,954; of these there are 58,951 ten years of age and over who cannot write. The total colored population of the State is 484,992 over ten years of age who cannot write. So we have in the State 318,380 persons who are ten years old and over who cannot write. We desire to call the attention of the people of Louisiana to the actual condition of the people as revealed by this, the most authentic evidence. There are 297,312 who cannot tell the Constitution of the State from the Book of Mormon. They are the prey of the demagogue, the victims of prejudice, an element of weakness, danger and dishonor to the State. Illiteracy is the bane of the people. It is a common saying that "the property of the State must educate the children of the State." It is just as true that "the extent of popular interest in education is manifest by the degree of taxation to which the people submit in order to promote it." The action of the recent legislature in making provisions for the education of the 273,845, the actual school population of the State must elicit universal condemnation. Every one of those who voted even for the $250,000 ought to be invited to stay at home. Had even this received the signature of the Governor, it would have been less than one dollar for the State to pay per capita for the education of her school population. This was a legislature liberal in self-indulgence and in its minor general appropriations, but parsimonious towards schools a legislature that dwarfed any thing and every thing that has ever been done in any State in the Union for the cause of education.

Senator Hill on His Dying Bed

Hon. Benj. H. Hill, Georgia's distinguished Senator and eloquent orator, now on his dying bed in Atlanta, is now fully resigned to his condition, and finds much consolation in the hope of heaven. The other day he called his son Charles to him and said: "I am soon going to a better land, Charles; don't you wish you could come along, too? These are the happiest days of my life." Such is the tenor of all his utterances to his family and friends.

In writing to an old servant, now in Athens, Ga, the other day, he reiterated the remark that this was the happiest period of his existence. In this letter he confesses that he might have been guilty of errors in his worldly intercourse, but now felt fully prepared to meet his Maker. The Lord had given him a good, long notice, and he was fully prepared for the summons when it came.

Doubtless, as the great Senator confesses, he has been guilty of errors in his worldly intercourse. But we are satisfied that he committed no greater than the standing error of his life—his opposition to the negro's freedom, and blocking up the path of his progress at every turn. We are happy that the Lord has forgiven him. We offer him our hand, and hope to meet him in the ever-peaceful abode of the blest. We wish that we could hope that his dying confession, would rear as many friends for the negro, the Union and good government, as the eloquent confession of his life time raised enemies against them.

Dr. John Godfrey, of the U. S. Marine Hospital Service, New Orleans, has been directed by Surgeon General Hamilton to inspect steamers leaving this city for up the river, and to furnish a certificate of inspection free of charge. Dr. Joseph Jones, President of the State Board of Health, has volunteered to co-operate with Dr. Godfrey. This is sensible. It is perfect folly to keep up a wrangle between the National and State Boards of Health, who have a common object. The public health and commerce is of far greater importance than rules of etiquette, red tape, or States-rights issues. Until Congress can equip an efficient National Board, superior in authority to all local boards, the above is an admirable provision for a long-felt want.

The disgraceful and outrageous election frauds, tissue ballots, ballot-box stuffing and intimidations practiced by the Bourbon Democracy, under its many aliases, in this State, against the Republican party, is now bearing its own bitter fruits within the Democratic party lines. In their primary elections in this city, recently, charges of ballot-box stuffing and corrupt influences came up from several wards. In some of the wards, most outrageous election frauds and ballot-box stuffings were glaringly proven. The politicians may just as well recognize the fact that "honesty (in politics as well as in every other matter) is the best policy," and that he that sows the wind may expect to reap the whirlwind.

The theology ground out by many preachers who are so indolent that they have to wait until they get into the pulpit before choosing their texts, reminds us very much of the theology preached by an illiterate preacher, who said to his congregation once: "My bredrin, when de fust man, Adam, was created, he was made of wet clay, and set up agin the palins to dry." "Do you say," said one of the congregation, rising to his feet, "dat Adam was made ob wet clay, an' set up agin the palins to dry?" "Yes, sar, I do." "Den who made de palins?" "Set down, sar," said the preacher, sternly; "sich questions as dat would upset any system ob theology."

Another colored cadet has been appointed to West Point. We hope for him better treatment than his predecessors have received, although he enters with opposition from the very start. An exchange says: "In opposition to the report of the majority of the committee, the Secretary of War has appointed Lemuel W. Livingston, the colored contestant, a West-Point cadet from the Second (Florida) Congressional District. Livingston was ahead of the leading white contestant four points, but the committee held that he did not answer the questions so quickly as young Sackett, to whom they awarded the prize."

There is no surer sign of the demoralization of the Louisiana Bourbons than the election law passed by the last legislature, and its attempt to strangle the common schools of the State. When a party is situated so that it has to throw away all pretense even to decency and fairness, it must be on its last legs. Manipulators and manipulations serve only to hasten the day of its downfall. The election law and the attempt to kill the common schools of the State will rise up before them like Banquo's ghost in all the future. There are several other ghosts like these two that are sure to give the Bourbons no small amount of trouble in the near future.

Members of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul made terrible charges against employees of the City Insane Asylum; and a committee of the Prisons and Asylums Commission have sent to the Mayor a petition embodying similar charges. It is about time that men nurses for insane women should be dispensed with, and that some of that chivalrous regard for women, long the boast of the Crescent City, should be officially manifested.

The article on our first page entitled "Politics and Religion," is stalwart in its condemnation of corrupt methods of politics, and we congratulate our contemporary of the Church South on this timely expression. The entire religious press, especially should be a unit in the work of practically rebuking those who in their struggles for power threaten to corrupt the entire social fabric.

We entirely agree with the Daily States that "while police officers are not to be deprived of any of their political rights it is entirely inconsistent with their official positions for them to take active part in ward elections and meddle in faction squabbles." The investigation of a case of ballot box stuffing in the Democratic primary election, fifteenth ward, disclosed the facts that two policemen were commissioners of election, and the box in dispute had been deposited with a police sergeant. These men should be dismissed the force immediately.

Josh Billings says of himself: "When I was a young man and went out log-rolling, I jumped at the big end of the log and did all the rolling; but now I am an old man, I take the small end of the log, and do all the grunting." Moral: The loudest grunters and grumblers are not always the hardest workers.

Liberia Troubles.

In consequence of boundary disputes, and border troubles, growing out of the conflicting interests of the Liberians and the British colonists of Sierra Leone, very unsatisfactory relations exist between the British and the Liberian Governments. The Liberian Senate, headed by Vice-President Russell, have alread solemnly protested against the encroachments of the British Government and appealed to the sympathy of the civilized world. The Monrovia Observer, commenting on the matter, forcibly remarks:

The Senate has expressed the national will, and correctly represented the feeling of the citizens. The people of Liberia may be forced by overwhelming power to abandon a part of its present domain, but they will not relinquish it of their own free will.

Civilized Negroes have been able so far to make a home nowhere. In founding the Republic of Liberia they acquired a territory not solely in their own interests or for their own benefit, but also for that of the resident native population. They sought to shut out from this population the worst of the evils which everywhere precede the introduction of what the European calls civilization. In this policy Liberia may be expected to persist. She will try to shield, to some extent at least, that portion of Africa which has fallen under her dominion.

In sixty years Liberia has acquired and partially civilized a portion of West Africa. The event is one of the most wonderful epochs of the nineteenth century. The Liberians are proud of their hereditary domain, and they feel that they are in duty bound to transmit this noble inheritance to their posterity and the millions of Negroes who are yet in exile; and they can not afford to compromise the original purposes of the establishment of Liberia, on the west coast of Africa, merely for the sake of pleasing the trading tendencies of the colony of Sierra Leone. England asks for too much. To yield to the proposals of Consul Havelock would be national suicide. The people feel this throughout the length and breadth of the land, and would rather see Liberia destroyed by British arms than make any such concessions. Let the might of of England override the right of Liberia.

In view of the peculiar relation existing between the United States and Liberia, the attention of the American Secretary of State has been called to these complications, and he has been requested to address a friendly note to the British Government, indicating that we take an active interest in Liberia, and would not be willing to see her territory curtailed or her trade restricted. This Secretary Frelinghuysen has promised to do at an early day. This, we hope, will be the end of the present troubles.

A Sunday with Our German Churches in New Orleans.

Rev. H. Hofmann, a missionary from South America, who had to leave his promising field of labor on account of sickness of his wife, was with our German churches here last Sunday. Bro. Hofmann is going to Texas to take work in our Southern German Conference; he is a very earnest and faithful worker, and we hope that the good Lord will give him great success in his missionary work among the Germans in Texas.

Our members were very thankful to God for the privilege of having a missionary in their midst, and one and all did their very best to make the stay of Brother and Sister Hofmann as comfortable as possible. The Sunday was a day of hard work for the beloved Brother, but what was better, a day of great blessing and joy in our blessed Lord Jesus Christ, both for him and the congregation. He began his work by addressing our children in the Sunday-school of our First Church; then he preached in our Third Church. In the afternoon we had a glorious time at Wesley Chapel with our colored brethren. The best was the last meeting of the day. Oh, that was a glorious meeting! God was there! Thanks to Him! At night we had a large union meeting of our three German congregations at our First German Church. The house was full of people. Brother Hofmann spoke about his experience as a missionary in South America. At the close of the meeting the large congregation gave freely to the support of Bro. Hofmann. A collection was taken to the amount of $36.

After the meeting was dismissed, it seemed the friends were going home, but that was only for a short time. Our young members came afterward to the parsonage and sang some of our blessed gospel hymns, with the expressed hope to hear more of the life and experience of a missionary. Brother Hofmann was overwhelmed with his feelings, but yielded gladly to the desire of the young friends. May God's richest blessings rest upon the young folks of our Church, who made a poor missionary feel at home among them. May God bless Brother Hofmann in his new field of labor in the Southern German Conference! D. MATTHAEI.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Bishop Simpson and family are spending the summer at Long Branch.

—Gen. T. C. Anderson, Special Deputy Collector of the Port, has our thanks for appreciated favors.

—Miss Josephine Cowgill will make a mission trip through Ohio before her return to this city in the fall.

—Gen. R. L. Gibson, Congressman from this State, is in poor health; and has left Washington for the White Sulphur Springs.

—Geo. S. Lacey, Esq, U. S. District Attorney of Louisiana during the years 1876, '77 and '78, died in Brooklyn, N. Y., last Friday.

—Rev. J. G. Vaughan, the newly appointed pastor at Ames, is making a good impression. Last Sabbath he received two by letter.

—Rev. L. H. Pease, chaplain of the Lower Seaman's Bethel, has gone North on his vacation trip. He carries with him the best wishes of warm friends here.

—While in Washinton, La., recently, our assistant called at the office of the Washington Argus and formed the acquaintance of its able and very agreeable editor, J. Kossuth Sandoz, Esq. We hope him many happy days and success for the Argus.

—Dr. Formento, of our Board of Health, left this city last Tuesday for a trip to Europe, via New York. He goes as a delegate from the State Board of Health to the International Congress of Health and Hygiene, which meets at Geneva, Switzerland, on September 4th. He will present a paper on Yellow Fever and Quarantine.

—The Nashville Christian Advocate having published, as many other papers did, a statement that the President had violated the Sabbath by going fishing on Sunday, a correspondent wrote from Washington that he was quite sure it was an error. The President is a member of the Episcopal Church, and holds the Sabbath sacred.

—Rev. Hugh Miller Thompson, D. D., persuaded by the appeals of his parish, his bishop, the Sanitary Association, the Prison Commission, Rev. Dr. Palmer, and petitions signed by the Jews, Catholics and citizens of different creeds and nationalities, has decided to withdraw his resignation and continue his rectorship of Trinity Episcopal Church.

—Rev. Henry Hofmann, one of Rev. William Taylor's missionaries from South America, gave us a call last week. Bro. Hofmann's field of labor has been in the Southern part of Chili. He reports a good measure of success among the German speaking people, having in four years gathered and organized a church of 41 members. He has been compelled to leave because of the poor health of himself and wife, and enters our German work in Texas. Bro. Hofman will do valuable work in that State. We shall hope to receive letters from him.

—Among the law firms lately established in this city, is that of Elliott & Tucker. Gen. R. B. Elliott, the senior partner, for several years Attorney General of South Carolina, and member of Congress from that State, is a gentleman of national reputation as a lawyer and an orator. Mr. T. DeS. Tucker, the junior partner, is a graduate of Oberlin College and the Law Department of Straight University. He ranks deservedly high as a scholar and gentleman. Litigants will doubtless find it to their interest to consult with these gentlemen. Their office is at No. 13 St. Charles street.

—I. N. Failor, the late popular and successful President of the New Orleans University, has located himself in the city of Coleman, Texas. Bro. Failor says "We like the country quite well, our nearest railroad point at present is Baird 40 miles distant. However we will soon have the G. C and S F. road completed to Coleman." We were sorry to have Bro. Failor sever his connection with the University; he had the qualities which secured for him the respect not only of those associated with him as instructors, but of all the students. We wish him abundant success in his Texas home.

—Honest John Bright, true to his convictions, washes his hands of the Egyptian massacre by resigning his office in the British cabinet upon the decision to interfere in the Egyptian affairs by force. Mr. Bright does not believe in war, and considers the use of force at Alexandria as unjustifiable, and that the terrible massacre of June 11 was provoked by the presence of the English fleet which he regards as a menace to Egypt. He says he knows of but one war since the days of William the Conqueror which he deems justifiable, and that was the war for the perservation of the American union. We understand that Mr. Bright is intending to visit this country. Few Englishmen will receive a more cordial welcome from all lovers of liberty and high moral principle.

—Dr. and Mrs. P. M. Bigney were made the recipients of a surprise by the members of Asbury Church, Cincinnati, Saturday evening, July 15th. The occasion was the fifteenth anniversery of their marriage. When the company reached his home Dr. Bigney was in his office prescribing for patients. Hearing the bell, and then the unusual noise in the hall, and imagining that some wounded person was being brought in, he hurried to the scene. The gifts consisted of an elegant crystal fruit and a handsome water set. Prof. George W. Harper made an appropriate presentation speech, referring to the history and life-work of Dr. and Mrs. Bigney, and the high esteem in which they are both held by the Church. Prayer was offered by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Gaddis, and the large company partook of the refreshments they had brought along, and enjoyed themselves with conversation and music.—Western Christian Advocate. Dr. Bigney resided in New Orleans for a time, and is a cousin of M. F. Bigney, Esq., editor of the City Item.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

D. Shelby, Allen: "Protracted meeting closed at Hayson Chapel, July 6. It was a glorious revival: two converts, one reclaimed, and twenty-one mourners. Brother T. Jackson joined us in hard labor, June 30. Superintendent Charles Mack, of the Sunday-school here, is devoted to his work. We are building new churches at Friendship and Union. The former is up and will soon be finished. There are 500 feet of lumber at the latter place. Bro. Adkins, local preacher, is just the man. We were greatly assisted by white friends. Children's Day was observed, and a collection of $2 10 taken. The circuit is prospering. We are Methodists who do not get wearied."

Rev. E. Lyon, pastor of the M. E. Church at LaTeche, writes: "In the storm of September, 1879, that passed over LaTeche, our little church at the Home, together with others, suffered severely, being thrown from the blocks, shattered, and broken. During the past quarter, however, we have been able to raise it and place it upon some brick pillars and otherwise strengthening it with three strong iron bars, thus fortifying it against the event of another storm. The pulpit, from the ancient box style, has been modernized to a simple stand, with corner posts on either side, for receiving lamps. Permit me here to say for the encouragement of my brethren, and in justification of the old aphorism, that "the Lord helps those who help themselves," when commencing our repairs we had but little money on hand, and that realized from a lecture given by the pastor, nevertheless we moved a ong as if we were in possession of a bushel, painted the church inside and out, made forty new pews of the latest style, purchased a magnificent chandelier, so that the church now presents a decent and respectable appearance. The site on which the church stands is one of the most charming and inviting spots along the banks of the beautiful Teche, and calls for admiration from all who happen to pass this way. From the railroad it can be seen, and is admired for its beauty. Having accomplished thus much, and having felt the presence and the approval of our Father in the past, we are resolved to move on and trust Him for the future. While God regulates and directs this church we feel assured that a large amount of success awaits her. For this we cheerfully work and earnestly pray."

MISSISSIPPI.

Bro. R. Anderson, Hazlehurst: "Through the help of God I am able to say that the church is doing very well. On the 9th inst. we had quite a revival in our church. One convert and several accessions. Children's Day was observed and $2 collected. Elder Campbell was with us on the 27th and 28th of May, and preached a glorious sermon. Collection taken up for Elder $7 60.

L. L. Shumpert, Okolona: "We are repairing our church, and have raised $100 for the purpose. Elder Shumpert held our second quarter and preached to a very large congregation. Collection for Elder, $4 75. Paid pastor during the quarter $112. Congregation Sunday night averages 1000."

TENNESSEE.

J. B. Matthews, Capleville: "Near Memphis, I saw about 163 boys and men playing ball on Sunday. Seven miles from there fifteen more were playing cards at a store, one a member of the Baptist Church. The church was made to serve God in."

J. L. Massey, Linden: "I have made a round of my work, traveling in the cool parts of the mornings and evenings. At Ashland church I received three, one a local preacher from the A. M. E. Church. They have been agitating the colored bishop question to create feeling against us. They have three preachers here. I raised some money on Children's Day."

ARKANSAS.

Wm. Pope, Caddo Gap: "We have had a hard time for the last three months. I have borrowed a mule to ride around my work. I work very hard, and preach. At Spoonville there are six members, and thirty-nine scholars in Sabbath-school. This is a new point. I have much trouble with African and Baptist preachers."

W. H. Crawford, Hot Springs: "We have a Sunday-school of 52 scholars, with Sister Kennedy as Superintendent, Josiah Clark assistant. On Children's Day $1 05 was collected.

TEXAS.

L. H. Hunter, Leona: "Rev. Wesley Harmes presided at our second conference. The charge is in good condition; Sunday-schools progressing. There have been 14 conversions this year. Our pastor, Dr. Morris, has been ill for some weeks. He has done a great work for the Lord here."

J. P. Burns, Midway: "In protracted meeting held here by Rev. [illegible] Wilson there was a great revival. Conversions 23, on probation 3."

J. Jarmon, LaGrange: "Elder G. W. Richardson held our third quarterly conference. We raised for elder $7 80, for conference school $50 50. Camp meeting will commence July 27, and all preachers are invited."

Rev. S. Smith writes from Belton: "We were all prepared for the district conference which was to be held in this place July 26th, but on account of the sickness of the wife of our presiding elder the conference was put off to some future day. When the conference comes you shall hear from us again."

MISSISSIPPI.

J. Fullylove, Durant: "The times being hard, our church is yet unfinished. We hope to complete it this year. The Sabbath-school is on the increase. Children's Day was observed. We are preparing to send for literature for the school."

Miss Bettie Morris, of Starkville, sent us a clipping from a paper at that place, describing the Children's-Day exercises at our church there in an extended and very flattering manner. Collection was $11 10. Rev. D. W. Calvert, pastor, may well be proud of his charge.

R. H. Jones, Corinth: "Children's Day, owing to some apparent neglect, was not held on the regular "Children's Day," but by a vote of the Sunday-school it was decided to observe Children's and Temperance Days together on the second Sunday in July. At an early hour the pupils of the Sabbath-school, with smiling faces and an anxious look, were found in their seats awaiting the commencement exercises of the morning. The organ was in charge of Mr. A. D. Ivy. [illegible] God with some of the [illegible] songs of Zion, prayer [illegible] by our beloved superintendent, [illegible] R. H. Gallion; after [illegible] a Sabbath-school gem [illegible] which was of [illegible] to both old and [illegible] words of encouragement [illegible] other persons, the [illegible] and their love [illegible] made [illegible] quite interesting [illegible] to be [illegible] for or to [illegible] way.

o'clock exercises. After noon we had a very heavy shower of rain, which passed off in time to make the evening pleasant, and in time the house was filled to overflowing. The exercises consisted of declamations and essays by Misses Lonie Nelson, Jennie Long and Mr. S. J. Carr, and the origination of the Sunday-school by N. H. Williams and W. L. Hays. At night, a very large audience assembled at an early hour to hear the closing exercises, and were ably entertained by a temperance sermon by Rev. N. H. Williams, which was very well suited to the occasion. Then came our worthy pastor (who has completely won the esteem of his entire congregation), with a missionary sermon which fell on the ears of his hearers like peals of thunder, and held them completely spellbound for half an hour. Missionary collection was then called for, and the response was $10 10."

A new departure in the treatment of chronic diseases has been made. Send to Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard Street, for their treatment on Compound Oxygen and learn all about it. Mailed free.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

THIRD QUARTER. LESSON VI. Aug. 6th.
THE FRUITLESS TREE. (Mark xi, 12-23.)

On returning to Jerusalem from Bethany seeing a fig tree having leaves in a forward condition, he was justified in expecting forward fruit, and on his failure to do so he expressed a wish with the import of a curse, that no man should eat fruit from it thereafter. The symbolical character of this cursing must not be lost sight of. Entering the temple he cast out the money changers who carried on traffic within its enclosures. This traffic probably originated in endeavors to provide sacrifices for temple services, and to save going round they carried through the temple the things they happened to have in their hands. Such views of the holiness of the temple and of the reverence due to it from the people, coupled with the loftiness and purity of ideal service toward God, as set forth by Jesus, pointed to such a complete reversal of their common views, that the sensation among them was great. On the morning of the following day the disciples saw the fig tree dried up from the roots. It required little intelligence to perceive that in this way the curse pronounced was having its fulfillment. It was by divine power the result before their eyes was achieved. They were then passing over the Mount of Olives, and it afforded a ready illustration. Pointing again to faith as the condition, and also implying, it seems, the strong probability that it will be shaken in undertaking such a task, so utterly impossible to human power. It does not mean it will come to pass after he believes, and commands but as or while he believes and commands it comes to pass. Faith and its works are viewed as accompanying each other throughout, not the one waiting upon or following the other.

Missionary Concert Notes—August, 1882.

SUBJECT—The South India Mission.

The South India Conference was organized in November, 1876, with 29 members; on trial, 18 Of the whole number 28 are from the United States. It now has, full church members, 1335; probationers, 685; local preachers, 55; church edifices, 22; Sunday-schools, 42; Sunday-school scholars, 2304. The churches accommodate from 200 to 650; that in Calcutta seating 2000.

1. The origin and general character of the work should be recalled. See Dr. Reid's History, Vol. 11; Manual for April, 1882. This Mission was begun by Rev. William Taylor, who, on invitation from Dr. Thoburn and others, visited the North India Mission in Nov., 1870. He was particularly interested for the conversion of the European and Indian population. Religious indifference and immorality among these classes, he has found a most serious obstruction to the progress of the gospel with the heathen. The Eurasians number 150,000 in the seaports and railway towns in India. Many occupy lucrative positions in military or civil service, or in the schools. They had been much neglected by the Missions in India, but are nominally Christian, and, if spiritually awakened, might become an example for power and good toward the heathen and Mohammedans.

Mr. Taylor's work in laying the foundations for the South India Mission began with his English preaching at Bombay, Nov., 1871. Numbers were converted; "fellowship bands" were formed, which were soon organized into a Methodist Church. Lay helpers came forward. In July, 1872, Mr. Taylor opened the work at Poona, with immediate success. Before the end of the year James Shaw, a Bible [illegible] became a local [illegible] Mission. Rev. [illegible] the Bombay Guardian, identified himself with it, and Rev. W. E. Robbins came from the United States. Year by year the Mission extended its field, and reinforcements were sent out from America; several converts became preachers, and some preachers have joined from the Wesleyans. Early in 1873 Mr. Taylor began preaching at Calcutta, making progress with great difficulty—"The hardest work of my life." A chapel was erected with aid from Bombay. Dr. Thoburn was sent to Calcutta, the new Mission being brought into connection with the India Conference at the session of 1874. There were then about 500 members, scattered through Bengal, Bombay, Central India, and the Deccan, with ten preachers. Soon after the Conference Mr. Taylor went to Madras, where he had abundant success; as also at Bangalore in Mysore, while the revival spread to various places along the railroads in the Madras Presidency. Mr. Taylor returned to the United States in 1874, the three districts of Bombay, Calcutta, and Madras being respectively left in charge of Messrs. Bowen, Thoburn, and Hard. The Calcutta district was extended northward toward the Himalayas, and westward toward Bombay, but, in 1880, the interior appointments were mostly erected into the fourth district of Allahabad. The new work at Rangoon, opened in 1879, is connected with the Calcutta district.

The strength of the Churches, financially and otherwise, may be gathered from the Annual Report for 1881. Considerable aid has been obtained by private application in America for the work in South India. The Church property is valued at $148,200. For the difference in the North and South India Missions in relation to self-support, see the January Manual, p. 35. There is no self-supporting work in our Missions outside of those originated by Mr. Taylor. The work of this able and devoted Missionary is peculiar in that it professes to contain no other than self-supporting churches.

II. With an enlarged map of India, note the geographical situation of this Mission. The great territorial expansion and importance of this field appear at a glance. A proper understanding of this field and its future possibilities involve considerable knowledge of the different cities and the population of the country. (1) Bengal Presidency. Calcutta (population 684,000), sprung up since since 1700, is now, in point of wealth and commerce, the chief city in Asia. The city was the scene of Dr. Duff's celebrated Educational Missionary labors, begun in 1830, a system extended to Madras, Bombay, and elsewhere, and noteworthy for its influence on the Government educational policy, and as a model for this portion of Mission work. In Calcutta have also labored the Gospel Propogation Society, Church Missionary Society, London Missionary Society, English Baptist, Wesleyans, Church of Scotland, and three Woman's Societies, with an aggregate now of over 60 missionaries. The same societies (Woman's excepted), extend their work through Lower Bengal, with the Gossner Mission in Chota Nagpore, an aggregate of about 40 missionaries. (2) Bombay Presidency. Bombay (population 753,000), is probably destined to surpass Calcutta as a commercial metropolis. Here are besides the Hindoos, perhaps 150,000 Mohammedans, 50,000 Parsees, and a few thousand each of certain other sects. Nominal Christians were a few years ago reckoned at about 30,000 This city is the capital of the Mahratta country which extends all the way down the western coast, beyond the limits of the Bombay Presidency, and inland in triangular form with its apex at Nagpore. The Mahrattas (11,000,000), a warlike race, of the Ayran stock, have contended with the Mohammedans for the Empire of India as also with the British, a fact which seems to render them less approachable. In Bombay the same societies are at work as in Calcutta except the London Society, and two Woman's Societies, in addition to the American Board; all aggregating over 27 missionaries. Within the Presidency the American Board have a number of stations (Ahmednuggur and others), and also the Basel Societies and the two English Church Societies, aggregate over 32 missionaries. (3) Madras Presidency. Madras (population 406,000), though a noted seaport has no harbor and there is none on the 17,000 miles of coast. The Hindoo population of the city are Tamils and Telugus. This city and country have long been the scene of missionary labors and no region is more inviting. In the Presidency, besides the above-mentioned societies, are the Hermannsburg and Leipzig, the American and Canadin Baptists, American Lutheran and Dutch Reform, with others, and over 22[illegible] missionaries. Tinnevelly, in the extreme south, is known as a field of success for the Church Missionary Society (50,000 adherents.) The Gospel Propagation Society has 20,000. In Travencore, west coast, the C. M. S. has 20,000, Mayalaim and the London Missionary Society, 40,000 Tamils. At Madura, in the South, the American Board has an important mission. The wonderful success of the American Baptists (20,000 members and 80,000 adherents) among the Telugus of Ongole (200 miles north of Madras) is well known. The Tamils of this region extending down the coast to Ceylon, number some 15,000,000, as do the Telugus, who are found largely in the Nizam's Dominions.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The Season for August, a large quarto illustrated fashion magazine, has been received from the International News Company, New York. Price 30 cents. A sheet of patterns accompany it.

The Musical Herald, of Boston, for July, has a portrait of Dr. Louis Maas, and editorial notes, pieces of music, etc., of the usual meritorious kind.

Our Little Ones for August is fresh and inviting.

The August Wide Awake is notable for some very beautiful drawings of girls with flowers. Among the good short stories is a true one of old frontier life, in which figures Simon Kenton, the famous Kentucky backwoodsman. A long instalment is also given of "The Trojan War," full of fun worthy of school-boys deep in the classics. An art article entitled "John Angelo Visits the Water Color Exhibition," gives the young people a very clear idea of the spectacle which yearly interests thousands of sightseers in New York City. It has thirty-one engravings and fac simile sketches of prominent pictures. The Chautauqua Reading Course abounds in good things; but the charm of the number to hosts of young folks will be the sparkling operetta, "The Rebellion of the Daisies." Only $2 50 per year. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers.

St. Nicholas has made the August issue a great travel number. Its stories and articles deal of persons and things all over the world. And the stay at-home folk can pick out a cool corner, when they find one, and go from Norway to Turkey, from Egypt to Lake George, without any of the worry and inconvenience of boats and trains, of stages, sledges, or camels.

"An Aboriginal Pilgrimage." is the title of an illustrated article by Sylvester Baxter, in the forthcoming Midsummer Holiday Century, descriptive of the recent trip of the Zuni Indians to Boston for the purpose of bringing back to Zuni sacred water from "the Ocean of Sunrise." This will be followed by several papers by Mr. Frank H. Cushing, under whose leadership the Zunis came East, who will describe his unique experiences during the years he has spent among this tribe as the first white man ever adopted into its fellowship.

Mr. M. A. Whiteley, Toledy, Ohio, writes: "After trying all advertised medicines for nervous weakness and early decay, I gave up in dispair and resigned myself to the seemingly inevitable—a premature grave. Happening to bear a druggist recommend Brown's Iron Bitters for dizziness, I bought myself a bottle. I am most agreeably surprised to find myself restored to perfect health, strength and manhood. I feel sure the cure is permement, yet in future I intend to observe more carefully the laws of health."

NEW BOOKS.

We thank the Rev. J. H. Potts, associate Editor of the Michigan Advocate for a copy of his book entitled "Methodism in the Field." It is an interesting, able, and practicable compendium of every phase of Methodism, and desrves a place in every Methodist library.

"A Woman's Perils; or Driven from Home," by Mrs. James C. Cook, of Columbus, Georgia, is one of the latest novels from the press of T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia. Price 75 cents. As its name indicates it is sensational and full of incidents.

"Scripture Baptism; the Mode and Subjects," a sermon by Rev. A Shotwell, issued by the Presbyterian Publishing Company, of Richmond, Virginia, has reached its fourth edition. This sermon was delivered as an answer to the criticism that immersion is the only mode of baptism sanctioned by the Bible. Price 10c.

Weakness of the joints and muscles, impurity of the blood, urinary catarrh, and other disordered organic functions, permanently cured by using Brown's Iron Bitters. It strengthens the affected parts, infuses new life, new health and new vigor into the whole general system, and makes life seem well worth living.

Be Wise and Happy.
If you will stop all your extravigant and wrong notions in doctoring yourself and family with expensive doctors or humbug cure-alls, that do harm always, and use only nature's simple remedies for all your ailments—you will be wise, well and happy, and save great expense. The greatest remedy for this, the great, wise and good will tell you, is Hop Bitters—rely on it.—Press.

A very important lawsuit has been decided in Austria. The question was whether parents who had for conscience' sake left the Romish Church should be allowed to bring up their children according to their own religious convictions. The Goverment has decided in the negative, and had ordered, under pains and penalties, that such children be taken to the Romish priest for baptism and instruction. The Supreme Court of Law has canceled the Government order, and lodges the responsibility and privilege of determining the religious status of children with the parents.

MOTHERS READ.

GENTS:—About nine years ago I had a child two years old and almost dead. The doctor I had attending her could not tell what ailed her. I asked him if he did not think it was worms. He said no. However, this did not satisfy me, as I felt convinced in my own mind that she had. I obtained a bottle of DR. C. McLANE'S CELEBRATED VERMIFUGE (genuine). I gave her a teaspoonful in the morning and another at night, after which she passed seventy-two worms and was a well child. Since then I have never been without it in my family. The health of my children remained so good that I had neglected watching their actions until about three weeks ago, when two of them presented the same sickly appearance that Fanny did nine years ago. So I thought it must be worms, and went to work at once with a bottle of DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE between four of my children, their ages being as follows: Alice, 8 years; Charley, 4 years; Emma, 6 years; John, 9 years. Now comes the result: Alice and Emma came out all right, but Charley passed forty-five and Johnny about sixty worms. The result was so gratifying that I spent two days in showing the wonderful effect of your Vermifuge around Utica, and now have the worms on exhibition in my store.
Yours truly, JOHN PIPER.

Reminding the Hen.

"It's well I ran into the garden,"
Said Eddie, his face all aglow;
"For what do you think, mamma, happened?
You never will guess it, I know.

"The little brown hen was there clucking;
'Cut-cut!' she'd say, quick as a wink,
Then 'cut-cut' again, only slower;
And then she would stop short and think.

"And then she would say it all over,
She did look so mad and so vexed;
For, mamma, do you know she'd forgotten
The word that she ought to cluck next.

"So I said, 'Ca-daw-cut, Ca-daw-cut,'
As loud and as long as I could;
And she looked round at me very thankful,
I tell you it made her feel good.

"Then she flapped, and said 'Cut-cut-ca-daw-cut,'
She remembered just how it went then.
But it's well I ran into the garden—
She might never have clucked right again."

—Bessie Chandler, in St. Nicholas.

A Mother's Devotion.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate
A Necessity.

Dr. C. O. Files, Portland, Me., says: "Of all the samples of medicines sent me during the last dozen years, it is the only one I have ever found which has become a necessity in my own household."

In China a man who makes or sells adulterated food is imprisoned or hanged. In this country it is the man who buys the adulterated food who has to suffer. The other fellow acquires five inches of fat on his ribs, and is elected to positions of honor and trust. The Chinese must go. Some of their customs are subversive of our most cherished institutions.—Evangelist.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

E. D. Osborn, Centreville: "Elder Cushman held our second quarter and was warmly received by our pastor and the congregation. After his sermon 24 came forward for prayers. We gave the Elder this quarter $6, and are only sorry we could not give him $6 more."

Geo. A. Payne, Convent: "Elder Dale held our first conference June 4. We were not able for more than a month to get into our little church on account of high water. We are thankful to the agent of Mrs. Willman's plantation for his generosity in giving us a house to meet in. The church at College Point is moving on."

P. F. Robinson, Shady Grove: "We have started Live Oak Church on. The people are flocking to the cross, and doing all they can for me. We will give an entertainment and tableaux for the benefit of missions."

W. A. Primus, Baton Rouge: "We have three Sunday-schools, one organized as a missionary society. We will organize for temperance."

Frank Walker, Monroe: "I am doing all I can to circulate the SOUTHWESTERN. I hope to see our work spread all over this country. I think we ought to have another district; the Shreveport district is too large. Have received thirty into the church since conference. There are 103 on the Sunday-school roll. Cotton crop is good."

A. J. Pickett, Pleasant Hill: "Our presiding elder was with us on the 8th and 9th of July, and held our second quarterly conference, and he preached powerful sermons in the new church. The people are very poor, and have done all they could toward building, and we will complete the church with $100 from the Church Extension Society. One of the oldest Methodists of Pleasant Hill, Church South, prayed for us in our conference. I hope to see the time come when all shall unite with us. Elder Duncan's appearance among these poor people has done a great deal of good in lifting them up to the kingdom of God. I desire to give the Pleasant Hill white friends thanks for their donation in helping us in building the church and parsonage. Here are the names: T. E. Gadis $2, H. H. Kennedy, 14 lbs. nails, cash $2 50, W. C. Gooch 55c, I. F. Herrell $1, R. A. Carpenter $1, B. L. Armstrong $2, Wm. Hampton $1 50, L. B. Phigpen 50c, W. A. Baxley 50c, L. Armstrong, Jr., $2. With one hundred dollars the church will be out of debt. May God bless those white friends."

TEXAS.

Thomas Wadkins, Rockdale: "[illegible] had eight conversions this [illegible] year. We have no church or [illegible] build us. The membership [illegible] slowly. Children's Day [illegible]. The collection at [illegible] $7 75.

are doing all we can for the Conference Seminary."

S. Allen, San Augustine: "My congregation ranges from fifteen to twenty-five, with two or three faithful workers. I am doing all I can to build up spiritually. Members have paid me on salary $28, moving expenses $12 50; paid to the elder $1 90. Two received on probation. Most of the people here belong to to the Colored M. E. Church, and they put every thing in our way to keep us from getting along. We have no church at Nacogdoches."

Lee Reed, Luling: "Rev. G. O. Richardson held our third quarterly meeting for us yesterday. The pastor reported 124 converts and 65 adult baptisms. The membership has increased from 72 to 181. Camp meeting begins July 14, and we expect to gather the harvest of which we have had the first fruits. Thirty dollars was subscribed for the West Texas Conference Seminary to be paid at the next quarterly meeting. Nearly every adult present subscribed $1, and did it with a relish."

A. M. Masor; Centreville: "My second conference was held by Rev. A. M. Carmichael. Collection $3 15. I expect to start a protracted meeting soon at Mission Valley."

Catarrh of the Bladder.

Stinging, smarting, irritation of the urinary passages, diseased discharges, cured by Buchupaiba. $1, at druggists. Louisiana Depot, I. L. LYONS, New Orleans, La.

The Princess Olive Lubin, only child of Faustin I., Emperor of Hayti, arrived in New York City from Port au Prince on the 31 inst. She contemplates making an extended but unostentatious tour in this country. The Princess is some thirty-six years of age, possessed of large wealth, and, while not absolutely black, she is exceedingly dark of complexion. She is said to possess jewels and ornaments of barbaric costliness, but is stated as exceedingly quiet and simple in her attire and tastes.

Brain and Nerve.

Well's Health Renewer, the greatest remedy on earth for impotence, leanness, sexual debility, etc. $1, at druggists. Louisiana Depot, I. L. LYONS, New Orleans, La.

Gen. Dix, when Governor of New York, in a message to the Legislature, said: "Intemperance is the undoubted source of four fifths of all the crime, pauperism and domestic misery of the State, and I am anxious to suppress it by all just and effectual measures of legislation. I have never doubted the propriety of adopting such measures of legislation as are needed to secure this result. It lies within the direction of popular liberty."

Good for Babies.

When I have a baby at breast nothing is so useful for quieting my own and baby's nerves as Parker's Ginger Tonic. It prevents bowel complaint and is better than any stimulant to give strength and appetite.—A Newark Mother.

Our Representatives do not seem well pleased with their chances for re-election under the new election law just passed by the Legislature at its last session. One of them, we understand, interviewed a prominent Democrat at the time the bill was before the House, and asked him if he did not know that the bill, if passed, meant the death of the negro. "Why," said the Democrat, "the nigger died long ago, we are only preparing for his burial."—Terrebonne Times.

A Valuable Addition.

Because it is beneficial to the scalp and adds to personal beauty by restoring color and lustre to gray or faded hair is why Parker's Hair Balsam is such a popular dressing.

Voting, like the transactions of trade, must, with religious people, come under the sway of conscience.

DELICATE PERSONS

And all those whose systems have become debilitated, should bear in mind that Simmons Liver Regulator is not a drastic purging medicine, therefore does not weaken or deplete the system as all purgatives do; it induces daily natural evacuations without straining, griping or pain; therefore its action being so gentle invigorates the bowels and tends to make the habit of the body regular, assisting nature rather than forcing it, thereby preventing as well as curing constipation, and the many diseases arising therefrom, the most common of which are piles, which are produced by constipation and increased by purgatives. It will be found most appropriate for ladies and delicate persons; as they very frequently suffer from Sick Headache and Acidity of the Stomach, principally caused by costiveness. Owing to its mild action it can even be taken by the weak and debilitated at all times and under all circumstances with perfect safety. As a Medicine the Regulator is invaluable, by encouraging the prompt clearing out of the excess of bile which would undoubtedly prove injurious. From its gentle action as well as its pleasant taste it is most peculiarly adapted for Children, acting so soothingly, never irritating the stomach of the most delicate Child. Thereby saving them from the ravages of diseases so common to infancy and youth.

The bed-ridden, the most delicate home-bound invalid need not hesitate to use the Regulator, and mothers and nurses may give it to children for their most distressing complaint with the utmost confidence in its safety. We say, without fear of contradiction, that there is not on the whole face of the globe its equal at the present moment, or another medicine so far-reaching or that meets with such unvarying, such invariable success in the cure of all diseases of the liver, kidney and bowels. Beware of Counterfeits; take only the genuine [illegible] wrapper with red "Z" in front prepared [illegible] H. Zeilin & Co.

It was a beautiful thought that was illustrated on Decoration Day, by selecting little children to strew the flowers on the graves of the men who fought and fell for THE UNION. Love of country, as well as devotion to home and friends, should be implanted early in children's minds and hearts, and by no more effectual means can this be secured than by their participation in those services which honor these noble men and their brave deeds.—N. E. Journal of Education.

The situation in Egypt has been complicated by the action of Turkey, but England is preparing an expedition against Arabi Pasha and for the restoration of order.

Brain Workers.

The complicated diseases arising from an overworked brain or excessive nervous excitement, should not be neglected, lest they end in insanity and a premature grave. Heed such symptoms as nervous debility, blotches, skin diseases, dizziness, nervousness, dimness of sight, cough, indigestion, catarrh of the bladder, and general despondency. When thus afflicted, make haste to use Brown's Iron Bitters. It strengthens mind and body exhausted by disease and suffering, is the truest of all life-giving tonics, and nature's best assistant in restoring the proper functions to every organ affected. It will surely cure you, for it has cured thousands.

A sailor, just off a whaling expedition, asked where he would hear good preaching. On his return from church his friend said to him: "You do not seem to have liked the sermon?" "Not much; it was like a ship leaving for the whale-fishing—everything shipshape, anchors, cordage, sails all right; but there were no harpoons on board."

No Good Preaching.

No man can do a good job of work, preach a good sermon, try a law suit well, doctor a patient, or write a good article when he feels miserable and dull, with sluggish brain and unsteady nerves, and none should make the attempt in such a condition when it can be so easily and cheaply removed by a little Hop Bitters.—Albany Times.

It requires more courage to say from the heart, Not my will, but thine be done, than it requires to lead a charge on a line of artillery.

From Dr. S. W. Hunter, Baltimore.

Having become familiar with COLDEN'S LIEBIG'S LIQUID EXTRACT OF BEEF AND TONIC INVIGORATOR I take pleasure in recommending it as an excellent preparation, combining as it does food and tonic in a remarkable way, producing good blood, health and strength. Johnny came home from school very much excited. "What do you think, pa, Joe Steward, one of the big boys, had an argument with the teacher about a question in grammar!" "What position did Joe take?" "His last position was across a chair with his face down."

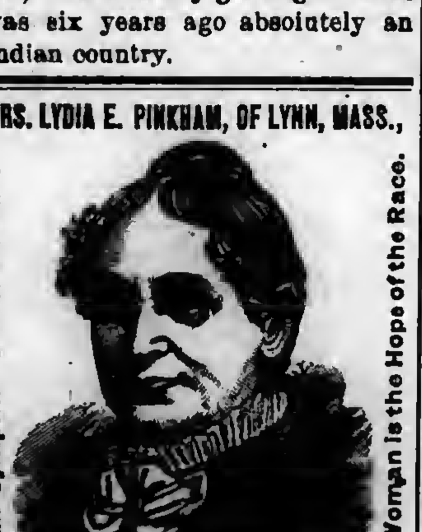
Bad temper often proceeds from those painful disorders to which women are subject. In female complaints Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" is a certain cure.

A letter from Fort McKinney states that cattle valued at $13,500,000 are calmly grazing in what was six years ago absolutely an Indian country.

MRS. LYDIA E. PINKHAM, OF LYNN, MASS.,



LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

A GENEROUS ACT

That Will be Appreciated by All Who Care for their Complexion or Skin.

It is not generally known that the nervous system has a wonderful influence over the skin, but this is a fact known to medical men who have given much of their time to the study of diseases of the skin. No one can have a clear and fair complexion unmixed with blotches and pimples who is very nervous.

Whatever tends to a healthful condition of the nervous system always beautifies the complexion and removes dryness and roughness of the skin. Some skin diseases are not attended by visible signs on the surface, but an intolerable itching that renders life miserable.

We copy the following deserving and interesting compliment from the Tribune which says: "Dr. C. W. Benson's New Remedy, 'SKIN CURE,' is received by the public with great confidence, and it is regarded as a very generous act on the Doctor's part to make known and prepare for general use his valuable and favorite prescription for the treatment of skin diseases, after having devoted almost his entire life to the study and treatment of nervous and skin diseases, in which he took great delight. He was for a number of years Physician in charge of the Maryland Infirmary on Dermatology and anything from his hands is at once accepted as authority and valuable. The remedy is fully the article to attack the disease both internally, through the blood, and externally, through the absorbents, and is the only reliable and rational mode of treatment. These preparations are only put up for general use after having been used by the Doctor in his private practice for years, with the greatest success, and they fully merit the confidence of all classes of sufferers from skin diseases." This is for sale by all druggists. Two bottles, internal and external treatment, in one package. Don't be persuaded to take any other. It costs one dollar.

OH, MY HEAD!

WHY WILL YOU SUFFER?

Sick headache, nervous headache, neuralgia, nervousness, paralysis, dyspepsia, sleeplessness, and brain diseases, positively cured by Dr. Benson's Celery and Chamomile Pills. They contain no opium, quinine, or other harmful drug.

Sold by druggists. Price, 50 cents a box. Depot 106 North Eutaw St., Baltimore, Md. By mail, two boxes for $1, or six boxes for $2.50, to any address.

Standard of Silver

As a rule the quality of Government Coin has been the standard on which Silversmiths have based their quality. The Standard of United States Coin is 900-1000 copper or other alloy. The standard of Great Britain is 925/1000 pure silver to 75-1000 alloy.

Our leading Silversmiths, the GORHAM COMPANY, adopted the English standard many years ago, and so careful has been the surveillance over the quality of their ware, that not a SINGLE PIECE has been known to leave their Factory under the standard. So well is this now understood that their trade mark [trade mark] is as well known to all purchasers of Solid Silver in this country as is STERLING the Hall Mark of England, as a sure guarantee for a pure metal.

Lost Friends.

[We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers. All others will be charged fifty cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.]

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to find James Parchman, who lived in Lafayette county, Tennessee, and aged about forty years. He left Lafayette to go to Okolona, Miss., about 25 years ago. He lived with Jeff Parchman; his mother, Katie, with James Parchman, who came to Texas 33 years ago. I wish all colored congregations to diligently inquire for James Parchman. Address me at Laredo, Texas.

A. J. TURNER.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my father's people. His father was Draper, mother Eliza; their five children were Rafe, John, Louis, Martha and Rhoda. They belonged to Jim Spermon, Newberry district, South Carolina. The inquirers are Walter and Ransom Higgins, children of Harry Spermon. Address me at Mashulaville, Miss.

WALTER HIGGINS.

DEAR EDITOR—I desire to find my people. I have been away from New Orleans eight years and have never heard from them during that time. My father's name is Samuel Harris, he was well known, blind, and very old. I had three brothers, Thomas, Joseph and Eugene Harris; my sisters are married. One married John Vinson, others maiden names were Amy and Taragi Harris. We were raised together and went to the orphan school in the hospital on Common street. Address me at Grand Cane City, La.

HENRY HARRIS.

DEAR EDITOR—I desire to enquire for my daughter that I left in Tipton county, Tenn., in 1856. She belonged to Mealey Carothers. We came to Texas in 1856. I belonged to McCarey. My daughter's name was Mary Ann. We have got a few thousand dollars worth of property for some one and I prefer my child should have it all. My children that I had in Texas are dead. My name is Caroline Williams, now the wife of Rev. B. F. Williams. Address Rev. B. F. Williams, Richmond, Texas.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in the mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver, or biliousness. In many cases of liver complaint only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" has no equal, as it effects perfect and radical cures. At all drug stores.

To be successful in manhood, acquire habits of order in youth.

EARS FOR THE MILLION!

Foo Choo's Balsam of Shark's Oil

Positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.

This Oil is abstracted from peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as Carcharodon Rondeletii. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese People. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1 per bottle.

HEAR WHAT THE DEAF SAY!

It has performed a miracle in my case.
I have no unearthly noises in my head and hear much better.
I have been greatly benefited.
My deafness helped a great deal—think another bottle will cure me.

"Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer can personally testify, both from experience and observation. Write at once to Haylock & Jenney, 7 Dey street New York, enclosing $1, and you will receive by return a remedy that will enable you to hear like anybody else, and whose curative effects will be permanent. HARTER'S IRON TONIC.

A combination of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark and Phosphorus in a palatable form. The only preparation of iron that will not blacken the teeth, so characteristic of other iron preparations.

GENTLEMEN: I have used DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Diseases, Dyspepsia, and an impoverished condition of the blood, this peerless remedy, has in my hands, made some wonderful cures. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians, have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC is a necessity in my practice. DR. ROBERT SAMUELS, ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 26th, 1881. 3104 Wash Avenue.

It gives color to the blood, natural healthful tone to the digestive organs and nervous system, making it applicable to General Debility, Loss of Appetite, Prostration of Vital Powers and Impotence.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases, caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel, or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

To My Mother.

The lines beneath are said to have been written by a convict in the Ohio penitentiary. The writer may have suffered the shame of a felon's sentence and worn a convict's stripes, but still we believe that at heart he must have been a good man:

I've wandered far from thee, mother—
Far from my happy home—
I've left the land that gave me birth,
In other climes to roam;
And time since than has rolled its years,
And marked them on my brow;
Yet I have often thought of thee—
I'm thinking of thee now.

I'm thinking of thee now, mother,
When at my tender side,
You watched the dawning of my youth,
And kissed me in your pride;
Then brightly was my heart lit up
With hopes of future joy;
While your bright fancy honors wove
To deck your darling boy.

I'm thinking of the day, mother,
When, with an anxious care,
You [illegible] your heart to heaven—
Your hope, your trust, was there.
Fond memory brings your parting word,
While tears rolled down your cheek;
The long, last loving look, told more
Than ever words could speak.

I'm far away from thee, mother,
No friend is near me now
To soothe me with a tender word,
Or cool my burning brow.
The dearest ties affection wove
Are all now torn from me,
They left me when the trouble came—
They did not love like thee.

I'm lonely and forsaken now,
Unpitied and unblessed;
Yet, still, I would not have you know
How sorely I'm distressed.
I know you would not chide me, mother,
You would not give me blame,
But soothe me with your tender words,
And bid me hope again.

I would not have you know, mother,
How brightest hopes decay;
The tempter, with his baleful cup,
Has dashed them all away;
And shame has left its venom sting
To rack with anguish wild;
Yet, still, I would not have thee know
The sorrows of thy child.

Oh, I have wandered far, mother,
Since I deserted thee,
And left your trusting heart to break,
Beyond the deep, blue sea.
Oh, mother, still I love thee well,
And long to hear thee speak,
And feel again thy balmy breath
Upon my careworn cheek.

But, oh! there is a thought, mother—
[illegible] my bleeding breast,
That thy fond spirit may have flown
To its eternal rest.
And while I wipe the tears away,
There sounds upon my ear
A voice that speaks of heaven and thee,
And bids me seek thee there.

Observations from Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., July 19, 1882.

To the Presiding Elders and Ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Southern States: [illegible] me to suggest a few things for your consideration. You are [illegible] that we as ministers in the [illegible] Episcopal Church, have [illegible] common foes to contend with, [illegible] 1. the Devil; 2, the ministers of the A. M. E. Church; and, [illegible] the ministers and members of [illegible] Church. It is very [illegible] for us to have the Devil to [illegible] here, for it is his mission [illegible] all the trouble that he [illegible] not be true to himself [illegible] if he did not [illegible] of every opportunity [illegible] something for [illegible]. Because [illegible] is opposed [illegible] and strives [illegible] him to [illegible] to ours to get the victory over him when he uses his proper agents It is expected, also, that his proper agents will faithfully do their work. But he has other agents at work for him that are not called his strictly, but he uses them just the same. These agents are ministers and members of some other churches. But, after all, we might as well expect to have the ministers and members of the Baptist Churches to contend with as the evil one, because they and the Devil hate us as a Church alike. Therefore it is as natural for them to to try to obstruct our way as it is for the Devil. They teach doctrines that are just as destructive to the soul as sin itself; viz.: Close communion, once in Christ and never out, and except ye are baptized by immersion, and that by a Baptist minister, and join the Baptist Church, you cannot get to heaven. So in order to carry out this last point, they spare no pains to get all they can to believe it.

I have held several revivals since I have been a minister, and I have never had much trouble in getting the Baptists to attend my church in localities where they have a church, and especially if I were having conversions. They would be there to advise as to what Church the converts ought to join, and to drag them down in the river. Not long since, a Baptist preacher said to a young lady who had joined our Church that she ought to be put in jail for joining that Methodist Church. In the revivals we hold in some communities we have to work just as hard to keep the Baptists from taking our converts as we do to get them loose from the devil and destruction.

The ministers of the African Methodist Episcopal Church are just as bad, or worse. In many cases they tell broad and square-faced falsehoods to build up the Church of God. If they go into a community to organize where we have no organization, but a few scattering members, they tell them that their Church is the M. E. Church and fool them into it. They sometimes tell the people that move to our State and locate in the country, that we have not a preacher in the State. They say very often that their Church is the oldest Methodist in the world. I knew a presiding elder of this Church who went into a community where we had a society, while our preacher was away attending our annual conference, and said to the stewards and members that he had been appointed as presiding elder, and one of his preachers he had with him as pastor in charge of the work in the place of the minister they had the year before. He also said that the church had not been organized just right, and he set a time when he would hold a quarterly meeting for them and organize the society right. But before their time came to hold their quarterly meeting the preacher of our own Church arrived and took charge and saved them the trouble of organizing. In the rural districts, they tell the people that the schools we have in the South are theirs. And quite a number of like things they tell all over this country. But I want to suggest a plan to see if we cannot prevent them hereafter from having this horse to ride into success on.

Last fall, quite a large number of our Church members came from South Carolina to this State, and we have lost very near all of them, because these ministers said to them that we did not have a preacher in the State. Now, if the ministers of our Church would keep close watch after their members, and let none move without a Church letter, and as far as possible find out what State and what part of the State they are going to, and then let the pastor write to the pastor of the charge or to the presiding elder of the district and tell him that certain members are coming, and that they contemplate locating in a certain place, naming the place, they could be looked after. Respectfully yours,

G. W. SAMS.

Cincinnati colored pupils maintain their efficiency. Recently the Daily Commercial, of that city, published a lengthy list of problems to be solved by pupils of the public schools. Answers from every source were returned. Among them a few from the colored pupils. To the surprise of every one, but to the white people especially, a colored boy, named [illegible] K. Polk, gave the best [illegible] answers and carried off the [illegible] Conservator.

Sabbath-Schools.

The following essay was read by Miss Fannie F. Falkner, St. Paul Sabbath-school, Ripley, Miss., June 11, 1882, and is published by request:

Ladies and Gentlemen—We of the nineteenth century have many privileges that those living in earlier days never dreamed of, and one of the greatest of these is our Sabbath schools. Whether we enjoy this privilege or not it is with us. The opportunity to avail ourselves of knowledge of the way that leads to God is at our command, and if we plead ignorance of Bible teachings many of us may be reminded that it is willful ignorance if we live within reach of one of our many Sabbath-schools. We should each one of us deem it our duty as well as privilege to help to forward this good cause, and we fear that many will stand reproved for not working to build up Sunday-schools in neighborhoods where there are none, but might be, if those who had ability had also the will to do their duty, even though it be a cross. We need Sunday-school workers, praying superintendents, praying teachers, and well-behaved scholars, both old and young, who desire to learn of Jesus and His love. But as all do not desire to learn of Jesus our work should be the more zealous and prayerful, and implore Divine aid to teach aright God's holy Word. And we must say that the Sunday-school is spiritual as well as pleasant and temporal. How much better is it to the sight of any one's eyes to see children on their forward march to one or the other Sabbath schools, young ladies and gentlemen as well as children, than to lounge about the streets all the Sabbath day. Civil service reform will come when people demand it with intelligent earnestness; as yet they are scarcely half awake to its importance. All of this. The peculiar economy of our Sunday-schools faithfully administered educates its adherents to broad views of Christian relationship and obligation. It holds unselfish devotion to a cause to be paramount to all personal and local considerations. It is as every church ought to be, a school of practical Christianity. In efficient operation it is a sublime exemplification of the spirit of a religion whose initial demand is self-denial, and whose mission is the salvation of the world to build up and carry on good workers. No loftier examples of uncalculating devotion and unflinching heroism can be found than a recorded Sabbath-school. The best elements of its membership, having an intelligent grasp of its principles, and imbued with its spirit, presents a type of Christian character and conduct. Sabbath-school comes under the universal law that for the best things you must pay for value received. Does any one demur to these statements? Nay, nay, if it were not so our Sabbath-schools would break down in a single revolution of their mighty wheel. Herein is the providential provision that guarantees its future as it has guided its past. Our Sabbath-schools have stood all the strains put upon them in the past, and seem to be rousing themselves for a greater triumph. The few who can not keep step in the path of self-sacrifice may fall out of the ranks but the host will march on. But, as heretofore, the only distinction sought by its champions will be that they may labor more abundantly and take the post of peril. Sunday-schools still survive and will express themselves in word or deed wherever or whenever occasion demands it. How honorable is this great work of Sabbath-schools. Blessed is he that endureth, he shall come forth as gold from a furnace of sorrow. His baptism of fire shall bring him closer communion with the Lord; it shall fit him for a better service in a world of sin and pain. Go on Sabbath-schools, it will prepare you for a more abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom, and for eternal and joyful companionship with the white robed millions upon the mount of God.

Every ship that comes to America got its chart from Columbus. Every novel is a debtor to Homer. Every carpenter who shaves with a foreplane borrows the genius of a forgotten inventor. Life is girt all around with a zodiac of sciences, the contributions of men who have perished to add their point of light to our sky.—Emerson.

The Living Spirit of Caste.

BY D. W. HAYS.

My own observation, confirmed by reports which have come to me from various sources, has led to the knowledge of the fact that certain persons, noted especially for the flagrant manner in which they endeavor to misrepresent our Church, are going about asserting that young people of color, however pious and well educated, have no rational ground upon which to predicate the hope of being promoted within her pale. They seem to draw heavily upon their imagination, and sometimes I am inclined to believe, at the expense of their veracity, in order to make it appear that the Methodist Episcopal Church, while giving lavishly for the education of her colored adherents, is at the same time opposed to their occupying those positions of honor and trust in her gift for which they may possess the requisite fitness. They have been known to assume the right to command our people, particularly the young and promising, to come out of the Old Church, assuring them that their manhood and womanhood would never be acknowledged while they remained in the fellowship of this Church. When discovering, as they most always do, that their efforts to proselyte prove a failure, they exclaim with an audacity no less remarkable than their evident lack of integrity, "Why will you consent to remain in slavery to the white man? Why don't you come out from among them and be free!" Now if this were done through ignorance, some allowance could be made when administering deserved censure, but the truth is, these parties know that the assertions they repeatedly make are false and intended to mislead. I know that white persons can be found here and there in whom the spirit of caste is yet alive, and who would perhaps look with unqualified disfavor upon any attempt to give to the colored brethren increased prominence and power. But certainly no one needs to be told that such constitute only a small minority, and that they do not by any means voice the sentiment of the great Church relating to its treatment of the colored membership. The majority, among whom are to be found some of the purest and wisest men and women under the sun, give their money and their prayers toward the education and training of our colored youth, with the expectation of seeing them employ their talents to the greatest advantage in whatever station in the Church they may be adapted to, whether it be as preachers, elders, bishops, missionaries, editors, or teachers. It they at any time seem slow in urging them forward for higher positions, the reason will be seen in their earnest desire to have them the better prepared to shoulder the responsibilities when laid upon them. They are thoroughly committed to the advancement of worthy candidates, however dark their complexion. Of this they have given ample proof. Hardly had Richmond taken its place on the roll as the last of the conquered strongholds of the Southern Confederacy, when they invaded this region of country with their men, money, schools, and churches, to help in the work of elevating the poor and oppressed. Every day since, without an hour's relaxation, they have kept up the appliances. Tell me they will despise the diamonds the obtaining of which has cost so much sacrifice! Say, rather, they will give them, when polished, a conspicuous setting, and prize them as the most valuable because the latest found. Let our educated young people, whatever their ambition, abide in the church of their choice. Their ability and worth will in due time be recognized.

Chattanooga, Tenn.

The dispatches state that on the 20th inst. "the House" at Washington "unseated Gen. Shelley, of Alabama, a man who was never elected, but has occupied a seat in Congress for the last five years. Really, it does not seem to make much difference whether a man is elected to Congress or not. If he can manage to get a "seat" there, he can feel tolerably sure that it will take at least a year to turn him out, in which time he pockets several thousand dollars, and can always say, and his children after him, that he has "been to Congress."—Chicago Standard.

LaTeche Seminary.

DEAR EDITOR—We are making battle for LaTeche Seminary. Our effort is to raise money for a new dormitory. The raising of money for our Southern work is hard and slow, but the toilers know that God's promises are sure. While dollars come at the hardest, riches of grace pour in upon us with a value that money cannot represent. We have just commenced the effort and have received the following: One cash donation, $25; one pledge, $50; two other pledges, $20; small cash contributions, $3. One good man, the Rev. S. H. Platt, of N. Y. E. Conference, proposes to give us $500 in the following way: We are to sell the Whispers of Peace, a quarterly of eight 4to pages in each number, edited and published by himself, at 10 cents per annum, the receipts to be ours without discount. It is a thoroughly religious periodical, whose motto is: "To proclaim the subversion of all bad habits by the energy of the Holy Spirit; to encourage expectation of physical healing in answer to the prayer of faith; to bring the needs of man to the helpfulness of God." This paper is full of good, wholesome thought and practical truth. The matter, both original and selected, is of a very high order. One dollar will purchase ten copies for a year, ten dollars 100 copies. There can be nothing better as a tract for distribution everywhere, and especially among the youth that are found in our higher schools and in the Bible classes of our Sunday schools. All orders will be promptly filled; subscription may begin at any time. From another, a highly cultivated and very benevolent Christian gentleman, are made subject to our order the following: One first-class new piano, one first-class new organ, a lot of old and superior oil paintings by a Parisian artist, such as are seldom in the market, and are worthy of a place in any gentleman's palace. They have not yet been offered to the public, and we are desirous of finding purchasers quickly so that they may not pass out of our hands. They can be sold on very moderate terms and make a good return to the Seminary. We hope that persons interested in purchasing such articles may see this notice and write us. We shall be glad to give information and will offer the best terms. Our address is, care of Messrs. Phillips & Hunt, 805 Broadway, New York.

We are trusting in Him who loves all men. Pray for us.

Yours in Gospel bonds,
W. D. GODMAN.

Reports From Laredo.

MR. EDITOR—Supposing some of your readers would like to know something of this border city, and of the nature of the work here, I send you some items for which I hope you will find a place in the columns of your valuable paper. Having been appointed to this place, I came here last December. When I came I found but few of our people (i. e. colored people) here, but with the influx of people to this place a good many colored people have come. But unfortunately for us they, or many of them, are not of the better class. They are not only irreligious people, but they are not a church-going people, and many of them are abandoned creatures given to the lowest vices. So, with the present colored population, there is not only no chance to build up a good church but there is no pecuniary help for the preacher. We have succeeded in getting a few Mexicans into the church. These, with a very few colored people, shows the result of our work up to this time. I think it probable that I could have added some to our membership if I had only suffered them to indulge in their vices, but that we cannot afford to do.

Mr. Editor, you have no idea of the wickedness of this place; indeed it does seem that the wickedness of both the American and Mexican Republics had accumulated here. And you have no idea how hard it is for a preacher here, and especially for a preacher with a family and without a salary. The missionary appropriation for my support is very small, nothing like a support; so myself and wife have had to work very hard to eke out a living here, where every thing is so high. I am not only willing but glad to work for our blessed Master, but I do think when a preacher is sent out to a place like this where there is no church at all, but where the field is purely a missionary one, that there should be provisions made for his support.

A. J. TURNER.

Missionary Concert Notes—August, 1882.

SUBJECT—The South India Mission.
(Concluded from last week.)

In Mysore, our missions join hands with the English Wesleyans,* who have had special success with their schools (their members and probationers, 666; in Madras district, 805; in Calcutta district, 168). In the Nizam's Dominions (Bengal, P.), a Mohammedan State, we have a hopeful work. In the Central Provinces (Bengal P.), in some of the earlier stations of the mission and also in the Northwest Provinces (Bengal P.), Allahabad being an accession from the North India Mission in 1876, we have a substantial Church far West, at Kurrachee, in Scinde. Note in the the Report for 1881, page 190, the new work opened quite to the north at Lahore in the Punjab, and for south at Coonoor, in the Nilgiri Hills.

III. The schoolwork here, as in North India, is coming into prominence as a necessity for permanent progress. Elementary vernacular schools are taught gratuitously in many stations. Schools of higher grade for youth have been established (See April Manual page 193), chiefly at Rangoon, Calcutta, Allahabad, Mazagon, Poona, and Bangalore. The Mazagon school, opened in March, 1880, with four scholars and now has an attendance of 80, more than half being Catholic, Hindoos, Mohammedans, etc. "The Bible is studied by every pupil in the school who can read." The missionaries feel the necessity of a more thorough and developed system of schools. Two orphanages, one, established by Rev. C. B. Ward, at a new village, named "Christian Promoor," in Nizam territory, with about 70 orphans, the other at Colar in Mysore, by Miss Anstey, of the London Missionary Society, Rev. S. P. Jacobs, pastor, (350 orphans). The press is also doing a good work in the mission. Mr. Ward publishes the Watchman, (monthly) at Hyderabad; Rev. J. S. Robinson, the Messenger (monthly) at Rangoon; Rev. Geo. Bowen, the Guardian (weekly) at Bombay.

IV. The Seaman's work at Calcutta, with two coffee houses, and four or five missionaries, is of great importance and worthy of all sympathy and prayer.

V. The native work seems to be growing. The progress turns rather in that direction than within the circle of the foreign born population. Efforts to reach the heathen were early made at Bombay by Mr. Bowen and others. The last report shows a Marathi circuit at Bombay, a Tamil Church at Madras, a Bengali Church at Calcutta, and a Hindoostani circuit at Allahabad, in all 400 members and probationers. At the last Conference five appointments were made to exclusively native work. Special success has attended evangelistic efforts the present year. Accounts are received of a present sum of native members and probationers reaching 540. The term "native" however, is an ambiguous one, and in connection with the statistics reported, we cannot determine in all cases in what sense to apply it. Rev. C. B. Ward was appointed by the Conference of 1880 to work among the Telugus in the Nizam dominions. He says: "We find ourselves in a large field of 3000 villages, and 500,000 inhabitants, all open." Here is no other Christian missionary the work is thus far conducted in connection with the Orphanage. Rev. S. P. Jacobs has reported over 100 converts in the Orphanage at Colar. Much is hoped for in advancing native work from conversions in the Orphanages, many of the converts being young men and women who will be trained as evangelists. At the Lauwolee camp meeting in April, daily vernacular services were held. Vernacular Sunday-schools are conducted at most of the principal stations. 1000 children are connected with the schools. A considerable number of the preachers in the Conference are now devoting themselves to the study of the native languages.

The subject for the next Concert of Prayer will be, "The Chinese Domestic Missions."

*See "Mission to the Mysore," by Rev. William Arthur.

The City Council have been petitioned by Mr. E. A. Ducros, for the right to build a railroad between the West End and Spanish Fort, who proposes if no obstacle is placed in his way to have the road in running order by next summer.

From Our Mission Rooms.

NEWS FROM ITALY.—Bishop Harris, writing from Odense, Denmark, June 17, says: "The work in Italy is simply marvelous. With but a single missionary in that field the Lord has raised up an annual conference of about 20 preachers whose average ability, learning and devotion are, as I believe, higher than can be found in any other conference of the church. On the last Sabbath in May (Pentecost) I dedicated a beautiful church in Florence." The Bishop further says, "Our missions are everywhere prosperous."

Ravi, who was expelled from the connection at the late Italy Conference, has commenced a suit against the superintendent for defamation of character on the ground that having withdrawn before the trial it was a needless exposure of his sins. The result cannot be doubtful. Campello has become the victim of Nevin. Misled by the high-churchman he embarked in his newspaper enterprise, which came to naught in a month, and now Campello is left a cipher on the surface of Italian movements.

A letter from Dr. DePuy says: "Dr. and Mrs. Vernon have been very kind to us, and I am quite sure are doing a safe and good work here. I was with Dr. Vernon also in Naples. On Sunday we heard Dr. Lanna preach with remarkable eloquence. The Italian work is in capable hands. I was also pleased with the work of our Church in Venice and Florence."

"GOOD MEASURE"—Rev. H. C Weakley, pastor at Hartwell in the Cincinnati Conference, writes to the secretaries: "We have nearly three times as much raised for missions as you ask, and the canvass is not completed. Our plan for two years has been to see every member, state the case, leave it to the conscience, and call again. It works well."

"Missionary Office Tract No. 4, is now issued, containing the latest statistics of our missions. This may be obtained through Phillips & Hunt at the usual tract price.

Tobacco Adulteration.

A Philadelphia tobacco dealer, in an interview with a representative of the Times of that city, says: "Ninety per cent. of the cigarettes sold are of American manufacture and highly opiated. Other branches of our trade are injured by adulteration. Chewing tobacco is steeped in a poisonous preparation of logwood to make it of a light color, and the consumer sacrifices his health in order to be pleased by a particular tint. Pipe tobacco they also like of a light color, and so we use yellow ochre liberally. Smokers want it, they're bound to have it, and so we're bound to supply it. We flavor with wintergreen, which I don't suppose does them any good. As for cigars, the majority are flavored with valerian, and contain liberal doses of narcotics. Fine cut chewing tobacco seems to be the rage now among people well off. It is more æsthetic. It contains plenty of artistic sounding stuff, such as copperas. Liquorice is also thrown in, but, of course that is harmless. Men who chew tobacco often suffer with sore mouths. These are caused by bad drugs being put along with other rubbish into the cake. The popular taste is in favor of being stupefied with chloral or opium, and if we didn't live up to it we should get left."

The Rev. Dr. Hartzell, Assistant Secretary of the Freedman's Aid Society, spent last Sunday in Syracuse, speaking in the interests of the cause he represents, at the University Avenue Church in the morning and at the First Ward Church in the evening. Dr. Hartzell is a very entertaining speaker, and the clear and forcible presentation that he makes of the mission and work of our Church in the South is highly profitable to both his cause and his hearers, as witness the contribution of about two hundred dollars, including a donation of fifty dollars by Bishop Peck, and another of the same amount by Mrs. Peck, cheerfully made to the funds of the Freedmen's Aid Society, by the University Avenue Church at the conclusion of his discourse.—Northern Christian Advocate, July 6.

Dr. Wheeler, of the N. Y. Methodist, preached in Italian in St. Paul's Methodist Church, while in Rome. Dr. Vernon, the pastor, says he is the second American preacher that has been able to speak to that people in their own tongue.

Whether the Sultan finally indorses the recommendation of the Ministry to send troops to Egypt depends on the attitude of influential Ulemas at Cairo. If they can be induced to recognize Turkish troops as the protectors and not as enemies of Islam, the Sultan will consent to an expedition. The conduct of Arabi Pasha will also depend very much on the attitude of the Ulemas. If he is abandoned by them, he will endeavor to effect some sort of a compromise.

We trust that several weeks' enjoyment of the breezes of the Gulf and of salt water bathing may amply suffice to drive away that vexation of spirit un-easiness of mind under which the gentleman has of late been laboring because of the Governor's order that forced him to make an unwilling and unacceptable change of quarters in the State-House building.—Baton Rouge Truth.

The Mormons are preparing for a stubborn resistance to the Edmunds law. They intend to test its constitutionality in the Supreme Court of the United States. Polygamists, from President John Taylor down, with apostles, bishops, and elders, in the most extreme part of their domain, have separated from their surplus wives and live openly with one only. All polygamists, have, in obedience to orders, resigned from all municipal offices, and monogamists as strong in the faith as those deposed have been selected and commissioned in their places. Every effort will be made to beat the government on all sections of the Edmunds act.

Impressions an Unsafe Guide.

There is no guide more unsafe than one's impressions, and yet there is no guide which we are more ready to follow. Multitudes in the Church, and much larger multitudes out of the Church, are more under the influence of their impressions than their principles. If they feel like going to church, the class, or prayer meeting, or like staying at home; if they feel like reading the Bible, or praying, they think it is just the thing they ought to do. Guiteau had an impression to kill President Garfield; he took this impression as the voice of God, and he felt that was the very thing he ought to do just then. The writer once knew a conscientious preacher who was much inclined to follow his impressions. Riding along on a certain time to one of his appointments, he saw away in the field a building, when he became impressed that it was his duty to go and pray with the family living in that house. His companion protested, reminded him of the lateness of the hour, and of an appointment he had made to preach that night, and of his poor health, but all of no avail; he must obey the voice of God. So while the wife sat in the wagon holding the horse, the honest man, who had no well-trained habits of correct thinking and correct doing, trusting and following his impressions in all matters, went across the fields and over fences till he reached the house in which his impressions told him were living some of the lost sheep of the house of Israel, when, to his utter astonishment, he found an old house filled with hay. To me it is clear that no man can trust his feelings or impressions. And no sensible, right-minded, person with trained and correct habits of thinking, will in any matter rely upon his impressions. He will do right, not because he feels like it, but because it is right, and refrain from wrong because it is wrong, regardless of his temporary feelings or fluctuating impressions and emotional impellings. The persons who take hold of labor and work because they ought, rather than when they want to, will do the highest order of work.

Our impressions sometimes unfit us for settling many questions of right and wrong. We are in pressing emergency, or under powerful temptation, and are in no way prepared to settle questions of duty. We need to look at the matter coolly, carefully, with due deliberation, in the light of Scripture and true reason, with self-interest as far as possible out of sight. It may be that our impressions of duty are correct, and it may be that they are any thing but correct. The simple fact that we feel that a certain course is right or wrong has no tendency to make it so. It is our duty to do right, regardless of impressions. Our impressions, especially after a sleepless night, are apt to be bilious, morbid, and sour, and we are irritable, and our passions and tempers are easily tempest-sprung, and we go wild on all sorts of rampages under our insane impressions. Before God, with the Bible in their hands, let Christian men settle all questions of duty, and then, regardless of their impressions, attend to their lifework.

The New York Times, in a recent issue, had a carefully prepared article in which was treated a brief history of the various religious denominations of that city. The article takes us back to 1845 when the city had a population of 400,000. Now it is 1,300,000, an increase of 225 per cent. In 1845 the Protestant church membership was 51,459. Now it is 90,579, an increase of 76 per cent. Then the Roman Catholic church population was 50,000. Now it has 500,000, showing an increase of 900 per cent. We know that it will be said that these figures are misleading, and, perhaps, it is true so far as they relate to the Romanists. But is it true that 90,579 represents the pious Protestant population in this great city of over 1,300,000? If so it is no wonder that over 15,000 people could gather, under the protection of the police of that city, to witness an exhibition which develops a brutality abhorrent to decency and a shame to our modern civilization. There is need in New York as well as in New Orleans for a little red-hot religion. Protestant evangelical Christians need more Gospel fire and forwardness for these great centers of population. Congressman Calkins and Southern Elections.

The following letter from Hon. Wm H. Calkins, member of Congress from Indiana, and chairman of the House Committee on Elections, explains itself:

COMMITTEE ON ELECTIONS,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, D. C., July 29, 1882.

L. P. Cushman, Esq., Editor Southwestern Christian Advocate, New Orleans, La.:

MY DEAR SIR: I am in receipt of a copy of your valuable paper of 27th inst., and my attention has been called to an article therein under the head "The Purification of Congress," in which it is stated that the partisan press of the South are attributing to me sentiments relative to election cases, which I never expressed and which I do not entertain. I have stated upon the floor of the House, and now reiterate: That the action of the House in the contests decided by it this session has been impartial and just. If it has erred at all, it has erred against its own party friends.

I suppose that my disagreement with my political associates as to the law which governs some of the cases coming before us for judicial determination, has provoked in the partisan press of your section some unfavorable comment. In my remarks in justification of this disagreement recently made, I took occasion to point out some of the abuses, as I thought, which were liable to occur unless each member of the House could lay aside his party predilections, and try each contest on its merits, without reference to the party affiliations of the contestants or contestees. My desire was simply to correct, if possible, the idea that the judicial action of Congress reached only the plane of party prejudice and partisan bias.

The trial of election contests are, for all intents and purposes, judicial proceedings. They should be so treated and determined, and a person who cannot rise above his prejudice and passion in their determination is not fit to be a representative of the people, much less to occupy a position where he is compelled to act judicially. This is the sum and substance of what I have said on the floor of the House. I am sure that the honest citizen, wherever he may be found, will agree with me.

You will oblige me by giving publicity to this statement, as I have no other means of reaching the people in your section.

I am, yours very truly,

W. H. CALKINS.

We have now given Mr. Calkins the benefit of his statement of his position. We most heartily approve of the estimate he places upon the judicial determination of election contests. The sentiments he expresses are admirable, and will not be questioned by any honest citizen. But, with due respect for Mr. Calkins' judicial convictions, we differ from him as to their practical application, and fail to discover that his position has been wrongly construed as a censure upon at least one decision of his associates in the House, and that in such a way as to "excite the sympathy and regret of peaceful and Union-loving citizens of the South," as we put it in our editorial of July 27. We said then:

The purification of Congress by the ejectment of men whose certificates are based on successful nullification of national laws, tissue ballots and false counts of the vote, is an eminently national and not a party matter. It needs to be urged with vigor. When communities combine under the cardinal principle that the end justifies the means, Southern Bourbons, like the Mormons of Utah, may present perplexing problems for examination, and appeal to the love of power of a strong minority party for support, yet a steady adherence to republican principles and doctrines, and above all to common instincts of justice, will be sufficient to overcome the sophistry, the perjury, and the consummate skill of these enemies of the Republic.

The unseating of Messrs. Dibble, Chalmers, Wheeler, Finlay, Tillman, and Shelley, and the admission of the Congressmen elect, was a great triumph for the law and order party in the Southern States, and a notice to the unscrupulous that righteous methods are safest in the conduct of elections. Let Mr. Calkins and his colleagues stand firmly to their duty in the premises. It is certainly unpleasant, yet necessary for the safety and prosperity of the country.

Not in the spirit of controversy, but to illustrate what we deem the weakness of Mr. Calkins' record, let us review the facts which led to some misrepresentation by the partisan press, our allusion to him personally, and his letter of explanation. The Constitution of the United States, Art. 1, sec. 5, says: "Each house shall be the judge of the election, returns, and qualifications of its own members;" Art 14, sec. 1: "No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States;" Art. 15, sec. 1: "The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States, or by any State, on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude." Acting under these ample provisions for the emergency, a majority of the House of Representatives have decided several election cases. In one case, a Greenback Democrat was seated by Republican and Greenback votes; in that of Chalmers, in addition to these, Hon. E. John Ellis, a Louisiana Democrat, voted to unseat a member of his own party, and in behalf of the colored contestant; in one case a vacancy was declared. Now all these decisions were made after months of time devoted to their examination, the proceedings were decorous, and free from a just charge of partisan bias. In all these cases Mr. Calkins, as chairman of the House committee, bore a conspicuous part, and deserves the approval of the country for faithful services rendered. The effect upon public opinion, especially in the South, was marked, and there was great rejoicing over a judicial rebuke of dangerous election methods. But in deciding a South Carolina case, one generally believed to present almost unquestionable evidence of fraud, after Mr. Calkins had voted to unseat Mr. Tilman, he voted against seating the contestant, Mr. Smalls; and this fact, coupled with his official and public position, was at once seized upon to give aid and comfort to the political defendants of that machinery which had been used to question the title. And, without any personal or partisan prejudice in favor of Mr. Smalls, let us examine the leading facts of his case. Mr. Smalls claimed election from the fifth South Carolina district. By the census of 1880, taken three or four months before the election, the colored males of voting age exceeded the white males of voting age by about 12,000. It is not pretended that Mr. Tillman, the Democratic candidate, was voted for by any considerable number of colored men, yet he was returned to Congress by a fraudulent and pretended majority of over 8000. A majority of the House committee, after patient investigation, found that Mr. Smalls was actually elected by a majority of nearly 1500. This report was submitted to the House, and from the New-York Times' Washington special of July 19 we learn that during the debate—

Mr. Tillman "asserted in substance that the South was opposed to the Republican propaganda of universal brotherhood, and was justified in using the methods that had been used to preserve white supremacy in that region. He opposed the Republican policy of giving the suffrage to 'black barbarians,' as he styled the colored voters of the South, and while not denying that there had been frauds and intimidation of Republican voters, declared in favor of the recent gerrymandering of the State by the Democratic Legislature. Having abused the Republican party and its representatives in the House, he turned his attention to his Democratic brethren and gave them a dose of his sarcasm, because of their failure to stand unitedly against the unseating of himself and other Southern Democrats."

After much confusion and a riotous display by Bourbon sympathizers, Mr. Smalls was seated by a vote of 141 to 5, and, says the Times report:

The 5 votes against seating Mr. Smalls were cast by Messrs Jones, Ford, and Rice, Greenbackers; Hardenbergh, a Democrat, and Calkins, a Republican and Chairman of the Elections Committee. Mr. Calkins, in casting his vote, declared he could not give it conscientiously in favor of giving Mr. Smalls the seat, though he had voted to unseat Mr. Tillman.

It occurs to us that Mr. Calkins has taken a narrow view of the far-reaching judicial and revisory powers conferred upon Congress by the Constitution, relative to admission to membership; and that they enabled a prompt remedy against a conspiracy by a State to abridge or deny the rights of citizenship; that the case of Mr. Smalls was a clear one of such abridgement and denial; and that the failure to seat him, in view of the record and the bold declaration of Mr. Tillman and other South Carolina leaders, would work serious injustice to the contestant and his constituency, and be a bad and a dangerous precedent to establish. Indeed, if a majority in Congress required as complete a legal proof of election as would satisfy Mr. Calkin's conscience, there would be little hope of rebuking those who hold high carnival with citizens' rights under the forms of election laws. If a minority may combine to falsely count in, and have the Governor of a State issue a certificate to one of their own number, and by the exercise of fraud and force deprive a contestant of the means of perfecting a title under State laws and courts, we submit that that minority is master of the situation; that in such localities the minority may dictate to the majority, who must accept its choice or go without representation of any kind. In this case, if Mr. Tillman did not receive a legal majority the presumption is that Mr. Smalls did; this is supported by the political complexion of the district, the desperate means used to suppress the will of the majority openly avowed and defended, and the speech of Mr. Tillman on the floor of the House. Justice, aye, and the sovereignty of the Constitution and the laws required that Mr. Smalls should be seated promptly, and in such a manner as to hush those who persisted in picking flaws in his title, or in insulting the majority of Congress with the aspersion that they had reached a decision through partisan motives. The law and order sentiment in the South is expressed in the wish that Congress continue its work of purification, to the end that all men may enjoy those essential requisites to good society—a free ballot, an honest count, and the supremacy of the national constitution.

Prohibition In Tennessee.

Dr. Braden sends us the report of a prohibitory convention held in Nashville, Tenn., at which the following resolutions were adopted;

Resolved, that we are in full sympathy with the National Prohibition Party in its efforts to suppress the liquor traffic.

That we are in favor of submitting to a vote of the people, unencumbered with any other question, a constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage.

Whereas, The State-credit wing of the Democratic party has pledged itself to support the four-mile law, and have placed in nomination a candidate for Governor who declares himself in favor of prohibition. Therefore,

Resolved, 1. That the prohibitionists of Tennessee decline at this time to put in nomination a candidate for Governor.

2. That we commend the State-credit Democratic party in boldly advocating and supporting the present prohibition law of the State, and congratulate it on the nomination of one who has proven himself such an able advocate of the temperance cause.

3. That while, for good reasons, we neither endorse nor disapprove of the action of any convention heretofore held on the State debt question, that we recommend to the temperance people of the State the wisdom of the policy adopted by the Liquor Dealers' Association in supporting no party or candidate who does not favor their interests, and suggest that we individually and collectively adopt a similar policy and vote for none but openly avowed prohibitionists.

It seems strange to us to see a temperance convention passing resolutions endorsing the Democratic party. But in Tennessee the State-credit Democratic party has adopted a platform in which prohibition is made prominent. We advise, however, our temperance friends not to make overtures to any party. "Evil communications will corrupt good manners." Let temperance men organize, have their conventions, and make their own nominations, and then labor earnestly in their own organization and vote for their own candidate. "The truth will win its way."

How They Treat It.

The good people of this country have reason to censure Southern religious papers, with few exceptions, for their failure to vigorously discountenance fraudulent elections. We give two specimens of comment:

1. From the St. Louis Christian Advocate, an organ of the M. E. Church South:

Congress last week bounced another Democratic member, Mr. Tillman, of South Carolina, and gave the seat to Smalls, who, we believe, is a "brother in black." In this the Republicans say they did right, and the Democrats say they did wrong. We have not as yet examined the evidence.

Since this case has been discussed in the press for a year or more, it looks as though the trump of Gabriel will sound before our contemporary examines the evidence or expresses an opinion.

2. While our St. Louis contemporary lacks information, the Christian Observer, (Presbyterian) of Louisville, Ky., has plenty of it, such as it is:

In the lower House of Congress last week Mr. George D. Tillman, from South Carolina, who is described as a progressive, great-hearted and kindly gentleman of the old school, was made to give up his seat in that House to a Mr. Smalls, a negro from the same State, but whose late residence was the penitentiary. He made a very good-humored speech on retiring which won universal admiration.

Mr. Smalls was held for a time as a political prisoner; so was Mr. Jefferson Davis. Both were released. The description of Tillman's retiring speech will be news for Washington; and the tenderness expressed for one who sought to profit through and by connivance with fraud, is equal to anything said of the late Wm. Tweed by his ardent admirers.

Incendiaries have become so very common in Mobile that the Mobile Board of Underwriters has requested all insurance companies doing business in Mobile to send representatives to a meeting to be held on the 18th prox, to devise some means to put a stop to incendiarism. This spirit of incendiarism, which was tolerated so long as it was directed solely against Negro schools and churches in Mobile, now that it has taken on itself to destroy, pellmell, the property of all classes, will now doubtless meet its fate.

Ireland's Sorrows.

The end of Ireland's sorrows and troubles is not yet. Misrule, assassinations, and general uneasiness continue. The outlook for the unhappy country is more of misery and misfortune than it has ever experienced. There is a strong probability that the crops this year will be a failure. Rev. H. C. Parker, of New Hampshire, now on a visit to Europe, under date of July 5, in the Nashua Telegraph, tells some of the things he saw in Ireland, as follows:

What interested me more than anything else was the present life and condition of the people. Such extremes of poverty and wealth we have not in our country. No one who has not seen a Lord's mansion and a tenant's cabin can imagine it. The typical cabin is a little stone structure about eight feet high, six to eight feet wide and ten to twelve feet long, thatched roof, one door, sometimes a window, without floor, except stone and earth, without division into apartments. It has no fence about it, no trees. Hens, hogs, donkeys, geese and ducks go in and out at their pleasure. In one we saw a hog eating his supper, in another an ass stood in the door looking out at the passers by. Children and pigs run together, it being difficult to tell the one from the other, only the pigs are the cleaner. The children, we are told, often sleep on the bed and the pigs under it. Men and women work in the field together, the women are generally barefoot and look as if they had the hardest lot of the two. After paying the Lord his rent, they have little or nothing left. This is the real condition of the Irish tenantry of to-day.

The Negro's Prayer.

Rev. H. Allen, D. D., the secretary of the Freedmen's Work in the Presbyterian Church, South, concluded his recent address before the General Assembly with the following impressive and pathetic remarks:

"I have carried a prayer of an old colored man in my heart since I was a boy—an old colored man whom my father owned. As I came up, one evening, near the fence I heard a strange noise. I stopped—I was a little frightened. I soon found the old colored man was there, engaged in prayer near the fence. I heard him pray to God to wash his soul in the blood of Jesus, to clothe him in Christ's righteousness; and toward the close of his prayer he said: 'Now, Lord, bless the cornfields and the old people at the house, and bless old master's boys.' When I heard that I felt like going down on my knees beside him for I felt that I stood on holy ground. The heart of that man reached up to him who could bless the little boy. We saw him die in a few months after. And, brethren, I feel in my heart that if God will help me, old master's little boy shall bless the dying man's race."

This Negro's prayer is but a specimen of thousands of such prayers that were offered by forgiving, tender-hearted Negro slaves, throughout the South. We praise the Lord for the determination such a prayer has instilled in the Rev. Dr. Allen. May the others produce abundant fruits, in friends who shall be as levers, in blessing this race and raising them to honor, to glory, and to God.

On the first instant President Arthur sent a message to Congress vetoing the river and harbor bill. His principal objection was that it contained appropriations not for the common defense, the general welfare, or to promote commerce between the States, and therefore beyond the powers given by the Constitution to Congress and the President. These appropriations exceeded the needs of the country, and their disbursement had a demoralizing effect upon the official service in all its departments. He pointed out the growing extravagance in this direction, the present bill being several millions in excess of previous ones. The next day the Senate passed the bill over the veto by 41 to 15, and the House by 122 to 59. The average Congressman contends valiantly for the "old flag and an appropriation," and there is general rejoicing in the Mississippi valley over the success of their river schemes. The President ought to be allowed to accept or reject the items, singly, and then the unwise could not so easily be tied to the needed appropriations.

This time it is the city of Providence, Rhode Island, that steps forward with another one of those contagious cases of genuine negrophobia. It broke out there last week against the Rev. W. A. T. Smith, a colored clergyman. Mr. Smith, coming to the Adams House, made a persistent application for accommodation, but he was refused and driven out, avowedly because of his color. He has employed counsel and will prosecute the landlord under the civil rights bill. Such outrages upon public rights and decency, relics of slavery in its ghostly form, are nauseating to just and humane citizens, and disgraceful to the community which countenances them. We shall expect this blind and unreasonable prejudice against color to receive the rebuke it deserves.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Aaron C. Burr, an adopted son of Aaron Burr, died in New York city on the 27th ult.

—President Grevy once said of the Queen of England: "She looks as if she never thought a falsehood."

—Bishop Hargrove, of the M. E. Church South, has gone to the Pacific coast, where he expects to remain a year or more.

—H. B. Thompson, a son of the late Gen. Jeff. Thompson, has been appointed a member of the Louisiana State Board of Engineers.

—Rev. H. P. Mann, of Austin Conference, has fully recovered from his recent illness, and is actively pushing the building of a church at Baird, Texas.

—Dr. Young, Secretary of the Board of Missions, Church South, has notified the Rev. O. G. Mingledorff, and the Rev. D. L. Anderson, of Georgia, to be ready to sail in October next, as missionaries to China.

—Mr. Ira D. Sankey has returned to this country to enjoy a brief rest before reengaging in the campaign in Great Britain. He will rejoin Mr. Moody in September.

His address is Ocean Grove, New Jersey.—Michigan Christian Advocate.

—Col. John C. Hamilton, son of Alexander Hamilton, died at Long Branch, N. J., July 25, aged 89 years. He served as an aide to General Harrison, resigning in 1814. He wrote "Works of Alexander Hamilton," 7 vols., 8vo, 1851: and "History of the Republic," 2 vols., 8vo, 1858. One brother (Philip.) the only surviving child of Alexander Hamilton, resides at Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

—Rev. L. A. Rudisill, at the annual meeting of the Utah Mission was appointed to Spanish Fork; but he will remain in charge of the Salt Lake Church until October. The Scandinavian work organized by him will receive special attention, and Scandinavian workers will be sent among their countrymen. The Rocky Mountain Christian Advocate for July publishes two letters from him describing a pleasant vacation to the Pacific coast. We rejoice to hear of the usefulness and success of the good brother.

—Speaker Keifer has infinite advantage over his unjust critics. He has an absolutely stainless record, a noble history as a patriotic soldier, unstained private character, an unsullied public career, and abilities which have carried him honorably through every position in which he has been placed. In the trying role of Speaker of the Forty-seventh Congress he has commanded the respect of political adversaries, and won the applause of his partisan associates. Not one honest word of adverse criticism can be uttered against him as citizen or statesman.—Dayton Journal.

—Mr. George P. Marsh, United States Minister to Italy, died suddenly at his country residence, near Rome, July 26. Mr. Marsh was in point of service the oldest American diplomat abroad. He was appointed by President Lincoln March 20, 1861, and has held the position continuously ever since. He had previously served four years as Minister to Turkey under Taylor and Fillmore, and was a member of Congress from Vermont. Before going abroad he had attained considerable reputation as an author, his best known works being the "Origin and History of the English Language," and "Man and Nature." He was in the 82nd year of his age.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

W. A. Primus, Stony Point: "We have organized a temperance society with 29 members. The meeting was addressed by the local preachers and myself. The people are deeply interested."

S. Wright, Fort Jesup: "On July 12 our second quarter was held, and it was a time of refreshing. Received this quarter 19. We have $15 for the Gilbert Haven School and there is a probability of $35 more. There was subscribed for a new church to be built in Robeline, $82 50. The presiding elder was sick in Mansfield."

The late pastor in charge at Longstreet, Rev. John Brooks, had sent us a report of his work for publication. Under date of July 22, he said the times were hard and the people poor, but all were in a good Christian spirit. A Sunday-school celebration was held at Pleasant Grove July 1, and $1 collected for missions; at Mt. Zion on the 4th, $1 35 was collected. The members assessed themselves $2 50 a piece to support their pastor.

TEXAS.

G. Norman, Austin. "Elder C. L. Madison went out to one of my appointments, preached and administered sacrament to 57 persons. At 3 p. m. Elder M. Henson, San Antonio district, preached. We collected $12 15 for elder. At Simpson Mission Elder Madison closed our third quarter, and administered the sacrament."

D. Humphries, Waco: "Our protracted meeting at Mt. Zion gained 6 converts, and 5 have joined the church. Our building needs repairs, and I have the promise of some help. I have received $27 on salary since conference, but the brethren promise to pay in the fall. Have begun a camp meeting at Batesville."

S. C. Gill, Double Bayou: "Elder Pullman held our quarterly conference June 19. The elder was unwell, having met with a mishap on his journey, but he entered the pulpit promptly on Sunday, and preached to a large congregation, and administered communion. We collected $15 20 for him. Rev. T. Ward is a vigilant pastor, and sometimes walks nine miles to fill an appointment. Bros. Joe Godfrey and Wm. Rivers, are our Sunday-school superintendents and enterprising men."

A. Jackson, Mexia: "My third quarterly conference convened January 17. By request of presiding elder S. Gates, Bro. H. Swann, of Calvert, held the quarter. We had a grand conference session on the following Sabbath, a rousing sermon was preached on the death and suffering of Christ, and the Lord's Supper was administered to 130 persons, collection $8 65. Unfortunately one of our new churches burned down. But we have another on the way to completion. We are doing all we can for the Master this year. Pray for our success."

MISSISSIPPI.

Wm. Gatewood, Walthall: "This is a hard work and we have no church building. Have a deed for an acre of ground. We will try to build two churches. Sunday-schools contain 79 pupils. Have appointed a day to press the claims of the SOUTHWESTERN."

James Ellis, Oxford: "Elder Bradford was with us June 24 and 25, and held our quarterly conference at the Elijah Church. On Sunday the Elder preached and administered the sacrament. Thirteen were baptized, forty-eight taken into the church, and two in full fellowship. Sunday-schools doing well. On children's day collected $3 05."

TENNESSEE

J. L Massey, Linden; "Elder J. P. Price held our third quarter and pushed on the general work. One was happily converted and two joined the church. He also urged the cause of temperance. We paid the elder $11 05; pastor, $14 50; raised for Bishop $1; conference claimants, 10c; church extension, $1 20; Freedmen's Aid, $4; Sunday-school, $2; Tract Society, 20 cents. My people are willing to do all they can, and I feel much encouraged."

ARKANSAS.

B. Thornton, Clarendon: "I have no church to preach in, but use my own dwelling for the purpose. I ask for the prayers of all the members of the church."

Paul Tulane has intimated to Gen. Gibson that he will add very largely to his former donation for educational purposes, and also widen the scope of his proposed institution. It is probable that a portion at least of the increased donation will be devoted to the establishment of a naval school at New Orleans.

Temperance voters of both political parties should vote as they pray.

[illegible] Soper's Tour In Japan.

[illegible] about 136 miles north[illegible] Tokio, in the province of [illegible], having traveled 460 miles [illegible] I left Yokohama, just one month ago to-day. By the time I reach Yokohama, on my return, I shall have made a circuit of nearly [illegible] miles. I have enjoyed excellent health (with the exception of two or three days) ever since I left Yokohama, although I have preached or lectured (on an average) once for every day during my trip. I have found the work under our care gradually developing, and at one or two points giving signs of marked interest and prosperity; at every station, however, there is a forward movement, the preachers and members working together earnestly and faithfully.

I left Yokohama Tuesday night, May 2, in a small coast steamer of the Mitsu Pishi Line, (a native company,) called the "Ohitose maru," all the officers, including captain and chief engineer, being Japanese, and reached Yoka-idn, a short distance from Nagoya, about 3 o'clock Thursday morning. The same day I proceeded to Nagoya, situated at the head of the bay, in a small river steamer, reaching there about one p. m. At this place, [Nagoya,] the fourth largest city in the Empire, population 325,000, we have one preacher stationed, and a membership of some 18 souls; a small beginning, but on the whole, a very encouraging one, most of the members being earnest and devoted. Our native preacher is the only Protestant evangelist in this large city and important center. There are three members of the Reformed (Dutch) Mission here. That Society expects to open work here more vigorously some time in the future. There is plenty of room for a half a dozen Missions to work without the least collision. May the number of Christian workers in this field speedily increase.

On Saturday following we (the Nagoya preacher, my servant, and I,) went to a place called Nishiwo, a large town some twenty five miles south-east of Nagoya, near the sea-coast, where we also have a preacher stationed, with a membership of some fifteen souls. We remained at this place until the following Wednesday morning, preaching and lecturing twice nearly every day; on Sunday holding love-feast, as well as administering the rites of baptism and the Lord's supper. One adult and one child received the ordinance of baptism. There were large and attentive audiences at all of the services, especially the evening services, and many seemed deeply interested in the word spoken. The principal of the primary public school and his assistants (some four or five) attended several of the services, and the principal particularly manifested by his attention and questions, a lively interest in the Christian religion.

On Wednesday, we returned to Nagoya. On Friday and Saturday nights we hired a theater, and three natives and myself in turn (I bringing up the rear, the place of honor in the Japanese public speaking) delivered addresses on various topics. My lectures treated the following subjects, namely: "Virtue and Integrity the Foundation of True Civilization," and "Invisible Things More Important and Powerful than Visible Things." Our native preacher's two addresses were fine productions and they were earnestly and effectively delivered—the subjects being, "Answering certain objections to Christianity," and a "Comparison of Buddhism and Christianity;" the latter was specially good and the points well taken and ably elaborated. Large audiences were present.

Sunday, however, was the great day of the feast. In the morning I preached to a good congregation [illegible] chapel from 2 Tim. iii; [illegible] nearly every member of the [illegible] being present. At noon [illegible] Joseph Cook and wife, accompanied by the Rev. J. A. Ballagh, of the Reformed Dutch Mission, as guide and escort, who were [illegible] to Kiyoto, arrived, [illegible] the remainder of the day [illegible] Mr. Ballagh having announced their coming by telegram. [illegible] I baptized one [illegible], who is a col[illegible] [illegible] a very [illegible] [illegible] Christ, being [illegible] of bringing his [illegible], who live in a dis[illegible] to embrace the [illegible] baptism we celebrated [illegible] supper, our native [illegible] distributing [illegible] Cook and wife [illegible] heartily [illegible] this service [illegible] Cook deliv[illegible] earnest, eloquent, and interesting lecture on the "Progress of Religion," brimful of facts and information, to a large audience, (some 500,) Mr. Ballagh acting as interpreter. Glorious day!

Monday morning, May 15, I left for our three stations in Shinshin—Iida, Matsumoto, and Matsushiro—to the northeast of Nagoya. Shinshin, a great silk-growing district, is one of the largest, most wealthy, and most mountainous provinces in Japan. The latter characteristic you would have realized fully had you been with me and climbed pass after pass in the mountainous district. I frequently suffered with sore feet and weary limbs; but the more I walked and climbed the stronger I became, so that now I feel much stronger and more vigorous than I did when leaving Yokohama.

Greenwood District.

DEAR EDITOR—I have just closed my second round on the Greenwood District. The Church is doing well spiritually and temporally all over the district. On the Yazoo river preachers complain of hard times, but they are standing to their posts like men of war ready to do anything for the Master's cause.

At Yazoo City B. F. Penny is trying to finish the church. He is working day and night with the people.

Rev. J. Clemons, at Benton, is well beloved, and is doing good work.

J. C. Houston, at Pickens Station, is a live pastor. He visits his members, and secures their attendance at church. He has built a new parsonage, and paid for it.

At Goodman, C. L. Crump interests the people, and they go from church to church to hear him preach.

At Durant, A. Lemon has done good work for the cause of Christ.

P. H. Hill is the pastor at Mt. Pleasant. This is his first year. A great many have been converted and joined the Church.

At Vaiden, H. Heslup expects to do much this fall.

At Winona, Bro. Davis has built a parsonage. His health has been very bad.

Peter G. Kirkland, at Attala, is raising up Sunday-schools.

Peter Blue, at Greenwood, is a good worker in the church and Sabbath-school.

Peter Harris, at Rosemeath, on the Yazoo river, was run away from his work by the high water, but is now doing well.

J. M. Nevils, at Kosciusko, is trying to build a new church and to lead his people the right way. This is his third year. The people desire him another year.

E. Collins, at Carthage, and C. Vaughan, on Yazoo Circuit, are doing good work.

French Camp is supplied by F. Steward. He has built up the Church and Sabbath-school.

At Green Hill G. Jackson is working as a supply. Since the high water he has met with success. Bro. Moses Williams, the first supply, died March 9.

At Lodi, Charles McLemore is a faithful preacher. Two years ago he went on the work and there was one church, now there are three.

At Pinderville, J. Ward is a fine young man, and will make a good preacher.

We are working up the missionary cause all over the district. Pray for us. G. W. BARNEY.

Yazoo City, Miss.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Nashville Letter.

Services were held in the M. E Church South, Clark chapel, yesterday, at which Rev. J. Braden, D. D. delivered a eulogistic sermon at 11 a. m. to an appreciative and intelligent audience, on the death of Bishop Levi Scott, senior bishop of M. E. Church. The audience seemed delighted as the Doctor spoke of the character of the good Bishop. He declared the life of Bishop Scott a fit example for all men. But one piece of crape was seen any where in the church, and the people seemed surprised at so little a display of crape, but the pastor, Rev. L. M. Hagood, explained by saying: "We as a people make too much ado about the dead, and display too often too much crape and dwell too much in graveyards, and desiring to counteract this growing evil have used but one piece of crape to cover the pulpit this morning." We shall not forget Bishop Scott. The Knights of Wisdom of the World at their last grand session at Atlanta, Ga., June the 20-25, appointed a commission to meet in this city to transact unfinished business. Said commission has been in session for a week and adjourned Saturday. Some of the most intelligent of the race are members of this order. A number of distinguished men attended [illegible] commission here. [illegible] appointment we notice [illegible] Turner, of Africa, [illegible] M. D., of Michigan, Prof. W. J. Simmons' Ky.; Ex-Lieutenant Governor Gleeves, S. C.; Prof. J. H. Pelham, Mo.; Rev. Richard Rush, M. E. Church, Lex., Mo.; Hon. S. J. Lee. S. C.; Prof. J. R. Clifford, M. E. Church, Va.; Prof. J. C. Corbin, Baptist, Ark.; and Judge J. C. Richmond, S. C. Among these gentlemen the boys of the future will look for a model. Prof. Clifford delivered a lecture to St. Paul's African M. E. Church, Wednesday night, by invitation of Rt. Rev. H. M. Turner, whose labors during the commission had fatigued him very much he said. Prof. Clifford is a young man, and his friends declare him a model. L. M. HAGOOD.

Death of Rev. John Brooks.

MR. EDITOR:—On Wednesday night, July 26, Rev. John Brooks arrived from Longstreet on his circuit to see his family, who had never moved; his younger son, John Brooks, having entered land about eight miles from Allen. He got off the cars at 6 p. m. and started on foot to his son's house three miles away. On his way he sang a hymn which rang through the woodlawn as if the angels assisted him. On entering the door he found his wife and son both sick. Speaking to them he said the Lord had shown him two or three weeks before that the time was near at hand to lay down his books and come up higher; that his wife and son were seriously ill, some one would die in the family, and it was himself. He took to his bed that night with scorching fever and chills. On Tuesday evening, Aug. 1, at 8 o'clock, he preached, and saying, "Thank God, I can do nothing more," he fell asleep in Christ. He had been heroic in action and spotless in life; was aged about 64 years. He leaves a wife and nine children. On Thursday, at the request of his wife, he was buried from the Mother Church of this circuit. I conducted the service in the presence of a large attendance. D. SHELBY.

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS.

The Greenback Labor party is reorganizing in this city.

400 cases of yellow fever are reported at Matamoros, Mexico.

Mr. Carleton Hunt was nominated for Congress by Democrats of the first Louisiana district.

One day recently there were 31 cases of sunstroke in New York city, 16 of which proved fatal.

Speaker Keifer, of Ohio, and Hon. R. B. Vance, of North Carolina, have been renominated for Congress.

The Fourth of July is a day for the Yankees and negroes in the South to celebrate, but it has lost its significance for us. To us the buzzard is a fitter emblem of the filthy government that makes fellow-citizens of people of African descent and to the utmost of its power now puts them above the white men.—Meridian Mercury.

Mexican duels are really worth talking about, and are quite unlike the toy duels of French and American politicians. When a captain and a major met at San Luis Potosi lately, the former fell dead on the spot, and the other was scarcely carried from the place before he expired. Whether the honor of either or both gentlemen was satisfied is not stated in the dispatch, but it is reasonable to believe that it was.—Ex.

The Senate confirmed the following nominations: Wm. Hale, of Iowa. Governor of Wyoming; Andrew W. Smythe, Superintendent of the Mint at New Orleans; A. H. Leonard, District Attorney of the United States for the Eastern District of Louisiana; A. M. Hughes, Jr., Collector of Internal Revenue, Fifth District of Tennessee; T. N. Wycker, Collector of Customs, Key West, Fla.; and the following postmasters: Lewis Desmarais, Opelousas, La; H. J. Sanderson, Clarksville, Texas.

Some excitement has been produced in financial circles by the discovery of the fact that all bonds not exempt by law are subject to taxation under the present revenue law. If this tax can be enforced, it will yield a revenue to the State and city that will enable both to pay their debts in full in less than ten years. But a serious legal question presents itself, and the objection will be strongly urged. Can the State or city tax its own obligations? Is it not a species of gradual repudiation? How many years of taxation would it require at the present rate to absorb all the bonds? We doubt if any court would legalize any such a tax, as it would be doing indirectly what is forbidden to be directly by the Constitution, impairing the obligation of contracts.—Daily States.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

THIRD QUARTER. Lesson vii August 13, 1882.

PRAYER AND FORGIVENESS. Mark xi. 24-33.

In the realm of spiritual things, in the pardon of sin, gift of the sanctifying spirit, etc., the praying believer can hardly go astray, and seldom, if ever, fail to realize answers to prayer. Forgiveness on our part toward our fellows must precede God's forgiveness toward us. Standing is the attitude of confidence in prayer, such as Jesus here enjoins, while prostration in prayer denotes humiliation and self-depreciation. The guardians and custodians of the temple had never given permission to Jesus to take liberties with any thing or person therein; and they ask from whom he obtained the permission. There is no doubt that they were deeply hostile to him, and that this was but the beginning of a quarrel they were determined to force upon him. He imitates them, and asks them a question: "The baptism of John, was it from heaven or from men?" They answered, "We know not." Of course this was false, since they did know, but as either reply would have been about equally disastrous to them, they preferred to say that they did not know. They had not told Jesus, neither would he answer their question. There is in this no attempt to conciliate the leaders of the Jews. There is rather the assertion of independence of them, if not defiance of their power. It shows the power and dignity of Christ. He not only does these things without their permission, but by an authority which he will not allow them to call in question.

Would Have Been in the Grave.

A lady in Tecumseh, Neb., writing to Drs. Starkey & Palen, says: "I wish to thank you for receiving so much benefit from your Compound Oxygen. Only for this I would be in my grave. I could not sleep, had no rest; was really bordering on insanity. I was alarmed. Now I set up until ten o'clock and enjoy music and company. My daughter is recovering her voice. Will continue Oxygen. May Heaven's choicest blessings rest upon you and yours." Treatise on Compound Oxygen containing large reports of cases and full information, sent free. Address Drs. DEATHS.

Sister Martha Spry died July 30, 1882. She was a faithful member of Stuart's Chapel M. E. Church, where her funeral took place July 31st. A host followed her remains from her home on the Thompson Place to Stuarts Chapel, one mile and a half. I received word from some of the planters families to save seats for them, but owing to a powerful rain by the time we reached the church it cut off about a hundred. A larger funeral was never witnessed before on a week day here. She was buried as she wished. Her dying words were consistent with her life. She lived a Christian and so she died, after giving up her husband, her babe and three other older ones, telling her sister to take them and raise them in the fear of the Lord. She said, "Now don't grieve after me, nor cry, for I am going home. I have suffered long enough in this world. I have told you all, I have asked the Lord to take me and I am going. Farewell." Blessed are they that die in the Lord; they rest from their labor unto their reward. While her sisters, brothers, husband and children moorn for her the angels sing in glory. H. J. WRIGHT.

Alexandria, Aug. 1, 1882.

Sister Virginia Madison died June 12, aged 32 years. She joined the church in 1876, and lived a faithful member. A husband and four children mourn her loss. WM. MCKENZIE.

Moscow, Texas.

Sister Ada Nonticut, aged 16 years, departed this life for realms of joy at McMinnville, Tenn., July 26, 1882. She was a member of the Church and also a member of the choir; she lived a consistent Christian life for full four years. Her steps were firm as she marched down to the river, and she said, "I am only waiting to cross. The church has lost a member, the choir a sweet singer, but Heaven has gained a jewel. S. P. BELL.

McMinnville, Tenn.

Sister Julia Hunter died July 2, aged 65 years. She had been a member of the Methodist Church for 30 years. Little Allen Morton died July 3, aged 7 years. S. HARDWELL.

Richmond, Texas.

Francis Williamson, the daughter of Isaac Williamson, died the 30th day of July, 1882, aged 20 years. She lived a faithful member of our church eleven years and died in the triumph of the living faith. She left a father, mother and a great many friends to mourn her loss. B. J. THORNTON.

EARS FOR THE MILLION!
Foo Choo's Balsam of Shark's Oil

Positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.

This Oil is abstracted from peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as Carcharodon Rondeletii. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese People. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1 per bottle.

HEAR WHAT THE DEAF SAY!

It has performed a miracle in my case.
I have no unearthly noises in my head and hear much better.
I have been greatly benefited.
My deafness helped a great deal—think another bottle will cure me.

"Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer can personally testify, both from experience and observation. Write at once to Haylock & Jenney, 7 Dey street New York, enclosing $1, and you will receive by return a remedy that will enable you to hear like anybody else, and whose curative effects will be permanent. You will never regret doing so."—Editor of Mercantile Review.

An amusing incident occurred the other day. A gentleman who had been absent for a considerable time, and who, during his absence, had raised a pretty luxuriant crop of whiskers, moustaches, etc., visited a relative, whose child, an artless little girl of five or six years, he was very fond of. The little girl made no demonstration toward saluting him with a kiss as was usual. "Why, child," said the mother, "don't you give Uncle John a kiss?" "Why, ma," returned the little girl, with the most perfect simplicity, "I don't see any place."—Ex.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

G. S. Sterniey, Baton Rouge: "Our Sunday-school is flourishing. Miss Fanny Robinson and myself made it a present of a library of 55 volumes. I have a good corps of teachers. They are Misses Fanny Robinson and Mary Anderson, mother Hester Williams, Mrs. Rosie Kennedy, and Messrs. Alonzo Bennett and John Williams. I have opened a singing school, and we are preparing for a picnic and concert soon. We have never had a pastor who took more interest in our school than the present one."

George Lacey, Clinton: "The parsonage of Mount Carmel church in this parish of East Feliciana was destroyed by fire on the night of the 8th of July. I had the misfortune to lose by the fire, all my worldly goods and chattels, and those of my family. We estimate the loss at eight hundred dollars. We have gone to work to rebuild our parsonage in the same place, and have already 4000 feet of lumber on the ground. When the house is completed and furnished we expect it to be worth one thousand dollars. I am glad to say that my congregation have done all that they could since the accident to make me comfortable."

Rev. R. Fields, Jeannerette: "Our baptising took place last Sunday, and we had a large number baptized. We had a glorious time. There was about 300 in attendance. The baptismal sermon was preached by Rev. William Davis. The sacramental sermon was preached by Revs. Martin Joseph and Thomas Saundas, at 3 o'clock, after which the Lord's Supper was administered to 69. At night Rev. Braxton Bolden preached a good sermon; after which we opened our protracted meeting, and a great many souls came to the mercy seat. We think from the present outlook that a great many souls will be converted in this meeting. Our church is in a good condition both spiritually and financially. Pray that the Lord may continue his blessings with us."

MISSISSIPPI.

A. Butler, Shuqualak: "The circuit is in a prosperous condition, and we are having some converts. We expect to commence rebuilding one of our churches soon, as we have the lumber all here ready for that purpose. Elder J. W. Dunn held our second quarterly conference, July 15, 1882, and administered sacrament to seventy-nine."

B. Scarborough, Pickens: "Owing to unavoidable causes the child... did not see the day appointed ... [illegible] in the accomplishment of the desired end. The exercises at night were such as will tend to create a new interest for the elevation of the Sunday-school. Collection, $3. Protracted meeting will open on the 23 inst. We are praying for the conversion of many souls."

TEXAS.

W. H. Moseby, Seguin: "My camp meeting commences August 3. We are looking for a grand harvest this year."

A. C. Colbreath, Huntsville: "After having a three-weeks protracted meeting, the results are fifteen on probation, seventeen conversions, received in full membership fifteen."

W. J. Mitchell, Landrum: "Our beloved elder was with us May 4, and we had an outpouring of the Holy Spirit. Received on probation, four. On the second Sunday in June, we had a good time with the children, and collected for education $2 40. Prof. Brown, of the day-school, gave us a splendid lecture. The children are advancing in education under Profs. Brown and J. M. Jackson."

For years past we have heard much of the revival of Mohammedanism. In India, in Egypt, and in those countries which are under Turkish rule, this form of religion has been displaying signs of new life. This revival has no doubt been provoked by the advancement of Christian civilization. Western influences are now making themselves felt all through the East. The consequence is that the old and corrupt religions are alarmed. They are beginning to assume a defensive attitude. We have no need to fear the return of ages of persecution. Liberty is too far advanced for that. But we may apprehend persecution on a petty scale. And we may expect also considerable political difficulty. Moslem fanaticism is at the root of the Egyptian difficulty. The national party are inspired by religious feeling. In a letter to the Times, Mr. Robertson Smith has called attention to one form in which Moslem prejudice has recently manifested itself. Some years ago the many valuable manuscripts which were moldering in the book-chests and dust-heaps of mosques of Cairo were collected and deposited in a library under the care of Dr. Spitta. This library has been of great value to Arabic scholars. During the spring of this year Dr. Spitta was dismissed on the ground that, being a Christian, he was not fitted to have the charge of documents and treasures which were so closely identified with the history and theology of Mohammedanism. It is expected that this interesting library will be closed against European scholars. Dean Burgon will not be sorry, but progressive scholars like Mr. Smith will complain bitterly. Speaking generally, Christian aggression needs to be combined with forbearance and wisdom. There is a wide application to be made of the Savior's words, "Be ye wise as serpents and harmless as doves."—London Methodist.

Mrs Kate Atkins, a wealthy lady of Pittsburg, Pa., writes: "Rich food and high living, night parties and fashionable dressing and the general frivolity of high life, had been affecting my health quite seriously. I commenced using Brown's Iron Bitters about a year ago, and now I am as lively as a young girl, and excel them in endurance. It is more refreshing than champagne, and its strengthening effects are lasting."

The Mobile Gazette has become a semi-weekly, and appears to be growing in favor and influence. Philip Joseph is the editor.

A GENEROUS ACT

That Will be Appreciated by All Who Care for their Complexion or Skin.

It is not generally known that the nervous system has a wonderful influence over the skin, but this is a fact known to medical men who have given much of their time to the study of diseases of the skin. No one can have a clear and fair complexion mixed with blotches and pimples who is very nervous.

Whatever tends to a healthful condition of the nervous system always beautifies the complexion and removes dryness and roughness of the skin. Some skin diseases are not attended by visible signs on the surface, but an intolerable itching that renders life miserable.

We copy the following deserving and interesting compliment from the Tribune which says: "Dr. C. W. Benson's New Remedy, 'SKIN CURE,' is received by the public with great confidence, and it is regarded as a very generous act on the Doctor's part to make known and prepare for general use his valuable and favorite prescription for the treatment of skin diseases, after having devoted almost his entire life to the study and treatment of nervous and skin diseases, in which he took great delight. He was for a number of years Physician in charge of the Maryland Infirmary on Dermatology and anything from his hands is at once accepted as authority and valuable. The remedy is fully the article to attack the disease both internally, through the blood, and externally, through the absorbents, and is the only reliable and rational mode of treatment. These preparations are only put up for general use after having been used by the Doctor in his private practice for years, with the greatest success, and they fully merit the confidence of all classes of sufferers from skin diseases." This is for sale by all druggists. Two bottles, internal and external treatment, in one package. Don't be persuaded to take any other. It costs one dollar.

OH, MY HEAD!

WHY WILL YOU SUFFER?

Sick headache, nervous headache, neuralgia, nervousness, paralysis, dyspepsia, sleeplessness, and brain diseases, positively cured by Dr. Benson's Celery and Chamomile Pills. They contain no opium, quinine, or other harmful drug.

Sold by druggists. Price, 50 cents a box. Depot 106 North Eutaw St., Baltimore, Md. By mail, two boxes for $1, or six boxes for $2.50, to any address.

Lost Friends.

[We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers. All others will be charged fifty cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.]

Charles W. Taylor—his whereabouts or any information will be thankfully received by the undersigned. When last heard from he was teaching school somewhere in Southwest Miss. He has been gone from his parents for five years. Medium hight, dark complexion, marked by small-pox. Address Martha Taylor, care of Rev. H. Wright, Alexandria, La., Box 225.

Any information from Eli Taylor, who left here three years ago, and went to Galveston, Texas. When last heard from was quite sick in Washington, D. C. Whether he recovered or not we are unable to say. Write to his mother, Angeline Taylor, care of Rev. H. Wright, Alexandria, La., Box 225.

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my sister, Cornelia Ann O'Feally. She married since I saw her to Frank Thompson. He went from Memphis to De Soto, Mississippi. His mother was Phillis Daire, brother Daniel. My name was Tempey Clerk when she knew me, but now it is Tempey King. Address me at Argenta, Arkansas.

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my father's kin-people. Grandfather was Thomas Franklin, and he died belonging to Dr. James, of Fauquier county, Virginia, below Warrenton Courthouse. His wife, Rachel, belonged to the same man. His oldest child was Williams; the next was Emperor. Sister Jane married a Mr. Jackson. John, Fanny, Harrison, Thomas, and Nancy were other children. Nancy left a child in Virginia. Her mother was Mary. My father is Moses Franklin, Sr.; and all were named Franklin. Address me, at Simsport, La.

REV. MOSES P. FRANKLIN, JR

MR EDITOR: I desire to find my mother and her three children; there were four with myself, three boys and one girl. Her name is Sophia, and she belonged to Harty Briant, of Natchitoches parish, La. My name is Abner Briant, sister was Isabella Briant, and brothers Andrew and Isaiah. I am now going by the name of Abner Green, after my father, Jim Green. Address me at Patoutville, Jeannerette P. O., La.

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my relatives, father, mother, sisters, brother, uncles, and grand mother. We lived in Alabama, and belonged to the same owner, with the exception of grandmother and uncle. I do not remember the county, but the town was Claiborne. Our owner, Samuel Cobbs, was shot by young Thomas Blaise, as he was on the way to the postoffice, and was carried to his son's house from off the road. Sometime after we were sold at sheriff's sale. My brother fell to Miss Betsey, who married Thomas Nicholas. Frank Payne bought me. We were both carried on Tombigbee river, near Ovenbluff. Two plantations adjoining belonged to Widow Payne. Frank Payne was her son, Thomas Nicholas her agent. Father was named Walter, mother, Sarah, grandmother, Gracia, uncle Tobe. Address me at Convent P. O., Louisiana. REV. GEO. A PAYNE

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my daughter Mary Ann. I was sold from her in 1846. At that time we both belonged to Daniel Priest, who lived in ——, Montgomery county, Ky. I was sold to Daniel Bains, who lived in Bourbon Co., Ky. Afterward I was sold to a trader named Pierce Griffin. He carried me to Louisiana, on Bayou Plaquemines, twenty-five miles below Baton Rouge. My name at that time was Emily Priest; now it is Emily Wilson. The last time I heard from my daughter she was in Natchez, Miss., living with a doctor whose first name was John, last name I never heard. Address me at Topeka, Kansas, 504 Monroe street. 21-6tm

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER.

Pain in the right side, under edge of ribs, increasing on pressure; sometimes the pain is on the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder and is sometimes taken for Rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternating with laxity; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled; his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low, and, although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it.

If you have any of the above symptoms, you can certainly be cured by the use of the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

When you buy McLane's Pills, insist on having DR. C. McLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, made by Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa.

If you can not get the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, send us 25 cents by mail, and we will send them to you.

FLEMING BROS., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Insanity is not a sufficient ground of divorce according to United States laws. Such a calamity in either of a married pair comes under the clause of "for better, for worse" in the marriage bond. It is agreeable to note that the French assembly has established the same practice.

A Fatal Mistake

would be not to take Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" if you are bilious, suffering from impure blood, or fearing consumption (scrofulous disease of the lungs.) Sold by all druggists.

It was said by the venerable Mark Hopkins, of Williams' College, at a recent gathering of the Sons of New England in Philadelphia, that the true aim of the highest education is to give character rather than knowledge; to train men to be rather than to know.

Don't Die in the House.

Ask druggists for "Rough on Rats." It clears out rats, mice, bedbugs, roaches, vermin, flies, ants, insects. 15 cents per box.

What effect the Egyptian war will have on American cotton is, as yet, indefinite.

Indigestion and habitual costiveness arise from weakness of the nerves and muscles of the stomach. Due attention to the proper habit of life in connection with the timely use of Brown's Iron Bitters, will strengthen the affected parts and quickly remove every symptom of the disorder.

It is stated that the donations during the last ten years to the Presbyterian denomination by R. L. Stuart and his brother have secured the completion of 276 churches.

Simmons Liver Regulator

is simple and harmless, and yet has proven itself a sovereign remedy for dyspepsia, costiveness, sick headache, bilious colic, sour stomach, diarrhea, biliousness, and other like evils of a disordered liver and stomach.

The Railway Age says that one of the most remarkable cases of mysterious disappearance on record is that of the engine of the Kansas Pacific railway that went down into Kiowa creek, some thirty miles this side of Denver, one black stormy night, several years ago. The stream, which is ordinarily insignificant, had been transformed by a sudden flood into a roaring torrent which swept the bridge away, and the engine plunged in and was swallowed up in the quicksand. Repeated efforts have been made by boring and digging to find the lost locomotive, but we learn from good authority that they have all been to no purpose; the thirty tons of iron and steel have burrowed beyond discovery. Possibly they are working down toward China, and will ere long turn up as the first American locomotive in the Celestial empire.

Functional derangement of the female system is quickly cured by the use of Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription." It removes pain and restores health and strength. By all druggists.

$1500 a year can be easily made at home working for E. G. Rideout & Co., 10 Barclay Street, New York. Send for their catalogue and full particulars.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC

A combination of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark and Phosphorus in a palatable form. The only preparation of iron that will not blacken the teeth, so characteristic of other iron preparations.

GENTLEMEN: I have used DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Diseases, Dyspepsia, and an impoverished condition of the blood, this peerless remedy, has in my hands, made some wonderful cures. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians, have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC is a necessity in my practice. DR. ROBERT SAMUELS,
ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 26th, 1881. 3104 Wash Avenue.

It gives color to the blood, natural healthful tone to the digestive organs and nervous system, making it applicable to General Debility, Loss of Appetite, Prostration of Vital Powers and Impotence.

MANUFACTURED BY THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE CO., 213 N. MAIN ST., ST. LOUIS.

Licensed—To Do What?

Licensed to make a strong man weak;
Licensed to lay the wise man low;
Licensed a wife's fond heart to break,
And make her children's tears to flow.

Licensed to do thy neighbor harm;
Licensed to kindle hate and strife;
Licensed to nerve the robber's arm;
Licensed to whet the murderer's knife!

Licensed thy neighbor's purse to drain,
And rob him of his very last;
Licensed to heat his feverish brain,
Till madness crown thy work at last!

Licensed, like spider for a fly,
To spread thy nets for man, thy prey;
To mock his struggles! suck him dry;
Then cast the worthless hulk away!

Licensed where peace and quiet dwell,
To bring disease, and want, and woe;
Licensed to make this world a hell,
And fit man for a hell below!

[Editorial Correspondence.]

From New Orleans to Nashville.

Last Friday, at 6:40 p. m., I was on board of the New Orleans and Louisville railroad, bound for Nashville, Tenn. The sweep from New Orleans to Pensacola Junction lies mostly through a flat marshy country, with here and there a town or city, Bay St. Louis, Pass Christian, and Mobile being the most important. I soon found that Rev. E. O. McIntyre, a member of the North Ohio Conference, who has been preaching and prospecting in Texas for a few months past, was on the train, and to us he proved to be a pleasant traveling companion. Bro. McIntyre is an admirer of Texas. He speaks of it as a grand but undeveloped country, and says that just now it is taking a new departure, and at no very distant day is destined to be the home of wealth and great prosperity. Every thing on the point of worldly prosperity is looking up, but he fears that in this onward march the Austin Conference is going to be left behind. We need there clear and sharp sighted presiding elders to see the situation, who will bend all of their energies to the one work of building up the Church of the Lord Jesus. Wise counsel, hard work, with a little self-denial and a good amount of vigorous work will make the Austin Conference second to none.

From Pensacola Junction on to Nashville our route lay through a much better country. All through middle and northern Alabama there is evidently a tide of real prosperity. Real estate I was told is advancing. The crops are good, and in nearly all the towns and cities new and in some instances expensive buildings are being put up, and the people seemed in good spirits. But to us Tennessee is the land of promise. It has within itself all the elements of great outcome. The climate is delightful. The soil is good, and easy to be worked, and yields a grand harvest when tickled a little with the plow and hoe, and the State is so intersected with railroads that it is an easy matter for the husbandman to get his early and later crops to an eager and remunerative market. Nashville is one of the most thriving [illegible] we have seen in the South. [illegible] and commercial facilities [illegible] connection with its religious [illegible] render it [illegible] must become the [illegible] of wealth and religion [illegible] city is now an [illegible] of prosperity. [illegible] New buildings [illegible] Of [illegible] track do produce an awful jolting, but it is a mistake to suppose that this exercise is either pleasant or healthy for the passengers. We are quite sure that a quiet removal of these stones from the track would please the passengers to say nothing of the poor mules.

My home at Nashville was with Dr. Braden's family. The Doctor was away, but his amiable and accomplished wife gave me a cordial welcome. I was well cared for. Dr. Braden has been at Nashville for fifteen years as President of the Central Tennessee College, and has done a vast amount of first-rate work on material that shall survive the wreck of worlds and the fires of the last day. He has been well tried, and is known so well that there is no thought of any thing else than the most perfect fidelity on his part. Few men feel more clearly the power of high moral obligation. He is a strong preacher, and one of the most successful educators in our Church.

Sabbath was a hot but delightful day, and was mostly spent with Bro. Haygood and his people. In the morning he allowed me to talk to his Sunday-school. It was Missionary Day, and there were 219 present. The collection was $9 10 At 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. I had the privilege of talking to the big people, and after the collections were all out of the way I presented the SOUTHWESTERN, and during the day obtained forty four subscribers.

My trip to Nashville was delightful. I was charmed with most of the country along the route. The shake of the hand Bro. Hagood gave me as he met me at the depot was worth the entire journey. It was an unspeakable joy to meet with the Sunday-school in the morning, which I call second to no school I have ever seen in the South. This I can say: I have never heard sweeter singing, either North or South. I see that the people who have known all about the most bitter and degrading servitude are fast coming to the front rank, and I have my greatest joy in witnessing their achievements and triumphs. It was a pleasure to be with them, all of whom treated me with the greatest kindness. Our Church at Nashville is not going to be left behind. Bro. Hagood is bending all his energies to the one work before, and his people follow in the steps of their leader.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

An Appeal to Young Men.

Young men, look to your habits. Young men, if you contemplate a business career, you cannot look after your habits too carefully. Your aim in life is to be successful in your undertakings, and you can never be successful with bad habits. Matters that seem of small moment to you now may become in the future the turning-point of your career, either up or down, as they have of many a man before you. Think for a moment. The present age is the harvest time of past sowings, and the sowing-time for future harvests. It is a commercial age, an age of intense activity. With the wheat have come up the tares, and both have grown together till the harvest. What are we reaping of the latter? Embezzlement, betrayals of judiciary, trade speculations, greed for office and malfeasance therein when obtained, forgeries and frauds, sharply dishonest practices, these have hardly been distinguishable from the wheat until the time of fruitage. Is there not danger that their seeds are being scattered for another harvest? Without stopping to inquire into all the agencies that are employed in the sowing, we will but consider one, disregard for law. Blackstone defines law to be a rule of action, and Burke, considering that part applicable to human beings, says, There are only two foundations of law, equity and utility. The former grows out of the great rule of equality founded in our common nature. The latter is general and public connected in the same manner with, and derived from our common nature. Selfishness steps in and denies equality, and ignores public utility. Thus selfishness saps the foundation of law, and perverts all rules of action. The result is the same, whether pleasure or interest be the end sought. The report of the child in which harm is not intended, feeds the selfish spirit until it grasps at iniquity and seeks in earnest the infringement of the rights of others. From the playful use of the rubber string to the pistol, the movement is along the line of self-seeking from play to purpose, from pleasure to crime. From thoughtless jesting to cruel slander, from the apple seized at the grocer's door to the thousands plundered from the vaults of the bank, from the game of marbles for keeps to the faro bank and roulette table, from the stone laughingly thrown at the window of an unoccupied house to the dynamite hidden away in the cellar of the imperial palace, from the pleasure attendant upon the torture of some brute animal to the assassination of some fellow being, the steps are always taken in the same direction. It is well that many see the tendency and stop, but some move on persistently to the end. But young men and young ladies don't do it. Turn your steps into the highways of the noble aim and earnest work. There are prizes enough for every successful worker, and crowns enough for every honorable head that goes through the smoke of conflict to victory. Crimes spring not out of the ground full-fruited. It is a growth more or less rapid, according to the soil and surrounding. But it has its germ, its blade, its ear, and its full corn in the ear. Its soil is selfishness and paternal neglect is the most favorable condition of growth. The school may perpetuate, or it may counteract the home of influence. Christian societies help the home, and the schools sometimes supply the lack of one or both. To the eradication of selfishness, the home, the school, and the Church should address themselves, and all will find the most hopeful fields among the children. These three, and the greatest of these is home.

Fraternally,

A. L. RICHARDSON.

Holly Springs District.

MR. EDITOR—Permit me to say, through the columns of the SOUTHWESTERN, a few words in regard to the work on my district. I have just completed the second round. Financially this is the hardest year we have ever experienced in the Mississippi Conference, I think. There seems to be less money in circulation. This accounts, at least in a measure, for the few subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. Nevertheless the prospect brightens. Indications at present point to an abundant corn crop and fair cotton crop. We shall try and make good in the latter half of the year deficits of the first half. The new Rust University building at Holly Springs is as rapidly approaching completion as circumstances will permit. I mention in this connection to remind the brethren of our pledges made at the last session of our Conference to raise something over $4,000 this year for the said new University building, and to inform our friends that these vows are upon us, and the money must come. However, I trust that none of us will forget our obligations in other directions, especially the benevolent enterprises of the church and our church paper, the SOUTHWESTERN. I am sure that if we trust in God and do our whole duty we shall be able to meet all these demands. I am satisfied that every family within the bounds of our Conference could take the SOUTHWESTERN if they could only be made to see that it is for their good. Indeed, I don't know how any man who is the head of a family dare live without a good religious paper in the family. Our spiritual progress is slow, yet I may write, progress. Revival meetings have been held in nearly all of the charges, in all of which souls have been converted and added to the church. At Oxford, especially, a grand work was accomplished, 62 were converted and 59 added to the church.

There is more interest manifested in the temperance cause than I have ever seen before. For six years I have kept this subject before the quarterly conferences and congregations, and am often rejoiced with the results. I am sure that God is in this great reform, and that it will not rest until the "fiery demon" is dethroned. More anon.

Letter from Lonoke.

LONOKE, ARK., August 1, 1882.

DEAR EDITOR: Thinking that after a long protracted silence the readers of the dear SOUTHWESTERN would be pleased to hear from this part of the Lord's vineyard, I snatch a few hours between the time of my appointments to drop a word of cheer along the line.

I am this year on what is known as the Lonoke Circuit, which makes a circuit of fifty miles, with five charges under my control and four Sabbath-schools. I have also succeeded in organizing two literary associations, one at Richmond, in a very prosperous condition, and one at McCresmore, which is known as the St. Peter's Literary Association. These associations comprise the very best citizens of the community, both saint and sinner, and their influence for good is being felt in the different communities, and is of benefit to the Church. The Sabbath-schools are progressing nicely. Teachers, scholars, and superintendents, all are entering heartily into their work and each vieing with the other to see who can do the most for the upbuilding of Christ's kingdom.

When I enter my schools and see the host of faithful workers, and the dear children with their placid faces and laughing eyes, reflecting as it were the very image of their Maker, perceiving the earnest teachers and superintendent, I often think of the poet——

"If you cannot speak like angels,
If you cannot preach like Paul,
You can tell the love of Jesus,
You can say He died for all.

If you cannot rouse the wicked
With the judgment's dread alarms,
You can lead the little children
To the Savior's waiting arms."

While I cannot speak very encouragingly financially for our schools, on account of the shortness of the crops last year, and the extreme poverty of my people, yet, we hope to come up handsomely ere the conference year closes for Missionary, Freedmen's Aid, and Sabbath-School Union.

The Church spiritually is flourishing. I am now on my round of a protracted effort through the circuit. Starting at Devall's Bluff, a place where we have a good church house but very few members, four or five, and they living in the country, I succeeded in getting the work revived, and had one conversion, and one accession from the Baptist Church. During the effort our house was crowded. I opine that the Savior will visit his people with copious showers this year. I have had fifteen accessions this conference year, divided as follows, viz: Four converts, four as seekers, and the balance coming from sister churches; and am hoping when the round of this protracted effort is closed that there will be a hundred and four. Then my heart and soul will rejoice with the poet:

"Let none hear you idly saying,
'There is nothing I can do,'
While the souls of men are dying,
And the Master calls for you.

"Take the task He gives you gladly,
Let His work your pleasure be;
Answer quickly when He calleth,
'Here am I; send me, send me.'"

REV. H. DUNLAP.

George William Curtis in 1855 became a silent partner in the business firm of Dix, Edwards & Co. the publishers of Putnam's Monthly. He invested $10,000 in the concern; but had no part in its management. Two years later the firm failed, and Mr. Curtis through some informality in drawing up the articles of partnership was declared to be legally responsible for a portion of its debts. Many of his friends held that he was in no way bound beyond the $10,000, and urged him to test the question in the courts. Mr. Curtis refused, although his decision involved the assumption by him of a debt of $100,000. He surrendered all his property. In sixteen years, by most arduous labor, writing and lecturing, he paid the last dollar of the debt.

We commend the copying of the above record, which we have seen already in more than one respectable journal. Much is written and said about Mr. Curtis, more in disparagement even to the extent of stalwart sneering, than of commendation. The above shows that he wears worthily the distinction of being "an honest man"—the "noblest work of God."—Boston Watchman.

"Northern Methodist churches spend nearly a million dollars a year on churches and schools in the South. Fifteen hundred Methodist churches are used as school houses on week-days." So says the Presbyterian. We make our bow for this recognition of the fact, but earnestly protest against the nickname. Our title and only title, is "Methodist Episcopal Church." Baltimore Methodist.

What a man believes, he will do; and if he has no faith to guide his practice and impel him to action, he will only drift—and no man ever drifted into a good and useful life, certainly not into salvation.

Rev. Julius Soper's Tour In Japan.

(Concluded from last week.)

On Wednesday afternoon, May 17, we reached Iida, a large interior town, (really a city,) and on entering the town were met by our native preacher, two active Christians, and the Sunday-school scholars, all dressed up in their best, and we were thus escorted into the town, being the center of attraction all along the route to our chapel, which is situated in the heart of the city. This also, is a wealthy district, silk culture being extensively carried on, and there is very little real poverty for miles around, a wonderful contrast with nearly every other section of Japan.

I remained some five or six days in these parts, preaching and lecturing as usual, at different points in the vicinity—twice in large silk-reeling establishments, where scores of girls are employed, and twice in a large primary school-building, about 120 children being present. Sunday (May 21) was, as usual, an interesting day, as we held the ordinary services. I baptized in these parts seven adults and two children. At one place on this circuit they are anxious to have a "foreign teacher" (missionary) come and live, who will spend some three hours daily in teaching, the rest of the time being free to carry on the evangelistic work. They have heard of Mr. Goucher's generous offer to send teachers to several points in Japan, on condition the people pay a certain amount of the salary. I told them to make out their request, in accordance with Mr. Goucher's conditions, and forward it to our approaching Annual Meeting, (beginning July 4,) and, if approved by our Mission, we would forward the same to Mr. Goucher, urging him to send a man and wife at once to this important and promising field of labor.

Well, we reached Matsumoto, the highest city in Japan, though not the best nor purest. It is situated in the midst of a large plain, surrounded by high mountains, some of the peaks being still, at this writing, covered with snow. We spent four days at this place, preaching and lecturing as usual—audiences good and attentive. The native preacher here is abundant in labors. In addition to preaching, he conducts a very interesting day-school of some twenty-five children, all of whom, besides a number of the Church members, met me on Thursday (May 25) as I reached the city, and gave me a "right royal" reception, escorting me in fine style through the streets to my stopping-place, a native hotel.

There have been some serious drawbacks to our work here the last two or three years, nearly all of the original baptized persons having fallen back. Many of them did not fully understand at the time what they were doing, and others entered the Church with hope of being pecuniarily and materially benefited. I am glad to say, however, the crisis is over, and that the Matsumoto Church of some thirty members is entering upon a new era, and now bids fair to be one of the most prosperous and interesting charges of our Mission. Those who are now in the Church are earnest and faithful, and are co-operating heartily with the pastor, fulling appreciating the text, "Silver and gold have we none." I baptized three adults and five children on this circuit.

Last Wednesday (May 31) I reached this place, Matsushiro, having walked half the way from Matsumoto, which is distant some thirty-six miles, with four mountain passes between the two places.

The rest of the way I rode in a jinrikisha, or on a pack horse. I found the Christians here, some fifteen or twenty, glad to see me, and Wednesday being their regular preaching night, I was in for "preaching," although tired and sleepy. I preached about forty minutes on "Repentance." The Christians here are earnest, and several of them are remarkably so, heartily working with the pastor to build up the good cause. On Sunday next I expect to baptize three adults. I am glad to say they are not working me very hard here. Only three sermons or addresses are required during my stay of five days. So I am enjoying a grateful rest—a blessed retreat—time for writing and meditating.

On Monday next (D. V.) I leave for Yokohama, expecting to reach there Tuesday or Wednesday. I have but one mountain pass to cross, and shall find stages most of the way. On my return, after attending to some necessary Mission business now waiting me, I expect to make a hasty visit to Yamagata, in the north, getting back in time to welcome Dr. Maclay on his return to Japan, June 25 or 26.

When I shall have baptized the three adults in Matsushiro on Sunday next, they will make 24 baptisms, 15 adults and 9 children, since starting on this trip. The work, on the whole, as already intimated, is prosperous and encouraging. Everywhere I have been I have urged upon the members the duty of "self-support," telling them they cannot expect the home Church to support their pastors indefinitely; that unless in five or six years they do considerable themselves toward supporting those who come to them, they cannot expect the Annual Meeting to supply them with pastors. The members received my exhortations kindly, and everywhere promised that from the coming Annual Meeting they would contribute according to their ability toward the support of the preachers sent to them. Let us hope that this promise will be fulfilled. Thus the work, begun under the care of Dr. Maclay and the Rev. I. N. Correll, and carried forward under the care of the Rev. M. C. Harris, who is now in the United States, is going forward satisfactorily, giving promise of a large increase in the near future.

Suez and Panama.

The demonstration by Mr. Wheelock that New Orleans is regarded by the railroad interest as occupying a position of great commercial force, reminds us that the whole system of roads of which this port is the objective point has been constituted by others without asking our consultation or contribution in the matter.

A similar conviction of our connection with the commerce of the world, crossing at the Isthmus of Panama, will burst upon us some day, when strangers will come to herald its completion. We may, however, contemplate New Orleans as the enterport of much of this continental trade, and certainly as the base of supply for the canal and railroads, now in contemplation or under construction.

It requires no great political prescience to see that the United States should under no circumstance, and especially under no party administration whatever, allow any foreign intervention in regulating the terms or fixing the political or military status of that great thoroughfare. The present Egyptian complication, growing directly out of the apprehended interruption of the Suez Canal by an Egyptian satrap, flashes suddenly upon us the consequences which might follow a similar act as to Panama, on the part of some Colombian authority, acting, it may be, at the instigation of some astute mercenary corporation. We have long noted the attempt of Mr. Lesseps to constitute the Colombian government an independent and sovereign State, and to deduce from this proposition that whatsoever decree it should promulgate, should be respected by all the powers of the South. We now see him assert the same doctrine with respect to the Egyptian government, even in the hands of a revolutionary pretender. England cannot respect any such theory. She finds the most direct way of communication with 200,000,000 of her subjects, and of an immense commerce and correspondence—a way for which she has paid a hundred millions of dollars—liable to be interrupted by a treacherous and fanatical chieftain. She resorts to force to secure this transit, and will seize upon Egypt itself if it shall be necessary to guarantee the safety of the vital interest involved. The Isthmus of Panama stands in somewhat the same position to the United States that Suez does to England. It affords the shortest way of communication with our Pacific States. It will save us having to double Cape Horn, as the Suez Canal has saved England from doubling Good Hope. We commend to our Congressmen and candidates a careful and vigilant study of this right of way for the termini of the world, and to see that the Panama and Nicaragua Canals do not fall under the same complication which environs the Canal of Suez.—*N. Western Texas.

Brother Mack Henson is presiding elder of a district in Western Texas, where he is laboriously engaged in promoting our colored work. From a letter just received from him by his old friend and employer, Gen. James A. Ekin, the writer is permitted to make an extract or two. Brother Henson is a protege of the General's, or rather a theological pupil, to whom as a former messenger of his in the government service, from his known industry and integrity, while in the pursuit of knowledge under difficulties, he has anon rendered "material aid," and furnished him books and religious papers continuously, to the writer's certain knowledge. No man, more than Mack could appreciate such disinterested kindness. He frequently writes to the General, who encourages him to do so, and his letters evince the man of intelligence, ministerial acumen and pious zeal, which he has reached. His frequent letters to our SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE, that we read, show his enterprise and success in Western Texas. He writes of the great extent of territory he necessarily traverses, his district reaching Mexico on the southwest, with but a sparse population, particularly as relates to colored people. He remarks that it is noticeable that no effort is made to induce them to come and occupy the western lands of this great State, but a disposition is manifest, if possible, to confine them to their old limits. But he thanks God that such measures are futile; for colored citizens are buying homes for themselves in that country more and more every year. He says, too, that while all failures are held in everlasting remembrance, that no good can ever come of the negro, but his badness is exaggerated and kept constantly by the newspapers before their readers, as if all were Whitakers and Flippers; nevertheless, there and throughout the entire country, more especially in the South, the development temporally and spiritually and intellectually is ever marked.

For the advancement of education among his people, West Texas Conference has been aided by the Freedmen's Aid Society $5,000, on condition that the conference raise a like sum. Each pastor and presiding elder has subscribed from $10 to $100 each to this object and all, despite their poverty, are doing remarkably well in meeting with their engagements. He sees, however, that some of his self-sacrificing preachers will fail to meet the amount subscribed and so makes an appeal to his old friend, the General, and through him to all others, who sympathize with them in their struggles, to aid them at this juncture; for they have a mind to work and go on and build their college at Austin, Texas.

Rev. Mack Henson, presiding elder, makes his home at Austin, and may be addressed there, and all moneys received by him will be thankfully acknowledged and faithfully applied to this educational enterprise. There is not a month but that we see something in this line, published by him in the SOUTHWESTERN. As a Church we have anon received many substantial tokens from General James A. Ekin, and though of another communion, he always holds the Methodist Episcopal Church in kindly regard; in this instance his theological student, now a divine of whom he feels proud, will not be forgotten in this his appeal. May there be many who will "go and do likewise."

Thus it appears that while the South has only one third of the population, it has three-fourths of the illiteracy of the whole country—that is, according to population, there are six times as many illiterate persons in the South as in the North. Humiliating as these facts are, we do not propose to deceive and mislead the people by concealing them, but to correct the facts by educating the masses. Georgia, the empire of the sunny South, is the foremost State for ignorance. One-third of its entire population, or one-half of adult age, is unable to write. The Lord help us to wipe out the shame before 1890, by educating the people.—Atlanta Advocate.

How to Pay for the Southwestern.

A story is told of Horace Greeley that one day a farmer went to Mr. Greeley's office and ordered his paper stopped because he was too poor to pay for it any longer. Mr. Greeley, knowing the man, said: "Suppose we make a bargain in this way: you go home and select a hen that shall be called the paper hen, and all the eggs that hen lays during the year you shall sell and send the proceeds to me as your subscription for the paper." The farmer was pleased at so easy a way to pay for his paper, and very readily consented. The result was that the hen during the year paid for herself and board, and twice paid for the paper.

Wiley University, Marshall, Tex., is in a very prosperous condition.

Brethren, push the canvass for cash subscribers steadily and vigorously, and accompany your appreciated well wishes with the solid cash. You are our trusted agents upon whom we must depend. When you fail all fails. Collect and send us what you have. Don't wait to pay at conference. We need the money now.

The editors took an excursion in SOUTHWESTERN territory last week, and brought in subscribers from the points named, as follows: Tennessee: Nashville 44; Mississippi—Jackson 19, Crystal Springs 24, Brookhaven 10, Summit 6. Total 103. The were kindly received by the brethren at all points, and gratified at the evident popularity and appreciation of the paper and their labors.

We are told that the saving of the [illegible] service for the year is [illegible] at $2,000,000. This [illegible] a reduction of one-half in the cost of the service. There must have been a good deal of previous stealing done by somebody, most of it doubtless by some patriot anxious to serve his country. There must be some virtue in the [illegible] finds and stops stealing from the public treasury. We wish there were enough to punish the thieves.

Now even Boston has come to believe in prohibition. The city council has forbidden the sale of the deadly toy pistol to minors under 16 under the penalty of $50. It is thought that over 200 boys have died since July 4th from wounds inflicted by the toy pistol. Generally the wounds are trifling, but in a few days come lock jaw and a terrible death. If laws to abolish the pistol do not succeed, better have a law to abolish the day.

Methodist Episcopal Church in Kentucky.

We do not want to be deceived ourselves, nor do we wish to deceive others. We want and ask for facts, and let them speak for themselves. Here is a statement taken from the Central Methodist, M. E. Church South, that surprises us, and will surprise any person acquainted with the facts in the case:

> Excepting on the border, Northern Methodism in Kentucky is so manifestly a failure that all future effort to maintain its organization is next to criminal, since the means and labor expended are not only sacrificed, but by fostering and keeping alive sectional animosities, personal piques are engendered, and the cause of Christ suffers damage.

We frequently see what we call a disposition to disparage the work of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South, but seldom any thing so far from the truth as this. What are the facts with reference to this matter? In 1866 the Methodist Episcopal Church had in Kentucky 68 churches, valued at $72,000, 47 pastoral charges, with 5795 members. In 1881 she had 280 churches, valued at $514,970, with 137 pastoral charges, and 25,271 members. It does not amount to much for Churches to make up faces to each other, or to call each other names. The above facts and figures indicate something more than what Brother Meek calls a "manifest failure." They show a marvelous advance, a most gratifying progress in Church work. If the M. E. Church South has in the same period enjoyed a greater measure of prosperity in Kentucky, no one can be more thankful than we. But we do protest against such reckless misrepresentations of our Church work. A more untruthful statement could hardly be made. We recommend that Brother Meek take for the next six months a morning, noon, and evening bath in David's ointment. We think that he will find great relief from his present trouble.

Rev. E. O. McIntyre, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church, Sherman, Texas, but a member of the North Ohio Conference, and the editor rode together from New Orleans to Montgomery, Alabama. Time would fail to tell all that these two men said. Both were Methodist preachers — had lived in Texas, were admirers of that Empire State, and agreed that the Methodist Episcopal Church ought to sustain and enlarge her work as embraced in the Austin Conference. They were of the opinion (this was privately expressed, however) that it was not safe to fill that conference with a class of men who had the catarrh, lung complaint, rheumatism, gout, or some trouble with their livers, or that were governed by John Randolph's seven principles, "five loaves and two small fishes." The Austin Conference ought not to be made a hospital to which ministerial invalids are to be transferred. The hardships of a Texas itinerant require powers of physical endurance, a clear sense of the great possibilities of the future, so there can be no room nor place for physical, mental, or spiritual imbecility with the men who preach Christ's gospel in that great State. According to Bro. McIntyre's representations, our work at many points in this conference is far from being vigorous and aggressive. He represents some of the brethren as just "holding the fort."

On the New Orleans and Mobile railroad the conductor and brakeman passes through the train before each station is reached and cries out the name of the next stopping place. We were riding over that road last week and just before we reached Pass Christian, in the seat before us there sat an aged but apparently very intelligent gentleman who instantly turned and asked, "What did that brakeman say?" We replied he said "the next stopping place will be Pass Christian." "That was as I understood," he said. Then continued, "This is Mississippi, the home of Jefferson Davis; the State that long years ago claimed the right of discharging its obligations at less than one hundred cents on the dollar without consulting her creditors. I recognize the binding force of all debts whether national, State or individual, and the right when we pay to secure the best terms possible from the creditors, but no State nor individual has a right to say to the creditor how their obligations shall be discharged. I have no hope for those who rush along in the broad road of repudiation; they shall all die as the fool dieth; for them I see yet no glorious hereafter. This name, Pass Christian, is very appropriate. No Bible [illegible]. There is no hope [illegible] State. It is past being [illegible]

Gov. McEnery and the School Bill.

Gov. McEnery has been reading the papers, and to relieve himself of the censure for his hasty signature of the defective school bill he addressed a letter to the editor of the Times-Democrat. That journal thinks it will "convince all fair minded persons that no blame can attach to the Governor in the matter." We think otherwise.

The Governor asserts "these papers are ignorant of the duties of the legislative and executive departments of the government." We bow to him as he enumerates those duties. He recites the well-known procedure of bills on their passage through the Legislature; and his confidence in human nature, and his innocence of the wily tricks of legislators is so great that he believes that by reading the legislative journals he keeps informed, and is prepared to act promptly on receipt of bills and either approve or veto them. He tells us how legislators may become informed of bills, but says:

> When a bill is presented to me I have to take it as to its enrollment as absolutely correct. Again, it is physically impossible for the Governor to examine every bill presented to him for his signature. He must inform himself as to its contents before and be prepared to act upon it.

This is an amazing revelation. Has the Governor been bulldozed into the position of a legislative engrossing clerk? Is he physically incompetent? Is he gifted with preternatural vision? Let his friends answer. If the Governor's views are correct we are indeed ignorant. We had read somewhere, it might have been in the State constitution, that there were three distinct departments of government—the legislative, the executive and the judicial; if our memory serves us, there was a small war whoop raised by the Governor's political party a long time ago, because the executive and legislative departments were so united it could not be told where one began and the other one ended; but here is a Democratic Governor, in 1882, who does not know apparently that the constitution contemplates, and the public expects, that he will read, and only approve of fairly worded and wise acts of the Legislature. The veto power was provided for the purpose of checking faulty and bad legislation. It is a manifest impossibility for the Governor to exactly know the contents of a bill until he sets his eyes upon it, as the sad fate of the little sixty-five line bill in question should have taught him. The Governor, we grant, must take the enrollment as absolutely correct; he cannot alter or amend a bill, but it is certainly his duty to veto or promptly return a defective bill, with a message to the House in which it originated, pointing out objections or needed corrections.

The Governor's attempted defense is very lame and displays a gross ignorance of executive duties. If our legislators were met by the firm resolve of the Governor to read and reflect upon all legislative acts presented him, and a refusal to gratify their dalliance, important measures would not be postponed to the last minutes of the session, and hurried through with glaring defects. It affords us pleasure to have the Governor say the error in Act No. 129 will not injuriously affect the New Orleans public schools, but we think he will regret the disparaging estimate he places upon his official duty. A frank confession of error would have been graciously received, but a defense of one will be resented by fair minded people.

From John Lovell & Sons, publishers, Montreal, Canada, comes a pamphlet entitled "Proposals for an American Bi-Metallic Union," by William Brown. Price 10c. The writer holds that as America is the principal producer of gold and silver, a congress of the different nations of the continent should be called together to utter its voice on currency questions, as in Europe, and to secure a unification of coinage. The object is a commendable one, for the values of the coinage of the different American States vary almost as much as the bills of State banks of this Union before the national bank notes were issued. The commercial value of a unification of coinage needs no argument in proof.

The sum subscribed and apportioned for the Gilbert Haven School of Theology on the La Teche district, including the presiding elder's subscription, amounts to $1010. We hope them much success in raising the whole amount.

It is faithfulness that is rewarded with the crown of success. Faithfulness to Christian convictions secures the crown of life. Be thou, then, faithful until death.

The Methodist Quarterly.

The Quarterly for July has for the frontispiece a finely executed steel portrait of the well-known benefactor, George I Seney. Few men are doing better with their wealth than Mr. Seney. This number opens with an article on the "New Japan," by R. S. Maclay, D. D., Superintendent of our Missions in Japan. Dr. Maclay sketches very clearly the great changes which have taken place in that country—outlines the difficulties that stood in the way of reform—and chief among these was the awful dread of Romanism, which for two hundred and fifty years had to a great extent controlled the thought of the Japanese. In less than thirty years Japan has risen from a state of semi-barbarism to an enlightened nationality — has abolished her laws against Christianity—established a system of national schools—and has so transformed the polity, government, and usages of this empire as to justify in the mind of Dr. Maclay the appellation of "New Japan."

H. K. Carroll, the religious editor of the Independent, furnishes an article on "American Lutherans and Their Divisions." This paper will give most readers more information concerning the numerous hostile divisions of the Lutherans than they have ever had before. They are divided among themselves and terribly bitter against one another, but nothing can exceed their hostility toward what they call damnable heresies in in all other forms of Protestantism. They dislike American schools, but they have sixteen colleges, twenty-eight academies, fifteen seminaries for young ladies, eighteen theological seminaries, with 532 students. They are rapidly increasing in this country, but chiefly by immigration, and now number 738,302.

The third paper is "A Glance at the Literature of Sanskrit," by L. A. Sherman, Ph. D.

"Jesus a Total Abstainer," is the title of an article by Rev. Leon O. Field, which successfully controverts these two positions: 1, That Jesus made intoxicating wine; 2, That he commended its use. This article is the third in the series by Mr. Field, and should be carefully studied by all of those who desire to be equipped for the war against the use of wines. We regard these papers as the best we have ever seen upon this subject.

Robert R. Doherty has a paper on the "Legends of the Wandering Jew." To us this is a bit of chaff.

The "Theory and Practice of the Methodist Episcopacy" is discussed by Bishop Peck, who takes for his text Dr. Ridgway's Life of Bishop Janes. By the ministers and members of our Church this will doubtless be regarded as the most interesting paper of this number of the Quarterly, and will be read with interest.

Thomas Carter, D. D, missionary to Mexico, gives an interesting description of "The Great Convent San Francisco, in Mexico, its transformation into a circus, a theater, and then into a Methodist Episcopal church." Originally, it was the garden of the palace of Montezuma, was purchased by the lamented Bishop Gilbert Haven, and is now divided into a church, school rooms, and a printing-office.

In the synopsis of the quarterlies and book notices, the editor bestows praise and criticism as no other man but Dr. Whedon can. What he thinks of Dr. Newman Smith's article on "Orthodox Rationalism," published in the Princeton Review, may be inferred from these words: "We would rather go back to the despised old eighteenth century, and fasten us down with Paley, Locke, and Blair, to solid 'common sense,' than float aloft in a theological balloon to the skies with these high pneumatic performers."

Congressman Darrall, of the Third Louisiana District, who recently procured an order from Secretary Folger prohibiting the payment of Customhouse employes engaged in political service in his district, has followed this step with a letter to the Secretary urging an investigation of alleged abuses. He calls attention to reports on file in the Treasury Department, from the special agent at New Orleans, relative to the incompetency and utter inefficiency of a number of employes holding positions of importance and trust; to the general assertion that employees divide salaries and emoluments with outside persons for whom places were provided by dismission or reduction of competent persons; also to employment of persons whose services are not needed. While probably true the present political exigencies of Mr. Darrall are being served or led to this formal complaint at this time, it is also true that the public service may be profited should the Secretary order the investigation asked for. Let it be thorough and comprehensive. In this connection it is proper to suggest that the Teche collection district is wholly embraced within the Third Congressional District, and it, with sundry other Federal appointments, contribute greatly to Congressman Darrall's facility in working up conventions and making lively campaigns. Probably some reforms may be needed there also, and by including it in the plan of investigation the Secretary could get a fair amount of information relative to the entire customs service in Louisiana.

Riding in the cars not long since from Pensacola Junction to Montgomery, Alabama, we chanced to fall into conversation with a Baptist clergyman, who was certainly a man of more than ordinary intelligence, and appeared to be a person of real piety. We were gratified to learn from him that the secretary of the Home Missionary Society of the Baptist Church was about to send two or three missionaries (yes, missionaries, that was the very term used) to labor here in New Orleans. To us this was good tidings. We bid them a hearty welcome, and wish them the most abundant success. Certainly there is but little aggressive power in the white Protestant churches of the city. They sing, "Hold the Fort," and that is about all that is accomplished. It is not God's plan that this city should be given over to Romanism, Sabbath desecration, whisky drinking, and kindred vices. Churches are no better than literary societies or social clubs unless they lift men out of sin into Christ. Five hundred and fifty-five millions of sermons, and as many prayer meetings and Sabbath-schools are not worth two nickels unless they save sinners. We do not want to go to church to spend three hours each Sabbath to gratify our musical taste, nor to see some poor mortal try to make a display of eloquent oratory, or to hear read some so called exhaustive essay on mind and matter, to see a man splash and flounder for forty or fifty minutes. We hope that our Baptist brethren will hurry up and send on the missionaries; and that God will save us from churches kept on ice.

We have on our table a little paper called the Amateur Times, vol. 1, No. 1, dated August 1. It is edited by boys. Their names are Jos. T. and B J. DeGrange. They announce that they enter upon the path of journalism with dread and fear, are going to advance the arts, science, and literature, and call on all their young friends to furnish contributions, and "not let their ability lie dormant." They want some advertisements also. Subscription price is fifty cents a year. We hope the editors are good boys, and will make their neat little paper a power for good among its patrons. This is a news item from the Amateur Times:

> Noticeable among the beautiful flowers of our Crescent City is a night flowering cactus, known as Cerns Grandiflorus, reared and owned by Dr. Brickell, on St. Charles street. The plant is about six feet high, and is resplendent with at least twenty waxen white blossoms.

This is a bit of pleasantry:

> It appears that Professors Levy and Hoch have inspired a great many of our citizens with a desire to become proficient on that beautiful instrument, the "Cornet." Those, however, who live in the neighborhood of a new learner think——shotgun——sometimes.

While temperance reformers claim that prohibition does prohibit, and that it reduces crime and develops virtue; it is the boast of liquor dealers and consumers that it is an utter failure. The following clipping from the Chicago Inter Ocean, however, pertinently and forcibly illustrates the way it fails in Kansas:

> Whether it is the effect of the liquor law or not, Kansas has less need for its prisons. The authorities find it somewhat lonesome about the penitentiary of the State, and have opened it as a boarding-house, and have agreed to take convicts from New Mexico to board at $1 40 per week. Can any State beat that?

Christian churches, conferences conventions, assemblies, and other reprepresentative assemblages whose race prejudices will not allow a worthy negro brother to sit in their midst, might well profit by the example of Mrs. Jefferson Davis, wife of the President of the Lost Cause, who recently offered her services as a teacher in the Sunday-school of one of our colored churches in Mississippi.

Rev. S. Priestley has our thanks for complimentary tickets to the concert to be given by the Jubilee Singers, for the benefit of Union Chapel. The concert takes place at the church, on Bienville street, near Marais, on the 26th inst. Admission, 25 cents. A rich treat is in store for those who attend.

About 16,000 men are now employed in railroad construction in Florida.

—We learn that Marshal Pitkin, on granting leave of absence to one of his deputies, who desired to attend a political convention in an interior parish, gave him distinctly to understand that he was at liberty to use his own judgment, and to support the candiate of his choice, without fear of the displeasure of his superior officer. Marshal Pitkin in so doing faithfully regarded the wishes of the present national administration.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

John Franklin, Simsport: "Have begun effective work here. One backslider reclaimed; baptized, one adult, ten children; five received on probation; Sunday-school prospering."

The pastors on the Ta Teche district are requested to send the names and postoffice addresses of all their Sabbath-school superintendents to Rev. A. E. P. Albert, at this office.

J. J. Nash, Bayou Boeuf: "I am surrounded by Baptists, and many of them are very nice people. They come to hear me. I have organized the Sunday-school into a missionary society. The young men take the paper."

G. J. Rogers, Plains: "My second conference was held by Bro. Hudson, July 16. Four joined on probation. Collection, five dollars. Crops are fine. I think I will be able to raise all the money for the Gilbert Haven School of Theology."

Rev. J. G. Vaughan, of Ames church, New Orleans, on the 6th inst., received two members by letter, and baptized several children The festival on the 7th was a pleasant affair, and he was made happy by the presence of friends and volunteer assistance on the occasion. The Ladies Aid Society was reorganized on the 10th.

R. T. Louis, Plaquemine: "My second quarter was held July 29, and the sacrament was administered to a goodly number. Thirteen were added to the Church, and three children christened; had two rousing sermons by Rev. J. W. Hudson, of Baton Rouge, and the power of the Holy Ghost was felt throughout the house. The harvest is truly great, but the laborers are few. The prospects of the M. E. Church here are good, and we must have a church. Brethren, pray for us."

MISSISSIPPI.

J. R. Johnson, Benton: "My Sunday-school picnic, July 21, and grand concert at night, were joyful. Some 600 or 700 people attended. The concert was conducted by D, Green, a teacher from Holly Springs. Rev. J. C. Clemons delivered an address."

TENNESSEE

M. Williams, Franklin: "Our work here still moves on. Rev. James Pickett, our presiding elder, was with us Saturday and Sunday, August 5th and 6th, and held our quarterly conference. The reports showed some growth in the church within the quarter. Rev. J. Thompson from Spring Hill was with us, which added much to the success of the meeting. Quarterley collection $20. The trustees reported $29 in the treasury."

J. F. Summerhill, Lawrenceburg: "We have held one of our best quarterly conferences. Elder Price presided. He held the first Methodist conference at Napier's furnace, and to our great surprise the church was crowded J. L. Massey, of Linden circuit, and G. W. Marsh, of North Lebanon circuit, cheered us by their presence. The elder spent a week on my circuit lecturing, preaching and visiting from house to house. White friends invited him to their pulpit at Chintbry which he will accept on his next round. The Lord crowned our meeting with the conversion of four souls, 3 joined the church. Collected for elder $21 13; pastor $20 40; Freedmen's Aid $4 60; missions $4 66, education $2 13, church extension 25 cents, claimants 55 cents, bishops 35 cents. Total $54 07. We have on hand for ceiling our church $21. Our elder is a working man and we all have to work to keep up with him. He is a man of power and is felt wherever he goes. He has thundered from one side of the district to the other and awakened that part of the church that had gone down into the mud, and his voice was like a two-edged sword which cut sinners on the right and left. Brethren pray for the success of Lawrence circuit."

The following statistics, giving some idea of the extent of Indian progress and civilization, will doubtless be interesting to many of our readers:

Number of Indians in the United States exclusive of those in Alaska	261,851
Number of houses occupied by Indians	29,143
Number of children of school age	40,238
Number of schools—boarding, 79; day, 314	393
Number of children attending school, one month or more, during the year	14,292
Number who can read	44,478
Number of church buildings	297
Number of missionaries, not including teachers	184
Number of acres under cultivation in 1881	533,367
Bushels of grain raised	1,409,465
Bushels of vegetables raised	793,792
Tons of hay cut	138,263
Horses owned	253,002
Cattle owned	450,684

The various Indian tribes have "claims" against the United States Government to the amount of $20,000,000.

From Waco District.

MR. EDITOR: I am now working through my third round. I have not a great deal to write of interest. The work is moving onward; in every one of the charges there is an increase. I think if ever there was a great need of self-sacrificing ministers to work for God and humanity, it is needed in the northern portion of the West Texas Conference. The railroads are opening up all through this section of country. If means could be spared and given to this part of the work, there could be at least five or six new appointments made. I expect to have at least four new appointments to add to the work this conference year. If one thousand dollars could be had to use on this work, our Church could follow up the new line of railroads now opening through this portion of country. I do not think there ever was a time that our Church was more needed in this part of the country than now. All along the river near the Indian nation there are a great many people coming into this State, and settling down mostly on homes of their own. They should be reached by all means.

The second session of the Waco District Conference will convene in Dallas, Sept. 6. All the brethren are expected to attend. The programme has been drawn up by the committee appointed, and placed in the hands of Bro. H. Swann to forward for publication.

Church Extension.

The veteran preacher, Rev. N. Gillam of North Indiana Conference sends the following letter enclosing a draft for $250. O for five hundred such letters before we celebrate the next natal day of the Lord Jesus!

HARTFORD CITY., IND., July 31, 1882.

Chaplain McCabe:—

Dear Brother—I have been favorably impressed with the Church Extension society from its organization, and often wondered why it was not organized earlier; but I have placed a still higher estimate upon it since I read the last Manual of the Methodist Episcopal Church and see the great work accomplished by the society in the past year; and yet there is a greater work to be accomplished in the West and in the South, and the Methodist Church must do her part.

I hope the year is not far distant when we shall be able to build two churches each day. To assist in bringing about this happy and much-desired result, please find draft inclosed for $250, with which to aid in building a church either in the West or South wherever it is most needed.

Yours truly, N. GILLAM.

In 1879 Bro. Gillam gave $250 to aid in the erection of a church in Albion, Nebraska, which is worth $1200, and has eighty-four members. C. C. McCABE.

A Noble Gift—A Great Opportunity.

Rev. E H. Gammon, of the Rock River Conference, offered to give $5000 for a building to be used as a Theological Seminary, and 20,000 more for endowment, if others would give $10,000 additional for the building. Depending upon the effectual indorsement of the church, I immediately pledged the $10,000, and directed the building to be erected. This training school for ministers will be built at Atlanta, Ga., in connection with Clark University. Well-trained ministers is the most pressing need of the church in the South. God has moved the heart of one man to partially supply this want. Who will assist? H. W. WARREN.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 1—Emancipation Day.

Rust University.

The following amounts were received for Rust University during the month of July: From Aberdeen charge, by W. McDonald, $6 25; from Greenwood, by P. Blue, $5 00, as follows: P. Blue, Eliza J. Blue, Samuel Dove, Manerva Smith and Catherine Hardison, each $1.

Rust Hall has now reached its fourth and last story, and it is expected that it will be enclosed by the last of August. We are expecting the brethren of the Mississippi Conference to come up grandly with their subscriptions this fall. Do not wait till you get your full amounts before reporting. The money is needed every week to pay the workmen and for material.

The next term of school will open on Thursday, September 28th. The examination of new students and of all who were not examined at the close of the last school year will take place on Thursday, Sept. 27. Students who are a few days, or even one day late, cause much extra labor for the teacher and much trouble for themselves.

Holly Springs, Miss., Aug. 9.

From Brookhaven.

DEAR EDITOR:—It was quite agreeable with the people here to have in our midst on the 9th inst, the presence of your assistant editor, Rev. A. E. P. Albert. Call again Brother. Recently Mrs. M. V. Keever, principal of the Meridian Academy, was here in the interest of that school. Her lectures made a grand impression upon the minds of those who had the opportunity of hearing them. J C.

Brookhaven, Miss., August 10th.

Washington & Lee University, Lexington, Va.

From the "supplement" to the last catalogue we learn that the "Lee Memorial Association" have made final arrangements for the completion of the Mausoleum and the public inauguration of the statute of Gen. R. E. Lee. The ceremonies of inauguration will be held June 28, 1883, the day after the close of the commencement exercises of the University. The Board of Trustees have postponed the celebration of its Centenary to a day to be appointed, subsequent to the inauguration. The new Library Building, with its large reading room, elegant art gallery, and offices, is now finished, and will be in use the next session. The University is indebted for this most valuable addition to its means of usefulness to the liberality of Mrs. Josephine Louise Newcomb, of New York, who defrayed the entire expense of its erection—$20,000. The building is an offering of affection and honor to the memory of her husband, the late Warren Newcomb, Esq., who had also been a generous benefactor of the University.

Letter from Booneville.

MR. EDITOR:—I have intended to write several times but for want of time have waited until now. I have been in this part of the country five months as a teacher of a private school. I have enrolled one hundred and fifty-eight this season. I ran a night school nearly two months with fifty scholars, but owing to the busy operation of the farmers I had to suspend it.

Have had a good day school. For the first two months things seemed lively, money was in circulation, but, owing to the late high water, agricultural pursuits were checked several months. The people have planted their crops since the water fell and they are as fine as those which the water did not disturb, and if the caterpillars do not come soon there will be harvested as grand a crop as ever this country produced. This is a dark part of the country. The people have not been blessed here with schools as other parts of our country have. They have been groveling in the dark, and constantly misguided. If there was ever a people who needed education it is the people of Booneville.

These are a thrifty industrious people; they make good crops every year; there are men here who make from twenty to forty bales of gin cotton each year. They sell their own crops generally. They would be independent men, but they have never learned the lessons of economy.

In passing several of the cotton farms I saw several women ploughing equally with the men. I want to speak to you of our paper, the SOUTHWESTERN, and its progress. As a teacher I have occasion to pass around among the people and find them without reading matter, not so much as our paper. They often exclaim they wish they had a book or something I might read for them. I ask them why they don't subscribe for the SOUTHWESTERN, and they say they are tired of being humbugged about getting the paper. They say the agents who take their subscriptions promise to have their papers every week, and they claim when they do get a paper they get three and four at a time; and as they could not get them every week they would not subscribe any more. This is one of the richest sections of this country and the SOUTHWESTERN should have not less than one hundred subscribers here. I encourage the people to take the paper, and they say if they were sure to get it weekly they would subscribe.

The people here sell their own crops, and they are glad at all times to know how the markets are, and there are a set of men here who do not belong to the church and raise [illegible] cotton. They say [illegible] will publish [illegible] all the season, they will subscribe. A careful observation of these facts will make our paper much higher in the estimation of our people and friends.

The people in this part of our country are Methodists in general, and although they are behind in education, they appreciate it highly. The sun of intelligence has just began to dawn here, I can just discern the light. There are several schools opened here now, and the teachers have as much as they can do; the masses of ignorant children to teach, besides the removal of the cloud of superstition that overhangs the older ones.

This place, Booneville, is a little in advance of the other surrounding [illegible] we have [illegible] as a teacher, Mr. [illegible]. On Bayou [illegible] is Prof. B. N. Smith, from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and Miss [illegible] Mitchell, of New Orleans. But we are sorry to learn that Prof. Smith will make his [illegible] his home in Pennsylvania. We would rather have him [illegible] to assist in removing the dark [illegible] three years toil he [illegible] good-bye. May God spare his life long to labor. I remain yours in Christ,

J. E. L. HASKINS.

[We are obliged to this correspondent for information about our paper. We have never received a complaint from Booneville before this. It is an outrage that subscribers should receive three and four papers at a time, and we are not responsible for it. Papers are mailed in a package to the pastor, [illegible] regularly each week. [illegible] We publish a [illegible].—ED.]

From Our Mission Rooms.

RELIGION IN THE SCHOOLS OF OUR FOREIGN MISSIONS.—Last Sunday, says Rev. T. Ohlinger, was a great day for Christianity in Foochow. We had a kind of educational love feast in the morning, after which 13 worthy students in our Anglo-Chinese College were admitted to full membership. In the evening Mr. Ahok appointed a meeting at his house, as Mrs. Ahok desired to be baptized at home. When the ritual was nearly read Mr. Ahok brought his aged mother forward saying: "Here is another one; she wants to go to heaven too." For years Mr. Ahok has left one idol in the house in deference to his mother, who was a persistent heathen. Nearly his whole large household are now Christians. Prejudices among the wealthy are giving way. We can feel a change as of the thawing out of winter.

Mr. Ohlinger also says: Students in Anglo-Chinese College, Sia Sek, Ong, after due explanation took a vote among them for separate courses of life, 21 voted in favor of the ministry; 19 for business; 10 for medicine; and 7 for law. Our schools close about the 20th of June. The Rev. Joseph Cook spent last night with us, and gave us an unusual intellectual treat. He left this morning for Australia.

DR. MACLAY AT HOME.—Dr. and Mrs. Maclay arrived at Yokohama June 25th after a voyage of 18 days from San Francisco, and received a most cordial welcome. The most gladsome and loving letters from his associates bear witness to the high place he holds in the Mission. The Doctor himself says: "It is most gratifying to notice that notwithstanding the depletion of the working corps of the Mission during the past year, its substantial interests are all in a healthy, prosperous condition, and that the members of the mission now in the field who have toiled so heroically for the Master, continue their diligent efforts without the slightest abatement of courage and hopefulness."

The services of the annual meeting of the mission, for which thorough preparations have been made by the brethren in charge, commenced this evening with a sermon in Japanese, by the Rev. Chas. Bishop, of Tokio. According to previous arrangements the annual meeting for this year is to be held Yokohama, and all the members of the Mission who can be absent for a time from their stations are already here to engage in the exercises. We are praying that the meeting may prove to be an occasion of great benefit to all departments of the work under the care of the Mission. The educational movement, concerning which the Mission has been in correspondence with you, has already received earnest attention and made considerable progress.

Brother Soper says: "It is with great pleasure that I announce the safe arrival of Dr. and Mrs. Maclay on the evening of June 25, on board the S. S. 'Oceanic.' I cannot tell you how glad we are to see the face of dear Dr. Maclay again, and that looking so well and happy. He looks as though he were good for 20 years yet. His bride is a very estimable lady (a Miss Barr, of San Francisco), and promises to be a valuable acquisition to our missionary ranks."

On Saturday last I returned from a flying visit to our work in Yamagata Ken—north of the center of Japan—having been absent 13 days; 9 days on the journey going and coming a journey of 500 miles, I made the journey partly by stage, partly by jin-ri-ki-sha ("pull-man-car"), partly on horse, and partly on foot—a little variety! I baptized during this trip, 18 adults and 3 children, making 35 adults and 12 children during my spring and early summer visitations.

On the whole our work is prospering and at some points is very encouraging. In a few years, if we are true and faithful to our trust—God helping (help is always vouchsafed to the true and faithful)—there will be a number of self-supporting charges in our missions. There are already several such in the missions of the Congregational Church. The past year has been a trying one, hard work and much anxiety have fallen to our lot. We have 'held the fort' thank the Lord, and now help draweth nigh. The arrival of Dr. Maclay is the harbinger of good times. We take courage.

Bro. C. S. Long writes: "I have just returned from a pleasant and successful visit to our work in Satsuma. I reached Kagoshima, the capital of the province, Sunday morning, after a rough and stormy passage of two days, and went immediately to our little chapel where a large number of children had gathered to engage in the Sunday school. I was charmed with this school not only on account of the large number engaged in it, but with the readiness and earnestness with which they answered all the questions submitted to them. Although the day was bad 76 answered to their names, and the pastor stated that there were 103 regular attendants at this school. At 10 o'clock Bro. Asuga the pastor preached to a good congregation, after which I conducted a prayer meeting. In the afternoon, with the pastor, I made 15 pastoral visits and drank as many cups of tea. In the evening I baptized 9 adults, received 11 into full consecration, and administered sacrament to 32 Christians. The Master was present with us and greatly blessed and encouraged us all. On Monday I held the quarterly conference. Two were licensed to exhort, one a young man of 22, a graduate of the Normal school. He is a teacher in our Kagoshima school, where he expects to remain for a year and then enter the ministry. Our school in Kagoshima numbers a hundred pupils. At a recent examination some of the government officials were present and pronounced it the best conducted school in the city. The school is under the charge of Bro. Asuga, with five assistants.

A long letter dated July 14, from Rev. S. P. Craver attests how wonderfully God has restored him. He is still improving at Lilas, and enjoying the beauty of its climate.

On Thursday July 13th last, our Bro. Umpleby was called to give back to God a beautiful child, the light of his home. The whole Church mourns with this brother and sister.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

THIRD QUARTER. LESSON VIII. August 20, 1882.

THE WICKED HUSBANDMEN. (Mark xii, 1-12.)

Our lesson is called "The Wicked Husbandmen." Husbandman means farmer. Jesus said a certain man planted a vineyard, and then rented it out to farmers to take care of for him. The farmers did not own it, and of course must pay something for its use. The owner went away, and after a time sent a servant for his part of the fruit. The farmers were not good, honest men, and instead of paying their just debt, they beat the servant. The poor servant went to his master, and the master sent another. The farmers stoned him; but still the master sent another, and they killed him. At last he said, "I will try once more. I will send my son; they will hear and obey him." Then the father sent this son to these wicked people, so they could at least do right.

But they had done so much wrong, they were ready for the last awful sin. They killed the son. That tells it all. The people knew he spoke against their sins, and would have hurt him, but were afraid. You know what the story means. God sent the prophets to warn the world. They would not hear, so at last he sent Christ, and they killed him. Jesus is our Corner-stone, the chief part in all our life. You know the corner-stone is the great stone of any building; so Christ is the great, chief, part of all our religion.

What are you building? Is Jesus your corner-stone? If he is first in your heart, you are building for him. If not, sin is your chief stone, and all your building is for Satan. Let all begin now, with Jesus for the corner-stone, and then God will call your work well done.—Mrs. F. De Witt, in Western Christian Advocate.

Compound Oxygen in Catarrh.

The following letter, which came unsolicited, shows how promptly Compound Oxygen acts in a very troublesome disease, which, if not arrested, too often assumes a distressing and loathsome character. Not after it has become deeply seated and offensive, has it been found to yield to the action of this new and remarkable remedy.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Sick Headache. For the relief and cure of this distressing affliction take Simmons Liver Regulator.

Malaria. Persons may avoid all attacks by occasionally taking a dose of Simmons Liver Regulator to keep the liver in healthy action.

Constipation should not be regarded as a trifling ailment. Nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels. Therefore assist Nature by taking Simmons Liver Regulator, it is so mild and effectual.

Biliousness. One or two tablespoonfuls will relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state, such as Nausea, Dizziness, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, a bitter, bad taste in the mouth.

Dyspepsia. The Regulator will positively cure this terrible disease. We assert emphatically what we know to be true.

Colic. Children suffering with colic soon experience relief when Simmons Liver Regulator is administered.

Buy only the genuine, in white wrapper, with red "Z." Prepared by J. H. ZEILIN & CO.

Corinth, Miss.

The Lord took away a friend after ten years of suffering. Andrew Harris said he did not fear death. Our loss is his gain.

JACK EVANS.

Russellville, Miss.

Mrs. Monroe Hill died on Thursday morning of last week. This good woman was a faithful member of the Baptist Church in this place. She had suffered long and patiently from that remorseless disease, consumption. She was an earnest and faithful Christian, and left a bright example behind her. Two days later, Mr. Hill had a little girl to yield up her pure spirit and cross over to meet the mother and the other little sister who died last October. One by one they have gone. God bless the bereaved family.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Andrews' Bazar for August, with fashion plates, designs for fancy needlework, and miscellany for the ladies, is at hand.

The British Quarterly Review for July (New York—Leonard Scott Publishing Co) has the following articles: Recent Japanese Progress, the Puritan Element in Longfellow, the Hittites and the Bible, Bach and Handel, the Poetry of Rossetti, the Situation in Ireland, the Ministry and Parliament. Price 75c. For sale at newstands.

"What Do They Mean?" is a chapter from "Tempted to Unbelief," by Rev. E. Burr, issued in pamphlet by the American Tract Society. The inquiry is directed against those who countenance in public places books tending to unbelief, and assailing Christianity, and is very timely and well put.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine for September abounds with pleasant reading, and is, as usual, profusely illustrated. The editor, Rev. Mr. Talmage, has an admirable article entitled, "The Horse and his Rider," finely illustrated; and The Home Pulpit contains one of his characteristic sermons, "What are our Departed Friends Doing Now?" "California Big Trees," "The Disciples of Menno Simon," will be read with great interest. Marion Harland continues her highly interesting serial, "A Good Fellow"; and besides the other serial, "Weighed and Wanting," there are short stories, sketches, essays, etc, by popular writers; some excellent poems, several beautifully illustrated; and instructive miscellany. There are also Editorial Comments, Personal Notes and Comments, The Collection Basket, The Drift of Religious Comment, etc. The price is only 25 cents a number, or $3 a year, sent postpaid. A specimen number will be sent on the receipt of 25 cents, addressed to Frank Leslie, Publisher, 53, 55, and 57 Park Place, New York.

A Valuable Addition.

Because it is beneficial to the scalp and adds to personal beauty by restoring color and lustre to gray or faded hair is why Parker's Hair Balsam is such a popular dressing.

A hackmen in Cleveland who had a colored competitor has been fined $20 and costs by a police justice for soliciting passengers at the Union depot by crying out: "Come this way and ride with a white man." "Language," said Judge Kennedy, "that tends to degrade or insult a man who has the misfortune of being colored, and who is honest and competent, seeking to earn his living, is an outrage and cannot be tolerated."—Chicago Tribune.

"Sigh no More, Ladies!"

for Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" is a prompt and certain remedy for the painful disorders peculiar to your sex. By all druggists.

Fitzpatrick, convicted of attempt to kill the Recorder of Dublin, was sentenced to five years penal servitude.

Cotton worms have made their appearance in the Red river valley.

Solid Comfort.

Nobody enjoys the nicest surroundings if in bad health. There are miserable people about to-day to whom a bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic would bring more solid comfort than all the medicine they have ever tried.—News.

The Russian refugees do not make good the significance of their description. They appear to be about as lazy and worthless a set of immigrants as this country has harbored since the old colonial days when Virginia was a reception bureau for England's "hard uns."

Hurrah for Our Side.

Many people have lost their interest in politics and in amusements because they are so out of sorts and run down that they cannot enjoy any thing. If such persons would only be wise enough to try that Celebrated remedy Kidney-Wort, and experience its tonic and renovating effects, they would soon be hurrahing with the loudest. In either dry or liquid form it is a perfect remedy for torpid liver, kidneys, or bowels. Exchange.

The Boers with native contingent, were defeated on the 28th of July by Montsiria, with heavy loss.

Happy Mother! Happy Children!

Nursing mothers should keep their infants quiet while teething. Both mother and child should enjoy sweet repose. The best thing to assist nature in bringing about this happy state of good health is Brown's Iron Bitters. It is very soothing and refreshing in its effect. A trial proves this to be true. Mother and child should use it freely. If you want your children to be healthy and strong, give them Brown's Iron Bitters.

A destructive fire took place in Stanropol and along the Joma river in the Caucasus. Crops covering an area of 80 square kilometers have been burned.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT

The King of the Body is the brain; the stomach its main support; the nerves its messengers; the bowels, the kidneys and the pores its safeguards. Indigestion creates a violent revolt among these attaches of the real organ, and to bring them back to their duty there is nothing like the regulating, purifying, invigorating, cooling operation of TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT. It renovates the system and restores to health both the body and the mind.

District Conference will meet at Shelbyville Sept 6, instead of the 13th. Please make the change. I want all the ministers to be on hand the first day at roll call, and remain until the business of the Conference is through. Please stir up your committees, brethren, on the various benevolent enterprises of the church. We ought to pay back 30 per cent on all monies appropriated to our conference, which would enable us to pay $50 more than asked for—$900 would speak well for the Tennessee Conference; that would be about 12 per member. I am satisfied if the preachers would work up all the disciplinary plans of the church the above amount will be raised without burden to any one. Educate the people up to their duties; organize your monthly missionary prayer-meetings; watch the interests yourselves; attend the meetings in person and trust them to no one; organize all your Sunday-schools into missionary societies and train the children to give regularly and we will very soon raise up an army that will work up this great cause for God and the church. I believe the time is not far distant when a preacher who fails to do his duty in working up those plans of the church will fail to draw on the society for a cent; yea, indeed it ought to be so. Let our motto be: raise every cent assessed, with no blanks to appear on our conference reports this year. There may be some who will say we cannot raise those collections on account of hard times. That is no excuse, brethren. Some of the brethren have raised nearly all of their assessments already, far in advance of last year. Let us do our duty, brethren, and trust God for the result, though the times may be hard.

Yours, in the Master's cause,

H. W. KEY, P. E.

Advice to Consumptives.

On the appearance of the first symptoms, as general debility, loss of appetite, pallor, chilly sensations, followed by night-sweats and cough, prompt measures of relief should be taken. Consumption is scrofulous disease of the lungs; therefore use the great anti-scrofulous or blood-purifier and strength-restorer, Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Superior to cod-liver oil as a nutritive, and unsurpassed as a pectoral. For weak lungs, spitting of blood, and kindred affections, it has no equal. Sold by druggists. For Dr. Pierce's treatise on Consumption, send two stamps. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

EARS FOR THE MILLION!

Foo Choo's Balsam of Shark's Oil

Positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.

This Oil is abstracted from peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as Carcharodon Rondeletii. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese People. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1 per bottle.

HEAR WHAT THE DEAF SAY!

It has performed a miracle in my case.

I have no unearthly noises in my head and hear much better.

I have been greatly benefited.

My deafness helped a great deal—think another bottle will cure me.

"Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer can personally testify, both from experience and observation. Write at once to Haylock & Jenney, 7 Dey street New York, enclosing $1, and you will receive by return a remedy that will enable you to hear like anybody else, and whose curative effects will be permanent. You will never regret doing so."—Editor of Mercantile Review.

Never wickedly play the spy;
Never, O never tell a lie!

Never your parents disobey,
Never at night neglect to pray.

Remember these maxims
Through all the day,
And you will be happ
At work or play.

I Can and I Will.

The difference between "I can't" and "I can and will" is just the difference between victory and defeat in all our great conflicts of life. Boys adopt for your motto, "If I can, I will," and victory will be yours in all life's battles. "I can and I will" has fought and won all the great battles of life and of the world.

I know of a boy who was prepared to enter the junior class of the New York University. He was studying trigonometry, and I gave him three examples for his lesson. The following day he came into my room to demonstrate his problems. Two of them he understood, but the third—a very difficult one—he had not performed. I said to him:

"Shall I help you?"

"No sir! I can and will do it if you give me time."

I said: I will give you all the time you wish."

The next day he came into my room to recite another lesson in the same study.

"Well, Simon, have you worked that example?"

"No sir! he answered; but I can and will do it if you will give me a little more time."

"Certainly you shall have all the time you desire."

I always like those boys who are determined to do their work, for they make our best scholars, and men too. The third morning you should have seen Simon enter the room. I knew he had it, for his whole face told the story of his success. Yes, he had it, notwithstanding it had cost him many hours of the severest mental labor. Not only had he solved the problem, but what is of infinitely greater importance to him, he has begun to develop mathematical powers which, under the inspiration of "I can and I will," he has continued to cultivate, until to-day he is professor of mathematics in one of our largest colleges, and one of the [illegible] mathematicians of his years in our country.

My young friends, let your motto ever be: "If I can I will."

Take a Sheep.

Bishop Bowman, at a temperance meeting in England in 1878, closed his address with the following anecdote. A farmer who had several sons promised the eldest of them, if he would refrain from strong drink during the harvest to make him a present of a sheep. "Then" said the younger son "if I do the same may I have a sheep too?" "Yes, you may," said the farmer. "And I," said [illegible] "Yes," said the father. [illegible] the youngest, who [illegible] a youth, "May I have a [illegible] if I do the same?" [illegible] was the reply. [illegible] said the youth, "want [illegible] sheep too." OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

MISSISSIPPI.

A. McBeth, Trenton: "Elder Williams held our conference. There have been 35 accessions to the church. We paid the elder $9 35. There are three Sunday-schools in good condition. We are off from the railroad, and poor."

E. Collins, Carthage: "Children's day was observed, and will long be remembered. Many of our white friends were present and highly pleased with the exercises. Two of them contributed $4. Among the children William Coleman took the lead in the recitation of verses."

TENNESSEE.

J. Kenseer, Manchester: "My last battle in the way of temperance was to abstain from the use of tobacco. I have a temperance society of 17; have raised over half of the benevolent money. I shall bring all of it up if I don't receive a cent. My work is poor, but I am trying to preach it into the people to give."

P. P. Brooks, Shelbyville: "The third quarterly conference was held at Gill's Chapel, by H. W. Key, P. E. The reports from the class leaders show that their classes are in a growing condition both spiritually and financially. The Sunday schools on the work are growing. They need books and papers. Collection $22 90, P. E. $8 50, Missions $2, Sunday-School Union $1 50. The Elder preached a very interesting sermon in the grove on Sunday to a large congregation. Many souls were made happy. A word to the members of the approaching district conference—please leave your horses at home, as we will not be able to take care of them, but will try to accommodate all the members of the conference."

ARKANSAS.

R. Boone, Center Point: "I have had 35 conversions since conference and 23 accessions. Sabbath-school, with 60 scholars, is organized as a missionary society. I have organized a church at Nashville with 11 members."

C. Taurman, Goodlet: "We are determined to plant Methodist doctrine in the hearts of the children, for we believe it acceptable to God. Rev. D. Gamble preached to them on the second Sunday in June. The children prepared and spoke pieces; Miss Sallie Johnson, on the power of the Gospel; Miss Josephine Thurman, the work of the mission; Miss Lucilla Gamble, how must little children come to the Lord; Miss Susan Fontaine, self-denial; Miss Alice Sampson, what can I do for the Lord; Miss Mary Gamble, give to the poor; Miss Elizabeth Fontaine, Sunday-school; Miss Tamar Booker, come to the call of the Lord."

Seth Neal, Helena: "I was sent to this charge last February, and I arrived March 3d, and found it almost entirely overflowed by the great flood that was then sweeping through the Mississippi Valley. Owing to the many disadvantages that confronted me, I found a refuge in the western part of the city. After eight weeks of sickness of myself and family I thought I would be compelled to leave my post. But I prayed God that he would sustain me with health and strength, that I might remain at my field of labor during this conference year. I found no church house or members at this place, and all was very dreary and dark. Since that time we have organized with 19 members, and are doing the best we can under the surrounding circumstances. Our presiding elder, I. G. Pollard, paid us a visit on the 25 and 26 ult., during which he held my quarterly conference, and [illegible] other de[illegible] work at this [illegible] delighted at [illegible] sure that the [illegible] first Meth[illegible] the Methodist Episcopal Church. I hope [illegible] this place [illegible] heaven that our [illegible] as a Church is needed, it must be this city. We pray that the Church Extension Society and all the other friends of suffering humanity will come to our relief. We ask all who feel an interest in the blood of our Savior, and your many readers to pray that God may be able to accomplish much good in his name in this city."

Another Candidate.

By a large majority the people of the United States have declared their faith in Kidney-Wort as a remedy for all the diseases of the kidneys and liver. Some, however, have disliked the trouble of preparing it from the dry form. For such a new candidate appears in the shape of Kidney-Wort in Liquid Form. It is very concentrated, is easily taken, and is equally efficient as the dry. Try it.—Louisville Post.

The world moves and one of the omens of the good times coming, when the color line shall disappear in the South, is found in the fact that a school board in Petersburg has voted to employ two active and eleven substitute colored teachers to serve in the public schools in that place. These are the first colored instructors ever elected to positions in the public schools of that part of Virginia.—Nashua Telegraph.

From Dr. S. J. Bell, M. D., Baltimore, Md.

"I have prescribed Colden's Liebig's Liquid Extract of Beef and Tonic Invigorator, and cheerfully state that it has met my most sanguine expectations, giving to patients long enfeebled by chronic diseases, debility, weakness, loss of appetite, and indigestion the needed nutrition and nerve food." (Remember the name, Colden's—take no other.) Of druggists generally.

Count de Lesseps has protested against the occupation of Port Said by the English and French, and is on excellent terms with Arabi Pasha.

In chronic disorders, resulting from fixed bad habits of mind and body, the removal of the evil, to be permanent, must necessarily be gradual. Although in some cases it is slow, Brown's Iron Bitters are always sure, and never fail to restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is a complete strengthener.

Judge Haight, in the Supreme Court, granted a motion to quash the writs of mandamus against the Erie and New York Central roads to compel them to carry out the terms of their franchise. Judge Haight, in his opinion granting the motion of counsel for the railroads to quash the writs, said the grievance was private; that the people had no interest involved and the proper method of procedure was by civil suit.

Mr. Earnest Sylvarton, a rich broker living in Hoboken, N. J., opposite New York City, writes: "The excessive strain of nervous excitement resulting from stock speculation and too high living made quite an invalid of me. Brown' Iron Bitters restored me to perfect health and strength."

Methodism in its earlier days was an aggressive movement, yet making ample provisions for the spiritual culture of all who fell into the ranks. It was a conquering army conscious of its great faith and the Divine favor; but it never lost sight of its duty in regard to a visible kingdom of Christ among men. We have, no doubt, lost something of this spirit, and have become simple cultivators of our own vineyards; we rely too much on mere growth; on saving the children of the godly. The obligation still rests upon us to put forth our best efforts to save those who are yet in the world, enemies of holiness, without hope and without God.—Central Christian Advocate.

A GENEROUS ACT

That Will be Appreciated by All Who Care for their Complexion or Skin.

It is not generally known that the nervous system has a wonderful influence over the skin, but this is a fact known to medical men who have given much of their time to the study of diseases of the skin. No one can have a clear and fair complexion unmixed with blotches and pimples who is very nervous.

Whatever tends to a healthful condition of the nervous system always beautifies the complexion and removes dryness and roughness of the skin. Some skin diseases are not attended by visible signs on the surface, but an intolerable itching that renders life miserable.

We copy the following deserving and interesting compliment from the Tribune which says: "Dr. C. W. Benson's New Remedy, 'Skin Cure,' is received by the public with great confidence, and it is regarded as a very generous act on the Doctor's part to make known and prepare for general use his valuable and favorite prescription for the treatment of skin diseases, after having devoted almost his entire life to the study and treatment of nervous and skin diseases, in which he took great delight. He was for a number of years Physician in charge of the Maryland Infirmary on Dermatology and anything from his hands is at once accepted as authority and valuable. The remedy is fully the article to attack the disease both internally, through the blood, and externally, through the absorbents, and is the only reliable and rational mode of treatment. These preparations are only put up for general use after having been used by the Doctor in his private practice for years, with the greatest success, and they fully merit the confidence of all classes of sufferers from skin diseases." This is for sale by all druggists. Two bottles, internal and external treatment, in one package. Don't be persuaded to take any other. It costs one dollar.

Mr. Editor: Please inquire for my companions. It has been eight years since I saw them or heard from them. When I left New Orleans they were living in the lower part of town, at the corner of Bayou Road and Derbigny streets. Address me at Grand Cane City, La. Henry Harris.

Dear Editor: I wish to inquire for my kin people whom I left in Franklin county, Tennessee. I was brought to Texas in the winter of 1854, and left mother, two brothers and a sister in Tennessee. In the spring of 1857 mother died. Her name was Martha, and she belonged to Elijah B. Rakin; my oldest brother Oscar belonged to John Miller, the next, Moses to Hayden March; the youngest, William to Jefferson Moore. Sister Betsy belonged to John Hiter, and was brought to Crockett, Texas when I was ten years old. Sister Rose was was sold out of the Moore family, and was carried to Memphis, and I heard that she was living in Limestone county, Miss. The youngest was Mary Jane Ragan. Address me at Hallettsville, Texas.

Sam. Grant.

Mr. Editor: I desire to inquire for my mother's relatives whom she left in Cloverport, Ky. Her father's name was Bennet, and mother's Dellicy Johnson. Brothers, Rolling, Elisha, Westley, and Bob. Johnson; and her name was at that time Sally Johnson. My mother also had a brother named Smith Boulette by father. Her son's name was Henry Clay Brown. She left him in Elizabethtown, Ky. Before peace was declared her brothers belonged to the Fishers, Zeke, brother of Clayton Fisher. She used to belong to Thomas Brown, brother of Elisha Brown. She also had some cousins, whom she left in Lexington, Ky. One was named Bettey. Any information from any one will be thankfully received. My mother's name was Sally Brown, but is now changed to Sarah Forrest. Address her Chestnut near Valence streets, New Orleans, La.

Guides to Prosperity.

In the first place, make up your mind to accomplish whatever you undertake; decide upon some particular employment and persevere in it. All difficulties are overcome by diligence and assiduity.

Be not afraid to work with your own hands, and diligently, too. "A cat in gloves catches no mice." "He who remains in the mill grinds, not he who goes and comes.

Attend to your business, never trust to another. "A pot that belongs to many is ill stirred and worse boiled."

Be frugal. "That which will not make a pot will make a potlid." "Save the pence and the pounds will take care of themselves."

Be abstemious. "Who dainties love shall beggars prove."

Rise early. "Plough deep while sluggards sleep, and you shall have corn to sell and keep."

Treat every one with respect and civility. "Everything is gained and nothing lost by courtesy." "Good manners insure success."

Never anticipate wealth from any other source than labor; especially never place dependence upon 'becoming the possessor of an inheritance.' "He who runs after a shadow has a wearisome race."

In nothing has science made such improvement as in medicines. Now to this whole civilized world is proclaimed the joyful news that Celery and Chamomile Pills will cure sick and nervous headaches, neuralgia, nervousness, dyspepsia, sleeplessness, and paralysis.

In a Texas town recently a colored creditor caught sight of a neighbor of like complexion who had been in his debt for some time. He started after him without delay, but the debtor changed his course, and on finding himself pursued increased his speed. "I say, Bill," said the creditor, "what you walkin' so fast for? Caze you owin' me dat money?" "No," answered Bill, over his left shoulder, "I'ze not walkin' so fast caze I'ze owin' de money, but caze I'ze afraid you'd ax me for it." Bill is like many a debtor of the white persuasion. His debts do not trouble him in the slighest degree, but the duns bother him, and to pay causes him deep distress. Bill is also like many sinner. Their sins do not trouble them, but they dread the penalty. They are willing to owe their Master ten thousand talents, and would double the debt gladly if they could command the credit, but the coming pay-day makes them miserable. Death, with its inexorable dun, will meet them somewhere along the thoroughfare of life, and justice, pointing to the catalogue of talents wasted, will pronounce the stern demand: "Pay thy Master what thou owest." That is what makes the sinner afraid.—Texas Christian Advocate.

DR. HARTER'S

A combination of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark and Phosphorus in a palatable form. The only preparation of iron that will not blacken the teeth, so characteristic of other iron preparations.

Gentlemen: I have used Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Diseases, Dyspepsia, and an impoverished condition of the blood, this peerless remedy, has in my hands, made some wonderful cures. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians, have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic is a necessity in my practice.

THE BEST REMEDY

FOR

Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

Diseases of the pulmonary organs are so prevalent and fatal, that a safe and reliable remedy for them is invaluable to every community. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is such a remedy and no other so eminently merits the confidence of the public. It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative virtues of the finest drugs, chemically united, to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results, which enables physicians as well as invalids to use it with confidence. It is the most reliable remedy for diseases of the throat and lungs that science has produced. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt and certain relief, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it without difficulty. In the treatment of ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergyman's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household, for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

The marvellous cures which Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has effected all over the world are a sufficient guaranty that it will continue to produce the best results. An impartial trial will convince the most sceptical of its wonderful curative powers, as well as of its superiority over all other preparations for pulmonary complaints.

Eminent physicians in all parts of the country, knowing its composition, recommend Ayer's Cherry Pectoral to invalids, and prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proved its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

Old Rye's Speech.

I was made to be eaten,
And not to be drank;
To be threshed in a barn,
Not soaked in a tank.
I come as a blessing
When put through the mill—
As a blight and a curse
When run through a still.
Make me up into loaves
And your children are fed,
But if into drink,
I will starve them instead.
In bread I'm a servant—
The eater shall rule;
In drink I am master,
The drinker a fool.
Then remember the warning;
My strength I'll employ,
If eaten, to strengthen,
If drunk, to destroy.

[Editorial Correspondence.]

A Trip Through Mississippi.

Bent by the united forces of business and pleasure, we left this city for Jackson, Miss., via the St. L., O. & N. O. R. R., the "Old Jackson Line," on Saturday, the 5th inst., at eight o'clock a. m. Riding in elegant first-class coaches, superintended by polite and attentive officers, speeding over smooth tracks, and drawn by a powerful locomotive, by the force of whose throbbing iron heart, with its rapid and regular pulsations, the train was being pulled with lightning rapidity, and passing through the marshy swamps, over dizzy embankments, and between narrow mountainous passes, we passed stations, villages, and towns, until at 4 p. m. we arrived at the point of our destination, Jackson, Miss. At the depot we found Rev. J. W. Parks, the well-beloved pastor of our church here, waiting for us with Elder D. A. Williams' splendid horse and buggy. A warm shake of the hands, exchange of courtesies, and we were soon driving away to the Pass's House, where comfortable quarters had been provided for us.

A SUNDAY IN JACKSON.

Our lodging being some distance from the church, Bro. Parks again manifested his generous spirit of hospitality by sending a buggy at an early hour on Sunday morning to take us to the church. In the morning we had the pleasure of meeting and addressing the Sunday-school, and a splendid one it is too. The recitations and singing were simply grand. In fact, the singing at each point where we stopped was a surprise to us, on account of the absence of the old-time rap and foot patting, which is still so very common in so many of our churches. The singing was generally impressive, lively, or spirited, however. The school is divided into bands of missionary workers, each having its appropriate name or shield printed in beautiful characters or hung upon the walls next to its station. Among the most conspicuous were "The Happy Pilgrims," "Little Jewels," and "[illegible]." At 11 o'clock, a. m., baptismal services were observed, and eight adults, the last of the fifty-six converts taken in by Bro. Parks this year, were baptized, together with one infant. At 3 p. m., and at night, we preached to [illegible] and attentive congregations, after which [illegible] subscriptions were obtained for the [illegible]. Our church [illegible] large and substantial [illegible] of the executive [illegible] workers in the Church and Sunday-school. Bro. Parks is a useful man, and is much esteemed by all his people. Our time being limited we failed to visit any great portion of the people; but if our visit and magnificent entertainment at Bro. and Sister Robinson's indicated at all what was in store for us, we can but mourn the misfortune that we could visit so few. This city is not what it used to be—so thrifty and lively—but it is steadily advancing in a good strong temperance sentiment; and under this new inspiration it is looking upward for a better and more prosperous day. Among the favorable omens for the future of our people here, as at each place where we stopped over, is the fact that they are gradually securing their own homes. This is wise. Brethren, get homes; large ones, if you can; small ones, if you must; but get homes, secure and then improve them.

Up to this, we had not yet met Rev. D. A. Williams, the presiding elder of the Jackson District, but on Monday morning he and Bro. Parks were at the depot in time to see us off. Elder Williams, looking the picture of health, had just returned from Canton, where he had, the day previous, held his quarterly meeting. He reported a good day's work, and promised us many good things for the success of the SOUTHWESTERN on the Jackson District. Here we also met Bro. Murphy, of the Jackson Circuit. We were pleased to form his acquaintance. We had also the pleasure of an introduction to Hon. James Hill, the U. S. Revenue Collector for the District of Mississippi.* Although not yet nominated, he is popularly regarded as the next Republican candidate for Congress; but his election is not at all conceded. Maj. Barksdale is the Democratic nominee, although it is generally conceded, as we learned while in Jackson, that but for his able and manly defense of the character of the Negro, in his late speech upon the Chinese bill, Col. Hooker would have been renominated and elected by the Democratic party of this district. In this instance Col. Hooker proves to be the victim of his devotion to truth, and of his stalwart defense of the Negro against the aspersive attacks of his slanderers. He deserves well at the hands of his colored fellow-citizens.

About 9 a. m., after a most delightful stay in Jackson, we were off on the loitering, mixed freight train, on our way to

CRYSTAL SPRINGS.

True to promise, Bro. H. L. Kennedy met us here, and escorted us to his church and homelike parsonage, just a little over a quarter of a mile from the depot. Crystal Springs is the great fruit depot of this section. More pears, apples, peaches, strawberries, and other fruits and garden vegetables are shipped from this place than from any other station on the Jackson road. A thrifty horticulturist from the North raised last spring over a thousand dollars worth of tomatoes from a single acre of ground. This portion of the State is somewhat hilly and gravelly, and is splendid for fruit raising as well as for general farming. The weather being somewhat unfavorable, we did not see the full force of our membership here, but succeeded even better than in Jackson in getting a good list of subscribers. We received twenty-four subscriptions. We have here a good large building, filled as we learned and saw indications of, with a warm-hearted people. We were pleasantly entertained over night at Bro. Bell's. He lives just across the railroad from the church. By hard work, rigid economy, unbounded liberality to every enterprise of the Church, with an abiding trust in God, Bro. Bell has secured his forty acres and a mule. Good land it is, with a splendid house upon it, with barns, outhouses, mule, cow, and calf. This is a comfortable home. Bro. Bell and his family are whole-souled Methodists. They cared for us nicely, and gave invitation to come again. Thank you, my Brother. We have reason to thank Bro. Burrell, a local preacher here, who rendered valuable assistance in swelling our list of subscribers. With appointment ahead, we left at 12 m. on Tuesday, 8th inst., for Hazlehurst. Bro. Anderson, our pastor at Hazlehurst, not having received our letter, and no announcement of our intended visit having been made, we continued our trip to

* Since the above was written, Mr. Hill has received the Republican nomination.

where coming a day earlier than was expected, Bro. Campbell, the hospitable presiding elder of the Gulf District — although Sister Campbell was away on a visit to relatives in Grenada—did all that could possibly be desired to make our visit agreeable. Bro. Campbell's home is a pleasant one. Its very atmosphere is permeated with genuine Methodist hospitality. We had a splendid drive through the the town, visiting points of interest. This is an interesting little town, containing quite a number of stores, a new brick courthouse, and a presidential postoffice. Bro. Cook, preacher in charge of this circuit, was on hand, and although the weather was very unfavorable, and but few people could make their way to the church, on Wednesday night, we succeeded in securing ten subscribers. Next day was spent in SUMMIT.

This is a comparatively small but lively railroad town. Our church, however, is very weak at this point. This is another point in Brother Cook's circuit. Battling against fearful odds, he is not discouraged, but is faithfully working for the upbuilding of the Church. In consequence of sickness in his family, Bro. Cook had provided a home for us at Bro. Wickliffe's, one of our members. We were well cared for. Here, again, the weather militated against our meeting. Six subscriptions was the result of our visit. We met here Miss Camille A. Landry, student of our New-Orleans University, who is spending her vacation here, teaching music. Friday, 7 a. m., we were homeward bound aboard the fast mail. We here fell in company with Bro. Garretson, of the M. E. Church South, who was on his way from Brookhaven to his appointment at Helena, Ark. His company was very agreeable. After four hours ride, after a most enjoyable visit among our Mississippi brethren, we were once more, for home again. A.

Blaine in Maine.

The country will be glad to hear that ex-Secretary Blaine, who threatened a few days ago to make twelve political speeches in Maine, has changed his mind and that instead he has written one letter. The letter in question was not a very remarkable production; but it has this great merit, that it contains all that Mr. Blaine knows concerning the present political situation. Summarized briefly, Mr. Blaine wants an "honest judiciary" in Maine, the continuance of a protective tariff and the election of a Legislature which will be certain to choose one of his proteges to the Senate of the United States. The letter is dated August 3.

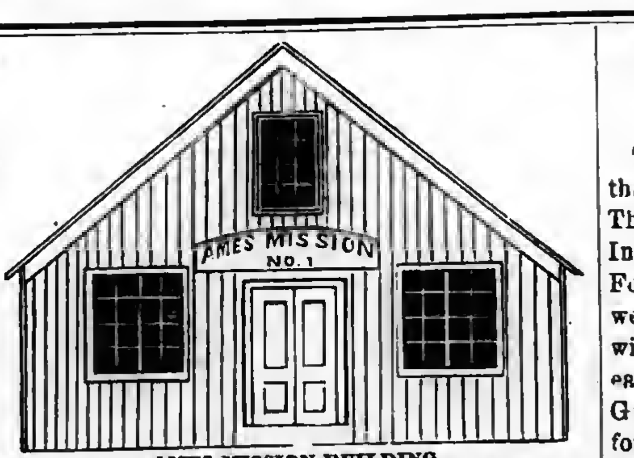
This political production of the ex-Premier of Gen. Garfield's recent administration does not contain a single reference to the outrageous blackmailing circular of Hubbell assessing all the officeholders of the country. It is as silent as the tomb of the dead President in Cleveland on the subject of civil service reform. The tomb is eloquent, but the lips of the ex-Premier are sealed. The one speaks; the other is dumb. But the ex-Secretary has forgotten not only the dead, he has also forgotten the living. His letter, as we have said, was written on the 3d inst. President Arthur vetoed the infamous River and Harbor bill on the first day of the month. Mr. Blaine in his letter has not made even a single reference to it—not a syllable either of praise or blame. The meaning of it all is probably that Mr. Blaine has retired from active politics and in the future will content himself with writing occasional letters on prehistoric questions. This is a sensible conclusion on his part.—N. Y. Herald.

We have never tried it but it is said that, if you have presence of mind enough to face a raging bull and look straight into his eyes, he is powerless to do you harm. "We tried this experiment once," says an agricultural contemporary, "and found it worked admirably. The fierce animal tore the ground with his feet and bellowed with all his might; but something seemed to hold him back like magic, and he did us no injury. Perhaps we ought to add, in order to be correct historically, that the bull was on the other side of a fence. We never try an experiment of that kind without taking proper precautions beforehand."

This is the Lord's Doing.

"Surely the Lord is in this place." Read the history, and decide for yourself.

In March, 1880, Mr. John Page, an official member of Ames M. E. Church, New Orleans, took a contract for erecting a public school building in the suburbs of the city, where Catholicism is the dominant religion. He erected a shed in which to keep his tools when not using them. He appointed a man to remain at the building and care for them during the absence of the workmen. On the first Sabbath the man was much annoyed and abused by the bad boys of the neighborhood. On the following Sabbath Mr. Page remained at the building, and met the assaults with kind words and advice. After continuing this course for a few Sabbaths the boys ceased to annoy, and listened with patience while he related to them stories of an elevating and moralizing character. In the course of a few weeks Mr. Page had organized the children into a Sabbath-school. The number soon increased until the shed would not accommodate them. By this time the school building was near completion, and the question arose, what will be done with the Sabbath-school? After considering the matter, and consulting his friends and pastor, Mr. Page concluded to purchase a lot and erect a building for the school. A lot 60x120 was purchased, and a building erected at a total cost of $450 (four hundred and fifty dollars). The school was designated, "Ames Mission No. 1."



AMES MISSION BUILDING,
St. Claud Street, bet. Independence and Pauline Sts., New Orleans.

The lot was purchased from a philanthropic gentleman, who to aid the enterprise sold it very cheaply. The school is held every Sabbath at 3:30 p. m. There are enrolled at present 382 scholars. The school is opened by singing the following hymn, which was written by Mr. Page, the Superintendent:

Take your seats, you little boys,
Keep your hats off, make no noise;
Now, my girls, do as you are told,
Help keep order, young and old.

All come in, take good advice,
And quit playing with those dice.
All will learn that life is hard
Should you play with dice and card.

Now, to the children speaking,
Heed their morals and their teaching;
You may learn this very day
To throw dice and cards away.

From the Book that God hath given
You may learn the way to heaven;
Then let this your study be,
Always sin and vice to flee.

Heed these lessons, day by day,
Keeping from the wicked way;
Let your prayers to heaven ascend,
Journey thus till life shall end.

The school has seven teachers, most of whom are members of the Ames Church, and live six miles from the Mission. So far there has not been a cent paid toward liquidating the debt upon the Mission. The time has come that it must be paid, or the Mission will pass from us. It is an opportunity to establish a Protestant Church in this great and wicked city which the Church cannot afford to let pass.

Ames Church has been struggling for years under a heavy debt, and cannot at present assume the debt of the Mission. In behalf of these 382 children I appeal to the Christian Church to liquidate this debt. I hope the ministers into whose hands this article may fall will not treat this important matter with indifference.

There are those in your congregations who will gladly contribute to this cause if you will give them an opportunity.

Remittances may be made by draft, Postoffice order, or registered letter. Any person contributing $5 to this cause, will receive the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE one year free of charge.

All remittances must be made to Rev. L. P. Cushman, Editor SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, 106 Camp street, New Orleans, La. All remittances will be promptly acknowledged in the columns of the SOUTHWESTERN, a copy of which will be forwarded to the contributor.

J. G. VAUGHAN,
Pastor of Ames M. E. Church, New Orleans.

Toads.

While volumes are written in favor of birds as destroyers of insect-life, rarely is a line written in favor of the faithful toad, who will destroy more insects injurious to vegetables in the garden in one day than a whole flock of birds will in a week. We calmly look on with folded arms and see the robin or cat-bird select our largest and best strawberries that we intended for exhibition, because we are informed that these birds destroy large quantities of insects. But when we find that a toad has dug under one of our strawberry plants we instantly declare war, and execute the death-penalty; or at least transport the victim for life, without the slightest investigation to ascertain for what purpose he has dug under the plant, and without the least suspicion that he is after the enemy which, if not caught, will destroy the plant. It is true that the toad does not fill the air with charming music, nor does his form and color delight the eye as that of the oriole; but he is quiet, modest and unassuming, never robbing man of the fruits of his labors; but quietly passing by the choicest and most delicious fruits, or only stopping to catch a bug or a fly that is sipping the richest juices of the fruit. If there is one living animal that we should encourage to stay in the garden it is the toad; because his whole diet is of insects; he is ever on the watch like the cat for the victim; and he secures his principal harvest in the night when the worms are abroad.—Ex.

Said Spurgeon one day in his sermon, "If heaven could be reached in a sound sleep, and sleeping cars could run all the way to the celestial city, some of you would be glorious pilgrims."

The Buddhists of Japan are translating and circulating Ingersoll's lectures, so as to try to counteract the teachings of the Christian missionaries.

The Mexican government will complete the Tehuantepec railroad.

A special dispatch from Windsor, Ont., to Detroit, dated July 22, says: "Archibald Mann, a colored preacher, and his wife mysteriously disappeared Sunday evening. Mann's house was found burned to the ground, and it is an open question whether the pair were burned to death or fled and burned the house behind them. Their lives have been threatened by a number of Irish families who were jealous of their presence there. There is much excitement over the affair."

If such an affair were to transpire down South, what a racket the Northern papers would make over it. As it is between the Irish, and the "man and brother" in a Northern State, we find the above in the news columns of their dailies, but the religious journals have no editorial comments, long or short, on the supposed outrage.—Texas Christian Advocate.

In the first place, the said affair did not occur in "a Northern State," but in a British province. Further, Northern religious journals do not hasten to catch up the sensational items, especially of a criminal character, from the dailies. Finally, the said colored preacher has come to light, and the incidental burning of his house is not worth making a "racket" about.—Michigan Christian Advocate.

It is a Standing Disgrace.

How long will Chattanooga withhold from her colored school children suitable school buildings? Every year they are forced into rented buildings which bear about the same relation to the buildings owned by the whites that a barn does to a first class parlor. It is a standing disgrace which colored tax-payers should have wiped out, and that speedily. If we cannot have mixed schools, we must demand equal school privileges and accommodations.—Chattanooga Enterprise.

India's Place in History.

BY REV. J. T. GRACEY.

The war in Egypt is a war for the retention of India by England. This gives us occasion to recall India's place in general history. For ages western commerce and western culture have been knit with India. The Egyptians at an early period carried arms to the Ganges and fitted out a fleet of four hundred ships in the Arabian Gulf to establish trade with India. The Phœnicians wrested from the Egyptians their harbor at the entrance of the Red Sea and turned this trade overland by way of Tyre, the shortest route known in point of time until the passage round the Cape of Good Hope was discovered.

The Persians explored the Indus throughout its entire length all the way to the ocean to secure this India trade. The Turks founded Alexandria to rival Tyre and it became the greatest trading city of the world and for eighteen centuries the chief seat of commerce with India. To divert this commerce from Tyre, Alexandria proceeded to India and sent a fleet from there to the Persian Gulf and the Euphrates.

Later the Egyptian Berenice on the west coast of the Red Sea was built as an entrepot for this India trade: thence it was carried by land 250 miles to Coptos and thence by three miles of canal to the Nile and for two hundred and fifty years while the Egyptians were independent this was the route of the India trade. When the Romans conquered Egypt the Alexandria trade was increased. They also conveyed this traffic up the Persian Gulf and the Euphrates, thence 85 miles to Palmyra or Tadmor in the wilderness, thence 117 miles to the Mediterranean.

As from this India commerce ensued Egyptian opulence, so when Rome controlled, her streets were filled with aromatic spices, cloth, linen, coral, silver and jewels brought from India.

During two centuries the Arabian or Mahommedan and Christian powers of Europe were engaged in war which interrupted the commerce of the old routes, but war could not check it for it soon swept round camp and battle field by an eighty day caravan route to to the banks of the Oxus and down to the Caspian, thence across that sea to the river Cyrus, thence overland to the Phosis and down it to the Euxine or Black Sea and onward to Constantinople. Constantinople became the mart for Indian and Chinese goods. The cities of the Mediterranean opened communication with this trade and prospered in it until the Moslem power was re-established from Constantinople to Alexandria, and the Saracen grew rich and powerful through the control of this commerce with India.

It is marvelous to recall the creations of this trade; though now

"Palmyra's lone columns sublimely declare
The last of its people sleep motionless there," yet for centuries was independent, fascinating and luxuriously rich, because she was the caravansary of this trade with Hindoostan. Bassora started out of the sea as by the spell of enchantment when this commerce consented to halt in that locality. Florence, whose houses were palaces and who has given to the world more famous men than any other place in Italy besides; Genoa with its oldest bank of circulation in Europe; Venice, the nymph of the sunlit sea with its islands united by the bridal bands of four hundred and sixty-five bridges, with the masterpieces of art, for centuries the foremost capital of commerce in the west, sustaining an independent existence through thirteen centuries—these all, Florence, Genoa and Venice, became the bankers and shippers of Europe and grew to prominence, to power and to riches, because they seized and distributed the wealth and the wonders of the Indies to the east.

Constantinople, too, and the Golden Horn flashed in splendor and in pride because of this commerce with the land of the dark, skinny Hindoo, and this trade was about to make the Saracen master of all Europe, and no man may tell how it could have been otherwise but that the discovery of the passage round the Cape of Good Hope at an opportune hour transferred the golden gains of the oriental commerce from the coffers of the Mohammedan to those of Protestant Christendom in the North Atlantic and left the Mediterranean but an inland lake.

The contest that raged of old, is renewed in our day and England's ships and England's arms contend for supremacy in Egypt only to insure the communication with India, that her cotton and her pearls may be had in exchange for the textures of Lancashire looms and the cutlery of Birmingham. Divest England of India and she sinks as in the sea.

It is not only westward, however, that India has played a part in history. She has been the mightiest civilizing force in Asia. "It is to India that nine tenths of the civilization of the eastern part of continental Asia is due," says Mr. Latham in his "Ethnology of India." "India also," he says, "is the earliest civilization of the most civilized parts of the Indian archipelago." From India Buddhism spread north and south—north through Nepal, Thibet, western China, Mongolia and Japan—south through Ceylon, Siam, Burmah, and Kambojia; "and with the creed went the alphabet, and with the alphabet the civilization."—Northern Christian Advocate.

The Commercial and Political Future of the South.

Whatever may be true regarding the past or present status of the South, either commercially or politically, there can now be no longer doubt that there is approaching an exceedingly bright and prosperous future. Those who content themselves with an opinion to the contrary, are only to be sadly mistaken. Silently, but steadily, influences are at work that shall tell wonderfully within the next twenty years, and by whose potency every vestige that may have tended to disgrace the South in the past, either as a commercial or political section, shall be wiped out. Their activity is now apparent in every branch of commerce. The South has learned the lesson from the North, that the surest way of inaugurating permanent prosperity, is dependence upon home products, and attention to home enterprises; and this lesson she is applying right well. The large number of railroads that have been built, and the equally large number of manufactories that have been set up within the past few years, are evidences of the same thing. Notably, these efforts in our midst have not only been undertaken by resident men of the South, but by men of the North and other countries. And this fact is not only indicative of a brighter future and of better times in commercial aspects, but is evidence of a lessening of that prejudiced opinion which has long been entertained toward the South as a political section, and hence reveals a brighter political future. With her abundant resources, the South is certainly attracting her part of the immigrants that are daily landing at our ports, and as her population increases, the number of laboring enterprises will be increased, our mines will be more extensively worked, and bring to us greater wealth.

Turning pleasantly from what appears to be the inevitable commercial future, we are glad to note that there are many indications of a better political future. The political sentiment of the South is gradually becoming more liberal. The South and North are nearer together to-day than they have been at any other known period.

Mahonism is traveling rapidly, and the time will soon come when the term "Solid South," recognized only as a vague epitaph—will be no longer a reality. The movement now on foot to break up bourbon rule in the South, and thus liberalize Southern sentiment, is one of no small consequence, and is sure to succeed. Other Southern States having become tired of being recognized as States of mob-violence and disorder, will fall in line with Virginia, and this done, there will be peace and order, and with peace comes prosperity. It is too soon, by a long stretch, to look for the dawn of the millennium, even here in this land of plenty—the Sunny South—but we have enough, indeed, that we may expect a very brilliant future.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

L. P. CUSHMAN, Editor.
A. E. P. ALBERT, D. D., Assistant.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 24, 1882.

The Democratic party in Indiana having declared its opposition to the pending prohibition amendment, the State Liquor Dealers Association have resolved to support it.

Our readers will be pleased to learn that the buildings for both the university and the seminary at Little Rock, Ark., are progressing finely, and that the elegant edifice for Rust University, Holly Springs, Miss., will soon be complete.

We have carefully read Bishop Payne's reply to the "Searching Inquiries" of Judge Tucker concerning the Bishop's treatment by railroad officials in Florida. The reply appeared in the Florida Daily Times. It is full, clear, convincing, and breathes throughout the sweet and tender spirit of a consecrated Christian gentleman.

The Times-Democrat is rapidly advancing to the very front rank of American journalism. The issue of the 12th devoted twelve columns to Mexican commercial and general news, five of which were in Spanish. That paper is doing yeoman service in the interest of a more valuable trade between this city and Spanish America.

We desire to call special attention to Ames Mission, as set forth by Rev. J. G. Vaughan, the pastor of Ames Church. We most heartily approve of all that Bro. Vaughan has said. To us it is clearly a providential opening to establish another Methodist Episcopal Church in this city, which can be done with a little help from abroad. Please brethren do not treat this appeal with indifference. Help this man in his work of saving these [illegible] children.

General George B. McClellan has contributed to the forthcoming number of the Century a paper on "The War in Egypt," which is said to give a clear idea of the conditions surrounding the Egyptian question, and to contain some severe criticisms of the conduct of the war by England. The writer's study of Egypt during an extended journey several years ago enables him to characterize succinctly the different Moslem elements that enter into the problem.

Making a Choice.

When the choice comes between pleasing God and pleasing men there ought to be no hesitation. No man could be more desirous of pleasing anybody than Paul. In the best sense of adapting himself to those with whom he had to deal, he became "all things to all men." In a review of his course he said: "I please all men in all things." Yet Paul had a higher aim than that of merely pleasing men. He could rebuke sin in the Roman governors, and defy Godless authorities. He was ready to break with Barnabas, or to stand out against Peter. But while Paul became "all things to all men," and could confidently say, "I please all men in all," yet he never turned a hair's breadth from the path of duty to please men. Pleasing men was not his aim. He was no mere man pleaser. And no man who aims to please men can be a fearless and faithful servant of Christ. "If I yet please men," said Paul, "that is if I made it the great aim of my ministry to please men, I should not be the servant of Christ." He who makes it the great aim of life to please God is more likely to please men than if he were making that the one great end continually. Every minister ought to try and please his people, but no minister can please his people long unless he is willing to displease them when duty calls for it. This trying to please at the sacrifice of duty is poor business for the ministers of the Lord Jesus.

All over this country it seems to be a natural thing that practical and experimental religion should subside in the months of July, August, and September. The congregations and Sunday-schools fall off. The prayer and class meetings are poorly attended. The wealthiest members scatter, some going to the seaside, some to watering places, others to the mountains or country for recreation; and generally there is a loss in personal and experimental religion by nine-tenths of the absentees. We can see no reason for neglecting the house and services of God in midsummer. There is as much need of church, family, and closet religion in August as in December. But of one thing we may all be sure: Satan never suspends his operations. He is as active in July as in March. He lives in the hottest climates, and goes about like a raging and roaring lion, seeking whom he may destroy. Whether in excessive heat or excessive cold, he is a roaring lion. In the hottest climates his energy knows no abatement. Christians may vacate the house of God and remain at home, and do little or nothing to maintain personal communion with God, or to save men during the heated months. Not so with their adversary; he is attentive to business. Let us watch and be sober.

Recent travel on Southern railroads has convinced us that gradually the lines are breaking, and ladies and gentlemen of all races and shades of color are receiving more of equal accommodations for equal fares than ever before. And why should it be otherwise, when the Constitution and laws of the Nation are explicit in the declaration, and the courts have repeatedly decreed in accordance thereto, that no citizen should suffer any detriment to his political or civil rights on account of his race, color, or previous condition of servitude! We know, at present, of no railroad entering this city whereon any person holding a first-class ticket would not receive corresponding accommodations both at the depot and on the trains. Even the lunch stands along the roads are relaxing the lines of race distinction, for now no objections are made to any one who has the money to pay for his meal, from coming right up to eat and drink side by side with any other who may be standing at the lunch tables. This is all right. The word seems to have been given all along the line that no difference may be shown against any race at lunch stations where passengers stand next to the tables for their lunch; but the order permitting all to sit at the tables has not yet been issued; hence at the lunch stations where passengers sit at the tables colored passengers as yet have to go and preside at a side-table in the kitchen, if they would take any meals at all. It is gratifying, however, to know that our average colored ladies and gentlemen do not preside in such kitchens very often. Their noble, manly instincts resist the idea, and they either eat their home-prepared lunches on the [illegible], or do without, though they [illegible] starve. A bright day dawns, however. The lines will not bear [illegible] pressure. And our [illegible] that are long [illegible] of time, educa[illegible] which [illegible] break the last [illegible] of color.

The Gilbert-Haven School of Theology.

The ideal of this school was conceived in the fertile brain of Rev. Dr. J. C. Hartzell, and by him presented to the Louisiana Conference for their adoption. It was adopted, and joint pledges were given for its establishment and support by the Conference as representatives of their charges, and by Dr. Hartzell, in his official capacity representing the Freedmen's Aid Society. Something over $5,000 were subscribed by the Conference at its last session. This subscription when, according to promise, is paid on or before the next session of the Conference, is to be supplemented by the Freedmen's Aid Society, with such an amount as will be necessary to build; when the erection of the school will immediately follow. This is the grandest effort ever put forth for Christian education by our own people in this State, and it deserves success. The object sought in the establishment of this school of theology is most laudable, and the name to be honored by its stately walls and classic halls is worthy, and should arouse every lover of Christian education and Havenism to do his full share in the erection of this institution, which, as a monumental shaft, is designed to commemorate the name and many virtues of the sainted Gilbert Haven, and to honor his worth and devotion to God's poor and despised people wherever found. This building is an immediate necessity for the higher education of our people, and for the preparation of young men for the ministry. The work languishes for the lack of cultured, intelligent and warm-hearted Christian workers. "The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few." Who will come to the help of the Lord and assist in answering the prayers for more laborers? Every one can and ought to do to the full extent of his ability to answer these prayers, by contributing to this institution to be dedicated to the great work of moulding and preparing trained and faithful laborers for the Lord's harvest. The fact that over one hundred students were turned away from our school, New Orleans University, the past school year, because of want of room; the greater and more pressing demands of the immediate future; the pledges of the Conference, and every Christian obligation, all unite in pressing upon every presiding elder, pastor, member and friend of our work to do his whole duty to raise, this very year, every cent of the $5000 subscribed at the last session of the Louisiana Conference. Do this, brethren, and friends, who are both willing and able to help, seeing our determination and self-sacrifice to help ourselves, will be aroused all over this nation, and come to the rescue. We are reliably informed that a member of the Mississippi Conference, in pursuance of a like purpose for Rust University, requested even Mr. Jeff. Davis to help, and he responded with $25 in solid cash. Since this is the case you need neither be afraid or discouraged, but solicit aid from any and everybody, with the expectation of obtaining it for this worthy Christian enterprise.

Hooker's Defeat.

Large bodies, it is said, move slowly, and we believe it to be true. But how exceedingly slow the great Democratic party moves, far behind its advanced leaders, may probably be illustrated from the fact that the Hon. Charles E. Hooker, Congressman from the seventh district of Mississippi, has brought upon himself the frown of his party, and we were positively informed by knowing ones, during our visit to Jackson, that he loses his claim to a seat in the next Congress in consequence of having given utterance, in his speech against the late Chinese bill, to the following advanced, truthful and eloquent tribute to the worth and character of his colored fellow citizens:

I say, sir, I do not believe in restricting the power of American civilization to plant its standard, like the cross of Christ, wherever the human race exists, of whatever color and of whatever language. I have said that we have had a severe test of this, and we have had it, sir, with reference to these people whom we have with us here. More than a century ago, they came, speaking in the unmeaning gibberish of the Guinea Negro. They were brought here by the agency of the Northern people. They were taken from the wild jungles of Africa, where the camelopard and the tiger bounded in the vast amphitheatre of his native land. They were brought here and settled in the inhospitable region of New England. They were found unsuited to that cold and intemperate climate, and that same philanthropy, guided by that overruling Providence "which shapes our ends, rough hew them how we will," transplanted them to the slumbering savannahs of the flower-scented South. There they took root and grew and waxed strong under the patriarchal institution which I am now about to hear for the first time recognized in its large and intelligent beneficence and philanthropy. In contact with the Caucasian race, those slaves, at the expiration of a century from the time they were first brought here, all at once, as Minerva sprung from the thigh of Jove, armed cap-a-pie, to contend with the animals of the forest, and to proclaim her triumph, so this people, ignorant, uneducated, uneducable, as it was thought, far more pagan than the Chinese, at the expiration of one century, when the manacles were stricken from their limbs by the proclamation of Mr. Lincoln and the results of the war, they sprung at once into the arena flaming with the intelligence of the nineteenth century. They have occupied your pulpits, and your schoolhouses, and your halls of legislation, and have even been represented by a distinguished Senator in the other end of the Capitol, while a full-fledged African spoke in the very citadel of liberty at Boston to the descendants of the men who fought at Bunker Hill. I am not afraid, therefore, when I see the results upon the colored people, when I see the intelligence they have attained, when I see their religious feelings (for they are an eminently religious people), when I see the wisdom and prudence which they manifested during the war of the rebellion, as you term it, and which they have manifested since, I am not afraid, are you, gentlemen, that your civilization and your power to plant the cross of Christ and the principles of liberty shall find in the oldest nation of the world a people incapable of appreciating them?

These are the sentiments that deprive the Hon. Charles E. Hooker of a seat in the next Congress, and that relegate him to the shades of private life until his party in Mississippi, which loiters far behind, shall make some advancements, when he, doubtless, will be recalled to continue his part in the political drama of the day.

Glorious Kansas.

The Associated Press dispatches from Kansas were very meagre. The great dailies southward simply told their readers that Gov. St. John had been renominated by the Republican convention at Topeka, on the 10th. The following is the platform adopted on that day:

We, the Republicans of the State of Kansas in delegate convention assembled, affirming our faith in, and adherence to, the principles of the Republican party, hereby express our confidence in our present National and State administrations, and we pledge ourselves to their support, and announce the following as our declaration of principles:

Resolved, That we declare ourselves unqualifiedly in favor of the prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and pledge ourselves to such additional legislation as shall secure the rigid enforcement of the constitutional provision upon this subject in all parts of the State.

Resolved, That we demand the enactment of such laws as will prevent discrimination by railroad companies and will provide for such freight and passengers tariffs as shall fully protect the interests of the public.

Resolved, That we request the next Legislature to submit such an amendment to the constitution of the State as will secure to women the right of suffrage.

Resolved, That we request our delegation in Congress to secure such an amendment to the revenue laws as will prevent the issuing of receipts or stamps to sell intoxicating liquors to any person other than those authorized so to do under State laws.

Resolved, That we are in favor of the strict and immediate enforcement of all the laws now upon the statute books for the regulation of railroads.

Resolved, That we ask of the Republican majority of the Congress of the United States to pass such laws as will compel the railways of this State to take patents for the lands granted them for the public domain to the and that all property in this State shall pay its just proportion of the taxes levied to support the government.

Resolved, That the Republicans of Kansas heartily indorse President Arthur's veto of the river and harbor bill, and the action of the united Kansas delegation in sustaining that veto.

The vote for Governor stood; St. John 287 votes, Thatcher 82, Johnson 12, Martin 2. Among the State officers nominated was E. McCabe, a colored man, for Auditor. He is said to be the first colored man nominated to a State office in the Northern States. He was born in New York in 1850, lived in Rhode Island, and married in Illinois. He was in the Treasurer's office of Cook County, Ill., for a time, and in 1877 moved to Kansas, where he has been and now is a county clerk.

Congressman Robertson and the Louisiana Lottery Company.

Notwithstanding his unswerving faithfulness to the Democratic party; the valuable services, which as chairman on the committee on Levees and Improvements, he has rendered to this State and the whole Mississippi valley; and in spite of the many measures for the material interest of his section, which he has persistently urged in the National Congress, Hon. E. W. Robertson, Congressman from the sixth district of this State, has failed to be renominated by the Democratic convention of his district during the recent session in Baton Rouge. His defeat he charges to the influence of the Louisiana Lottery Company, by which, in the house of his friends he has been slaughtered. It is certain that his bold and determined opposition to this corrupt and demoralizing concern had the effect of stirring its antagonism. And we doubt not that this same powerful corporation which proved the Sampson in tearing down the Republican government in Louisiana, and which has earned general notoriety for its power to control legislation in this State, had the casting vote in the defeat of such an avowed enemy to its continued prosperity. The following extract from Mr. Robertson's address to his constituency, soliciting renomination, shows his real animus toward our Louisiana corrupting Lottery Company:

I have introduced another bill which is of great importance not only to the people of the sixth district, but to all interested in the good name of the State. I refer to a bill amending the General Statutes so as to exclude all lotteries from the benefits of the mails. The "Louisiana State Lottery," bearing as it does the name of the State, is bringing it and our people into unenviable notoriety and disrepute abroad. It is corrupting the morals of not only the people of our State, but throughout the whole United States, for its demoralizing agencies are wide-spread. It is generally believed that it has a legal charter and has in the new Constitution been recognized as a binding contract upon the people of this State. Under the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of Stone vs. The State of Mississippi the right of the people of the State to barter away its police powers, either by act of the legislature or constitutional provision, was denied. The legislature of the State of Louisiana, having by act approved March 28, 1879, repealed its charter, it has no legal existence, and I pronounce it an unmitigated fraud. Believing the Louisiana Lottery to be thus illegal I have submitted the facts to the Postmaster General, and urged him to deprive this corrupting institution of the privileges of the mails. I propose to press this matter to the extent of my ability, and call the attention of all interested in the welfare of Louisiana to be active in their duty of retrieving the good name of the State. I am confident that it is only necessary to call their attention to the danger of the insidious influences of this demoralizing institution to insure their earnest efforts in this respect, and I am equally confident that there are lawful methods of accomplishing this desired result.

Woman's Home Missionary Society.

The report of the annual meeting at Lakeside, in the Western Christian Advocate, informs us that the forenoon exercises were largely attended, Mrs. President Hayes presiding, and Mrs. R. S. Rust acting as secretary. Mrs. Rust read a paper descriptive of the work being done, and the field. Bishop Wiley delivered a very able address, showing the need of home work. Bishop Warren spoke at night on the needs of the South. At the afternoon meeting a Lakeside auxiliary was organized. The following resolution, offered by Mrs. Belt, was adopted unanimously:

Resolved, That we have been pleased and instructed by the services and addresses of Mrs. R. B. Hayes, president of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, and Mrs. Dr. Rust, secretary of the same; Mrs. W. G. Williams, Central Ohio secretary; Miss Kahle, of Cheyenne Mission, and Miss Cowgill, missionary to New Orleans, and urge them to be present with us at our next annual meeting.

Whenever business or pleasure requires that you travel, remember the C. St. L. & N. O. R R, the "Old Jackson Line." Its smooth track, elegant coaches, courteous officers, and latest improved appliances for rapid transit, all combine to afford to the weary traveler speed and comfort. We speak whereof we know.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Governor Colquitt, of Georgia, favors prohibition.

—Rev. John Kerns, of Indiana, is now pastor of the Church at Lawrence, Texas.

—Mrs. E. T. Collins, a colored lady, publishes a paper called the Review, at Augusta, Arkansas.

—Bishop Foss recently dedicated the new church in Minneapolis, which has been waiting for his recovery.

—Ex-United States Senator George R. Denis, of Maryland, died at his home in Somerset county, August 13, aged 61 years.

—Robert Harlan a prominent colored Republican of Cincinnati, has been appointed a special agent of the Treasury department.

—Bishop Harris, left Hamburg, on one of the German line of steamers on the 12th instant, and is expected to arrive in New York to-day.

—Prof. Scarborough, of Wilberforce, was elected to membership in the American Philological Association, at its recent meeting at Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.

—Bishop Hurst attends the Pacific Conferences this year and will be accompanied by his family, who will remain in San Francisco while he goes to Oregon and Washington.

—Rev. Wm. P. Forest, pastor of our church in Clinton, La., called last week. He reports progress at his charge, which now rejoices in a new church building in a fine locality.

—Schuyler Crosby, the new governor of Montana, is at present consul at Florence and was awarded a medal for his gallant rescue of a companion, when Commodore Garner's life was lost by the capsizing of his yacht, a few years ago.

—Emile LaSere, born in San Domingo, once a member of Congress from the First District of Louisiana, Sheriff of Orleans, editor of the Courier, a Democratic leader, and a friend of Benito Juarez, late President of Mexico, died at Bay St. Louis on the 13th in his 90th year.

—Mr. Ferdinand Schumacher, of Akron, the prohibition candidate for secretary of State, it is said, began life as a poor boy and has risen to a position of enormous wealth, his income being estimated at $500 a day. He is a German, and a radical advocate of absolute prohibition of the liquor traffic.—Western.

—Wm. Levy, associate justice of the Louisiana Supreme Court, died at Saratoga, N. Y., on the 14th. He was a lieutenant in the Mexican war, and during Confederate service attained a colonelcy; he was editor of a paper at Natchitoches, a member of the Legislature, a Breckenridge elector, member of Congress in 1875-76.

—Prof. E. J. Edmunds, a graduate of the Polytechnic school of France, and professor of mathematics in the Boys' High School, in this city, during Republican supremacy in this State, was sent to the insane Asylum last week, by Judge Miltenberger. This sad and terrible insanity, we are told, has been coming over him for some time. We hope he will be afforded proper medical attention, and that he may speedily recover.

—Benjamin Harvey Hill, U. S. Senator, died in Atlanta, Ga., on the morning of the 16th. He was born in Jasper county in 1823; was elected to the Legislature from Troupe county in 1852; in 1858 he was elected to the State Senate. He was defeated for Congress and for Governor on the Whig ticket, and as a Bell and Everett elector in 1860. He was elected to the Confederate Senate in 1861, and ardently supported Jefferson Davis to the close of the war. He was a bold opponent of reconstruction measures, and advocated the social ostracism of Republicans. He afterward was elected to Congress from the ninth district; and in 1876 to the United States Senate.

—Charles A. Dana, ex-Secretary of War, and editor of the New York Sun, a bitter enemy of Gen. Grant, pays the following tribute to one trait of his character: "Gen. Grant never swears. In all our acquaintance with him we never heard him utter a profane word. His example in this respect was as consistent as it was conspicuous. Most army officers will swear when they are excited. Gen. Scott used to swear. Gen. Sheridan will put in an oath now and then to give emphasis to his ideas, and Gen. Sherman can make the air lurid with his cursing. Not so with Gen. Grant. We have been with him in some of the most trying circumstances of his military career, and can testify that no cause of anxiety or of anger has ever drawn any sort of an oath from his lips."

—Col. Thos. P. May, who recently moved to Washington with his family from New Orleans, is the author of the "Earl of Mayfield" and the "Prince of Breffny," novels that have met with decided favor. Mrs. May is the daughter of Miles Taylor, member of Congress from Louisiana. Col May and family returned from England last winter, where they had been spending two years. Col. May is suing in England for the title and estates of the May family, of which the present Lord Chief Justice of Ireland claims to be the head. A favorable decision is expected from the Queen's Court in a short time, when Col. May will assume the title of Baronet of Mayfield, now held by the Lord Chief Justice. The amount of the estates involved is very large. It is said the character of Carew, in the "Earl of Mayfield," is a faithful biographical sketch of Col May.

The Khedive authorizes the British troops to occupy such points as they consider useful for military operations against the rebels.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

Last Sabbath was a gala day for the children at Sixth Street M. E. Church. The entire services of the day were given to them. Appropriate addresses were delivered to parents, teachers, young ladies and men, and upon the general Sunday-school work by the pastor, Professor Woods and Bros. Taylor and Coleman, while numbers of the teachers and scholars gave some very charming recitations. First Street Sunday-school was represented by a class of noble young ladies to whom a valuable prize was presented. The day was a grand jubilee. The collection was $14 35. H. Wilson is superintendent.

P. F. Robinson, Shady Grove: "When I started out here I found the people very much scattered, but I have formed some warm friendships. The failure of last year's crops caused hard times. The people are now flocking to the church."

F. T. Chinn, Thibodaux: "Calvary M. E. Church is still on the road of progression spiritually and financially. On Sunday, Aug. 6, we had a grand union meeting; the amount collected was $61 75. Also class No. 2, of which Bros. Z. Coner and F. H. Taylor are leaders, presented the church with a beautiful 4-light chandelier. Also Sister M. C. Le Blanc, of class No. 5, four chairs. Bro. R. Hickenbothem hung over the pulpit a fine self-lifting light. Though it is true some of our neighbor churches fight us, we have the light in our hearts and a perfectly illuminated church. Our Sunday-school is in a prosperous condition. We desire the prayers of the whole Church, that we may continue in the road of progression."

Reese Thompson, Shreveport: "The quarterly conference of St. Paul church was held July 24. Elder Duncan presided. The classes reported as follows: No. 1, 28 members, 3 probationers, $10 60 collection; No. 2, 31 members, 23 probationers, $8 60 collection; No. 3, 36 members, $11 30 collection; No. 4, 41 members, $11 90 collection; No. 5, 38 members, $14 15 collection; No. 6, 18 members, $6 30 collection; No. 7, 40 members, 13 probationers, $9 15 collection; No. 8, 17 members, $6 50. Class and public collections this year $301 10. We have had some 25 conversions, and built a fence around our church and parsonage costing $100. We anticipate having the Church painted by the fourth quarter. St. Paul's Sunday-school is in good condition, and gives a missionary collection every second Sunday. A little boy named Lafayette Thomas, a member of it, was offered fifty cents to go to the circus, and replied, "I had rather you would give me a nickel to carry to Sabbath school." I wish all of our people could be that bold."

TEXAS.

Allen Harris, Willis: "The Duncan Church, which was burned down in September last, has been rebuilt, 22x24 feet, and the Christians of the vicinity are giving renewed attention to their religious duties. The first sermon was preached in the church on the first Sabbath of August."

Geo. W. Norris, Marshall: "In traveling around my circuit I find that my people have had but little of the Gospel preached to them. The preachers must talk to the people more of their sins and stop sticking their fingers in their ears and making a big fuss. Protracted meeting was held in Macedonia Church; the fight was strong but 28 were taken on probation. I have sent in twelve subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN."

ARKANSAS.

A. E. Carr, Newport: "At second quarterly meeting there was a large congregation. Elder Phillips was with us, and 44 partook of the sacrament. Collection $3 55."

H. H. McAllister, Saulsburg: "Our church has grown wonderfully this year. Thirty-four have joined since Conference, and the good work goes on yet. This, undoubtedly, will soon be one of the best works in the Conference. Our Sunday-school beats anything in this part of the country."

TENNESSEE.

The East Tennessee Conference meets October 12th, and the Holston Conference Oct. 19th. Bishop Simpson will preside.

Dr. J. B. Ford, in the Atlanta Advocate, says: "The Methodist Episcopal church never was more firmly planted in East Tennessee than at this time. Every part of the work is growing. There is very marked growth in the number and efficiency of our Sunday-schools. Nearly every circuit is supplied with good, and in many cases, elegant churches, which indicate permanent growth. The Methodist Episcopal church is a fixture and a very prominent factor in the make up of the moral forces in this section not to be lightly esteemed."

GEORGIA.

J. W. Adams, architect and builder, from Chattanooga, was in Atlanta last week to examine the location for Haven Hall, the new building for the theological seminary for the South. It is to be commenced as soon as the plans are accepted, and will be erected on the grounds of Clark University, either a little West or East of Chrisman Hall. It is to be of brick, on a foundation of granite, and to cost fifteen thousand dollars.—Methodist Advocate.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Letter from Jackson.

DEAR EDITOR: We had on the 8th of July a jolly picnic, given jointly by the Feliciana Benevolent Society and the Magnolia M. E. Sunday-school. Mr. Shattuck, superintendent of the school and a member of the society, and R. L. Perry, president, favored this union as the times were hard, and the two societies could help each other. Friends from all parts of East and West Feliciana, and some from East Baton Rouge, La., and Woodville, Miss., were on hand at eight o'clock, and at nine Presiding Elder Landry opened for us by singing a sweet hymn. Rev. Eli Perkins led in prayer. Then Miss Irene George presented the society with a very fine banner, and her speech was brief and to the point. The President responded. Vice-President Aaron Robinson, and Rev. John Qualls made interesting addresses. The Society and school formed in line, and with sweet music marched through the principal streets of the town. Many handkerchiefs were waved at us from Methodist windows. On the picnic grounds a hard shower came up, and we were forced back to the church, but it cleared up, and our friends were again invited to dinner. At night the Sunday-school had a concert, and the church was crowded. The children acquitted themselves well, and reflected credit on the school. Two of them read compositions which were highly commended, and the singing was excellent. Arthur H. Colwell delivered a very able and impressive address, and we hope to see him rise to where he will have an opportunity to make some of the dark clouds disappear. After him, Rev. Pierre Landry, our beloved presiding elder, made some appropriate remarks. His efforts for the people are appreciated. Benediction was pronounced by Rev. Archie Herbert of West Feliciana. We had with us that day and night Revs. George Lacey, C. Barnes, H. H. Hunter, John Davis, Joseph Williams, Morgan Griffin, Jonas Thomas, Green Williams, and that noble worker for his people, W. A. Nelson and family. Everything contributed to a complete success. Mr. Isaac Perry Lewis and Misses Fannie Kemble and Willie Lewis carried the society banner; it was selected by Mr. Landry, and was a fine piece of work. Mr. James Smith and Misses Sarah E. Graham and Ella Marshall carried the Sunday-school banner. Too much praise cannot be bestowed on the committes of arrangements and the members of the Society, and to the parents, able corps of teachers and officers of the Sunday-school.

We will not forget the active part of Rev. C. W. Kershaw and wife, taken in the Sunday-school when they were here, and thanks to Rev. A. Graham for his assistance this year.

We are striving to get two good teachers for our public schools, colored ones preferred. We have had two good ones, and expect to be as fortunate hereafter. We are happy to say that our town does not allow the selling of liquor in it at any time. Respectfully,

R. L. PERRY.

Light from Louisiana.

The almost chronic monotony of discouragement in the educational life of the Pelican State has been relieved by two incidents of great significance. First, comes the princely donation of $2,000,000 for endowing a college for the education of the white young men of New Orleans, by Paul Tulaine; a former resident of that city, though a Northern man, and at present residing in Princeton, N. J. The history of previous benefactions by this State and individuals for the higher education, will doubtless be a warning to the corporate body intrusted with this great bequest; and any board of which Mr. Randall Gibson is a prominent member will not be wanting in wise and cultured direction. If no insuperable obstacles exist, it would seem as if no better thing could be done than in some way to combine this endowment with the State University, of which Prof. Jesse is now the dean, and which is, by all odds, the most vital establishment for the higher education in the Southwest.

The secon, and even more interesting incident in the same line, is the late address of Mr. Geo. W. Cable, of New Orleans, on the development of the literature of the South, before the students at Oxford, Miss. No such address has proceeded from any literary man in our country for the last generation.

For breadth of outlook over the national field of culture; for a fair and discriminating estimate of the sources of power in the old South, and the vast inspirations of the national life for the poet, the novelist, the biographer, and the historian; for intense patriotism and a spirit of rational progress, this address deserves republication every where. Mr. Cable is not one of those holiday orators whose sole performance is a sensational and boastful assertion of the possibilities of a national literature, but himself an author not second to any contemporary in the field of the new American romance. He has shown what can be done with the life and history of one American city. The same elements of power, pathos, brilliant contrast, and deep social and spiritual significance can be found in any old or new city in the land.

But one thing more must happen in Louisiana before the present educational dead-lock is broken and the whole people of that great State are called to the full participation in the feast of knowledge now offered to the few. The last report of State Supt. Fay, and City Supt. Rogers of New Orleans, interpreted by the light of the past few years of public-school affairs in Louisiana, is not a reassuring document. The gist of it is, that the public-school teachers of Louisiana, and especially of New Orleans, still "hold the fort," although the bitter and relentless war against the common school is still waged with no evident purpose of abatement. In the whole Republic there can not be found a more devoted band of teachers than in New Orleans. Year after year they have stood to their guns in the face of starvation wages, paid with the most aggravating irregularity in depreciated bonds. Had it not been for the heroism of a few women, the common-school system of Louisiana would have been trampled in the mire long ere this, spite of the the fidelity of the little band of noble men who have fought so bravely for its preservation. The trouble in Louisiana seems to be the lack of a thoroughly organized and compact school public to support the cause, watch and baffle the intrigues of the social, political, and priestly enemies of public education, and assure the hard-worked and almost discouraged teachers, that they are on the eve of a victory and not of a crushing defeat. Louisiana stands to-day at the parting of two ways. If captured by the foes of popular education, no special cultivation of the few will save her from the provincialism that awaits every American State that submits to the rule of political and ecclesiastical ring. We trust the new life of Lousiana is only only abiding its time for a speedy resurrection.—New England Journal of Education.

Egyptian Taxes.

For the last forty years the rulers of Egypt have endeavored to Europeanize the country. This was the ambition of Said Pasha whose short reign prepared the way for still more important innovations. Ismail Pasha, the late Khedive, went far beyond all his predecessors in that direction. He was educated in part at Paris. He imbibed European notions to the utmost. He undertook to make Egypt another France. He had abilities of a high order, but lacked practical judgment and [illegible]. He set out to do the work of two hundred and fifty years in twenty-five. He built railroads, bridges, canals, roads, palaces, wharves, and public parks. He converted Alexandria and Cairo into semi-European cities, with magnificent buildings and boulevards lighted with gas. He took an active part in building [illegible] in the city was built by Mr. Remington, the well-known American manufacturer of firearms. He [illegible] beaten until his relations and neighbors make up the deficiency, or he succumbs. And the poor fellaheen understand that all this terrible oppression is the result of European improvements and influence. It is not strange that they hate the foreigners as a fiend, and are ready to take up arms for their expulsion.—Christian at Work.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

THIRD QUARTER. LESSON IX. August 27, 1882.

PHARISEES AND SADDUCEES SILENCED.—(Mark xii. 13-27.)

The chief priests, scribes and elders, sympathizers with and supporters of the Herodian rule, sent to Christ to ask him concerning paying tribute to Cæsar. If he should have said yes, it would have brought him into conflict with the mass of his countrymen, who hated the Roman rule, and apparently into conflict with God's will, who had designed Israel to be an independent nation. If he said no, it would have brought him into collision with the temporal power of the emperor. In either case, there were present friends of each party ready to note his words and make them the basis of action against him, to which they would be prepared to testify. He, knowing hypocrisy, said: "Render to Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's"—The image and superscription declared the coin to be Cæsar's in the sense in which the coin belongs to the emperor of any country. But in practice the coin could not come into the possession of the people without a direct gift on the the part of the emperor, or by the people rendering some equivalent for it. In either way the coin would no longer really be the emperor's but the person's who happened to hold it. When Cæsar therefore demanded a portion of it as tribute he must render some equivalent for it, and the question turns upon the rightfulness of his claim. In return for the money he guarantees civil order and administration of public affairs. If the equivalent is fair, the tax is fair, and the coin belongs to Cæsar by just right. Therefore give it to him. "To God the things that are God's"—The duties of religion are not compromised by civil relations, and ought not to be remitted, but performed. It may be true that God designed Israel for an independent nation, and that the rule of the Cæsars over them is a curse and an affliction; but it has been permitted by divine Providence, perhaps as a judgment. At all events, it could not now be remedied, and any attempt t restore autonomy would only lead to slaughter and defeat.

NEW BOOKS.

JESSIE AND RAY; or Recreations in Natural History for Boys and Girls," with illustrations, by Anna O. Woodbridge. Cincinnati: Walden & Stowe. New York: Phillips & Hunt. 16 mo. p. 333. Price $1.

This book is what its name indicates, "Recreations in Natural History for Boys and Girls." We remember the books Jacob Abbott wrote for children, and how entertaining they were. Perhaps it is not always best to make comparisons, and yet we think it just to say that Miss Woodbridge has made a decided improvement on Mr. Abbott. She makes the study of Natural History easy. We advise parents to put this book into the hands of their boys and girls.

METHODISM AND THE TEMPERANCE REFORMATION. By Rev Henry Wheeler. Cincinnati: Walden & Stowe. New York: Phillips & Hunt. 16mo., pp. 281. Price $1.

To us this is one of the most timely books of the season. The cause of Temperance and Methodism have been closely identified. Mr. Wesley required of all his members abstinence from the use of all intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and this has been one of the accepted rules of the Methodist Episcopal Church ever since its organization in 1784, and during all of these years good work for the cause of temperance has been done by the ministry and membership of the Church. The British Conference seems to have departed for a season from Mr. Wesley's rule, and not only treated this question with silence, but even became unfriendly and actively hostile to it. But the Methodist Episcopal Church has [illegible] the battle and waged an uncompromising war upon the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. Mr. Wheeler gives with clearness the history of Methodism in the reformation. We advise all of our readers to buy this book and closely study its pages.

Those who have been invited to inscribe their sentiments in a friend's album, will find this little volume a help. It contains 64 pages, and will be sent post paid on receipt of 15 cents, by J. S Ogilvie & Co, No. 31 Rose Street, New York.

The August numbers of both the Century Magazine and St. Nicholas, the Midsummer Holiday issue of the one and "the great travel number" of the other, are out of print Much larger editions of both these magazines have been sold during the past few months than in any preceding summer season.

The personal appearance of none of our popular writers is less familiar to the public than that of Mr. Clemens (Mark Twain), unless it be that of Mr. Henry James, Jr. Of both these gentlemen Mr. Cole is engraving portraits in wood for the Century, and Mr. Howells has prepared the sketches which are to accompany them. Mr. Clemens's, which is spoken highly of both as a work of art and as a faithful representation, will form the frontispiece of the September number. Mr. James's will follow soon, together with a piece of literary work by that writer.

The North American Review for September has for its leading article a very forcible presentment, by Dorman B. Eaton, of the evils produced by the practice of levying "Political Assessments." The paper is noteworthy for its striking array of facts, but more so because it will be universally regarded as the ultimatum of a large and influential section of the Republican Party, addressed to the party leaders. "Oaths in Legal Proceedings," by Judge Edward A. Thomas, is a discussion of the question whether the interests of morality and of public justice alike, would not be promoted by the abrogation of all laws requiring testimony to be given under the sanction of an oath. Thompson B. Maury, late of the Signal Office, contributes an article on "Tornadoes and their Causes," which, in addition to its scientific interest, possesses the merit of suggesting many practical measures for averting disaster to life and property from wind storms. "Architecture in America," by Clarence Cook, is marked by a freedom of utterance that is refreshing. In this respect it deserves to rank with Commander Gorringe's celebrated paper on the United States Navy. Augustus G. Cobb writes of "Earth-Burial and Cremation," and J. F. Manning, in an article entitled "The Geneva Award and the Ship Owners," sets forth the justice of the claims of consigners of cargoes and owners of vessels to indemnification out of the Geneva Award fund, for losses from the acts of Confederate cruisers. The Review is sold by booksellers and newsdealers generally.

Brown's Iron Bitters.

Without exception there is no remedy so strengthening in its effect as Brown's Iron Bitters.

If you wish to be strong and enjoy the full exuberance of perfect, robust health, put your trust in Brown's Iron Bitters. It will not disappoint you.

A friend writes: "For years I suffered from physical exhaustion and declining health. Now I am as strong as iron. I used Brown's Iron Bitters."

Depend on Brown's Iron Bitters for strength of mind and body.

Gen. Sir Garnet Wolseley, English commander, with the authority of the Khedive, has issued a proclamation to the people of Egypt representing the sole object of the British to be to restore the Khedive. It says all peaceful inhabitants will be kindly treated. Mosques will be respected and all supplies paid for. Gen. Wolseley adds that he will be glad to receive all chiefs who are disposed to assist in repressing rebellion.

To Accommodate the Public.

The proprietors of that immensely popular remedy, Kidney-Wort, in recognition of the claims of the public which has so liberally patronized them, have prepared a liquid preparation of that remedy for the special accommodation of those who from any reason dislike to prepare it for themselves. It is very concentrated and, as the dose is small, it is more easily taken by many. It has the same effectual action in all diseases of the kidneys, liver or bowels.—Home and Farm.

Mary L. Robinson died June 25, aged 4 years, 1 month and 4 days. P. ROBINSON.
Shady Grove, La.

Bro. Henderson Little died April 8. He was a local preacher, a faithful member and a loving husband, and passed away triumphantly. A wife and eleven sons mourn his loss. OWEN H. MURPHY.
Jackson, Miss.

Bro. Stephen Rousseau died in good faith, Aug. 8th, leaving a wife to mourn his loss. Sister Charlotte Elvice died August 10th, after living a faithful Christian, leaving a husband and four children. AUSTIN JONES.
Camp Parapet, La.

Sister Edna Whitakar, a faithful member of the church for 35 years, died July 26, aged 63 years. While on her sick bed she sent her usual contribution to the church, and bade her pastor good by. She leaves a host of friends to mourn her loss. J. L. MASSEY.
Linden, Tenn.

Sister Caily Johnson died July 10, 1882. She was a faithful member of Wiley Chapel M. E. Church; was born on Flint river in Georgia. She lived in Russell county, Ala., from the time she was ten years old until she was 46 years old, when she moved to this place, where she has resided ever since. She was seventy-three years old, and when she died had been a member of the church for thirty-three years. She was taken sick July 1st and died on the 10th. She was unconscious for ten days, but her life was such a one that we cannot doubt but she dwells with the shining ones that have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the lamb. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. T. J. Johnson and S. Duncan. She leaves one son, a daughter and many relatives and friends to mourn her loss. S. DUNCAN.

OCEAN GROVE, N. J., Aug. 9.—The National Educational Assembly closed this evening with an immense audience. Mr. Crawford, Superintendent of Education of Tennesse, presided in the morning, when education South was discussed by Dr. Allen, of Pittsburg; Dr. Gregory, of Illinois, and Dr. Hartzell, of Louisiana. In the afternoon, Bishop Simpson and United States Senator Sanders, of Nebraska, spoke. This evening Professor Darnell, of Florida, and United States Senator Blair, of New Hampshire, were the speakers. Mr. Blair discussed the measures proposing National aid, now before Congress, to the common schools. A National Education Committee will be organized to memorialize Congress.

District Conference will meet at Shelbyville Sept 6, instead of the 13th. Please make the change. I want all the ministers to be on hand the first day at roll call, and remain until the business of the Conference is through. Please stir up your committees, brethren, on the various benevolent enterprises of the church. We ought to pay back 30 per cent on all monies appropriated to our conference, which would enable us to pay $50 more than asked for—$900 would speak well for the Tennessee Conference; that would be about 12 per member. I am satisfied if the preachers would work up all the disciplinary plans of the church the above amount will be raised without burden to any one. Educate the people up to their duties; organize your monthly missionary prayer-meetings; watch the interests yourselves; attend the meetings in person and trust them to no one; organize all your Sunday-schools into missionary societies and train the children to give regularly and we will very soon raise up an army that will work up this great cause for God and the church. I believe the time is not far distant when a preacher who fails to do his duty in working up those plans of the church will fail to draw on the society for a cent; yea, indeed it ought to be so. Let our motto be: raise every cent assessed, with no blanks to appear on our conference reports this year. There may be some who will say we cannot raise those collections on account of hard times. That is no excuse, brethren. Some of the brethren have raised nearly all of their assessments already, far in advance of last year. Let us do our duty, brethren, and trust God for the result, though the times may be hard.
Yours, in the Master's cause,
H. W. KEY, P. E.

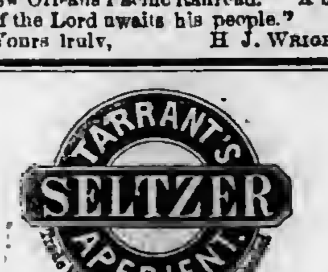
Spring Creek Camp Meeting.

To all who wish to attend our Camp Meeting out on Spring Creek, notice is hereby given that we will commence on Thursday, August 31 All friends are invited I will meet preachers who write me at Lamourie crossing mail station, Morgan La. & Texas or New Orleans Pacific Railroad. "A blessing of the Lord awaits his people."
Yours truly, H. J. WRIGHT.



The King of the Body is the brain; the stomach its main support; the nerves its messengers; the bowels, the kidneys and the pores its safeguards. Indigestion creates a violent revolt among these attaches of the real organ, and to bring them back to their duty there is nothing like the regulating, purifying, invigorating, cooling operation of TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT. It renovates the system and restores to health both the body and the mind.

EARS FOR THE MILLION!
Foo Choo's Balsam of Shark's Oil
Positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.
This Oil is abstracted from peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as Carcharodon Rondeletii. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1410 Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese People. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1 per bottle.

HEAR WHAT THE DEAF SAY!
It has performed a miracle in my case.
I have no unearthly noises in my head and hear much better.
I have been greatly benefited.
My deafness helped a great deal—think another bottle will cure me.

"Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer can personally testify, both from experience and observation. Write at once to Haylock & Jenney, 7 Dey street New York, enclosing $1, and you will receive by return a remedy that will enable you to hear like anybody else, and whose curative effects will be permanent. You will never regret doing so."—Editor of Mercantile Review.

MALARIA

Malaria is an almost indescribable malady which not even the most talented physicians are able to fathom. Its cause is most frequently ascribed to local surroundings, and there is very little question, but this opinion is substantiated by facts. Malaria does not necessarily mean chills and fever while these troubles usually accompany it. It often affects the sufferer with general lassitude, accompanied by loss of appetite, sleeplessness, a tired feeling and a high fever, the person afflicted growing weaker and weaker, loses flesh day after day, until he becomes a mere skeleton, a shadow of his former self.

Malaria once having laid its hold upon the human frame, the door of the system is thrown open to nervous diseases. The body weak and enfeebled absorbs no nourishment, but subsisting upon itself, the digestive organs no longer perform their functions; the liver becomes torpid, and other organs failing to do their routine work, speedily become disordered, and dissolution and death are apt to ensue.

In addition to being a certain cure for malaria and chills and fever, BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is highly recommended for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient tonic; especially indigestion, dyspepsia, intermittent fevers, want of appetite, loss of strength, lack of energy, etc. Enriches the blood, strengthens the muscles, and gives new life to the nerves. Acts like a charm on the digestive organs. It is for sale by all respectable dealers in medicines, price, $1 per bottle

Be sure and get the genuine BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. Take no other.

A Wonderful Boy.

O little Tom Prance
Could caper and dance,
Light as the down of a thistle.
And what do you think?
He knew how to wink,
And, I have been told, could whistle.

What do you suppose?
The boy had a nose!
And eyes just as bright as dollars.
And, strange to be said,
Hair grew on his head!
I think he wore caps and collars.

The wonder still grows;
For he had ten toes,
And of fingers just as many!
He could talk and walk,
Could use knife and fork,
And knew the worth of a penny.

I am not quite sure
Tom could shut the door
Without a terrible clatter;
But quite sure am I
He could eat a plum pie
And leave not a crumb on the platter!
—Our Little Ones.

A Terrible Memory.

Many a picture of moving pathos appears in the dark gallery of drunkenness. We have seen but few more touching ones than this, from the pen of Mrs. M. A. Kidder. She described little Benny, the son of a drunken father, sitting in the room with his mother and little sister. By looking at his sad and thoughtful face one would have thought him to be ten years of age, yet he was only six. No wonder! For four years this almost baby had been used to see a drunken father go in and out of their little cottage. He scarcely remembered any thing from him but abuse and cruelty, especially towards his kind and loving mother. But now he was dead! The green sod had lain on his grave a week or more, but the terrible effects of his conduct were not buried with him. The poor children would start with a shudder at every uncertain step on the walk outside, and at every hesitating hand upon the latch. On the day mentioned above Benny's mother was getting dinner.

"Will my little son go to the woodshed and get mother a few sticks to finish boiling the tea kettle?"

"I don't like to go into the woodshed, mamma," said Benny, looking down.

"Why, my son?"

"Because there is a pair of father's old shoes on the beam out there, and I don't like to see them."

"Why, Benny, do you mind your father's shoes more than his coat and hat up there?"

"Because," said Benny, [illegible]

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

J. W. Richardson, pastor at Centerville, wrote that the heavy rains impeded his church work. On several Sabbaths in succession only a few were able to get to church.

D. Shelby, Allen: "Our presiding elder could not be with us on account of his sickness, and I held the second quarterly conference at Union chapel, Martha Station. We had a glorious time. Rev. D. Atkins preached; the house could not contain the people. Two were converted before the meeting closed. Sunday-schools are doing well; Union is under Supt. Alex. Johnson, Friendship under D. Atkins. We expect to get a large bell for the church at Hayson. Bros. C Mack and D. J. Price will see after it. Have had 5 converts since quarterly conference, and 24 at the altar. I thank the Lord the light is shining in our church. Cotton crops are fine."

MISSISSIPPI.

L. Clayton, Deerbrook: "Elder Dunn held our conference on the 30 and 31, and administered sacrament to 24 persons. Collection was $13. Children's day was observed, and $2 85 was raised."

The annual camp meeting of the Ocean Springs circuit, commenced last Monday the 21st inst., at Ocean Springs, and continues till the 27th inst. Friends from adjoining country, as well as from the city, are invited by Bro. Bardwell and his people.

B. Allen, Fort Stephen: "Elder Dunn held the quarterly conference for Daleville circuit, and preached to a large congregation. Paid pastor this quarter $56 95; elder's collection $14; 183 were at Lord's supper."

S. H. M. Simms, Augusta: "I have to walk over a large work, and meet with much opposition. Appointments are from 20 to 75 miles apart. I do not mind it except for one thing—I have but little time to devote to the conference studies. Elder Campbell held our [illegible] We had a good time. Collection $9 25."

Spencer Kelley, Livingstone: [illegible] held our third quarterly conference [illegible] largely attended, and we had a grand time [illegible] Collection was $13 05. My work is looking up."

W. H. Logan, Jefferson: "Our work has been blessed to some extent. Many bodily ills result from habitual constipation, and a fine constitution may be broken and ruined by simple neglect. There is no medicine equal to Ayer's Pills to correct the evil, and restore the organs to natural, healthy and regular action.

A GENEROUS ACT

That Will be Appreciated by All Who Care for their Complexion or Skin.

It is not generally known that the nervous system has a wonderful influence over the skin, but this is a fact known to medical men who have given much of their time to the study of diseases of the skin. No one can have a clear and fair complexion unmixed with blotches and pimples who is very nervous.

Whatever tends to a healthful condition of the nervous system always beautifies the complexion and removes dryness and roughness of the skin. Some skin diseases are not attended by visible signs on the surface, but an intolerable itching that renders life miserable.

We copy the following deserving and interesting compliment from the Tribune which says: "Dr. C. W. Benson's New Remedy, 'Skin Cure,' is received by the public with great confidence, and it is regarded as a very generous act on the Doctor's part to make known and prepare for general use his valuable and favorite prescription for the treatment of skin diseases, after having devoted almost his entire life to the study and treatment of nervous and skin diseases, in which he took great delight. He was for a number of years Physician in charge of the Maryland Infirmary on Dermatology and anything from his hands is at once accepted as authority and valuable. The remedy is fully the article to attack the disease [illegible] internally through the blood and externally through the absorbents, and is the only reliable and rational mode of treatment. These preparations are only put up for general use after having been used by the Doctor in his private practice for years, with the greatest success, and they fully merit the confidence of all classes of sufferers from skin diseases." This is for sale by all druggists. Two bottles, internal and external treatment, in one package. Don't be persuaded to take any other. It costs one dollar.

OH, MY HEAD!

WHY WILL YOU SUFFER!

Sick headache, nervous headache, neuralgia, nervousness, paralysis, dyspepsia, sleeplessness, and brain diseases, positively cured by Dr. Benson's Celery and Chamomile Pills. They contain no opium, quinine, or other harmful drug.

Sold by druggists. Price, 50 cents a box. Depot: 106 North Eutaw St., Baltimore, Md. By mail, two boxes for $1, or six boxes for $2.50, to any address.

Lost Friends.

DEAR EDITOR: I am as one lost from my people, and have been for some fifteen or sixteen years. I do not know my age, though I came from the State of Kentucky some fifteen or sixteen years ago, with a Mrs. Agbert Tancel, as nurse, taking the boat at Hickman, Ky., after a half-day's journey on the cars from the interior to Hickman, where we took the steamer for New Orleans. The lady that I came here with before her marriage was a Miss Jackey Bell, the sister of old Thomas Bell, my and my family's old owner. My father's name was George Bell, my mother being dead, but was named Maria Bell; brothers Bill or William Bell, Ned or Edward Bell, Robert and Newman Bell; sisters, Nancy, Annie, and Metta Bell. If any one in Hickman, Ky., or thereabouts, knows any thing of my family, they will oblige by writing to me. It seems that the said Mrs. Tancel went back to the State of Kentucky, and I remained here in New Orleans. Address Cora Bell, No. 51 Celleste street, between Tchoupitoulas and Religious streets, New Orleans, La.

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my relatives. I have not heard from them since the year 1868, in which year I was taken away from them and carried to the Orphans' Home. I have in New Orleans an aunt and a sister, Julia Brown and Lucinda Brown. My mother died on Poydras street, New Orleans, and she was buried in the Old Basin Cemetery. I have an uncle by the name of Dave. His other name I cannot remember. My maiden name was Josephine Brown and my married name is Josephine Thomas. Please address me at La Teche, La., M. E. Church, in care of Rev. E. Lyon. Yours respectfully,
JOSEPHINE THOMAS, or LUCY THOMAS.

MR. EDITOR: I left a son 8 or 9 years old, his name was Levy Jackson, I left him in Dallas county Alabama, the nearest town was Cahawba. It has been 25 or 30 years since I left him. I want you to write a letter of inquiry and see if you can find him for me. I belonged to William Jackson and was sold to William Matthis. I received a letter from him 9 years ago, he had grown up to be a man and had married a girl by the name of Annise Mosley I answered the letter and never have received any more.
MARY BRYANT.

MR. EDITOR: Jane, once the slave of Geo. Landers, near Looninburg, Izard county, Arkansas, was sold (it is believed) to a planter on Little Red River She had when last heard from two children, viz.: Henry and John. Any information concerning her will be thankfully received by her son Henry Lewis, who may be addressed at Batesville, Arkansas, to the care of Gov. Baxter.
Batesville, Ark., July 28, 1882.

MR. EDITOR: Information is wanted of my mother, her name is Matha Wilber. She has 8 children 4 boys and 4 girls boys names Frank, and Hilyard, and Hamp and Solomon. Girls names Barbara and Millie, and Rachel, and Mary Jane. When I knew of her she lived in S. W. Vicksburg, Miss. Any information as to her whereabouts will be thankfuly received. Please address me, care of Rev. Oscar Hoskins, Junction City Kansas.
MOLLIE DAVIS.

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my kinfolks. My father's name is Geo. Washington Chrisman, mothers name Judia Chrisman. There were seven sisters and seven brothers of us. One sister's name is Agnes Chrisman, and Mary Chrisman, who was the mother of two twin boys. And the name of one brother was Jordan Gillmore Chrisman, the last I saw or heard of them was in 1866. I belong to Mr. Geo. Chrisman, he lived in Williamson county, Tenn, on Ralfor Creek, eight miles from Spring Hill. I left with my brother-in-law, whose name was Riese Piller, his home was in Muray, county Tenn. I left him in Jefferson Barracks Missouri. At that time my name was Phillip Chrisman, now my name is George Earley, address me, care Rev. G. W. Smith, Galveston, Texas.
GEO. EARLEY,

Consumption no longer an incurable disease. Send to Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1100 Girard street, for their treatise on Compound Oxygen, and learn how this disease may be surely arrested and cured. It will be mailed free.

Little Colby was playing near the bee-hives one day, when suddenly his loud screams brought his mother to the door. "O, mamma," he cried, running to her, "the bees are tastin' of me"

Mr. J. M. Leach, an ex-Congressman, and heretofore a leading Democrat in North Carolina, has withdrawn from that party, will act with the Liberals. He assigns as a reason for the change the Bourbonism of the Democratic party, its encouragement of sectionalism and ill-feeling between the races.

"Fair Girl Graduates," whose sedentary lives increase those trouble peculiar to women, should use Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," which is an unfailing remedy. Sold by druggists.

The colored teachers of Louisville are hereafter to be paid the same as the white teachers, on the ground that they pass the same examinations and do the same work

Good health is maintained and nourished by proper attention to the requirements of the body, and the avoidances of excesses. It is wasted or destroyed by overtaxing with study, anxiety, evil habits, intemperance or vicious indulgences. Keep the body and brain well balanced by freely using that friend of temperance and good health, Brown's Iron Bitters; thus will you live to a good old age, free from all disease and suffering.

There are two classes of men in the clerical profession—there are the men who sustain the pulpit, and the men whom the pulpit sustains.—Dr. Austin Phelps.

Mr. B. F. Porter, a rich banker in Utica, N. Y., says: "I have used Brown's Iron Bitters the past year, much to the chagrin of our family physician, for neither myself, wife nor little girls have since suffered from a single day's illness. It is making us all robust and strong."

Having just returned from Washington, where we had the pleasure of discussing this matter to a considerable length, we find it to be the united intention of the Republicans in Congress to seat every man who is entitled to the seat by plurality of votes, whether they have been counted or not. Hence the count out process in the South will not be of any benefit to the ballot box stuffer, but will entail great risk of his spending the balance of his days in the penitentiary.—Arkansas Mansion.

Forty Year's Experience of an Old Nurse

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is the prescription of one of the best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and has been used for forty years with never failing success by millions of mothers for their children. It relieves the child from pain, cures dysentery and diarrhoea, griping in the bowels, and wind-colic. By giving health to the child it rests the mother. Price twenty-five cents a bottle. 20-1y

Since the failure to compromise the differences between the Regular and Independent Republicans in Pennsylvania, much campaign work has been done on both sides. It appears to be admitted that no further efforts at harmony will be made and that the battle will have to be fought out between the factions at the polls. The Democrats are also energetically pushing their canvass.

A LETTER FROM GERMANY.
SIEGEN, January 9, 1882.
Very esteemed sirs:
The praise your Liver Pills have called forth here is wonderful. After taking one and a half boxes of your genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, I have entirely recovered from my four years' suffering. All who know me wonder how I, who, for so many years, had no appetite and could not sleep for backache, stitch in my sides, and general stomach complaints, could have recovered.
An old lady in our city, who has suffered for many years from kidney disease, and the doctors had given her up, took two of your Pills and got more relief than she has from all the doctors. Yours truly,
J. VON DER BERG.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.
The genuine are never sugar-coated.
Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression: McLane's Liver Pill.
The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signature of C. McLane and Fleming Bros. on the wrappers.
Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently, but of same pronunciation.
If your storekeeper does not have the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, send us 25 cents, and we will send you a box by mail, and a set of our advertising cards.
FLEMING BROS., Pittsburgh, Pa.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC.
A combination of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark and Phosphorus in a palatable form. The only preparation of iron that will not blacken the teeth, so characteristic of other iron preparations.
GENTLEMEN: I have used DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Diseases, Dyspepsia, and an impoverished condition of the blood, this peerless remedy, has in my hands, made some wonderful cures. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians, have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC is a necessity in my practice.
DR. ROBERT SAMUELS.

Is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, with the iodide of potash and iron, all powerful blood-making, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and in every way the most effectual alterative medicine known or available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ringworm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility.
By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruptions which contaminate the blood, and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates and enlivens the vital functions. It promotes energy and strength. It restores and preserves health. It infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair, who will give AYER'S SARSAPARILLA a fair trial. Remember, the earlier the trial, the speedier the cure.
Its recipe has been furnished to physicians everywhere; and they, recognizing its superior qualities, administer it in their practice.
For nearly forty years AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has been widely used, and it now possesses the confidence of millions of people who have experienced benefits from its marvellous curative virtues.

The Father Waits for Thee!

FRANCES RIDLEY HAVERGAL.

Wanderer, from thy Father's home,
So full of sin, so far away,
Wilt thou any longer roam?
Oh, wilt thou not return to-day?
Wilt thou? Oh, He knows it all,
Thy Father sees, He meets thee here!
Wilt thou? Hear His tender call,
'Return, return!' while He is near.

He is here! His loving voice
Hath reached thee, though so far away!
He is waiting to rejoice,
O wandering one, o'er thee to-day.
Waiting, waiting to bestow
His perfect pardon, full and free;
Waiting, waiting till thou know
His wealth of love for thee, for thee.

Rise and go! Thy Father waits
To welcome and receive and bless;
Thou shalt tread His palace gates
In royal robe of righteousness.
Thine shall be His heart of love,
And thine His smile, and thine His home,
Thine His joy, all joys above—
O wandering child, no longer roam!

National Aid for Public Schools.

The National Educational Assembly that has just been held at Ocean Grove, New Jersey, Aug. 8th and 9th, under the conduct of Rev. Dr. J. C. Hartzell of Louisiana, was a meeting of much more than ordinary significance. The audiences were very large, and the majority of the States and territories were represented by prominent men, engaged in or deeply interested in the subject of popular education. A majority of the State superintendents of education in the country sent letters, as did many others. Nearly one hundred letters were received from men prominent in educational work in various parts of the country. The sentiment of all was that the education of the illiterate masses of America, is an immediate and imperative duty in which the national government should help.

The opening address of Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, on Friday morning, was a powerful argument to show that the nation is the only factor adequate to the work of educating the 6,000,000 of illiterates ten years of age and over in our midst. The family, the church, the state must do and are doing grandly, but still the work demanded is so great that the national government alone can meet the demand. The address gave the key note to the whole assembly.

At one session the subject of discussion was—"Our Illiterate Masses." Dr. [illegible], Washington, D. C., of the [illegible], presided, and addresses were made by Gen. Rusling, of New Jersey, Dr. L. R. Fisk, of Michigan, and Prof. Caldwell of Tennessee. Dr. Hartzell illustrated the location of the illiterate masses of the country by shaded maps as shown in the latest Census report. Three-fourths of the nation's illiterates are in the Southern States, where are only one-third of the nation's population. Fifteen hundred thousand of the two million illiterate voters of the country are in the same States. Thirty-two per cent of all the voters in the South cannot write.

At another session Capt. Pratt, of the Indian Training School, Carlisle, Pa., spoke of education among the Indians. He believed that the [illegible] [illegible] the rising youth of [illegible] to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] by Hon. H. M. [illegible] of the [illegible] [illegible] Rev. Dr. [illegible] [illegible] of the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] men in various parts of the South were given, all showing the great improvement in educational facilities in the South, and the vast amount of work yet to be done, and requiring national aid to do it. Dr. Haygood, of Georgia, was to have spoken for the South, but sickness in his family prevented his attendance. For the first time the work of the northern churches in the South since the war was brought out. Rev. Dr. M. E. Strieby of New York, represented the Congregational Church, Rev. Dr. J. M. Gregory of Illinois, the Baptist Church, Rev. Dr. R. H. Allen of Pennsylvania, the Presbyterians, and Rev. Dr. J. C. Hartzell of Louisiana, the Methodist Episcopal. The churches of the North have spent in the South more than $10,000,000 since the war. More than 15,000 students are in their Southern schools of higher grade. The Methodist Episcopal Church has developed a membership of over 400,000 in the South, fully half of which is among the white people of that region, and nearly half the 6000 Southern students of the same Church are white.

Bishop Simpson in his address said we must not only have schools for all, but we must have a law compelling all to attend. Rev. Dr. H. Butz, President of Drew Theological Seminary, discussed the true sphere of the church in education. Every truly scientific study must be encouraged, but the great truths of Christianity were fixed, and should permeate all education.

The closing session Wednesday night was given to the study of national measures now before Congress. Hon. H. W. Blair, U. S. Senator from New Hampshire, gave the principal address. The enthusiasm of the assembly continued to the end, the all absorbing sentiment being that the Church and the State and the National Government, each in its sphere must at once unite in immediate and adequate efforts for the education of all classes of the nation's illiterates in every section.

The sentiments of the assembly were formulated in a memorial to Congress.

Among the others who participated in the discussions were: Bishop Coxe, of New York; Mr. Crawford, State Superintendent of Tennessee; Rev. Dr. Stokes, of New Jersey; Hon. Barnard Peters, of Brooklyn; Prof. Darnell, of Florida; President Spence, of Tennessee; and U. S. Senator Sanders, of Nebraska. Among the many who wrote letters, were the Presidents of Harvard and Yale and Princeton; Rev. Drs. Payne and Walden, of Ohio; President Anderson, of Rochester, New York; Bishop Andrews, of Washington, Bishop Peck, of Syracuse; Bishop Wilson, of Baltimore; Hon. R. M. Lusher, of Louisiana; School Com. Orr, of Georgia; Rev. Dr. Curry, of Virginia; Frederick Douglass; Secretaries Frelinghuysen, Brewster, Folger, and Teller.

NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL COMMITTEE.

The chief practical result of the assembly was the organization of a National Educational Committee, to supplement the efforts already made to influence Congress, and to continue these efforts until that body passes a bill giving from the National Treasury, eight or ten million dollars annually, for a few years, to supplement the public schools of the various States and territories, the distribution to be made in proportion to the number of illiterates in each State as shown by the census of 1880.

The chairman of the committee is Bishop Simpson, of Philadelphia. The associate chairmen are the State and Territorial superintendents of education in the United States; and the secretaries are the official representatives of the various church societies engaged in educational work. The Executive Committee is as follows: President, Rev. Dr. Strieby, of New York; Treasurer, Hon. J. O. Wilson, of Washington; Secretary, Prof. C. C. Painter, of Tennessee; and Rev. Dr. Hartzell, of Louisiana, Rev. Dr. Allen, of Pennsylvania, Rev. Dr. Gregory, of Illinois, Rev. Dr. [illegible], of New York, Rev. Dr. Curry, of Virginia, Rev. Dr. Haygood, of Georgia, and others.

The Secretary of the committee will reside at Washington until the work of securing national aid is accomplished. The work of stimulating and directing public sentiment through the press, and by petition will be systematically inaugurated and carried forward in every section of the country.

Missionary Concert Notes, September, 1882.

Subject: Our Chinese Domestic Missions.

1. The Scriptures may be read in Isa. ix. The following hymns might be appropriately sung at different times, namely, 909, 922, 928, 929, 933.

2. Let the political aspects of the case be a subject of thought, with a view to cherishing a true spirit of Christian philanthropy toward the Chinese immigrants. A predominant desire to evangelize the world, and to reach most speedily and effectively the vast population of China, will lead us to welcome whatever is favorable toward such an end in the presence of this people among us. The Christian Church will not view the subject within the self-seeking conditions of political economy alone, but with a heartiness of Christian charity will hasten toward the openings of Providence for Mission work. It may be supposed, indeed, to have a noble predilection for those arguments which support the natural claim of the Chinese, even on economic grounds, to the privileges "of the most favored nations" in respect to journey, residence, and industrial occupation in the land which God has so highly favored with Gospel light. We do not here enlarge upon these arguments, but leave them to the candid judgment of all lovers of Christ's kingdom.

Among books as sources of information see "The Chinese in America," by Rev. O. Gibson, Cincinnati, Walden & Stowe, 1877; especially "Chinese Immigration in its Social and Economical Aspects," by George F. Seward, former United States Minister at Peking, New York, Charles Scribner, 1881; also "Our Relations with the Chinese Empire," by S. W. Williams, San Francisco, 1877; "Why should the Chinese Go?" by Kwang Chang Ling, San Francisco, 1878; "Report of the Joint Special Committee to investigate Chinese Immigration" [Congressional Document], Washington, 1877; "The Chinese Question," by Esther E. Baldwin, a pamphlet, Phillips and Hunt (10cents).

Among magazine articles, see especially in North American Review, July, 1882, "Mongolian Immigration," by George F. Seward, being the product of careful investigation, twenty years' experience in China, and an argument against the recent Anti-Chinese bill. 2. The recently-enacted Anti-Chinese law, which goes into effect the present month, is essentially the same as that vetoed by the President. It is contrary to the spirit of our latest treaty with China, and to the understanding of the Chinese statesman concerned in its formation. It erects an exceptional system of registration and passport for Chinamen residing here, and makes no provision for transit through the United States of Chinese who may desire to travel for observation and culture; and in these features, aside from its economic aspects, wears an air of surprising and un-American, not to say unchristian, narrowness. "A policy," says Mr. Seward, "which is at variance with all that has been best in our earlier intercourse with China." "Our friendliness has been heretofore appreciated by the Chinese, they have turned to us in all their difficulties with confident reliance upon our good disposition." Notwithstanding the new law, the very able Chinese Minister, Cheng Tsao Ju, comes to us with an open hand and especial admiration for Americans and America, of whose institutions he exhibits so remarkable a knowledge. We have already quoted from a high and impartial authority in reference to the political aspect of the subject, and will here give one other sentence from the same authority, which has a forcible bearing upon our general theme. "For earnestness of purpose and aspiration," says Mr. Seward, "the Chinaman who has become a proselyte to our religion, or has observed the progressive tendencies of our civilization, leaves nothing to be desired."

4. Let prayer be offered for our Government and people, and for the Christian Church in America, that a true principle of philanthropy and Gospel zeal may govern us in the treatment of this question of Chinese immigration; that whatever is unjust or unchristian in our laws on this subject may be repealed; that we may cherish an enlarged sentiment of human brotherhood, which embraces all nations; and particularly that the position of China in human history and at the present crisis, may impress upon our own people some due sense of the vast magnitude of spiritual interests involved in the present problem.

5. The condition and character of our Mission work for the Chinese in the United States should be directly studied. For this purpose we refer to the Annual Report for 1881, which contains a very full exhibit. See also the report for 1879. Our Missions found in California, Oregon, and New York, had in 1881 164 members and probationers, an increase of fifty. The number of day schools was 8, with 619 pupils. The elementary school work is an absolutely essential and important part of the operations in this Mission. Its successes and difficulties are noted in the Reports. The California Mission, under Dr. Gibson, our principal field of labor in behalf of the Chinese immigrants, having 111 out of the total of full Church members. The last report shows a policy of expansion, and there are now five stations. The work of the woman's society of the Pacific coast, presented in our Annual Report, is worthy of all sympathy and prayer. Of necessity, a special degree of interest attaches to the work in California, where the chief difficulties of the whole case arise, and where is, perhaps, the largest opportunity for an influence, through means of this work, upon China itself.

The Rev. A. J. Hanson, our missionary in Sacramento, furnished for 1881 as the total of Chinese Christians in California, 524

The work in Oregon, which is a growing one, is under the superintendency of T. B. Maxwell; that in New York City is conducted by Rev. James Jackson.

6. Let prayer be offered for all missionaries, ministers, teachers, and Bible women engaged in this difficult but most Christian work; that they may not be discouraged by obstacles, but that, while doing with their might what their hands so plainly "find to do," they may be confident of an abundant reward in the final issue of this great problem of the conversion to Christ of "all nations and kindreds and peoples and tongues," which is now pressing to its solution; prayer for our Churches in the different districts of the work, that may aid it with increased zeal and number of workers; prayer for the immigrants, these "strangers within our gates," that by an abundant gift of divine grace they may be speedily delivered from a "darkened understanding" and turned "from dumb idols to serve the living God," and especially that they may be made "strong in the grace of Jesus Christ" to carry the Gospel to their own land.

The next subject will be, "Our Scandinavian Domestic Missions."

Nine children of Col. Hamilton are now living—four sons and five daughters. The sons are Alexander Hamilton, of Tarrytown, N. Y; Gen Schuyler Hamilton, now living at Jamaica, L. I; Charles A. Hamilton, of Milwaukee, who is a Judge of the Supreme Court of Wisconsin; and William G. Hamilton, who is a civil engineer and Vice-President of the Mexican Telegraph Company. The daughters are Elizabeth, who was first married to Major-General Henry W. Halleck, and then, some time after his death, became the wife of Major-General George W. Cullum; Mary E., who was married a few years ago to ex Judge Charles A. Peabody; and Charlotte A., Adelaide, and Alice, who are unmarried. The wife of Colonel Hamilton died in 1872. Less than two years ago Colonel Hamilton presented to the city of New York the granite statue of his father, which now stands in Central Park. His funeral took place at Trinity Church, of which he had long been a prominent member.

Letter from Over the Sea.

The annual Methodist Conferences are all over, and at each an increase in the membership of the body reported by it was reported. The Primitive Methodists had an increase of over twenty thousand and the Wesleyans of over twelve thousand.

The Rev. Charles Garrett was elected President of the Wesleyan Conference by a considerable majority. He is an able minister and a life-long teetotaler. He is best known as a temperance advocate, and his record as such is a noble and successful one.

The Salvation Army is proceeding with its usual noise, parade and extravagant ostentation. Its members continue to increase, and its space in the public is enlarging Statesmen study it, and high ecclesiastical dignitaries appear disposed to treat it with kindness. Canon Farrar stated on a recent Sabbath afternoon, Westminster Abbey, that the Salvationists were not only shocking the Christian churches by their almost blasphemous travesty of the most sacred mysteries of the religion of Jesus, but taking a course which cannot but be attended with the most serious spiritual danger to their converts. The Canon did not speak without book; nor has he spoken an hour too soon. The Record recently reproduced one of the placards issued by the Salvation Army at Leeds, and anything more offensive or wicked it would be difficult to find. After the usual proclamation of "War, war!!" and an invitation to everybody to join in the fight against "Old Nick," the plan of attack is thus described:—"Monday, June 5, at 7.45—Salvation Charge. Tuesday—Great Exhibition of Hallelujah lasses! Wednesday—Fire and Brimstone. Thursday—Soldiers to deliver up their cartridges. Friday, at 7.30—Baptism of Fire. Saturday, at 7.45—Rejoicing over Victories Won all over the Shop Meetings. Sunday, June 11th, at 7 a. m.—Knee Drill—Ammunition supplied to Soldiers by Quarter-Master General; 11 a. m.—Descent of the Holy Ghost; 2.30 p. m—Tremendous Free and Easy; 6.30 p. m—Great Charge on the Devil; 9 p. m.—Hallelujah Galop." We owe an apology to our readers for reproducing this absurd, irreverent profane, and blasphemous placard Nor would we have done so, but that we have good reason to believe that throughout many towns and districts in Ireland there is on the part of many Christians not only a strong feeling of sympathy with the Salvationist move, but also a strong though somewhat suppressed feeling of indignation because other Christians will not run and shout and sing adown the streets as well.

Canon Farrar himself disclaimed, even as we do, any hostile feeling towards these rough evangelists, and reminded his audience that he joined in inviting Messrs. Moody and Sankey to London, as a proof that he was not animated by ecclesiastical prejudice when denouncing the extravagancies of the Salvation Army. But he could not approve of them, nor could he any longer keep silent when he found them petted on all sides by high and low, as if their plan of evangelization was one to be commended and defended. To us it does seem strange that any man acquainted with the teachings of Scripture and of the apostolic method of procedure could be found to countenance such a system of evangelization as that propounded in the placard already referred to. How hard-headed Christian men like Lord Cairns and the Archbishop of Canterbury can approve of such a warfare passes our comprehension. No doubt any plan that seems to reach the outlying masses, wallowing in the mire of their degradation, will commend itself to a certain class of earnest Christians. But we believe Lord Shaftesbury did not speak beside the truth when he said that "the excesses of the Army were producing great irreverence of thought, of expression and of action, turning religion into a play and making it grotesque." Their plan is certainly not the plan of the Master, nor of his inspired apostles, nor of the great Reformers. And surely our Divine Lord knew the right way of reaching the masses. But the past methods adopted for the world's conversion seem foolishness to the Salvationists. The fair face of Christianity is now presented to the populace, not in her simple loveliness and inherent purity and beauty, but bedizened and garnished with the gaudy tinsel of the lowest music halls, and her fair fame is shrouded in the wild and unseemly exhibition of "trophies," whose chief delight seems to be to tell how vile and wicked they once were, without giving us time to see where the change which they profess to have experienced has been sincere and true and real.

Canon Farrar deserves the thanks of all true Christians for his outspokenness, for his words of warning to the Salvationists, and to all whom it may concern, at the present crisis of sensational religion, of which indeed we have altogether too much just now, and the craving seems to increase in extent and furor. We are certainly no advocates of coldness in religious matters. But neither are we of those whose constant cry is lo! here, or lo! there. It argues badly for the harvest day when, instead of quiet, careful sowing of the seed in the budding spring time, the sower goes forth not weeping, but shouting—not ploughing his field, but blowing a trumpet; not covering the seed, but exposing the furrows to every passer-by. The kingdom of God cometh not by observation; and it they shall say lo! here, or lo! there, believe them not; go not after them. These are the words of the Divine Teacher, and they commend themselves to every candid mind. Let us hope that the "General" and his band may soon understand that faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God.

The Rev. J. C. Price, B. A., of North Carolina, has returned home carrying with him a valuable gift of nearly £2,000 sterling from England towards educating the colored people of the States. Mr. Price was everywhere received with cordiality and consideration, treated as a man and a brother, received at the home tables of English Christians of high social position, respectability, and culture, and in all things and every treated and trusted as if he had been one of themselves. He made a good impression wherever he preached or lectured, and has left behind him troops of friends who will cherish the kindest recollections of his visit, and gladly reckon him amongst their most valued friends.

An Appeal to Enterprising Colored Americans.

DEAR EDITOR: It is a long time since I said any thing to the people concerning Africa. I am not at all anxious to rush my sentiments before the public, but one of my golden rules is when the proper time comes to say any thing, say it; not wait till the season has passed. So the time has come. My sword is unsheathed, my scalping knife is in my belt, and I have dug up the hatchet, and I have taken up my line of march, and those that escape the tomahawk will catch the scalping knife. Again I essay to advocate the cause of the poor African. For Africa's sake, I can not hold my peace, and for conscience sake I can not rest. The cry of the Macedonians will not cease. What shall we do, brethren? I answer: Let's go over and help them. Let's go and possess the land as Caleb and Joshua did in the days of old. Brethren, did you hear the cry, can you turn a deaf ear to it, or will you gladly heed saying, here am I, send me, send me? Ever and anon we hear the cry, come over and help us. You may ask, help do what? Answer: Civilize, Christianize, and evangelize poor Africa. Come on brethren, God don't care in what part of the field you get the sheaves, so you are working for Him. I will say a few words to the clergy, those who stood up before bishops and elders and Almighty God, and publicly avowed they would carry the Gospel, God being their helper.

The Divine command says: Go ye into all the world and preach my Gospel to every creature. Again he says: Teach all nations and hark—Lo! I am with you til the world shall end. Brethren, is that good enough? Now, do you suppose God is going to be with you all that time, and see you struggling and laboring with the heathen, and crying to him for aid and he will not give it. No. He is too good for that. Try him once and prove it, and you'll find him the best friend you ever had. My dear friends, one and all, the time has come for prompt action on our part. Seventeen years' experience has taught us a good lesson. I think experience teaches a dear school, but fools will learn in no other. We have had our bitters and our sweets, our hard times and hard times; our good times are yet to come, if ever they do. Are there no missionary spirits among the colored Americans? Shall we keep our lighted tapers under a cover, and leave our talents buried in obscurity, or shall we as with one consent, go over and redeem that people in our God-given land. Brethren, don't wear yourselves out riding up and down the railroad, and having a good and easy time, but go into Africa and tell the heathen that Jesus died and rose again for their justification as well as ours. Keep your lamp trimmed and burning. Let me hear from some one soon.

Prosperity of the M. E. Church.

In taking a retrospective view of the status of our Church during its infancy, which seems but yesterday, it causes my heart to rejoice to see how far we have advanced in the glorious cause of our Redeemer. We have surmounted every difficulty that has overshadowed our way. Ours has been a steady onward march, intellectually, morally, religiously, and pecuniarily. Oppositions have fallen like broken arrows before us, but we have endeavored to see that of all not even a fragment be left to tell the tale. On entering the chapel during services one may readily perceive that the worshipers therein possess to a good extent refinement; and the manner in which the services are conducted and the sermons delivered speaks to the soul as if by magic, and says that we have for our leader one of the noblest sons of the M. E. Conference. His strict integrity and unswerving devotion to his Church, together with his Christian walk and godly conversations, have given him the first place in the hearts of us all. His exemplary life, even during these six months, has wrought a lasting impression for good in our midst. We feel that to attempt to render our beloved pastor due praise for the good he has done our people in elevating them to a higher plane of civilization, would be but a total failure. Therefore we leave it for history. He has labored diligently to embellish the circle of our home with kind words and Christian precepts, which we will ever hold as a memento of our leader. The community has been blessed in the selection of such a divine as Rev. B. F. Penny. Notwithstanding his size, which is comparatively small, we believe his heart to be large and overflowing with Christian love to take in all that is lovable, not only in Yazoo City, but wherever he may chance to be. He is now doing a good work outside of finishing the church; he is refitting the parsonage. A few days ago it had little or no furniture; but now its furniture is valued at the amount of forty dollars. We have all confidence in our pastor; not such as the old woman had in here when she said that "she could go to sleep whenever he began to preach, knowing that he would do all things right," but such as will make me be up and doing, ever ready and ever willing to assist him in any thing that he attempts to do, feeling certain that it is for our good.

Respectfully,

KATIE BOWMAN.

Yazoo City, Miss.

Hand shaking is a power. The politician employs it with effect to win votes. The Devil's recruiting officers make free and constant use of it. The church only is chary in its employment. In the heartiness of their greetings, the saloons try to make it appear that the churches are cold, and have no cordial welcome for those who drop in to their meetings. The result is that the saloons have gained, and the churches lost, many a promising, warm-hearted, socially inclined young man. A warm grasp of the hand might have retained them. The cordial feeling is in the churches. There is more real warmth in them than in the saloons, but the members have not been trained to show it. Let it be manifested. Organize a hand-shaking brigade, if necessary—of every member of the church. Stop after the prayer-meeting a little, for practice—don't shoot for the door as if you were glad to get out of such a place. But don't shake hands as a mere formality—put your heart into it.—Sunday-School Times.

Several weeks after it was generally known that he was the author of the infamous South Carolina gerrymander, the Democrats nominated Samuel Dibble for Congress. Lately denied a seat in Congress as a representative of a fraudulent election, his friends now propose to defy all sentiment in favor of common decency and fairness by again attempting his election to Congress. It is a Christian duty to vote down such candidates.

The necessity of a fractional currency as a circulating medium in this country is becoming daily more and more apparent. The withdrawal of the fractional currency, while it benefited the General Government in no respect, has proven to be one of the greatest misfortunes that could possibly have befallen small traders and retail dealers. The question of the resumption of the convenient old fractional currency should command the attention of and be agitated by every newspaper that values the public interest. Let us resume our fractional currency.

Color and Christ.

At the recent laying of the corner-stone of the new Methodist Episcopal Church in Chattanooga, Tenn., certain things occurred that deserve special notice. We are a member of the Masonic fraternity, a Royal-Arch Mason, and have great respect for the order. But as Masonry never pretends to be a Christian organization, we have never been able to see why the usual Masonic services should be performed, as in this instance, in laying the corner-stone of a building that is to be dedicated to the Lord Jesus Christ.

There was one unusual feature connected with these services. A representative of the Jewish nationality was present, and assisted in this act of Methodist worship. This was eminently Christian. Christ never established a church for herding English, Scotch, Germans, Irish, Italians, or Jews, by themselves, with walls so high that they could not see each other.

As usual on such occasions, a copy of all the papers published in the city were deposited in the stone save one, and that one was controlled and edited by a colored man. Why this one was left out we do not know; but was it because it was edited and controlled by a colored man? Then we call it a sin, a shame, a huge iniquity, an undeniable sign of complicity with the iniquitous sin of slavery.

One other feature is worthy of note. For while constitutional conventions disregard color, and Congress forbids its recognition, and in State and national political conventions it is disregarded, in fact, Republicans and Democrats are wonderfully pleased with colored delegates in their conventions, and never for a moment object to their votes, especially if they vote as their white brothers want to have them—here the white members of the Methodist Episcopal Church did, if not in words in effect, say: "Stand back," and rigidly excluded them from all part of this service. We are inclined to ask: What is the church of Christ? Is it not a Christian society whose work is to bring all redeemed souls into one fold? Or is there to be a separate Parish state for each nationality and race? One of the greatest shames of to-day is the attempt to shelter our prejudice under the prattle of social equality. Certainly, there can be no fraternity and unity without equality. We may not make every man our personal friend, but we must regard as our equals all who are in the Methodist Episcopal Church, or of any church of Christ. We must consider all who are in Christ as brethren and one with us.

"First count all men of equal cast,"
"Then count thyself as least and last."

We entreat our brethren to cast off these filthy rags of self-righteous caste, and put on the only Christ robe of brotherly love, and bring this iniquity of caste to an end.

The following gentlemen, friends of Africa, with the view of advocating the establishment of steam mail communication, to further trade relations between the west coast of Africa and the United States, and to do whatever else they may for the good and development of the Dark Continent, met at Rev. Dr. Thompson's residence, last week, and organized into a permanent committee; viz,: Rev. A. E. P. Albert, president; J. W. Pierce, vice-president; Rev. Dr. C. H. Thompson, secretary; Rev. T. G. Montgomery, treasurer; Rev. A. M. Green, Rev. Stephen Priestley, Rev. G. W. Walker, J. H. Coker, M. D., and Messrs. Henry Adams, James N. Bell, M. E. Brower, Edgar J. Davis, and Ed. Lind.

One of the rules on Mr. P. Berger's plantation is, that none of his hands shall live in a state of concubinage. This rule is strictly enforced. If Mr. Berger's example was followed by the planters of this State, it would go far toward improving the morals of the colored people.—Terrebonne Times.

To all of which we add a hearty Methodist Amen. But how is this? Are the colored people the only ones in Louisiana whose morals need improving in this respect? Are there not white men all over this State living in a state of concubinage or adultery with colored women? How else can we account for the bouquet appearance of all the colored congregations in the South? Evidently, for many years white men have been lovingly falling into the arms of their loved and loving colored sisters. We make no apology for the sin of concubinage or adultery. We wish that God [illegible] give us a shower of Bergers [illegible] the State. Then we should [illegible] hope of securing a legislature that would pass a law de- [illegible] the sins of [illegible] adultery, though [illegible] with some of the [illegible] of the State.

The Alabama Ku-Klux at Work.

On Tuesday 22, dispatches from Meridian, Miss., announced that a "horrible conspiracy" among the negroes of that section had been discovered near Butler, Choctaw county, Alabama. It was claimed that some white men riding on the road found some papers, which on examination proved to be the minutes of a negro organization, formed for brutal deeds of blood; also that a general assault on the whites was contemplated between Oct. 15 and 17, etc. The white people armed and organized themselves, seized a number of colored men, and lodged them in jail. Saturday morning, Bonner, charged with being secretary of the organization, was taken from the jail by the whites, interrogated, and he denied all knowledge of the conspiracy, and affirmed with Christian-like sincerity his innocence. He was hung up by the toes, while Rev. Limon was brought out to tell what he knew. He didn't know anything at first, but under the refreshing and persuasive influence of the lash, applied vigorously to his bared back, he remembered and told a great many things. He said that Jack Turner was the chief of the organization, and it was unanimously agreed among the whites that "Gen. Jack Turner ought to swing." So accordingly he was taken from the jail, and between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock in the broad open light of the day he was hanged to the limb of a tree on the main street of the town. Then it is added: "All is quiet now, and no further trouble is likely to occur."

The improbability of the existence of any such conspiracy as alleged is too great to allow the serious consideration of that fact for one moment. The manner and method adopted by the whites clearly indicates a revival of the familiar Ku-Klux method of breaking down any political union or organization among negro voters that may be dangerous to Bourbon supremacy in elections. The time and the locality also favor this view. The Klan operates this time in northwest Alabama, a section in which Indedendents and Republicans asserted themselves in the last State election, and carried several counties. We had hoped that these oft-repeated and devilish political methods had been abandoned; but the divisions among Republicans have doubtless created a Bourbon hope of carrying the Congressional elections in November next, and the infamous deeds in northwest Alabama are the initial proceedings of the campaign.

The Mobile Gazette of last Saturday has the following:

JACK TURNER.

The name of this man, a colored Republican of Choctaw county, one of the five counties in Alabama, that gave a majority against the Democrats at the late election, struck such terror into the hearts of the cowardly Democrats of that county that they devised a scheme by which certain manuscript should be found purporting to be a record of the meetings of a colored organization, at the head of which he was.

They arrested him and six other colored men, tortured one of them by the lash, till he confessed that he wrote the manuscript, then read it before an assembled multitude of 700 people at the court house, all but 200 of whom voted that Jack Turner should be taken out of jail and hung.

This was put in execution, and Jack Turner is now a martyr, whose name will be the rallying cry of Republicans all over the north and west. The cowardly act of the Choctaw Democrats will not only unite the Republicans of other states, but will unite the opposition to Democracy in the first congressional district of Alabama, who will have but one candidate in the field, and he will be elected.

Of all the outrages that have ever been perpetrated in the name of Democracy in any southern state, the hanging of Jack Turner, at Butler, Choctaw county, on the 15th instant takes the lead.

Its condemnation will be universal. With a refinement of cruelty only practiced by ignorant, brutal and cowardly men, one of Jack Turner's fellow prisoners was lashed till he confessed what he was not guilty of, and they hung up another by the big toe and tortured him, but even, then in the language of Horn, of the Meridian Mercury, he would not "squeal."

The New York Herald, commenting on this affair says:

Edgefield eclipsed. Edgefield, South Carolina has hitherto enjoyed the reputation of being the "scarest" county in the whole south, on the subject of security of whites against blacks. Henceforth Choctaw county, Alabama, is entitled to the palm. The population of Choctaw county by the census of 1880 consists of whites and blacks in nearly equal numbers, 7,387 of the one, and only 8,344 of the others, including Indians and half breeds. But according to the astonishing story reported in the press dispatches this morning, these 7,387 whites have barely escaped total extermination by their black neighbors. The general massacre, however, has been providentially averted by the finding of "a bundle of papers" by "two gentlemen" and by the lawless lynching of an unfortunate negro named Jack Turner. The 7,387 white inhabitants of Choctaw county make too large demand upon the credulity of the people of the United States in this story.

Kenner.

Kenner is a city of perhaps 1200 inhabitants, about ten miles above New Orleans, lying on the Mississippi and the line of the Jackson Railroad, two grand thoroughfares of the South, one made by God, the other by man. With us God's works always have the preference. The city is nicely situated for pleasant homes, and good farms. It has numerous stores, four Baptist and one Roman Catholic church, and sadly needs a live Methodist Episcopal church. And if men do their duty, and the Lord has his way, this will be accomplished in the near future. But when we remember that men sometimes decline to do their duty, and that in many things the Lord does not have his way in this world, a little doubt is injected into the mind. Nevertheless, we predict that ere long the Methodist Episcopal Church will have a suitable place for religious worship and Christian education in the city of Kenner. Rev. G. T. Jameson, M. D., superintendent of the Baptist Home missions of Jefferson parish, was our companion, and did all that a Christian brother could do to make our visit and stay in the city pleasant. He provided for us a delightful home with Mrs. Long, and we do not know when we have been more pleasantly entertained or hospitably provided for. In company with Bro. Jameson we called upon Hon. J. C. Boreman, mayor of the city, notary public, and judge of the second district of Jefferson parish. We found Mayor Boreman a man of fine mental caliber, with a mind well cultivated by study and close observation, a splendid talker, from whom one can gather a fund of information on most any topic. He is evidently a man of grit; grace will make him an eminent Christian. Notwithstanding the rain and mud, a good congregation gathered at one of the Baptist churches to hear the stranger. Bro. Jameson introduced and indorsed us. We would not be fulsome, but we would love to be just. This man has the firmness of a rock, the boldness of a lion, with the gentleness of a child. He is a good Baptist, but a better Christian. May God abundantly bless him in his self-sacrificing work. After the preaching and collection were out of the way, we presented the SOUTHWESTERN, and six of these Baptist brethren cheerfully subscribed. We hope that its weekly visits will be pleasant and profitable. At Kenner we think that there is an open door for the Methodist Episcopal Church. The people need preaching, not nonsensical sky-rocketing. They want soul food, something that will give mental and spiritual strength. We wish that we could mention all the pleasant things we saw and heard at Kenner, but cannot. We hope to visit the place again.

What Are We Coming To?

We see it announced that Rev. C. B. Galloway, the newly elected editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, M. E. Church South, and Rev. D. A. Williams, a brother in black, presiding elder in the Methodist Episcopal Church and member of the Mississippi Annual Conference, are associated as editors of The People's Adviser, a monthly periodical devoted to the various phases of the temperance question. We hardly know who to congratulate, our "Brother in White" or our "Brother in Black." Certainly tremendous moral forces are at work all over the South, making sure if not rapid headway, and if matters go as they are now moving, ere long the stain and blotch of other days will be wiped away. Then all hearts and races shall flow together, and the day of the Lord, King of nations and of saints, gloriously dawn. Already we hear the new song, the prelude of the last grand chorus; the telescope is pitched right. Benedictions upon The Peoples' Adviser and its editors. "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

The St. Louis Advocate, M. E. Church South, has evidently a very tender regard for the liquor dealers of Missouri. Of course, it favors prohibition, but would not take snap judgment on the men engaged in the traffic. It says: "We would however, act fairly, and not have a prohibitory law to take effect immediately upon its adoption, but give the people time, at least a year, to adjust themselves to the changed condition of things, and either wind up their business entirely or remove elsewhere to carry it on."

Certainly this is generous toward the men engaged in the monstrous iniquity. All that they want is time—to be let alone. In fact, this is all that sin ever wants. This is all that the thief, the robber, or the assassin asks—time. The Advocate proposes to give the liquor sellers "at least a year," in which to prosecute their work of turning health into disease, decency into rags, beauty into loathsomeness, and the image of God into something baser than the brute. During that year 60,000 persons will go down to a drunkard's grave and into a drunkard's eternity, and 60,000 more will begin to tipple, and from tippling they will go to guzzling, and 999 out of every 1000 on through into hell! There are no sinners on the face of the earth so unlikely to be savingly affected by the influences of the gospel as are the habitual drunkards. No, no! One year is 365 days too long to caress and pamper this terrible monster!

Give the Names.

The Baton Rouge Truth, of Aug. 19, says editorially:

The New-Orleans City Item, in speaking of our State Legislature, says: "Members who had purchased their election sold their votes to reimburse themselves, and were seen in flocks shortly after the adjournment in front of well-known business offices waiting for their pay like a lot of railroad construction hands." This is either true or not true. If true, it is unquestionably the duty of the City Item to give the public the names of these leprous members, and we now make a formal demand upon it for the names. Give us the names, by all means, and so enable us to have them properly punished—or, in default of the names, then stand convicted of unjustifiable libel, Mr. City Item. No journal of the prominence of the City Item should make such serious, wholesale charges unless ready and willing to offer proofs and give names whenever called upon for them.

The Truth is right in calling for the names. Until it gives them the City Item will conceal from the public facts essential to the punishment of the corrupt legislators, and makes it possible for slanderous tongues to confound the innocent with the guilty.

The National Prohibition Convention in session in Chicago was largely attended, and nearly every State and Territory was represented. This body of fanatics, as the radical exponents of every good but unpopular cause have ever been ridiculously termed, are gradually stamping the impression of their influence upon both of the great parties, and securing solid and permanent results for temperance, prohibition, and their consequent blessings in nearly every State of the Union. The convention, before adjourning, adopted a platform demanding prohibition of the importation or manufacture of and sale and taxation of alcoholic beverages; favoring enfranchisement of women; abolition of polygamy; abolition of executive, legislative, and judicial patronage, and of unnecessary offices; universal and enforced education; the preservation of public lands as homes for the people; and State control of railroad and other corporations.

A convention of colored men assembled at Jefferson, Mo., last week and adopted a long series of resolutions, announcing as the new Monroe doctrine of the era of emancipation, that the negro voter shall not henceforth consider himself a subject for colonization and appropriation by any political party, but that the individual right to think, speak, and act for himself shall be untrammeled by party chains. These are happy indications for the future of the race, for one of the greatest blessings to a free people is independent thought, speech, and action.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Bishop Foster, is to visit our work in Europe and Asia.

—Francis Murphy is teaching temperance in Scotland.

—Herbert Spencer, of England, arrived in New York last week, on a visit to this country.

—Bishop Campbell, of the African M. E. Church, has given a thousand dollars to Wilberforce University.

—Mr. Edward Pionsky, a prominent merchant, and mayor of the town of Washington, died at his home on the 25th inst.

—Rev. Hugh Miller Thompson, D. D., is summering among the hills of North Carolina, where he will remain until September 1.

—Mr. J. T. Harahan, the popular superintendent of the Louisville and Nashville Road, has returned, after an extensive tour in the North and East.

—The Kansas Greenbackers have nominated Allen Williams, a colored man, for Congressman at large. Another sign that the world moves, and that the race is rising.

—Rev. Dr. J. R. Nall, the popular pastor of the Prytania Street Presbyterian Church, is taking a month's recreation, and is visiting Columbus, Ga., his former residence.

—Bishop Wilson is now in New York undergoing surgical treatment for a painful local trouble. He has suffered greatly, and been compelled to intermit his heavy labors.

—Rev. R. E. McBride, M. A., of Seneca, Kansas, has been elected principal of Western Reserve Seminary, located at West Farmington, Ohio. He has accepted the position, and will enter upon his work immediately.

—Hon. G. W. Hudspath, district judge, a resident of the parish of St. Landry is recommended for appointment as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Wm. M. Levy.

—The bond of Andrew W. Smythe as superintendent of the United States Mint at New Orleans has been approved by the acting Secretary of the Treasury, and he entered upon the duties of his office on Monday 21st instant.

—The death of Charles A. Vogeler, of the firm of A. Vogeler & Co., Baltimore, Md., occurred recently. The business of the house will be continued as heretofore, and profound gratitude is tendered for expressions of sympathy in behalf of the family of the deceased.

—A dispatch from Holly Springs, Miss., announces that Hannibal C. Carter has entered the field as a straightout Republican candidate for Congress for the Second District, as against Chalmers. Carter is a colored man of education, was Secretary of State, appointed under Gov. Powers, and has been a member of the Mississippi Legislature.

—Among the vigorous advocates of Constitutional Prohibition in Iowa stands Col Duncan, of Charles City. He is a Cherokee Indian a graduate of Dartmouth College and an able lawyer. He is a loyal and helpful friend to the Indians, and has great influence among them. Mrs. Duncan is an accomplished lady and edits a W. C. T. U. column in the Charles City paper.

—Rev. G. T. Jameson, M. D., general superintendent of Jefferson Parish Home Missionary Society of the Baptist Church, gave us a call last week. Bro. Jameson is from Indiana, has been engaged in missionary work among the Baptists for nearly fourteen years. He has the appearance of an earnest, unselfish, Christian worker. We certainly wish him, as we do all others engaged in similar work, the largest measure of success.

—In the death of Prof. William Stanley Jevons, who was recently drowned while bathing at Bexhill, England, the world loses one of its most promising scientific and philosophical thinkers. Although of middle age, Dr. Jevons had held important philosophical chairs in Owens College, Manchester, and University College, London, while his works on the "Principles of Science" and the "Theory of Political Economy," as well as his scholarly introductions to the study of logic and philosophy, had made his name known in all institutions for higher education in Europe and America.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

J. W. Richardson, Centerville: "We have had quite a wet time of it for a month and a half, but but church seems to be in good spirit. The Sunday-school is in a pleasant condition. The superintendent is Wm. Osborn. There is a Bible class of 22, Mr. Frank Henderson teacher.

A. Spears, Campte: "I was sick and could not get to my work until April last. Have had 79 converts, one received by letter, ten from the Baptist church, 49 backsliders reclaimed. Have bought a lot on which to build a church, and expect some aid from the Church Extension Society. In a large section here there are many colored people who belong to no church."

TEXAS.

S. C. Coleman, Waelder: "Our pastor has made many converts this year."

Robt. Weaver, Fairfield: "My church work is doing very well, but the country is yet poor. All are suffering for want of money, and I can barely live. With good crops we expect to come out of debt this fall. Have had this year 43 converts."

E. J. Green, Midway: "The Sabbath-school is progressing finely. Misses Emeline and Priscilla Green, Adel Malone, Mr. Willie Tardow and Calvin Malone, on the fourth Sunday distinguished themselves in recitation of verses. We had a large congregation and enjoyed the day. A new church has just been completed."

H. Swann, Calvert: "I have closed a protracted meeting, which resulted in 80 conversions, and including backsliders reclaimed and members from other churches 92 were added to the church. Our church, I am glad to say, is moving onward. We are paying off debts, and intend to raise every dollar of the one hundred pledged by us for the West Texas Conference Seminary. In our meeting we had with us Rev. A. R. Norris, A. Foster, A. Jackson, and J. W. Robinson, whose sermons were as bread cast upon the waters. We are doing all we can for the cause of Christ in Calvert."

J. T. Gibbons, Riddleville: "Our third conference was held by Bro. W. H. Moseby. Our beautiful church is complete, except ceiling and painting. For neatness it can not be excelled in West Texas Conference. It is built of the very best material, dimensions 24x40, and weather-boarded. I invite my ministerial brethren to assist in a protracted meeting, beginning Sept. 10."

MISSISSIPPI.

C. Vaughn, Yazoo circuit: "Our second quarter, with the presence of Elder G. W. Barney, was an enjoyable occasion. A protracted meeting resulted in good. We have secured one acre of ground for church property."

Wm. Dorsey, Meadville: "My protracted meeting resulted in 5 additions, and 15 on probation. Sunday-school is in good condition; on Children's day the collection was $2 05 We have improved the church."

James Trice, Pontotoc: "We are trying to ceil our church, and have 3000 feet of lumber at hand. Our young people were good enough to help. C. H. Montgomery paid $2 25, C. H. Parish $2 50, S. H. Bradford 25 cents, Wm. Hereford 25 cents, Judge Bradford 25 cents, D. Gilmer 25 cents Miss Caroline Wilson 25 cents, Amanda Dozier 25 cents, Cora Doggett 25 cents, Maria Barr 25 cents, Annie Trice 25 cents. At third quarter 108 communed at Lord's Supper."

D. D. Goodwin, Canton: "Our church is getting on very well. Ten have been received, and 8 children baptized. Elder Williams held our third quarter. Collection $82. Sabbath-school, with Rev. B. F. Garret as superintendent is advancing. On children's day it raised $5. The church was delighted with the visit of Mrs. M. V. Keever, who lectured in the interest of Meridian Academy at Asbury Chapel. We are trying to get up a camp meeting for September if possible."

TENNESSEE.

J. B. Marbrey, Brownsville: "We have closed a two weeks' meeting with 12 converts. The circuit is revived. Last Saturday night a supper was given at Key chapel by sisters Cora Estes and Cornell, to raise money for pastors' salary. They realized $18 90. Our people are doing all they can."

J. B. Bradford, Pardy: "My third quarter is over and it was a good one. Elder J. P. Price revived the church very much by his presence. Quite a number were at the communion table and partook of the Lord's Supper, both Methodists and Baptists, and several were at the altar for prayer, and 3 joined the church. The meeting continued a few nights and resulted in 4 converts. The collection for presiding elder was $4 50, for missions $5, church extension $1 50, and something on other claims also. On Sunday the elder preached. Quite a number were present, both white and colored, and seemed to take great interest in listening to the elder's sermon. After services both white and colored enjoyed themselves together at dinner on the grounds at the same table and at the same time. Here is a work for us to do."

A. J. Phillips, Murfreesboro: "Doctor Braden, President of the Central Tennessee College, was with us at Spencer's chapel the first Sunday in August, and preached a grand missionary sermon, after which a missionary collection was taken, and the collection was $5 15. And he also lectured the Sabbath-school. The Doctor's sermon's and lectures edified the people. Dr. Braden has been teaching and preaching and lecturing among our people about 15 years, and we are glad to have him with us because we love his counsels. We have been carrying on a protracted meeting at Lawrence's chapel. We have had 15 converts; and at Spencer's chapel, two miles from Murfreesboro, we are having a good meeting, which commenced the second Sunday in August, the 12. We have had four converts and sixteen seekers at the altar, and we are hoping that all of them, and more, will come in and join the army of the Lord, because we need them in the field. We desire the prayers of the Church."

ARKANSAS.

A. E. Carr, Newport: "We had no church when I came here, but now we have one, and there will be preaching in it next Sunday. Times are very hard."

J. Clark, Hot Springs: "Our district conference met here on the 2d, with nearly all stations represented. Regular sessions were held from Wednesday morning until Saturday evening, when a Sunday-school convention was organized. Important questions were presented and discussed. It was resolved to work up the Sunday-school interests, and to hold a convention in connection with each district conference. At love feast Sunday morning the house was crowded, a goodly number from other churches being present. Our people were awakened, and up to this time there have been five or six converts. Bro. Boone remained until the 10th, and Bro. Lockman is still here trying to persuade sinners to come to Christ."

Second Round—Shreveport District.

MR. EDITOR—I left New Orleans June 15th. I met Bro. H. Wallace at his post hard at work in the Master's cause. He had twenty converts. Sunday-school is doing well, and the church is prospering at Cotile.

Bro. T. Jackson has aroused Natchitoches. He had forty converts and was getting on well.

At St. James, Shreveport, God has wonderfully blessed the church. It was blown down by the storm but the people labored hard, raised $400, and the Church Extension Society gave $250. This donation reached Shreveport the very day we had to meet the lumber bill. The building is almost completed, and a revival has been going on for two weeks. Sixteen converts, ten reclaimed. Class reports: No 1, $5 70; No 2, $3 15; 3, $2; 4, $5 10; 5, $3 25; 6, 75 cents; 7, $4 74; 8, $3 40.

At Mansfield Bro. Johnson, a young man who came into the Conference this year has been blessed with thirty-five converts. He has fine people on his charge.

Bro. A. J. Pickett is doing good work at Pleasant Hill. He has built a neat little church and will complete it without debt, the Church Extension Society aiding him with a hundred dollars. God help all to build frame churches and get out of log huts.

At St. Paul, Shreveport, Bro. Thompson had been very sick, but the Lord is blessing his labors. He has a fine Sunday-school, and first-class people. We organized a Woman's Home Missionary Society and it is doing well. The classes report: No. 1, $10 60; 2, $8 60; 3, $11 30; 4, $11 90; 5, $14 15; 6, $6 30; 7, $13 30; 8, $6 50. The church is doing well.

At Fairfield Bro. T. Harvey is getting things in order. He has had forty converts this year.

Bro. Fopps, at his new work, had nine converts and ten on probation. The work is growing. Some of our members own fine land, and have farms of 1300 acres and under.

At Red Springs Circuit, a poor charge, the pastor was not present. I saw his death reported in the ADVOCATE. Bro. Brooks was a Christian gentleman, a true minister of the gospel. He was a patron of young men, and missed no appointment given him by a Bishop, even if he had to walk there. The old fathers of the church are dropping one by one. May the Lord help us young men.

STEPHEN DUNCAN.

The Baton Rouge District Conference.

The Baton Rouge District Conference convened for its session of 1882 in the Methodist Episcopal Church, at Clinton, La., Aug. 10th. The opening sermon was preached by Rev. H. James. Presiding Elder P. Landry took the chair on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. The Secretary of the last Conference called the roll and 39 members responded. Jas. W. Hudson was elected Secretary, John Qualls and R. T. Louis, assistants. The general business of the Conference was begun, and, subject to the order of Conference, the chairman appointed the various committees of examination, etc. The question involving the passing of characters of local preachers was free from complaints, showing a general co operation with pastors and union of effort on part of the local ministry with the pastors. We hail with gladness the fact that brethren are gaining more of the spirit of Christ, so that the cause prospers and the well-begun work goes on. The report of the Presiding Elder was full, clear and inspiring. He has done a great deal of traveling, and there is no place on the District to which he has not gone; his report shows the district in excellent condition.

The reports from pastors were very good, and some were highly animating, accessions not a few, and in some charges happy conversions. The pastors are full of zeal and energy, and are determined to make this year's work better than all the preceding ones. The benevciences are receiving attention, and in some instances large sums have already been collected, and there will be an apparent increase from this district at the annual conference.

The reports of Sunday-school superintendents were favorable and show in some instances marked improvements in the district.

Each day the programme of literary exercises was taken up until all to whom subjects were assigned had spoken.

Clinton is a small town on the railroad running west from Port Hudson. It is quite a pretty little place and contains a people generous and hospitable. All fared well who attended the conference. Bro. Forrest, the pastor, and his members will not soon be forgotten by us. May God bless them in their hearts and homes. The Sunday services were largely attended, there being not less than 1500 persons on the ground.

THE SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE.

Whereas, our Church provides a general literature for its members, as periodicals, papers, etc., and

Whereas, the General Conference has seen fit to leave the SOUTHWESTERN in the centre of our Conference for our enlightenment and elevation in regard to Church polity and doctrines; and,

Whereas, it is ably edited by Rev. L. P. Cushman and Rev. A. E. P. Albert, assistant editor,

Be it resolved, that we pledge ourselves to stand by the paper, and to make every effort that its circulation be such as to make it self-supporting.

HAVEN UNIVERSITY.

Whereas, education is one of the great needs of our people, both in the pulpit and in social life, and

Whereas, there is provided an institution of learning, the Haven University, for the benefit of the Louisiana Conference and others,

Be it resolved, that we shall put forth every endeavor to make it an institution second to none under the jurisdiction of the Freedmen's Aid Society.

A Note From Allen.

MR. EDITOR—The school board of Natchitoches parish is doing a good work, without respect of color, towards public education. They give public schools for a term of three months, and at convenient points. There should be enough money to provide for terms of six months at least and to pay salaries of forty and fifty dollars to teachers. Taxation seems heavy. Why not educate our children—seventy per cent of whom can neither spell nor write.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

THIRD QUARTER. LESSON X. Sept. 3.

LOVE TO GOD AND MAN. (Mark xii, 28—44.)

A man once came to Jesus and asked him which was the first or greatest commandment. Jesus said the first was to love God. He made it plain, and told how we must love God. He said, "With all thy heart, with all thy mind, and with all thy strength." You know what that means—love God all you can. If you do this you can't break any of the first four commandments. Then Jesus said the second law was to love thy neighbor as thyself. Neighbor means every one. Just let this love in, and you will be sure to honor your parents by being good and true boys and girls. All the six laws hang on our one little one.

Now you have the two laws, you know them, and Jesus said one who knew all the laws was on the road toward heaven. Now, if you know them then you are ready to start. Ask Jesus to help you obey these laws, and then you are one of his children. Knowing the law and keeping it makes heaven sure for every little or big follower.—Mrs. De Witt.

From Our Mission Rooms.

A short time ago, there was sent from our mission rooms to each pastor in the United States a letter from Rev. GENERAL NEWS ITEMS.

Russia is concentrating a large army in the Caucasus.

Skirmishes between Peruvians and the Chilian troops continue.

Gen. Wolseley intends to push on into the interior of Egypt at once.

The Porte refuses to permit exportation from Turkey of mules for the British service in Egypt.

Hon. T. C. Anderson is an independent candidate for Congress in the Sixth district of Louisiana.

Democrats of Sixth Mississippi district nominated H. S. Van Eaton for Congress, on the 125th ballot.

Secretary Lincoln has given orders to the engineers to proceed at once with the survey of the Hennepin Canal.

The Irish Presbyterian Church in its general assembly has decided by a vote of 369 to 345 against instrumental music in worship.

Gov. Lowry, of Mississippi, has issued a proclamation appointing the fourteenth day of September as a day of thanksgiving and prayer.

Nurses for the yellow-fever patients at Brownsville, Texas, are hard to get. There continues to develop as many as sixty odd new cases daily.

Gov. McEnery sent State Engineer H. B. Richardson to New York to represent the claims of Louisiana before the Mississippi-River Commission.

Judge Michael Hahn decided against the town of Kenner, and granting right of way to the Mississippi Valley Railroad according to the plan of the original survey.

Col. Thomas H. Herndon has been renominated for Congress by Democrats of the First Alabama district; Horatio Bisbee, by Republicans of the Second Florida district.

The dissensions between Republicans in the Third Congressional District resulted in the nomination of two candidates for Congress—Senator Kellogg and Judge Taylor Beattie. Congressman Darrall participated in the convention which nominated Judge Beattie.

The British expedition sailed from Alexandria under sealed orders. It was expected an assault would be made on the Aboukir forts, but, instead, Port Said and Ismailia were occupied on the 20th, and some forty transports began the landing of troops under command of Gen. Wolseley. The Suez Canal was closed to all except British vessels of war.

There is a fault somewhere, and the people of Louisiana are anxious to know upon whose shoulders the responsibility should rest. The action of the Mississippi River Commission in distributing the appropriation for river improvements is grossly unjust, and the efforts of our representatives toward passing the bill are likely to prove of no benefit to this State.—N. O. Price Current.

The Texas Republican State Convention effected permanent organization by the election of J. N. Tracey as chairman, and C. M. Campbell secretary. A platform was adopted pledging the support of the party at the approaching election to the candidates who come before the people purely as independents who agree to support a liberal and generous policy, embracing free school education 10 months in the year, a free ballot and a fair count, revision of the jury laws so that jurors shall be drawn impartially, the sale of school lands to actual settlers only, and in parcels not exceeding 640 acres, and provisions for working convicts within walls. Resolutions were adopted expressing confidence in ex-Gov. J. E. Davis, indorsing the administration of President Arthur and the platform adopted by the National Convention.

Wonderful Improvement.

"I had been sick with a cold and the worst cough I ever had in my life for about five weeks. Expectorated every morning a tough, yellow matter, streaked with blood, in about three days after I commenced inhaling Compound Oxygen, the cough, raising of bloody matter, and that awfully distressed feeling, as if a cord was drawn across my chest and a weight put on, were all gone. The rapidity with which I have improved in breathing is wonderful." If you wish to know all about this curative agent of which our correspondent writes, send for our Treatise on Compound Oxygen. It will be mailed free. Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard St., Philadelphia, Pa.

NEW BOOKS.

ORIENTAL RELIGIONS. By President John Caird, University of Glasgow, and other Authors. Price 15 cents. J. Fitzgerald & Co., publishers, 30 Lafayette Place, New York.

In the neatly printed work named above, No. 35 of the "Humboldt Library of Science," a series of profound and learned studies upon four of the great historical religions of the world, namely Brahmanism, Buddhism, Confucianism and Zoroastrianism, or the religion of ancient Persia. These essays are written from a distinctively Christian point of view, yet everywhere the authors' purpose to do full justice to whatever is good and true in these ancient religious systems is manifest. There is not a more interesting object of study than that of the Faiths of Mankind. For sale by George Ellis, New Orleans.

CHRISTIAN GROWTH. By O. P. Fitzgerald, D. D. Nashville, Tenn.: Southern Methodist Publishing House.

This little book of 120 pages is the production of the vigorous pen of Dr. Fitzgerald. It is the experience, study, observation of years concentrated upon a few pages tersely expressed, glowing with a heart full of love to God and man. We have read few more spiritual books, or any book with much more religious profit. It will quicken the dullest mind, and awaken in every reader's heart earnest longing for the full baptism of the Holy Spirit. There is no doubt about this book. It will do good. We wish that it could be put into the hands of every American Christian. Send 50 cents to the Southern Methodist Publishing House, Nashville, Tenn., and get this book and read it, and it will help you through the journey of life.

"Sweet Spices," J. C. Beckel, is a new singing book for Sabbath-schools, published by Lee & Walker, 1113 Chestnut st. Philadelphia. Thirty-nine songs. Price 15c.

A prize fight between two cadets, others acting as referees, seconds, etc., is the latest item of news from the United States military school at West Point. One cadet was terribly beaten by the other and now is in the hospital. Instant expulsion is likely to be the fate of all concerned, and probably ought to be. This, it should be remembered, is the institution the pupils of which are too high-toned to tolerate a colored boy among them!—Congregationalist.

Solid Comfort.

Nobody enjoys the nicest surroundings if in bad health. There are miserable people about to-day to whom a bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic would bring more solid comfort than all the medicine they have ever tried.—News.

Yellow fever at Brownsville, and Matamoras is spreding.

Overworked men and women, persons of sedentary habits, and others whose system needs recuperation, nerves toned and muscles strengthened, should use Browns Iron Bitters.

$1500 a year can be easily made at home working for E. G. Rideout & Co., 10 Barclay Street, New York. Send for their catalogue and full particulars.

The Chiming of the Bells.

A magnificent chime of nine bells was a few days ago tested in the presence of a select company of gentlemen, at Messrs. Henry McShane and Co's famous bell foundry, Baltimore. This chime has been made for Christ Church, Portsmouth, N. H. The bells separately weigh from 380 to 3,000 pounds, the total weight being about 14,000 pounds. The test was made by Prof. Wm. Brown, of St. Stephen's Church, Philadelphia, and Prof. D. B. Macomb, of the church for which Messrs. McShane & Co. have made these bells. "Home, Sweet Home," "Yankee Doodle," "The Last Rose of Summer," and a variety of other favorite airs, both religious and secular, were chimed upon the bells, with such a pleasing effect that the two professors drew up a certificate setting forth their great satisfaction with the way in which the chime has been completed. The clergy of St. Michael's Church Baltimore, were present, their special interest being in the fact that their church is soon to have a chime of bells from the same foundry. They expressed their great delight at the performance of the bells. The superior character of the chimes made by Messrs. McShane & Co., has brought the house many orders, and created a demand for bells which necessitates a large increase in the size and capacity of the foundry. A peal of three bells weighing 4,000 pounds, was a few days ago shipped to Canada; and a large order has just been executed for a prominent Chicago church.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Sick Headache. For the relief and cure of the distressing affliction take Simmons Liver Regulator.

Malaria. Persons may avoid all attacks by occasionally taking a dose of Simmons Liver Regulator to keep the liver in healthy action.

Constipation should not be regarded as a trifling ailment. Nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels Therefore assist Nature by taking Simmons Liver Regulator, it is so mild and effectual.

Biliousness. One or two tablespoonfuls will relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state, such as Nausea, Dizziness, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, a bitter, bad taste in the month.

Dyspepsia. The Regulator will positively cure this terrible disease. We assert emphatically what we know to be true.

Colic. Children suffering with colic soon experience relief when Simmons Liver Regulator is administered.

Buy only the genuine, in white wrapper, with red "Z." Prepared by J. H. ZEILIN & CO. Sold by All Druggists.

MARRIAGES.

By Rev. G. W. Baber, Lockesburgh, Ark., July 23, Mr. Jerry Gill to Miss Nancy Dickson.

At Centerville, La., August 10, by Rev. J. W. Richardson, Mr. Charley Gills to Mrs. Hannah Lee. August 18, Mr. William Gills to Miss Martha Alman.

Near Perryville, Tenn., August 16, by Rev. J. L. Massey, Mr. Andrew Ingraham to Miss Millie McDonald. Both joined the church this year. May the Lord bless the couple with a happy life.

DEATHS.

Sister Virginia Hildred died at Columbia, Texas, leaving a husband and son to mourn her loss. She was a faithful member of the church for ten years. J. GUESS.

Brother Tinker Haynes died August 12th, 1882, aged 89 years. He lived a faithful member of the M. E. Church, and died in the full triumph of faith. He left many children and friends to mourn his loss, and we are satisfied that heaven has gained another jewel. JOHN QUALLS.

Jackson, La.

Departed this life Margaret Harris, aged 2 months, August 5.

Sister Harriet Scott died August 5th. She had been a member of the church many years. Before she died she spoke many encouraging words. She leaves a husband and four children and many friends to mourn her loss. C. A. TAYLOR.

Rosedale, La.

Sister Mary Page, aged 45 years, departed this life August 18th, 1882, at 8 p. m. For some years she was afflicted with the dropsy and it took her away at last. She was a member of Clark Chapel, but owing to her disease, probably, she attended church very irregularly. I met her week before last and she expressed herself as glad to see me and to say, if she died, she was bound for heaven. She was all alone. Her mother and sister live so far they could not attend her funeral. The society, of which she was a faithful member, buried her to-day. The Lord grant this a warning to others. The writer attended her funeral.

Popular Demand.

So great has been the popular demand for the celebrated remedy, Kidney-Wort, that it is having an immense sale from Maine to California. Some have found it inconvenient to prepare it from the dry compound. For such the proprietors now prepare it in liquid form. This can be procured at the druggists. It has precisely the same effect as the dry, but is very consentrated so that the dose is much smaller.—Lowell Mail

MALARIA

Malaria is an almost indescribable malady which not even the most talented physicians are able to fathom. Its cause is most frequently ascribed to local surroundings, and there is very little question, but this opinion is substantiated by facts. Malaria does not necessarily mean chills and fever while these troubles usually accompany it. It often affects the sufferer with general lassitude, accompanied by loss of appetite, sleeplessness, a tired feeling and a high fever, the person afflicted growing weaker and weaker, loses flesh day after day, until he becomes a mere skeleton, a shadow of his former self.

Malaria once having laid its hold upon the human frame, the door of the system is thrown open to nervous diseases. The body weak and enfeebled absorbs no nourishment, but subsisting upon itself, the digestive organs no longer perform their functions; the liver becomes torpid, and other organs failing to do their routine work, speedily become disordered, and dissolution and death are apt to ensue.

In addition to being a certain cure for malaria and chills and fever, BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is highly recommended for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient tonic; especially indigestion, dyspepsia, intermittent fevers, want of appetite, loss of strength, lack of energy, etc. Enriches the blood, strengthens the muscles, and gives new life to the nerves. Acts like a charm on the digestive organs. It is for sale by all respectable dealers in medicines, price, $1 per bottle

Be sure and get the genuine BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. Take no other.

During an earthquake which occurred a few years since the inhabitants of a small [illegible] were generally very much [illegible], but they were at the [illegible] surprised at the calmness [illegible] apparent joy of an old [illegible] whom they all knew. At length one of them, addressing the [illegible] said, "Mother, are you not afraid?" "No," said the mother in Israel, "I rejoice to know that I have a God that can shake the world."

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

G. O. Washington, Glencoe: "The steward sisters, having the interests of our church at heart, combined to get up an entertainment, to raise funds for a church building. They visited rich and poor; some gave eggs, sugar, flour, and other articles suitable for the occasion. On the 11th and 12th the fair was held, and although there were heavy rains and the roads were almost impassable, the people came, and the sisters sold out every thing and cleared $24 30. These sisters deserve to be known. They were Caroline Bell, Martha Jenkins, Olley Coleman, Frances Martin, Ann Weeks, Sarah Fleming, Clara Cross, Taymer Griffin, Patty Wiggleton, Margaret Turner, Mary Nelson."

MISSISSIPPI.

N. Toole, Waynesboro: "I have closed my protracted meeting and taken in eleven. The church is growing here."

M. Adams, Ex-Prairie: "Elder Dunn was with us, and it was a time of rejoicing with the people. The quarterly meeting was held at Hickory Church. During the quarterly there were twenty-five conversions. Collection for elder was $16 45."

D. Green, Benton: "The Sunday-school pic-nic, July 21, was a grand affair. There were 700 people present. The school has good teachers, and Bro. J. B. Johnson is a good superintendent. The concert at night brought out a full house. Miss M. A. Shelton delivered a beautiful lesson from the Bible, and our pastor, Rev. J. Clemons, an address."

B. L. Crump, Okolona: "The Okolona district conference convened at Crawford, Aug. 3. It was called to order by J. M. Shumpert, presiding elder, in the chair. There were about fifty in attendance. The following topics were discussed: Sunday-school, Freedmen's Aid and Church Extension Societies, by B. L. Crump, D. W. Calvert, W. Mc Donald, and others. The discussions were interesting, and many expressed themselves as benefited thereby. Sunday services were refreshing. The elder preached with much power, and 205 received the Lord's Supper. Some of our Baptist brethren were with us. Great credit is due the people of Crawford for the hospitable manner in which they cared for the conference. The elder reported an excellent outlook on the district. The next conference meets at Starkville."

L. A. Thompson, Bolton: "Our second quarterly conference, held by [illegible], will not soon be forgotten. The pastor and stewards [illegible] reports. [illegible] collection $10 [illegible] doing good [illegible] for all we [illegible] interest. You may judge of what they did. Just as soon as the church was completed, they came and said: "You owe us $688; pay us at once, or we will have the church sold for the money!" We consulted L. K. Atwood, a colored lawyer, and he said they could not collect the money, because it was not due, and offered to defend us without charge. For this we are grateful. We are indebted, also, to the Church-Extension Society for a donation of fifty dollars, which paid all debts against the church. Our three Sunday-schools are doing well."

TEXAS.

Wm. Allen, Cotton Gin: "I received into the Church twenty adults. Children's day was observed, and $2 20 raised. Hard times, whisky, and tobacco have hindered our people very much. Our building is old and bad looking, but I am trying to break up the tobacco and whisky habit and get the money to build a new church. I think I will be able to get up a large list of subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN."

A Valuable Addition.

Because it is beneficial to the scalp and adds to personal beauty by restoring color and lustre to gray or faded hair is why Parker's Hair Balsam is such a popular dressing.

The world is like the miller at Mansfield, who cared for nobody—no, not he—because nobody cared for him; and the world will serve you so, if you give it the same cause.

Never Fails.

No instance of a failure on record when Simmons Liver Regulator has been properly taken. It removes bilious secretions, cures dyspepsia, constipation and sick headache, strengthens the kidneys and gently assists nature.

Distrust the stranger who invites you to take a walk, and afterward to take a drink. He has his eye on your purse. Think of this when you go into strange places.

An unpleasant catalogue constantly being printed, in which human infirmity is specified as headache, nervousness, dyspepsia, neuralgia, paralysis and ague, can be entirely expunged from the records, by the use of Dr. Benson's Celery and Chamomile Pills.

God's house is not the place to make aching heads; it is the place to heal aching hearts. The most outrageous nonsense that is current in theological seminaries is that which deludes young men into the folly of aiming at profound and philosophic treatises for the pulpit.—T. L. Cuyler.

Arsenic and quinine are not desirable commodities to carry about in one's system, and it is to be hoped that the poisonous ague remedies have had their day. Ayer's Ague Cure is a sure antidote for the Ague, and all malarial fevers, and is perfectly harmless, leaving the system in as good condition as before the disease was contracted.

Bishop Simpson says of the preacher: "His throne is the pulpit; he stands in Christ's stead; his message is the word of God; around him are immortal souls; the Savior, unseen, is behind him; the Holy Ghost broods over the congregation; angels gaze upon the scene, and heaven and hell await the issue."

Rheumatism, disordered blood, general debility and many chronic diseases pronounced incurable, are often cured by Brown's Iron Bitters.

The yellow fever epidemic continues to spread in the regions of Matamoros and Brownsville in Texas. The Marine Hospital Service has decided to take charge of the fever hospitals at Brownsville.

A GENEROUS ACT

That Will be Appreciated by All Who Care for their Complexion or Skin.

It is not generally known that the nervous system has a wonderful influence over the skin, but this is a fact known to medical men who have given much of their time to the study of diseases of the skin. No one can have a clear and fair complexion unmixed with blotches and pimples who is very nervous.

Whatever tends to a healthful condition of the nervous system always beautifies the complexion and removes dryness and roughness of the skin. Some skin diseases are not attended by visible signs on the surface, but an intolerable itching that renders life miserable.

We copy the following deserving and interesting compliment from the Tribune which says: "Dr. C. W. Benson's New Remedy, 'SKIN CURE,' is received by the public with great confidence, and it is regarded as a very generous act on the Doctor's part to make known and prepare for general use his valuable and favorite prescription for the treatment of skin diseases, after having devoted almost his entire life to the study and treatment of nervous and skin diseases, in which he took great delight. He was for a number of years Physician in charge of the Maryland Infirmary on Dermatology and anything from his hands is at once accepted as authority and valuable. The remedy is fully the article to attack the disease both internally, through the blood, and externally, through the absorbents, and is the only reliable and rational mode of treatment. These preparations are only put up for general use after having been used by the Doctor in his private practice for years, with the greatest success, and they fully merit the confidence of all classes of sufferers from skin diseases." This is for sale by all druggists. Two bottles, internal and external treatment, in one package. Don't be persuaded to take any other. It costs one dollar.

OH, MY HEAD!
WHY WILL YOU SUFFER?

Sick headache, nervous headache, neuralgia, nervousness, paralysis, dyspepsia, sleeplessness, and brain diseases, positively cured by Dr. Benson's Celery and Chamomile Pills. They contain no opium, quinine, or other harmful drug.

Sold by druggists. Price, 50 cents a box. Depot 106 North Eutaw St., Baltimore, Md. By mail, two boxes for $1, or six boxes for $2.50, to any address.

The official count shows the following result of the recent Alabama State election: H. C. Armstrong, Democratic candidate for Superintendent of Education, received 104,170 votes, and J. Wood, Republican Greenback opposition, received 57,133, the Democratic majority being 47,037. The entire vote cast was nearly one-third less than a full vote. The Senate will stand 3 Democrats and two opposition; House, 7 Democrats, and 21 opposition. The latter consists of 8 Republicans, 4 Greenbackers, and 9 Independent Democrats. The Democratic candidate for Governor was elected by nearly about the same majority as the candidate for Superintendent of Education. The Legislature canvasses the vote for Governor at its session in November.

The business growth of Fort Worth is unprecedented and the prosperity of her business men almost as boundless as they have the facilities to extend them. Society is constantly improving. Health equals the most noted resorts in the State. Her people are kind, considerate and attentive to strangers. The churches are supplied with every convenience and their pulpit ministrations are far in the advance of inland cities generally. The Sunday-schools are large and attractive and officered in a manner to please and instruct the children. In a word, Fort Worth is going right ahead, and we predict that before the close of the next presidential campaign, her population will exceed 20,000.—Fort Worth Daily Gazette.

It is impossible for a woman, after a faithful course of treatment with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, to continue to suffer with a weakness of the uterus. Enclose a stamp to Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, 233 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass., for her pamphlets.

We see it stated that the Baptists of the North have not a single missionary among the millions of Africa. Is it not time that those who have assumed that they were special friends of the sons of Ham should do something for their rescue from ignorance and superstition? It is often easier to find fault with other people than to answer the call of duty ourselves.—Texas Advocate.

Don't Die in the House.

E. Dwyer Gray, member of Parliament and proprietor of the Freeman's Journal, was sentenced in Dublin, to two months' imprisonment and to pay a fine of £5000 for contempt of court, in publishing a letter of O'Brien, editor of the United Ireland, accusing the jury which convicted Francis Hynes of the murder of John Doloughty of being drunk on the night previous to the day that their verdict was given, and the article commenting thereon.

"I'm All Played Out"

is a complaint. If you feel so get a package of Kidney Wort and take it and you will at once feel its tonic power. It renews the healthy action of the kidneys, bowels and liver, and thus restores the natural life and strength to the weary body. It can now be had in either dry or liquid form, and in either way is always prompt and efficient in action.—New Bedford Standard.

MOTHERS READ.

GENTS:—About nine years ago I had a child two years old and almost dead. The doctor I had attending her could not tell what ailed her. I asked him if he did not think it was worms. He said no. However, this did not satisfy me, as I felt convinced in my own mind that she had. I obtained a bottle of DR. C. McLANE'S CELEBRATED VERMIFUGE (genuine). I gave her a teaspoonful in the morning and another at night, after which she passed seventy-two worms and was a well child. Since then I have never been without it in my family. The health of my children remained so good that I had neglected watching their actions until about three weeks ago, when two of them presented the same sickly appearance that Fanny did nine years ago. So I thought it must be worms, and went to work at once with a bottle of DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE between four of my children, their ages being as follows: Alice, 8 years; Charley, 4 years; Emma, 6 years; John, 9 years. Now comes the result: Alice and Emma came out all right, but Charley passed forty-five and Johnny about sixty worms. The result was so gratifying that I spent two days in showing the wonderful effect of your Vermifuge around Utica, and now have the worms on exhibition in my store.

Yours truly, JOHN PIPER.

EARS FOR THE MILLION!

Foo Choo's Balsam of Shark's Oil

Positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.

This Oil is abstracted from peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as Carcharodon Rondeletii. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese People. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1 per bottle.

HEAR WHAT THE DEAF SAY!

It has performed a miracle in my case.

I have no unearthly noises in my head and hear much better.

I have been greatly benefited.

My deafness helped a great deal—think another bottle will cure me.

"Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer can personally testify, both from experience and observation. Write at once to Haylock & Jenney, 7 Dey street New York, enclosing $1, and you will receive by return a remedy that will enable you to hear like anybody else, and whose curative effects will be permanent. MR. EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my brother Edmond, who belonged to Widow Fox, on Tallahatchie River, Tenn. Our father, Ben. Morris, died near Bolivar, Tenn., in 1860. If my brother, or any of his children, will come to me, I think I can be a help to them as I now have no children. Address me at Richmond, Texas.

B. F. WILLIAMS.

DEAR EDITOR: I desire to inquire for my mother, sister, and brother. Mother was Lucinda, but as I was quite a small girl when I left I do not remember her or my father's other name. I was taken to New Orleans by John Metlock, in 1854, and to Texas in 1856. I left with mother's sisters Rachel and Delilah. Mother had a boy. I don't know his name, and I left them near Camden, Arkansas. Address me at Matagorda, Texas.

ELIZA JANE BALDRIDGE.

MR. EDITOR: Three brothers, one sister, and mother were sold from me twenty-six years ago, and I have never heard from them since. They were sold by John White, from his trader's yard in New Orleans. All were raised in De Soto county, Miss. Mother was Eliza Walton; the children were Oliver Walton, yellow, with one eye out, Sinthia, Henry, and Anderson Walton, dark. Address me at Clinton, Miss., care Rev. E G. Rankin.

Mr. Dunce Shackelford sold me about three years before the war, and I was brought to this country. Any information will be gladly received. Address me at Brookhaven, Miss.

RACHEL HENDERSON.

DEAR EDITOR: I desire to inquire for my kinfolks, whom I left in Maryland many years ago. Father's name was Summer Thompson. He used to belong to a man by the name of Capers Cain. My mother's name was Easter. She belonged to Roger Robinson. My brothers were Williams, Sam, and Major; sisters, Sarah, Ann, and Rosa. I was sold and brought to this country: Sister Ann was also brought to this country. I have one son, named Samuel Dod. The last I heard of him he was in Vicksburg. This was at the close of the war. He was a Union soldier. Kind friends, do all you can to help me find my people. Address Betsey Dod, care Rev. J. H. Cook, Brookhaven, Miss.

DR. HARTER'S

A combination of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark and Phosphorus in a palatable form. The only preparation of iron that will not blacken the teeth, so characteristic of other iron preparations.

GENTLEMEN: I have used DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Diseases, Dyspepsia, and an impoverished condition of the blood, this peerless remedy, has in my hands, made some wonderful cures. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians, have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC is a necessity in my practice.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

IT is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair,

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

THE SMITTEN ROCK.

A blow direct from God's own hand
Oft cleaves the heart in twain,
As rocks are rent by lightning stroke,
Amid the wind and rain.

But in their clefts the wind, oftimes,
The seed of sweet flowers blows;
Bright shines the sun, soft falls the dew,
The rock in beauty glows.

So in the rifts within the heart
Are planted seeds of grace
Which take deep root, and, blooming fair,
The healed wounds efface.

The Negro Problem.

We have thought, heard and read of many proposed solutions for the so called vexed Negro Problem, but one of the most remarkable and antiquated twaddles that we have recently read upon this question was written by Wm. Allen of Rock Hill, Texas, and appeared in the Texas Christian Advocate, (Church South). The writer, apparently just awakening from his Rip Van Winkle slumber, is so far behind the age, that his brogue of two decades ago, in which he now addresses the Christian public, can hardly be understood. He very much reminds us of an ancient old Georgia lady, who upon hearing of the Kellogg-McEnery contest in [illegible], wanted to know whether it was true that Grant's Army had been defeated in Louisiana, and that Jeff. Davis had made McEnery governor. Poor fellow, he has been asleep a great while probably! The present surroundings are all new and strange to him. He appears now to be learning of a great civil war, an Abraham Lincoln, an emancipation proclamation, Constitutional amendments, Negro equality, etc, for the first time. He is a stranger in his own country; yea, and in his own church. Even his church has left him behind. When he dozed off to sleep, his church was preaching and thundering throughout the South the divine righteousness of human slavery, and singing the classic Southern air every Sunday afternoon, preaching to the Negroes the all important and all-sufficient text: "Servants obey your masters." Now he wakes up to find that a great war has been fought, slavery has been abolished, Negroes [illegible] have become citizens, and that such radical changes have undergone in the public mind, that even his church has been affected thereby, so much so that it [illegible] to revise its slavery [illegible] [illegible] many of its opposi[illegible] to the advancement and [illegible] of the Negro; and some of its [illegible] and laymen have taken [illegible] in dealing with the [illegible] General Conference [illegible] [illegible] the Texas [illegible] right to choose his or her own partner for life; but might it not be suggested that, Bro. Allen, in furtherance of his plan of eternal separation of social relations, should formulate an efficient plan for the protection of the Negro race from the lust and seductions of the whites? This is the side of the fence needing protection just now; the other side is well fortified. For a Negro need but look attentively upon a white girl, and whether by the decree of Judge Lynch, or what not, he swings between the heavens and the earth. Now out with your plan for the protection of the separation line on the Negro side of the fence! But this is not all; probably, never having done anything to help lift up the race that was degraded by centuries of service for himself and his fathers, seeing the disposition of his General Conference to do something, or pass a resolve at least in the favor of this race, he again speaks out and gives utterance to warning number two, telling the Conference to beware for: "It is possible to do too much for the negro." He says further:

"We should not grow impatient over the negro, and do more for him than he appreciates or can be benefited thereby. Competition and rivalry to do for him may accomplish little, and be at the same time to the detriment or neglect of others. He has about as much put in his favor to-day, by charity and State, as he can appreciate and use. He has adaptation to the climate. He has all the rights of any other citizen. He has a public school fund for his benefit. He can always get land to cultivate, and therefore there is no need of starving. He has white people all around him to give him counsel in business matters. The bone and sinew of the country will see that he is not imposed on if he will only keep his place.

Really this last sentence sounds so like "old time," antebellum days, that it makes us smile. Will Bro. Allen favor us with a communication, a sort of essay, designating, bounding and defining the Negro's place? The Negro does not want, nor ask the bone and sinew of the country or any body else to see that he is not imposed upon. This is a mistaken notion. All the race asks is to be let alone. Clear the track, and give him an equal chance in life, and he asks and expects nothing more, nothing less. But our Texas brother knows a great deal about the Negro problem, let us hear him again:

They have the word preached to them at every point. They do not need among them, in connection with that which they already have, college presidents or the literati who can quote at pleasure the classic poets; but a people of broad brain, of deep common sense, though their grammar may not be so good. [Especially though their mathematics be not so good on settlement days.—Ed.] The negro must have time to rise. The State and all people are helping him. He will rise if rise is in him.

Our brother, being ignorant of the fact there is rise in the Negro, to bring himself up in modern thought upon the subject, should consult Ruffner's school reports, John C. Calhoun's grandson's digest, an occasional copy of the Vicksburg Commercial, and such advanced Southern authorities. Leaving these absurd ramblings, in seeking to solve a question which is occupying the minds of men who are twenty years ahead of him, he starts off after Dr. Haygood for writing such an insult to "our people," as his book entitled, "Our Brother in Black." He understands how "in a scripture sense" he may regard the Negro with a small n, as his "neighbor in Black," but that brotherhood is too intimate; and he hauls Dr. Haygood over the coals for daring to make the Negro his brother. He rather ought to find fault with his and the Negro's Father.

Evidently Bro. Allen is dissatisfied with "Our Brother in Black." He uses four columns of the Texas Advocate in its criticism. It contains too many unvarnished gems of truth for Negro haters. We need make no apology or defense for it, however. The book commends itself, and its able author is fully able to make his own defense. This is the retort our Texas brother, or neighbor, which ever he likes better, makes to the charge in "Our Brother in Black," that the South was wrong in the last war; in its opposition to the Negroes [illegible], being educated, etc. [illegible] of the South were not [illegible] as far as we know; [illegible] to be [illegible] so [illegible] the North is to blame for overruling providence and hastening a scene of blood, the most revolting to human intelligence," in order to give freedom to the slaves before God really intended. "No, no!" he says:

The North is to blame for her lack of patience, for hate of Southern manners, for premature action, for conducting herself in a way that awakened Southern jealousy, and therefore not letting competitive free labor do its proper work on slavery. If the time has come when Southern men can begin to call the North 'these good people' in contradistinction of a wicked South, and attribute to them the highest honors on earth for suppressing slavery in the manner they did, I, speaking for myself, can say I want none of the bloody glory! And—

So far as my reason teaches me, I can see but very little of that providence 'Brother in Black' loves to dwell on so much, when I contemplate the manner in which slavery was overthrown. The hurried crusade that put it down at the expenditure of money, property and life, denotes a profligacy and burning hate in which sober reason would indicate that there is nothing in it nearer akin to a reputable God than evil passion and the devil.

So our Texas brother believes that the devil brought about the happy days of freedom. If the devil brought them the Lord surely must have sent them; for a certain good Book tells us that, "every good gift and perfect gift is from above."

We should like for our brother to get more light, and become sufficiently awakened to realize the changes of the two past decades; and become adjusted to present new relations. If this be too much to expect of a man who has slept so long and lost so much time, we would suggest that he follow the example of the drunken man, who on going up a street lined with double rows of trees, as he came in contact with first one tree and then another, lifted up his hat and politely begged the gentlemen, as he took the trees to be, to excuse him. But striking against so many of them he stopped and leaned against the fence; and when questioned as to the reason why he stopped there, replied that he was waiting for the procession to pass by. If our Texas brother is thus bewildered and blind to passive events, it might probably be well for him in like manner to get out of the way and let the veritable procession pass by. A.

Spurgeon to Young Preachers.

Too many young men assume a slouching attitude, lolling and sprawling, as if they were lounging on the parapet of a bridge, and chatting with somebody down in a boat on the river. We do not go into the pulpit to slouch about, and to look free and easy, but we go there on very solemn business, and our posture should be such a posture as becomes our mission. A reverent and earnest spirit will not be indicated by a sluggish lounge or a careless slouch. It is said that among the Greeks, even the ploughmen and herdsmen take up graceful attitudes without any idea that they are doing so. I think it is also true of the Italians; for, whenever I have seen a Roman man or woman—no matter whether they are sleeping upon the Spagna steps, or sitting upon the fragment of the Baths of Caracalla, or carrying a bundle on thier head, or riding a mule, they always look like studies for an artist; yet this is the last thing which ever crosses their minds. These picturesque peasants have never taken lessons in calisthenics, nor do they trouble their heads as to how they appear to the foreigners; pure nature, delivered from mannerism, primness and affectation, molds their habits into gracefulness. We should be foolish to imitate Greeks or Italians, except in their freedom from all imitations, but it were well if we could copy their unconstrained and natural action. There is no reason why a Christian should be a clown, and there are a great many reasons why a minister should not be a boor. As Rowland Hill said that he could not see why Satan should have the best tunes, so neither can I see why he should have the most graceful speakers.

A house without a roof would scarcely be less a home, according to Bushnell, than "a family unsheltered by God's friendship." A pious wife with a prayerless husband is compared by Payson to a dove with a broken wing, trying to beat her upward way through storm and wind.

Secretary Teller on National Education, especially among Indians.

The following letter from Hon. H. M. Teller, Secretary of the Interior, will be read with interest:

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
WASHINGTON, August 1, 1882.

Rev. J. C. Hartzell, D. D., Ocean Grove, N. J.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter inviting me to attend the National Educational Assembly to be held at Ocean Grove, August 8th and 9th instant. I regret that I cannot accept your kind invitation. The object of the Assembly as you declare it, "to help stimulate and direct the public sentiment of the nation in favor of enlarged State effort, and temporary national aid in public school education," meets my hearty approbation, and I shall be pleased if I can contribute in the slightest degree, towards the attainment of that object. The great mass of the people must depend on the public school system, for the education of their children. An efficient public school system extending to all the States and affording equal facilities for education to all classes of children free from rate bills, cannot be too highly prized. In some sections of the country the States are able and willing to support such schools by taxation on the property the State. In other sections the States are not able to do so, and I fear not willing, unless stimulated by aid from the general government.

I recognize it to be the duty of the State to provide for the education of the children within its borders, but if the State neglects or refuses so to do, I think it is clearly within the power of the general government to provide such school facilities. But fortunately there is no State in which no provision for public education is made, and therefore the occasion for the exercise of this power does not exist, except as auxiliary to that of the State. I believe that in all the States the sentiment in favor of educating the children is so strong, that the action required by the general government would be simply to make and wisely disburse proper appropriations, so as to encourage and stimulate the States that are least able to carry on the work by themselves. To do this without seeming to discriminate in favor of certain States, such appropriations ought to be based on the degree of illiteracy as shown by the last census. If a system of public schools can be maintained, for ten or fifteen years in any State, there will be no danger of its abandonment. An educated community will demand suitable educational facilities for the education of all classes of children. So we may reasonably hope that the appropriation from the national treasury need not extend beyond a period of ten or fifteen years.

The attention of the Assembly will doubtless be directed also to the education of the Indians. The difficulties that surround their education are very great; but I do not believe that they are insurmountable, notwithstanding the fact that nearly all efforts made in this direction during the last two hundred years have proved failures. I believe, however, with the changed condition of the Indians, that is by placing them on reservations, that they can now be made useful citizens if the government will make ample provision for putting the children in properly conducted schools,—schools not simply teaching book knowledge, but educating them in the ways of civilized life.

The Indian requires education in the practical affairs of life; he must be taught to work as well as read; his hand must be educated as well as his head. With additional labor schools established within easy communication with the tribe, yet not near enough to allow the influences of savage life to counteract and undo the work of the school, we may hope to repeat on a large scale what Capt. Pratt and Mr. Armstrong have so successfully done at Carlisle and Hampton. Labor is, and has ever been, the greater civilizer of the human race, and wherever the Indian becomes a laborer, he is not far from civilization and usefulness to society. Heretofore we have confined our efforts to the education of a few, hoping to make such persons teachers and exemplars to their savage brethren; but experience has demonstrated that a few well educated youths could not withstand the baneful influences of savage life, with which they were at once surrounded on their return to their tribe. We cannot hope for the speedy civilization of the Indian unless we can extend our educational efforts so as to include the great mass of Indian children. To do this now, as the Indians may be located on reservations easy of access, is only a question of "appropriation" and the cordial support of the administrative authorities.

Very respectfully,
H. M. TELLER.

The Benediction of Labor.

However valuable the bendiction of labor may be to man, it brings struggles and weariness from which we often long to be free. Weary bodies, weary brains, weary hearts, are by no means confined to the few, but embrace the multitude. We are apt to think that there are favored ones—favored by fortune, by Providence, born to wealth, to honor, to ease—who are exceptions to the law of weariness, which however makes its exactions upon peasant and prince, upon the palace and the hovel. In this lies our mistake. Whilst doubtless vast inequalities of conditions prevail, they are not so vast as to decree peace and tranquility and rest to even a few, while others are doomed to toil and anguish of soul with no hope of escape. No spot of earth is so rich in human fruition as to relieve from burdens, from sorrow, from disappointment, from bereavement, from death. These come to all in their time, borne along by the rush of years, which know no stay, which are deaf to prayer and heed no voice of supplication, but speed on their course, bearing the young along to old age, and old age along to the grave. While bearing the burdens and breasting the storms, how often the soul longs for rest, wonders if it is ever to come, or if the longing is to remain unsatisfied forever! We scarcely expect any yearning of the soul to be unprovided for by Him who made it and gave it its faculties, and endowed it with its hopes and aspirations. There is some way in which all these are to receive their fulness, some place where hope and aspiration are to be lost in a reality that is to remain. A rest is promised to the people of God, and God is not slack concerning his promises. Nor jot nor tittle of His word is to pass away, neither is fulfillment to be meagre, but complete, perfect, eternal. Like God, it is to be perfect; and like His years, everlasting. He who was the Carpenter's Son, whose hands constructed the worlds, and whose fingers ordained the sun and the moon and the stars, is fitting up a home for His disciples, wearied by the long march, and bent beneath the heavy weight of care, and oppressed by the sorrows which the years have multiplied. It is to be no hovel, no gilded palace oven, of man's cunning work, but is to be a mansion, whose maker and builder is God. The walls of Jasper are to enclose it, the waters of life are to flow beside it, and the glory of the Lord is to illuminate it. No burdens are to cross its threshold, no weariness to enter its precincts, no tears to drop on its floor of gold, no sighs arise to awaken recollections of a world escaped, no death, to hang dark folds upon its walls, no dirges are to be heard there, but the song of redemption is to be sung in joyful strains and with glad hearts. It is waiting for the faithful, it remains, it is to come. All the grandeur that human genius has conceived and embodied in fluted column, in graceful arch, in splendid architrave, in crowning capital, in resplendent dome, are but dim shadows cast upon the eyes of men from those mansions which the chosen of God are to occupy, to go out no more forever. This rest remains for the people of God. What remains for those who are not?—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

Congressman Reed, of Maine, was trying, in the last hours of the session, to get up a particular bill. It required an unanimous vote. McKenzie, of Kentucky had a like desire. He would not object to Reed's motion if his own measure could go along with Reed's. Whereupon this, from Reed to McKenzie: "I will say to the gentleman that I would not, for the sake of all the public buildings erected in Maine or elsewhere, mortgage my views in this manner upon any subject!" Very good! A moral for the supporters of the river and harbor bill. —Boston Commonwealth.

Okolona District Mississippi Conference.

MR. EDITOR: Having completed my second round upon this district. A few lines from this part of the Master's vine yard may be of some interest to the many readers of the SOUTHWESTERN.

The most promising prospect for a plentiful harvest this year has greatly encouraged the people, and a strong effort will be made by the ministers in this district for an increased benevolent collection.

Building and improving church property has received much attention, and has been carried forward successfully in several places upon the district. At West Point our (almost dilapidated) church has been beautifully ceiled overhead with other improvements which does not only add much to the looks of the church, but will make it more comfortable in the winter season. Several conversions and accessions to the church have also been made under the pastorate of Bro. I. L. Pratt. Bro. B. L. Crump at Okolona has purchased a beautiful new organ for his church. Much interest is now being taking in the Sabbath-school, which is one of the best in the district. At Aberdeen a glorious revival resulting in the conversion of many precious souls has been closed, and over 70 have been added to the church. Bro. W. McDonald, the pastor, is greatly beloved by the people. Bro. A. Boyd of the circuit has had a great deal of sickness in his family, but he is doing a good work.

The Lord is crowning the efforts of Bro. R. Snell on the Athens circuit with great success, new churches are being built and old ones repaired; quite a number have been converted and added to the church also.

Rev. M. Proctor, on the Union Grove circuit has added several souls to the church. Rev. D. W. Calvert, at Starkville, is having great prosperity in his church, quite a number have been converted to God, and the work is still going on. Money is being raised to pay off the church debt. Bros. John Eanes, on the Pike circuit; L. M. Lampkin, Starkville circuit; James Price, Tampico, are not only "holding the fort" but they are making some progress, and the cause of Christ and Methodism is being carried forward earnestly and successfully. Bro. Wm. Gatewood on the Greensboro work and his good people are going lively on in the work of building the new churches, and ere long they expect to have two new churches completed; and by the way, one of his good brothers who kindly gave two dollars to Shaw University on last year finds his name did not appear in the minutes of our last conference. His name is Jordan Draine, who has just donated two acres of land at Walthall to build a new church upon, and several hundred feet of lumber. May God give us more of such men as Brother Draine.

Old Father Thomas Brown is finishing up his third year at Whitefield faithfully and successfully. Bro. Limus Nelson, a local deacon, has been placed upon a new work known as Slates Springs, and has made a good beginning.

Rev. L. L. Shumpert, at Columbus, is getting along nicely, both spiritually and temporarily. More than seventy-five have been added to the church. Some of the very best young men and women of the city was converted to God and were united with our beloved Zion, and his people have resolved to build a new church of brick. Rev. J. J. Harris on the circuit is doing a good work and is greatly loved by his people, and Bro. R. Hall on the mission is doing as well as could be expected. Rev. W. Jones at Crawford is closing his third year, and is very sorry that his time is so near out, as well as his people. Crawford is one of the best circuits in the conference. Bro. Wright at Tupelo is hard at work and is prospering. He expects to ceil the church before the winter season.

Bro. W. H. H. Gallion at Corinth is still leading his people on to victory, and keeps a good lively spiritual and financial feeling prevailing. They are now raising money to repair their church, and expect to have one of the nicest churches in the conference. At our last quarterly conference there was a time long to be remembered on account of the outpouring of the Holy Spirit. Ministerial collection on that day amounted to $54 40. For the hardness of these times the collections were good. Bro. A. Williams on the circuit reports the work to be doing well. At the residence of Bro. Williams in Corinth, which is beautiful and well arranged, we found the Hon. F. P. Hill, of Holly Springs, who is now United States revenue collector for that district, and his beautiful and accomplished lady, who was for several years a teacher in Shaw University, boarding in the excellent family of Bro. Williams. There many friends will rejoice to know that they are doing well. We stopped at sister Gray's during the last quarterly meeting, one of the most faithful members of our church there. She had lost her husband a few months before. Oh! how sad, but he was willing to go and be at rest. Sister Gray will get $1000 from the "Immaculate Order" of which her devoted husband was a member.

Bro. L. J. Terrill of Ripley is doing a good work, and has the confidence of the people. Rev. Isaac Mosely at New Albany has blessed his efforts and crowned them with success. Quite a number of souls have been converted and added to the church, and Bro. James Trice at Pontotoc is doing a good work for the Master.

The first district conference for Okolona district for this year convened at Crawford, August 3d. A large number was in attendance. The reports of the ministers, traveling and local, show the work to be in a healthful condition. The topics that were discussed by the members show that they had spent some thought upon the subjects. The brethren pledged themselves to do their utmost to bring up the benevolent collections this year.

J. M. SHUMPERT.

Columbus, Miss., Aug 22, 1882.

Of course, every callow schoolboy, straining at the end of a cigarette, knows more about tobacco than the whole medical faculty. But, possibly, an exceptional smoker may be found who will "read, ponder, and digest" the reasons given by the surgeon-general of the United States Army for the prohibition of tobacco in National Military and Naval Academies. This gentleman declares: "Beyond all other things the future health and usefulness of the lads educated at the military school require the absolute interdiction of tobacco." The most eminent authorities testify to its evil effects on the digestive organs, the nervous system, the voice, and the eyesight. A special form of irritability of the heart is named "tobacco heart." In the Ecole Polytechnique, in France, the non-smokers take the highest rank. Even down South, the chewers' paradise, the best schools forbid the use of tobacco. Prof. Richard McSherry, president of the Baltimore Academy of Medicine, declares that the effect of tobacco on schoolboys is so marked as not to be open to discussion. In a late lecture on tobacco by Rev. R. Carpenter, of England, the subject of its singular effect in rendering its devotees insensible to the discomfort of others, is sharply put. There is no doubt that next to dram drinking and licentious habits, the use of tobacco is one of the most dangerous of the national foes to the true development of American manhood,—a habit to be discouraged by every teacher of youth.—N. E. Journal of Education.

There are sometimes women who sit reading sentimental novels, and who wish they had some grand field in which to display their Christian powers. Oh, what grand and glorious things they could do if they only had an opportunity! My sister you need not wait for any such time. A crisis will come in your affairs. There will be a Thermopylæ in your own household where God will tell you to stand. There are scores and hundreds of households in this city today where as much bravery and courage are demanded of women as was exhibited by Grace Darling, Marie Antoinette, or Joan of Arc. —Dr. Talmage, in Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine.

The story is told of a minister who said, when one of his flock wept over the financial deficit in connection with a Christian enterprise: "My dear friend, never mind the tears; this thing can't be run by water!" This is a valuable suggestion to some who give sympathy much more than they give money.

Kentucky has had a local option law since 1874. Under it over four hundred districts, towns, and cities, to day absolutely prohibit the sale of intoxicating drinks, and the last legislature passed ninety two special laws, declaring the sale of spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors illegal within the limits of districts that had voted against the traffic. In all such cases it is understood that the prohibition is practically absolute, and in no instance has any place been known to go back on prohibition, while each year adds to the number of localities which adopt it.

British Columbia sent two members to the Dominion Parliament who were a fair counterpart of the hero of the Sand Lots and the late Mayor of San Francisco. They rivaled these remarkable men in bitterness, violence, volubility and hatred of Chinese, and were an intolerable bore in Parliament and a disgrace not only to British Columbia but to the whole Dominion, as all parties freely admit. Now they have, to their own astonishment, been rejected by the constituencies that used to return them. Probably a return to common sense on the Chinese question had something to do with their rejection. At all events such a change of sentiment is bound to come both in California and British Columbia.—N. Y. Witness.

Progress of the M. E. Church in the South.

Under the caption "Our Work among the Whites in the South," D. Stevenson, D. D., of Kentucky, gives in the Christian Advocate, N. Y., some valuable information as to the progress and condition of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South. He sums up the white and colored members separately, so that every one can see the condition of the work among each race. At the close of the year 1864, the minutes reported in what had been called slave territory 74,474 white members, with 924 churches, valued at $1,803,415; 185 parsonages, valued at $201,685. At the same time there were 29,664 colored members, with 126 churches, valued at $195,200. These figures show the condition of the work at the close of the year 1864, while the following figures which Dr. Stevenson has prepared with great care, show its present condition among the people of each race:

The tables of the most recent statistics show 208,122 white members, 2468 churches, valued at $6,168,129, parsonages 468, valued at $674,236. Of colored, 189,570, churches 1971, valued at $1,845,233, 288 parsonages, valued at $107,504. It is thus seen that on what was called slave territory we have 18,552 more white than colored members, and $4,889,628 more of church property connected with our work among the whites than the colored. The increase of members among the whites since 1864 has been 133,640, and among the colored 159,906. This increase of white members of our Church in the South during the past sixteen years exceeds by more than 20,000 the entire membership of our Church at this day in the six New-England Conferences. The M. E. Church South has in the same territory 825,407 white members. It is thus seen that the Methodist Episcopal Church has in the South full one fourth as many white members as the Church South. During these sixteen years the rates of increase in the M. E Church South cannot possibly be over fifty-three per cent, while the gain of white members in the Methodist Episcopal Church on the same territory has been 179 per cent. We thank Dr. Stevenson for these facts and figures. We ask the readers of the SOUTHWESTERN to study them carefully. They show to us a growth and permanency that promises well for the future. "In certain localities there may have been occasional or temporary declensions, but from the beginning of the efforts of the Church to re-establish itself in the South down to the present time, the ratio of increase has been nearly double of that of the Church at large." All that is needed is to have our people white and colored hold fast where unto they have attained and push ahead.

The Methodist Episcopal Church was organized primarily and principally for aggressive work. She is not merely here to "hold the fort" half as much as to storm and take forts. The statistics recently published in the Christian Advocate, New York, prepared with great care by Rev. J. W. Young, at the special request of Dr. Buckley, on "What is the Membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church" would seem to indicate that she is hardly "holding the fort," much less making any really aggressive movement on the works of the enemy. We confess that the showing of these statistics is not a little humiliating to us, and yet we thank Bro. Young for them. We do not want to think that we are something when we are nothing, that as a church we are pushing on to the conquest of the world when in fact we are hardly holding our own. These facts and figures ought to lead our ministers and members to entire consecration and special activity. The more carefully they are studied, the more perfectly we shall be made to feel the awfulness of our responsibility and the fearfulness of our condition. Let us see. According to the General Minutes our army numbers over 1,700,000 members, 12,745 local preachers and 11,[illegible] traveling preachers, all supposed to be special recruiting officers. One would suppose that such a vast army would surely accomplish something worthy of itself. But upon examination we find that in the direct work of [illegible] but little was accomplished. Surely there must be something wrong. May be our [illegible] has become too partial. [illegible] the people are not enough. [illegible] small results are a shame. [illegible] the fault we cannot say. [illegible] ask: Lord is it I.

Prohibition.

Certain politicians in Missouri are in great trouble. They have Kansas west of them, and Iowa north of them, with the leaven of prohibition working in the midst of them, which makes them begin to feel that soon they will be called upon to face this question themselves, and evidently the prospect does not please them. Missouri has been regarded as a safe harbor for whisky makers sellers and tipplers, and they are not prepared for the coming of prohibition. The State Journal, a Republican paper, says "that the agitation of the question is not wanted in Missouri." Not Wanted. That doubtless is true, but greatly needed. Usually on all moral questions the Republican party has taken the most advanced ground, but in Tennessee, while the Republicans and Democrats at their State conventions ignored the temperance question, the State Credit Democrats inserted a temperance plank in their platform, and we are informed that their candidate for Governor is in sympathy with it. But, from all that we can learn, it seems that in Missouri the Democratic party is taking the most advanced ground on the temperance question, and if so it will most certainly gain. Skirmishing around the temperance issue has been the strategy of both parties, but that sort of thing fails to give satisfaction. Brag and bluster have had their day and done their work, and have gone out of fashion. An independency is abroad and it will be well for the politicians to study the nature of this prohibitory movement, which is sweeping over the country, seriously and attentively. In Kansas the prohibitory law has driven the rum traffic out of the State. Thirty per cent of the population of Iowa is of foreign birth, but the constitutional amendment recently adopted by that State is a stringent prohibitory measure, and was adopted by a decisive majority, by a larger vote than has been polled since the presidential election. The next legislature will be compelled to pass an act to wholly prevent the manufacture and sale of all spiritnous liquors as a beverage. Of all the Eastern States, perhaps, Connecticut has been the slowest to move in favor of prohibition. But the recent legislature of that State passed a law requiring the names of five tax-payers on every petition for a license, and as no name can appear on two petitions this greatly restricts the number of saloons. And while the noted Pond law in Ohio has by the courts been declared unconstitutional, it is certain that there will be new and more stringent legislation against the rum traffic this coming winter. Governor Foster, in a recent speech, said that it "cost Ohio $3,000,000 a year to support its poor, and that $2,500,000 of that is directly chargeable to the liquor traffic." He thinks that free trade in intoxicants costs the State a little too much. In no less than six States prohibition has become the settled policy, and is fast coming to the front in not less than ten others where in a few years the elections must turn on this issue, and the party that opposes it will go down. Political men would do well to carefully study this great movement, and not over value the influence of the rum power, nor underestimate the determination of the temperance people of this country. A great tidal temperance wave is sure to sweep this United States, and political men will not do well to trifle with this tornado. The church, the pulpit, the morality and thrift of the country is on the side of prohibition.

Rev. A. W. Mangum, of Chapel Hill, N. C, writes to the Southern Christian Advocate, organ of the M. E Church, South, published in Charleston, S. C., and gives the following commendatory opinion of a recent editorial in that paper, which arraigned the Democratic party in South Carolina, for its criminal, outrageous, and corrupt practices in carrying elections in that State:

"Your editorial, Bro. Weber, on Religion and Politics, will provoke a great deal of party feeling and discussion. Its effect will not be limited to South Carolina. Many of the best people of the land are growing more and more impatient towards the disposition betrayed by the party leaders to make even morality and religion subservient to party ends. To choose between two political parties is one thing; to choose between a political party and duty to God is another. When the day comes in which politicians utterly ignore conscience, they will find that conscientious men ignore politics and party, at least so far as is necessary to maintain integrity."

This has the ring of the right metal in it. There may be many drowsy consciences in the South, but while such outspoken sentiments [illegible] find utterance from old [illegible] Southerners there is hope for the country. Let our Southern [illegible] continue its withering [illegible] against corrupt and [illegible].

Civil Service Reform Wanted.

The employes of the New Orleans customhouse have been assessed two per cent of a year's salary, by the Republican Congressional Committee; in addition, another assessment of five per cent on a year's salary, in advance, has been made by a campaign committee of that faction of the Republican party in the third district which supports the candidacy of Senator W. P. Kellogg for Congress. It is estimated that about $27,000 will be realized by the latter "voluntary" assessment. Since there are six Congressional districts in Louisiana, and the most of the employes at the highest stretch of their patriotism, could only be interested in the candidate of the district in which they reside, the outlook for those drawing small salaries is far from pleasant.

It would seem as though the climax of bossism in Louisiana had been reached, and that it was about time to start a vigorous rebellion against such ruinous demands from the men, who control national appointments and patronage. Before a nomination was made, customhouse employes, nearly all controlled by chiefs who received their appointments through the influence of Senator Kellogg, canvassed the Third district, and were met with protests from Republicans of that district against outside interference to force upon them as a candidate one who was not an actual resident of the district. The protests were unheeded, and there were two conventions and two candidates. Now, it may be true that Mr. Kellogg is the "regular," and Mr. Beattie is the "bolting" candidate, yet the contest derives much of its interest from the family quarrel in a district which polls near 5,000 Republican majority. Because there is a family quarrel, as well as the remoteness of the district from the New Orleans customhouse, there should have been some show of justice, even among the political bosses, in levying their assessments; and those of a truly voluntary character should have been confined to such employes as were appointed direct from the Third district.

No more mistaken idea could be entertained than the one which supposes that the perpetuation of Republican principles or the resuscitation of the party can be obtained by such methods. Next to bulldozing, and other species of intolerance, the indiscreet methods and close corporation of political power wielded by the New Orleans customhouse have contributed to the demoralization and disintegration of the Republican party in Louisiana. President Arthur will do well to purge his administration of the abuses named.

A summary of the reports of the House of Industry at Deer Island, in the city of Boston, for the year ending March 31, 1882, shows that there were 9363 commitments to that institution during that period. 8122 of these commitments were for being common drunkards. The other 1241 were for various offenses, most of them committed when under the influence of liquor. But here are 8122 over whom strong drink had such power as to bring them under the hand of the law. This report, however, does not show the number of arrests for drunkenness, as only persons are sent to the island for the non-payment of the fines for drunkenness. Eight thousand one hundred and twenty-two were unable to pay the fines the law imposes. "But those who were sent to Deer Island were but a small part of the habitual drunkards of Boston." There are the genteel, the fashionable, who have their drunks, but manage to escape the grasp of the police. Then there are those who when arrested are able to pay the fines the law imposes, and still another class of hardened drunkards who seem to have no higher aim than to get drunk as often as possible, who are sentenced to terms of imprisonment. The record omits all mention of these classes. Here is a record of degradation that most men may stop and study. Most of these are fast losing all shame, hope, and will-power. They may have good desires, but their will-power is so near gone that they are almost sure to fill a drunkard's grave. Here we see Boston, the Athens of America, with full two thousand persons licensed to help on in the work of making drunkards. A little examination will show a worse state of things in New Orleans. It is time for temperance people to wake up.

Marriage associations are springing up like mushrooms all over this section of country. In Brandon and Jackson, Miss., they are so numerous that certain streets, upon which they are more numerous than others, have been named Matrimonial street, Marriage Endowment Lane, etc. As to their general liability and permanency, we know nothing; but for us at least they seem to be flourishing rather too numerously, and too much after the manner of Jonah's gourd. Careful observers say that they are not based upon any firm and permanent business principles. The result may be good enough to the organization, and those who were among the first to have joined but rather ruinous upon others. Nearly all or probably all who invest are expecting to marry soon. A business man, who has looked into the different mutual marriage aid plans, said: "Marriage associations can no more be permanent than a life company that insured only consumptives and criminals condemned to death." Look well, and satisfy yourself before paying out your money.

The Chattanooga (Tenn.) Enterprise relates that Miss Cora Hawkins, of Whitesides, came to that city on a visit to Mrs. Easley, a near relative. She started for home accompanied to the cars by Mr. J. P. Easley, who purchased for her a first-class ticket. She then went to the coach and attempted to enter but was met at the door by the brakeman who asked her where she was going. She politely informed him that she was going to Whitesides. He then told her she must go forward to the colored people's car, which she did, but finding it full of smoke she concluded not to enter it and returned to the first coach. She was assisted on the steps of the car when the brakeman told her that this car was not for the use of Negroes. The lady then passed toward the adjoining ladies coach whereupon the brakeman siezed her violently and pushed her and would have no doubt hurt her had not Mr. Easley been near enough to prevent her from falling. The brakeman then drew out his knife and threatened to cut either of them if they attempted to get on the car. Mr. Easley says he intends to bring the matter before the courts of law.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Victor Hugo is rapidly declining physically and mentally.

—Lieutenant Flipper has been appointed a captain in the Mexican service.

—Bishop Hurst and Dr. Fowler went from the Montana Conference to visit the Geysers of the Yellowstone.

—Bishop Granberry has determined to make Richmond, Va., his home, to the delight of his many friends there.

—Lemuel W. Livingston, the colored applicant for a cadetship from Florida failed to pass the examination at West Point.

—Col. W. D. Slack, the Republican nominee for Governor of Arkansas, once refused an offer of the professorship of Greek in the University of Virginia.

—Rev. A. N. Wyckoff, the popular minister in charge of the Canal street Presbyterian Church, is spending a short vacation in the Adirondack, mountains.

—Gov. McEnery has appointed T. C. Manning of Rapides parish, to the associate justiceship of the Supreme Court made vacant by the death of Judge Levy.

—Bishop Harris' post-office address is 805 Broadway, and not 493 Lexington Avenue. He desires his correspondents to make a note of this, and govern themselves accordingly.

—Bishop Warren has received from Rev. G. Buckingham, the donation of a valuable lot of books for the Atlanta University. The Bishop has arranged a "Buckingham Alcove," to which the family hope to add from time to time.

—We regret to learn that the health of Rev. T. C. Carter was not able to endure the heat and work in Texas. He has been compelled to return to middle Tennessee, and is now at Tullahoma, recruiting for work at the coming session of the conference.—Atlanta Advocate.

—This is from the Southern Christian Advocate (Church South) of Charleston, S. C: "The late Bishop Scott's life is to be written by his son-in-law. Dr. Mitchell, who has played the role of a carpet-bag Methodist parson South to a greater or less extent since the war."

—Mrs. Shaw, of Boston, supports thirty-three Kindergartens in that city and vicinity, at an annual expense of $25,000. These schools are for the benefit of those who would otherwise be without all such privileges. Mrs. Shaw is the daughter of the late Prof. Agassiz.

—In a letter to the Editor, Dr. Hartzell says: "Unto God be the glory. Mrs. Hartzell has been on her feet a few moments this a. m., and now the indications seem positive of entire recovery. For nearly a month I have stood face to face with the awful fact that she might die or be a confirmed invalid." The numerous friends of Dr. Hartzell here in New Orleans will join with him in his Doxology.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

S. W. Harvey, Caney: "I meet with some opposition, but am trying to clear off the ground, and bring light into a region of darkness. We have 21 probationers and 2 converts. Elder Richardson preached three lovely sermons."

A. Alexander, Plantersville: "For the first time in seventeen years, I held a celebration at my church, and made the door as a Jordan river, and as they passed through people left from ten to twenty-five cents each, in all being $12 75. What a great blessing God would have bestowed on us had we turned the stream of wasted money toward him for benevolent purposes—to educate the poor heathen and build up the Church."

MISSISSIPPI

J. D. Walden, Pelahatchie: "We have closed our protracted meeting. We have taken in 52, of whom 42 are converts."

B. Allen, Fort Stephen: "During our protracted meeting Rev. Spencer Brown, of Meridian, was with us. Forty-four have united with the church. Paid pastor this year $34 70. The revival at Ebenezer church was the greatest ever known."

ARKANSAS.

Robert Robinson, Texarkana: "Wheeler Chapel is in a prosperous condition. The Sabbath school numbers 67 scholars. Rev. W. Fuller preached a missionary sermon on the 20th and $2 was taken up. I visited St. Paul church, and found Rev. A. Williams doing all he could for Christ."

St. James M. E. Church, Shreveport, La.

MR. EDITOR: I desire to make known through your paper the work done in our church. On Friday night April 21, 1882, the leaders, stewards and trustees met their pastor, Rev. J. W. Hilton, with their usual reports, and to consider the greatest object of the meeting—the indebtness of the church, which was $310. There was not a cent in the treasury. It was reported our creditor must have his money or he would take legal steps to obtain it. After a lengthy discussion adjournment was made without a plan agreed upon, but just as all were rising for the benediction, one brother said he would give one dollar a week on this debt until all was paid. Then the matter was dropped until the next Tuesday evening in class, when Bro. Hilton asked for prayers, but nothing more was done. That night there was a mighty rain storm, and I braced my doors to keep it out of my house, and about 4 a. m. I heard the church bell ring. At daylight I learned that the church had been blown from its foundation ten feet, and was standing tilted on one side, the property inside uninjured. Organs, lamps, chairs and benches were all safe. Heavy props were used to prevent any further damage if possible. This was not a large church being 16x55, and 16 feet hight in the audience room, capable of seating 400. There was a membership at this time of 148.

A few hours were spent in seeking a place to hold services, and we were admitted to a hall owned by the Baptist Missionary Society. They gave us the use of the hall free and everything began to look better. S. Duncan, presiding elder, asked our pastor to fill some of his appointments, while he remained to help. The condition of affairs was made known, and the elder from the pulpit secured a collection of $15 at 11 a. m. service; at 3 p. m., $28 25; at 7:30 p. m., $19 75—making a total for the first Sunday of $63. On the following Tuesday evening this plan was adopted: Each member to name the amount he would give to pay the old debt and rebuild. At once an amount above the old debt was subscribed, and collection began on subscriptions. The work of taking down the wreck and rebuilding was awarded to F. S. Legardy, a member, for $300, and he promised to have the church ready for use in sixty days. This done, only work and faith in God could accomplish the rest.

The carpenters began to take down the church on Wednesday, and to save all the lumber fit for use. With Elder Duncan in the lead the members came forward like well drilled soldiers, and all who were not active were made to move out of the way. Elder Duncan estimated as follows: To pay old debt, $310; carpenter to rebuild, $300; cost of materials $175—total $785. He said that on May 15 he wanted the $310, and on that day he paid the old debt. At every meeting for three weeks collections were taken. The following amounts were paid:

S. Duncan $5, J. W. Hilton 8 50, S. Armstead 1, R. Thompson 2 50, A. Legardy 4 20, H. T. O. Abbott 5, O. Jordan 2 75, James Robinson 5 50, H. Harris 2 60, F. S. Legardy 3 75, A. Grimes 5, Wm. Total collected up to June, $615 95; The result of three weeks' work, the old debt paid, and property safe. Then, Bro. Duncan, hearing of illness in his family took his departure for New Orleans; but seeing there would not be money enough to complete the church the trustees thought it well to ask a loan from the Church Extension Society. This they did: the work went forward; a week passed, and the new structure was in view. Rev. J. W. Hilton arrived home finding things in a good condition; he was well rested, and took up the fight; three more weeks were spent, and the shingles and floor placed so that service could be held; and on June 18, after a hard rain, not many turned out, but the collection was $34 85. Soon the building was completed and all properties replaced. Elder Duncan held the second quarterly conference July 3, and we had a good time. The membership had fallen away, some had been expelled, but it was decided to open a protracted meeting. It began July 17, was continued three weeks, and wound up with 23 converts, 14 reclaimed, 18 on probation. During this time the Church Extension Society was heard from, with the $250 asked for, which relieved us financially. A A united membership, working for the glory of God's kingdom, through the ADVOCATE, tender their prayerful thanks for the generous, liberal aid in this noble work, and especially to Rev S. Duncan, the presiding elder of the district. Brethren pray us. Yours, faithfully in Christ. F. S. LEGARDY, Recording Steward St. James M. E. Church.

Bryan, Texas Quarterly Conference.

DEAR SIR—I hope you will allow space enough in your valuable paper for my few remarks; the Rev. F. C. Moore, our presiding elder, was at his place as usual; the people all love him and they hope that our next annual conference will retain him next year. He administered the Lord's Supper Sunday night to 172 members, and also he administered at the Love Feast. This quarter of my work is on the increase, and we hope for the prayers of all the Christian family that we may grow up and build God's kingdom on earth. I have at present 162 members. We are not doing much for the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE this year, but we intend to do a great deal. We want to get 50 subscribers. The reports of the quarterly conference were read by brother U. B. McCall, of St. Paul, Minnesota, to the members and friends of the Love Feast as follows:

Report of the third quarterly conference of the Bryan church to the members and friends of said church, which was read at the Love Feast held August 21, 1882: Presiding elder reports the church in good spiritual condition. 26 have been taken in the church on probation, 10 into full connection, 5 baptized, and 10 children baptized.

The Sunday-school is in a good condition, and growing, with sixty in attendance; average attendance, forty-two; $5 raised on Children's Day; $2s worth of books have been bought and paid for.

Class-Leaders' Report: No. 1, 30 members, F. Clayton, leader, collected, $12; No. 2, 30 members, B. Franklin, leader, collected, $12; No. 3, 30 members, B. Jefferson, leader, collected, $12; No. 4, 30 members, F. Guy, leader, collected, $12; No. 5, 30 members, T. Walker leader, collected, $12. Stewards' report: Amount collected, $72; paid out, as follows: for P. C., $50; P. E., $10; for benevolent purposes, still in the treasury, $12; whole amount brought forward, $12. Trustees' report: Collected, $1 75; due the Church Extension Society, $150, with interest for nine years, whole mount, $258 or more; and the Church Extension Society demands that this money be paid this fall, so that the trustees have demanded that the members and friends respond to this demand, and liberate the church from this debt.

A. Gidding, C. May, F. Grays have been added to the Board of Trustees, Hattie Mosley was elected recording steward, and Nellie Minor elected monthly secretary.

REV. H. HAMILTON, P. C.
PROF. U. B. MCCALL, Sec.

With a comparatively mild climate throughout the Archipelago, with most valuable ship timber covering the islands, with a cedar that now sells at one hundred and fifty dollars a thousand feet in Sitka, with splendid harbors, with inexhaustible fisheries, with an abundance of coal, and the probability that veins of copper, lead, silver and gold await the prospector, with the possibility of raising sufficient garden vegetables, and with wild cranberry swamps on nearly every island; with all these advantages it is surprising that an industrious, amphibious, ship building, fishing colony from New England, or other States, has not established itself in Alaska. One drawback is that Congress has not yet organized a Territorial government, but when this region shall have been opened up to individual enterprise and settlement, it will then be discovered that Alaska is a valuable possession. —July Century.

Hurry and hustle are not essential to successful action, but impede it. The spirit of hurry causes confusion, and is fatal to soundness of judgment. Nelaton, the greatest of French surgeons, said that if he had but four minutes in which to perform an operation on which a life depended, he would take one minute to consider how best to do it. "Always in haste, but never in a hurry," was John Wesley's rule. Goethe said, "Make haste slowly." He also said that "a day is a very long time if every minute be used."—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

Having been knocked out of a goodly income from license of liquor shops by the passage of the prohibitory law, Davenport, Iowa, proposes to get even by taxing the sale of lemonade, soda water, seltzer, mineral water, pop, coffee, tea, or any other beverage permitted by law to be sold. A license of $50 a year is exacted by a new ordinance, the penalty for violating which is a fine from $1 to $100. Formerly that city got the snug sum of $9,000 out of its liquor dealers, and it does not propose to lose this revenue for mere love of temperance.—Inter Ocean.

Sympathizing with Law-Breakers.

The Jackson Clarion, leading Democratic organ of Mississippi, published the following:

"At the last session of the United States District Court at Oxford, some of the very best young men of Clay county were unjustly convicted of crimes against the election laws, which they had never committed. It was done on false testimony. They were charged with tampering with he ballot box in 1880, and were fined each $250. The people of Clay county are generously making up the fines. The ladies have taken the matter in hand. We notice that Mrs. Fred Beall and others got up a concert for their benefit last week, and will get up another soon. They are determined that the young men shall not be the sufferers. Their saving these young men from harm, is praiseworthy in the highest degree."

The Mississippi Republican makes the following comment:

"Those who have kept pace with the Republican, will remember that a few numbers back we adverted to the cases mentioned in the above paragraph, principally to call attention to Judge Hill's declaration of an intention to inflict condign punishment upon all offenders who should thereafter be convicted in his court of crimes similar to those upon which he was acting. He admitted that up to that time and even in the instances then pending, his sentences had been and were so mild as to render punishment merely nominal, he had hoped that an enlightened public opinion and that sense of justice which is seldom wholly wanting in civilized communities, would work a correction of the abuse, without recourse to the rigor of law, but he had found himself in error. The evils, instead of correcting themselves, had grown apace; his nominal punishments, instead of imposing restraints upon crime, had been construed into grants of impunity to it, and he felt himself bound, after giving timely notice of his intentions, to pursue a different course in future. Such was the substance if not the language of his remarks.

"So far as our reading goes, no Democratic paper in the State has given publicity to the action of Judge Hill in these cases at Oxford, and, consequently, the ignorant Bourbon still rests in the comfortable assurance that he can henceforth practice his frauds as safely as he has hitherto done. The omission is little better than downright treachery to friends.

"So far as our information goes, there was nothing exceptional or peculiar in these Clay-county cases tried at Oxford. There were at least 20,000 frauds committed throughout the State in that election, in every case as flagrant, and calling as loudly for condemnation and punishment as those of Clay county; but for unknown and various reasons, the great body of offenders escaped exposure.

"Before proceeding to point out the animus, the true intent and meaning of the brief article before us, we ask the reader to look at the recklessness of its assertions. The writer, though more than one hundred miles distant from the scene of action, assumes to know more about the case than the judge, the jury, the attorneys and the witnesses all combined. The jury could not have been a partial or a packed one, for we are told that all three of the political parties in the State were equally represented in it. What the testimony was, we are not informed, but Judge Hill, in overruling the motion to set aside the verdict, declared that no one who heard it could doubt the guilt of the accused. The attorneys for the defence were able and zealous, and [illegible] must at least have [illegible]. Yet the writer for [illegible] has the hardihood to [illegible] the witnesses as perjurers, [illegible] corrupt or stupid, the [illegible] or neglectful, [illegible] Judge as a mixture [illegible] the [illegible] "some of the [illegible] men of Clay [illegible]. There is no measure to the [illegible] which such journalism [illegible]

[illegible] the intent and meaning of [illegible] insignificant article. [illegible] "Young [illegible] District, we are [illegible] of little, if [illegible] become the heroes of an occasion, as those best young men of Clay county now are:"—If, we say, the Clarion had used language such as the foregoing, its intent and meaning could scarcely have been made plainer than it is.

"It is to be regretted that the name of a lady should be paraded in print, and a notoriety given to it from which all sensitive and modest women involuntarily shrink. When, as in the present instance, and for political effect, the lady is sought to be made notorious as the friend, associate and sympathizer of law-breakers and criminals, the impropriety becomes an outrage.

The Murder of Jack Turner.

The Mobile Gazette, of the 3d inst. published a lengthy article, giving the particulars of the murder of Jack Turner, in Choctaw county, Alabama; It says:

Jack Turner was hung from his own cart, and the rope was so long when it was stretched by the fall that his feet dragged on the ground. Men quickly mounted the tree, untied the rope, and heavy, strong men, pulled on the end of it and raised the limp, dangling form. His last requests were to have his body decently buried at Mt. Sterling and that his wife would come and kiss him once more. But, instead of granting the request, the brutes of men rode over his lifeless remains with the more civilized brutes of horses and bruised the lifeless and helpless body of the murdered man.

The New York Times says:

The more the light is let in upon the hanging of Jack Turner, the alleged leader in the "plot" of the negroes to murder the whites of Choctaw County, Ala., the worse the affair looks. Until some better explanation—not justification, for that is impossible—or some more plausible excuse for this lynching is given by those who took part in or approved the deed. it must be set down as a political murder of uncommon atrocity. * * * * *

On Saturday we published the statement of Mr. George Turner, a lawyer of Montgomery county, Ala., who had known Jack Turner well, and was able to tell why it was that Turner was thought a dangerous man by his white fellow-citizens of Choctaw county, and to give a rational explanation of the circumstances which led to the patching up of this absurd and self-contradictory story of the negro plot. Turner was a negro without education, but of great native force of character. He had been chairman of the Republican county Committee, and in the canvass preceding the election of State and local officers, August 7, he worked among the voters of his race to such good effect that the Bourbons were brought perilously near defeat. But this was not his only offense. In January, 1881, Turner appeared in the United States courts as a witness against one Carnathan, a prominent Democrat of Choctaw county, who, unable to entirely rid himself of the traditions of slaveholding days, had most unmercifully whipped a negro man named Manning, employed by him, for voting a Republican ticket at the November election in 1880, contrary to the orders which Carnathan assumed the right to give. Through Manning's weakness the charge against Carnathan was never pressed to its just conclusion, but Turner took a prominent part in urging the prosecution. It is evident that he has been a marked man from that time, and in view of the needs of the Bourbons in the Congressional canvass in the First Alabama District, the present doubtless seemed to them a most favorable time for his taking off in such a way as should strike terror into the hearts of the negro voters and insure the usual Democratic majority. * * * There is evidence of a distinct purpose in every part of this affair. The murder of Jack Turner was apparently deliberately planned and deliberately carried out for a political purpose. It is useless to hope for justice for his murderers from the State courts. The Federal courts cannot take cognizance of the crime unless it can be connected with a Federal election. But when the Bourbon member of the next Congress from the First Alabama District takes his seat it will be in order for the House of Representatives to order an inquiry into the methods by which his election was secured.

The Christian man who is too poor to take a religious paper for his family, but takes the children to see the few ill-kept animals, which the circus carries along as an opiate to elastic consciences, for the sake of their education, ought to get into a retired place and take a long look at himself in the Gospel Mirror.—Houston Methodist.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

THIRD QUARTER. LESSON XI. Sept 10.

CALAMITIES FORETOLD. (Mark xiii, 1-20.)

Our golden text will help explain the name of the lesson. It says, "A prudent man foreseeth the evil, and hideth himself;" that means, he sees the danger ahead, and gets out of the way; that is, dangers coming. The lesson is called "Calamites Foretold," God wants every one to come to heaven, so he tells us in his Word about the dangerous way, and shows us what is the safe way. You know it. Get Jesus to give you a clean heart, and that is choosing the safe road. All that you need to do then is to follow. Do just as you know that Christ wishes you to do, and the road is an easy one, because he leads you. Every other road is dangerous. There is only one safe. Have you been wise and prudent. Don't wait one day if you are on the dangerous road; get the clean heart now and be in the safe way, or you might not live to choose, and, O, you would lose heaven. Before you sleep be sure to ask God to make you always wise to choose the right way.—Western.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The Illustrated Family Christian Almanac for 1883 has been received from the American Tract Society. Price 10 cents. It is very neat and cheap.

Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine (New York; Leonard Scott Pub. Co.) for August opens with an article on Machine made Soldiers, followed by papers on prehistoric Hebrideans, reminiscences of Oxford, sport in German forests, ladies in Iceland, reminiscences of a march, the Whig's last chance, and "Our French ally in Egypt." Single copies 30 cents.

The Edinburgh Review (Leonard Scott Pub. Co.,) for July has articles on Don Sebastian and his personators, Siemen's theory of solar heat, Indian administration and finance, Littre, Dumas, Pasteur, and Taine, North Borneo, American society in American fiction, Lecky's England in the eighteenth century, three in Norway, etc. Single copies 75 cents, at newstands.

Harper's Magazine for September has illustrated articles describing a summer at York, the Weibertrne, the visit of the Vikings, in Surrey, and Spanish vistas. There is an article on the Mississippi river problem by David A. Curtis, recollections of Ralph Waldo Emerson by Edwin Whipple, a poem by the Norwegian Boyesen, two stories. The editorial departments, famous and always readable, add greatly to the interest of the number. For sale at newsstands.

Beginning with the November Number there will appear in The Century Magazine a series of papers by Rev. Washington Gladden, D. D., of Springfield, Mass, descriptive of "The Christian League of Connecticut." It is an account of co-operation in Christian work among the different churches of large towns in Connecticut: showing what kinds of work they attempted, and what kinds they declined to attempt; and how this experiment led to a county organization for the consolidation of feeble churches in the small towns, and finally to the adoption of the same methods throughout the State. These papers are the outcome of much study of the practical problems discussed, and are likely to have important practical results.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Sick Headache. For the relief and cure of the distressing affliction take Simmons Liver Regulator.

Malaria. Persons may avoid all attacks by occasionally taking a dose of Simmons Liver Regulator to keep the liver in healthy action.

Constipation should not be regarded as a trifling ailment. Nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels. Therefore assist Nature by taking Simmons Liver Regulator, it is so mild and effectual.

Biliousness. One or two tablespoonfuls will relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state, such as Nausea, Dizziness, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, a bitter, bad taste in the mouth.

Dyspepsia. The Regulator will positively cure this terrible disease. We assert emphatically what we know to be true.

Colic. Children suffering with colic soon experience relief when Simmons Liver Regulator is administered.

The wires are down but a private letter confirms reports of the flood on Concho river. Six inches of rain fell all over Northwestern Texas. It is estimated that 25,000 sheep, besides cattles, horses and mules, and 60 or 75 persons were swept away. About 50 houses were washed away in Laredo and the track of the Mexican National Railroad was badly damaged on Sunday. Further destruction is feared when the waters of the Concho reach Rio Grande. At Albine several sheep men lost all of their flocks and are almost ruined.

MALARIA

Malaria is an almost indescribable malady which not even the most talented physicians are able to fathom. Its cause is most frequently ascribed to local surroundings, and there is very little question, but this opinion is substantiated by facts. Malaria does not necessarily mean chills and fever while these troubles usually accompany it. It often affects the sufferer with general lassitude, accompanied by loss of appetite, sleeplessness, a tired feeling and a high fever, the person afflicted growing weaker and weaker, loses flesh day after day, until he becomes a mere skeleton, a shadow of his former self.

Malaria once having laid its hold upon the human frame, the door of the system is thrown open to nervous diseases. The body weak and enfeebled absorbs no nourishment, but subsisting upon itself, the digestive organs no longer perform their functions; the liver becomes torpid, and other organs failing to do their routine work, speedily become disordered, and dissolution and death are apt to ensue.

In addition to being a certain cure for malaria and chills and fever, BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is highly recommended for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient tonic; especially indigestion, dyspepsia, intermittent fevers, want of appetite, loss of strength, lack of energy, etc. Enriches the blood, strengthens the muscles, and gives new life to the nerves. Acts like a charm on the digestive organs. It is for sale by all respectable dealers in medicines, price, $1 per bottle

Be sure and get the genuine BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. Take no other.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

J. S. Patterson, Bastrop: "I am having a good time with my work. Am doing well at present; notwithstanding the past has been very discouraging. But thank the Lord, by many prayers and hard labor the veil of darkness that so long overshadowed us is disappearing, and I imagine the light of peace and happiness is springing up as a new light. On last Sunday, Bro. G. Washington was with us, and preached two delightful sermons at evening and at night. He also administered the Lord's Supper. A visit from him always proves very effectual. May the Lord bless the dear brother. We are not having a glorious time in getting members in just now, but we are having a fine time in getting them out. Since I have been here I have not been able to run a protracted meeting. But the Lord has been with us. I habe been successful; we have received nine converts, sixteen reclaimers and twenty-six probationers. [illegible] One of my stewards [illegible] fall under conviction. She was then borne away by one of our sister churches, that she might be converted among them. Pray for me, brethren, that I may take the field."

MISSISSIPPI.

J. W. Dunn, Meridian: "We are having considerable sickness and not a few deaths, but with it all, it affords me great pleasure to say that the Lord's on [illegible] Pray for the prosperity of Zion."

J. J. Garrett, Vicksburg: "This circuit is progressing. The elder held our second quarterly conference, and addressed it on the subjects of temperance and morality. The Sunday-school is a missionary society, and has sixty-five pupils, and it raised two dollars. The elder's collection was $20 35; the pastor's $4 65. I have received two by letter and two in full membership; eleven backsliders reclaimed; on probation eight. The heathen are preparing to buy another church lot, near the river. I will start a protracted meeting at New Hope, August 27."

ARKANSAS.

W. R. Duncan: "The Sweet Home Camp-meeting will convene September 2, and embrace the first Sunday in October. All are invited to come. Members and friends who have tents on the ground are called on to repair them. In a short time we will clear off the ground. Our shed is 40x60 feet. Members from adjoining circuits are invited to come and help support the meeting. All preachers are invited."

W. Babers, Lockesburg: "My [illegible] have done the best [illegible] in hard times. We are re[illegible] the church, have laid the [illegible] are erecting the pulpit. [illegible] meeting in Holy Springs, [illegible] resulted in twenty-four con[illegible] Old sinners of fifty and [illegible] young are coming to the altar. The Vagabond Sage.

An old man of very active physiognomy, answering to the name of Jacob Wilmot, was brought to the police court. His clothes looked as if they might have been bought second hand in his youthful prime, for they had suffered more from the rubs of the world than the proprietor himself.

"What business?"

"None; I am a traveler."

"A vagabond, perhaps?"

"You are not far from wrong. Travelers and vagabonds are about the same thing. The difference is that the latter travels without money, and the former travels without brains."

"Where have you traveled?"

"All over the Continent."

"For what purpose?"

"Observation."

"What have you observed?"

"A little to commend, much to censure, and a great deal to laugh at."

"Humph! What do you commend?"

"A handsome woman that will stay at home, an eloquent preacher who will preach sermons, a good writer that will not write too much, and a fool that has seen enough to hold his tongue."

"What do you censure?"

"A man that marries a girl for her fine clothing, a youth who studies medicine while he has the use of his hands, and the people who will elect a drunkard to office?"

"What do you laugh at?"

"I laugh at a man who expects his position to command that respect which his personal qualifications and qualities do not merit."

He was dismissed.

Mistaken Consumptives.

In the treatment of lung and bronchial diseases the liver is often implicated to such an extent that a hepatic remedy becomes necessary in effecting a cure of the lungs. In such cases I prescribe Simmons' Liver Regulator with entire satisfaction.

Learning is not inconsistent with laughter. Wisdom may dwell in a merry mind. Lightness and frivolities are opposed to true religion; but a genuine humor that breaks and bursts forth like the sparkling waters of a wayside spring is delightful.—Moroseness is not piety. A long face and a solemn look are not enumerated among the fruits of the spirit.

Good for Babies.

The new President of the Wesleyan Conference has given the ministers in his first speech a grand watchword or motto for the year, "A revival in each circuit." This truly is a Methodistic idea. Methodism has been successful on both sides of the Atlantic because this was its theory of working. Less than this seems not up to the demands of the times. Our Conference reports have many encouraging accounts of revivals, but we ought to have a wide spreading shower, not drops here and there. —Central Christian Advocate.

A Valuable Addition.

Because it is beneficial to the scalp and adds to personal beauty by restoring color and lustre to gray or faded hair is why Parker's Hair Balsam is such a popular dressing.

South Florida now produces a new kind of apple, called, because of sweetness, the sugar apple. It bears but little resemblance to the ordinary apple, but rather resembles a green pine burr. It is oval in shape, and about three times as large as a hen's egg.

Ayer's Ague Cure is the only remedy known which is certain to cure Fever and Ague permanently, by expelling the malarial poison which produces the disease. It does this surely, and leaves no evil effects upon the system. Nothing is so thoroughly depressing and discouraging as the periodical return of the alternate chills, fever, and sweating peculiar to this disease.

Governor Cameron, of Virginia, delivered an address to the colored teachers in their Institute at Petersburg. He spoke hopefully of the condition of education among the colored people and said that hereafter these institutes should not be dependent upon outside aid for support, for the State is abundantly able to prepare its teachers for their work and next year liberal appropriations should be made for such work.

Kentucky has no reform school, and sends children to the Penitentiary of the State, where they are left to grow up with adult convicts. Ten children, under 15 years old, are now reported as serving terms in the State Penitentiary. This is poor economy for a rich State like Kentucky, a disgrace to her civilization.

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER.

Pain in the right side, under edge of ribs, increasing on pressure; sometimes the pain is on the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder and is sometimes taken for Rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternating with laxity; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled; his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low, and, although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it.

If you have any of the above symptoms, you can certainly be cured by the use of the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

EARS FOR THE MILLION! Foo Choo's Balsam of Shark's Oil

Positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.

This Oil is abstracted from peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as Carcharodon Rondeletii. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese People. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1 per bottle.

Milton Douglas, an Edgefield (S. C.) negro, was married while a slave in 1859 to a colored girl in that county. After three months of wedded life he was sold and sent West. His wife married again, her second husband dying a few months ago. Milton, who had not been heard from since 1859 returned the other day and renewed connubial relations with his old spouse.

MR. EDITOR: I see a sad mistake in the SOUTHWESTERN of our daughter's name that I wish corrected. The man that she belonged to was named Neabey Correthers, the girl's name, Georgie Ann, the man that we belonged to was named James A. McLeary. I see the name in the paper Mary Ann, that is not right. Her name is Georgie Ann Correthers. The master was named Neabey, not Mesbey. B. F. WILLIAMS.

Richmond, Texas.

DEAR EDITOR: I desire to inquire for two brothers. The oldest was W. M. Davis, the other Joseph Davis. They belonged to Ezekiel Kinsmanthuysen. I last saw them at Thomas Osier's, in Searcy county, Ark., and I heard from Joseph at Fort Smith. Mother had seven children, four boys and three girls; named Peter, Fletcher, Andrew, James, Sally Ann, Lucinda and Frances. Mother was Margaret Russey. Address me at Caddo Gap, Montgomery county, Ark.

C. F. RUSSEY.

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my brother Alex Burns, who belonged to Ross Burns, in Claiborne county, Miss. I then belonged to J. Abbey in the same county, and was called Paddy Abbey, but I now go by the name of William Young. My father was Jack Young. I should like to hear also from my aunt, Adeline Cammack, and her daughters Sophronia and Laura Morgans, my cousins. They lived with Thomas J. Abbey, in Claiborne county, and moved to New Orleans in 1864. Address me at Jackson, Miss. WM YOUNG.

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my brothers Calvin, Joseph and Gabriel. Our father was Enoch Wade, and he died in May 1868, at Levi Wade's, the old home of our owner. Mother was Rachel Wade, and she died in 1878. She told me and sisters Tennessee and Viney just before she died that she was going home. Father also passed away in triumph. Brother Calvin was sold to a trader in 1857; brother Joseph went off with the Union armies in 1862. Bro. Gabriel Warren went to Guittard, Kansas, in 1880. I heard from him in last February, and he was then sick. His wife was named Abbey. Address me at Crescent, Rutherford county, Tennessee. J. A. WADE.

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my daughter Mary Ann. I was sold from her in 1846. At that time we both belonged to Daniel Priest, who lived in ———, Montgomery county, Ky. I was sold to Daniel Balus, who lived in Bourbon Co., Ky. Afterward I was sold to a trader named Pierce Griffin. He carried me to Louisiana, on Bayon Plaquemines, twenty-five miles below Baton Rouge. My name at that time was Emily Priest; now it is Emily Wilson. The last time I heard from my daughter she was in Natchez, Miss., living with a doctor whose first name was John, last name I never heard. Address me at Topeka, Kansas, 504 Monroe street. 21-6tm

MR. EDITOR: I desire to inquire through your paper for my long lost mother. We were sold in New Orleans on the same day. I was sold to a man by the name of Dr. Mitchell, who lived in Mississippi. I can not remember the man's name that mother was sold to. However, I was taken by my new master up the river, and mother was taken down the river by the man that she was sold to. Our former owner was D. W. Lumpkin, who resided in Holly Springs, Miss., Marshall county. My mother's name was Lucinda Lumpkins. I can not remember my father's name. However, we all belonged to the same man. I had a sister who was sold before we were, to a man who lived in New Orleans. Her name was Emily. I am my mother's only son. My mother will know me by the following description: My right eye is blue. Address me at San Anton'o, Tex.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC

A combination of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark and Phosphorus in a palatable form. The only preparation of Iron that will not blacken the teeth, so characteristic of other iron preparations.

GENTLEMEN: I have used DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Diseases, Dyspepsia, and an impoverished condition of the blood, this peerless remedy, has in my hands, made some wonderful cures. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians, have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC is a necessity in my practice. DR. ROBERT SAMUELS, 304 Wash Avenue. St. Louis, Mo.

It gives color to the blood, natural healthful tone to the digestive organs and nervous system, making it applicable to General Debility, Loss of Appetite, Prostration of Vital Powers and Impotence.

Ayer's Ague Cure

Is a purely vegetable bitter and powerful tonic, and is warranted a speedy and certain cure for Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and all malarial disorders. In miasmatic districts, the rapid pulse, coated tongue, thirst, lassitude, loss of appetite, pain in the back and loins, and coldness of the spine and extremities, are only premonitions of severer symptoms which terminate in the ague paroxysm, succeeded by high fever and profuse perspiration.

It is a startling fact, that quinine, arsenic, and other poisonous minerals form the basis of most of the "Fever and Ague Preparations," "Specifics," "Syrups," and "Tonics," in the market. The preparations made from these mineral poisons, although they are palatable, and may break the chill, do not cure, but leave the malarial and their own drug poison in the system, producing quinism, dizziness, ringing in the ears, headache, vertigo, and other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure. AYER'S AGUE CURE thoroughly eradicates these noxious poisons from the system, and always cures the severest cases. It contains no quinine, mineral, or any thing that could injure the most delicate patient; and its crowning excellence, above its certainty to cure, is that it leaves the system as free from disease as before the attack.

For Liver Complaints, AYER'S AGUE CURE, by direct action on the liver and biliary apparatus, drives out the poisons which produce these complaints, and stimulates the system to a vigorous, healthy condition.

We warrant it when taken according to directions.

PASSING AWAY.

Passing away, passing away!
The sweet summer roses are passing away;
Their beauty is wasted, their fragrance has fled,
And with'ring they lie in their damp, lowly bed.
The fair, dewy morns in their splendor will rise,
The pale stars grow soft in the evening's clear skies,
The cooling dew falls and the musical rain,
But the roses will brighten, ah, never again!

Passing away, passing away!
Bright hopes of my youth—how they're passing away,
With the beautiful visions that gladden my eyes
By day time and night time, as sunlight the skies.
Oh, hope may come back to my sorrowful heart,
Bright dreams from their long silent chambers may start,
But those of my youth I may woo all in vain,
For they ne'er will return to their beauty again!

Passing away, passing away,
Friends I have loved—how they're passing away!
I have watched them go down to that cold solemn tide,
While the pale silent boatman kept close to their side;
I've caught the dull dip of his dread, muffled oar,
As he bore them away to that schoolless shore,
And my heart crieth out in its desolate pain,
But they ne'er will return to bless me again!

Passing away, passing away!
Yet I know of a land where there is no decay,
Where the balmy air's filled with the richest perfume,
From sweet, fragrant flowers, all fadeless in bloom,
Where the soul never grieves, as it doth here below,
O'er fair vanished dreams, o'er hope's fitful glow,
Where linked fast forever is love's golden chain,
And parting words chill us, O, never again.

Dear Editor: Please allow me space in your valuable paper for a gist of the work on my district. I closed my third round on the 6th of August at Purdy, reached home on the 8th and found my family well. I entered my district from conference, December 3d and 4th, 1881. The Lord enabled me through high waters, sometimes four miles in rain and snow, to reach all my appointments, and all my preaching places but five. At every point I was cheerfully received and found all of my men at their posts. The first point is Memphis charge, which has two deeded churches, with J. W. Pickett pastor. Bro. Pickett is a good pastor, He has had nine converts, added [illegible] to the church, paid the [illegible], and has had good benev[illegible]. The next point [illegible] circuit. It has two preaching places. The churches [illegible] deeded, but have good [illegible], with C. L. Fields pastor, [illegible] in the place of H. [illegible]. Bro. Fields has [illegible] had fair success during the year, and Bro. Alexander has a fair school now in session. Mason church has been closed on account of debt. The pastor and trustees succeeded in opening it and reducing the debt to two hundred dollars. They are expecting to settle it by the 15th of November, and ask the brethren to assist them. Have paid $25 to the presiding elder. The next point is Brownsville. It has two deeded churches. One belongs to the Church Extension Society. Bro. J. B. Marhrey is pastor. He is a good worker. He has had fourteen converts, and has added twenty-four to the church. This year has been the most successful for this circuit. The churches have been improved. The next point is Bell's circuit, with Bro. W. M. Dwegans pastor Bro. Dwegans is a noble preacher. He has had one convert, and added thirty to the church. He has built one new church, repaired others, paid the elder $29, and had fine success with his people. The next point is Cypress circuit, Bro. A. Bardette pastor. Bro. Burdette is a good pastor. He has six preaching places, three deeded churches, had twenty-four converts, and added twenty-five to the church. He has built one new church, and paid several old debts. The next point is Gardner circuit, with Bro. J. J. Barr pastor. Bro. Barr is a good worker. He has two deeded churches, has had thirty converts, and twenty-eight added to the church, and four preaching places. the next point is Mansfield circuit, Bro. H. Dunlap pastor. He is a good worker, and much beloved by all. He has six preaching places, has taken in one new point, paid the elder $26. He had about fifty-five of his members to move West, yet he has had success. He had twenty eight converts, thirty-eight added to the church, paid the elder $27. The next point is Henderson circuit, Bro. T. Woods pastor. He is a good pastor, has had twenty-two converts, added twenty-six to the church, built a new parsonage, and paid the elder $19. The next point is Linden, J. L. Massey pastor. Bro. Massey is a fine preacher. He has eight converts, added to the church twenty-two, paid the elder $22 45. The next point is Lawrenceburg circuit, Bro. J. F. B. Summerhill pastor. He is a fair preacher. Has three preaching places, has had five converts, and added to the church twelve. He has improved churches, paid the elder $35, with benevolent collections fair. Bro. Summerhill is a good worker. The next point is Waynesboro circuit, E. M. Manson pastor. Bro. Manson is a fine preacher. He has six preaching places, two deeded churches, has had thirty-two converts, and forty-one added to the church. Paid the elder $40 He has had success in every way with his people, and has bought a parsonage. The next point is Purdy, J. B. Bradford pastor. He is a good pastor. He has had four converts, added to the church twelve, paid the elder $8 85, has two deeded churches; paid for the one in Purdy this year. The circuit is prospering. Bros. Manson, Pickett, Johnson, and Bradford are teaching public schools. The educational interest on my district is good. We have raised for missionary causes thus far $91, and the other collections are better than before. I have held seven Sunday-school institutes. I am yours in Christ,

Jesse P. Price.

It is fortunate for the country that we have a Supreme Court to revise the hasty legislation of our inconsiderate and excitable law-makers. In California the jealousy and hatred of the Chinese have been so bitter that the Legislature has enacted various laws to restrict them in carrying on their business, but the courts have set them aside, greatly to the disgust of the hoodlums, as being in direct violation of the Constitution. Their last attempt was to drive the Chinese out of their leading business by the "laundry ordinance," passed by the Common Council of San Francisco, which it was hoped would compel them to leave the city. Justice Field of the United States Supreme Court, however, set the ordinance aside, as being an unlawful interference with an honest business properly conducted. If the hoodlums and pettifogging politicians would attend to some [illegible] business as quietly and industriously, and keep as clear of the [illegible] as do the Chinese, they [illegible] better citizens themselves, [illegible] their city and State [illegible] which [illegible]

Walden University.

Forest City, Aug. 31, 1882.

Two hundred students between the ages of twelve and sixty years are invited to call at Walden Seminary, Little Rock, to be instructed in the common and higher branches of an education. We do not ask you what your color is, nor what your nationality is, for we have had from the blackest to the whitest in attendance from the beginning of our school, and we teach English, German, French, Latin, Greek, and Hebrew, and all the sciences; hence, like the Gospel of our dear Savior and the good old M. E. Church, which runs the school for us, we open wide the doors and say "Whosoever will let him come." If you desire to study to preach God's word and save sinners, then come without money, and if not, you need not bring much, only one dollar per month to meet incidental expenses, and if you have no wasteful habits, like using tobacco and extra dressing, should you not have the one dollar we will not turn you off for the lack of it. Our school opens the 18th day of September, 1882, and you should be there then. You will lose more by waiting until Christmas to enter than your wages till that time will amount to. "How much money do I need before starting?" asked one. We answer, not more than $100 for the entire year; and if you have no more than five dollars by the 15th of September, then come with as much hope of success as if you had $500, for we have noticed that those who have the most money are the first to fail. You can by a little industry make money enough to pay your way through. We had young men and young women last year who did chores, such as making fires, cutting wood, caring for horses, cooking, washing, etc., for families of the city and paid their way all the year. Come, we will help you to get a place to board while you are at school.

"But," says another, "I have not suitable clothing to go to Little Rock and go into that high school. They will laugh at me." Yes you have, my friend, and we will not laugh at you. Just such clothes as you wear at home every day; only wash and make them clean. It does not matter about the patches; come on, they will do. We do not want any high-flies. We have them and to spare about the Rock already. If we wanted you to come to show us your good clothes, then we would not go to the trouble we do. We would go down town and see all we desired and save you the expense of coming. Bring such as you have, and you shall be welcome. "But," says another, "I would be ashamed to let them know that a big boy or girl like me knew so little." Oh, no; do not think of that. Last year a woman came in who had raised a family and went into the lowest class, and we were thankful to God for sending her. We made her welcome, and you shall find that we do not laugh at your ignorance. Come up, and do not think of that, for you will be ignorant always, unless you go to school.

"What shall I do when I get to the Rock?" I will tell you; call at my house on State and Eleventh streets, or at Brother Mason's, on Gaines and Eleventh streets, or at Brother Sams' or Emory's, on State between Eleventh and Twelfth streets, and we will try to help you to get a place to board while you are at school.

Let me say to the parents who read this, that you cannot give your child money, if you give it thousands, equal in value to a common English education. If you want your child, boy or girl, to ever amount to more than a common renter or cotton picker, or house servant about some of the big folks' houses, you must give them education, and you cannot send them to any other school in Arkansas that will advance them so fast as Walden Seminary. There is no better man and no better teacher in the State than Rev. Mr. Mason, who has charge of the school, and he will take all pains to teach your children and to bring them to Christ. Do not think yourself too poor. All you need is to do the best you can. I have known young men, and women, to live as well and handle as much money which they earned during school hours or in the interval of school hours and wear as good clothes as when they did nothing but work for a support. We have found some people in our city who will favor this class of young people. Come and try. You will fail if you do not, and you can but fail if you try. If any farther information is desired, write to Brother Mason or the writer.

The Present Duties.

Mr. Editor: Please permit me to make a few remarks through your paper to the many colored readers who trace its columns—especially to the young ladies and gentlemen who are now engaged in the upbuilding of our present generation. We have now, some of us, been blessed with the privilege of attaining a liberal education. It is, then, greatly our duty who have been so privileged to do all we can in a way that will prove most beneficial to ourselves and our country. We are now living in a new era; it can not be classed with the duration and predisposition of the past. The same sun that once rose to illuminate us in our deplorable condition, now rises to light us here, in the bounds of freedom; and in the midst of schools. We should now live in the present and provide for the future. We have entered into the battle of life. Our voyage will be just as we will it. We can either steer or lie prostrate by the strife. Our goal is only before us. One cannot reach the summits of the lofty Alps without exertion. By exertion the great oceans have been made an easy high-way for man. And by exertion we may some day cull the sweetest roses. We indulge too much in the allusion of the past. We must act, yea; act in the living present; for reason that:

He who by the plow would thrive;
Himself must either hold or drive.

Moses was adopted in the house of Pharoah, taught in the sciences of the Egyptian land. We learn that he was not an Egyptian, but an Israelite. Trained as he was in the Egyptian custom, styled as he was in the king's palace, yet Providence had chosen him to be the leader of his people. But before this African Moses shall arise, he must be taken into the king's family, and be taught as was that Jewish law-giver, in all the arts and sciences of the land in which he had been a bondman. Mr. Luther was a master in the most distinguished universities of the country in which he resided. Mr. Wesley stood with the leading scholars of the land of his birth. We learn that these men were thoroughly equipped before starting on their mission. Our means are wanting, though not without a reason. We have had no rich legacies handed down to us from our progenitors. Misfortunes fell to our lot. Though our bark at times may be agitated, though gloom may fall in our path;—yet we must stand, though, not in a way that will prove detrimental to our general welfare, nor to our country, but stand with lion-hearted purpose of victory, aiming at the mark that leads to virtue and economy. If the sun is going down, we must look up to the stars; if earth is dark, we must keep our eye on heaven. Demosthenes was the son of a cutler; Homer was the son of a small farmer; Oliver Cromwell was the son of a London brewer; Franklin was the son of a tallow chandler and soap boiler; Madame Bernadotte was a washer-woman of Paris, and Terrence was a slave. We learn that the greatest heroes, and some of the greatest statesmen and orators both ancient and modern could boast no patrician advantage, no capital in gold, to start with. But, like the giant oak that stands alone contending with a violent storm, they stood firmly and unitedly at their posts of duty; and, basing their principle upon self reliance, mounted the ladder of success and fame.

Sirs, the lives of the greatest men tell us plainly that there is yet hope in the future. I know there are hills and rebuffs on before us. I know our path is a rugged one. There may be swells in the way. There may issue antagonist and demons to await us. But like Confucius and others, no sooner than the bow is bent, we must direct the arrow. We can claim no Moses as yet; nor can we boast of a Confucius. That Moses or that Confucius is yet to rise up from amongst us. So far as I can see, all our hope, all our joy, all that we are, and all that we can be must lie in the present and future. Princes shall come out of Egypt; Etophia shall stretch out her hands unto God. It is so stated in the Bible.

Letter from Winona.

Winona, Miss., Sept. 2d, 1882.

Dear Editor: I thought it quite likely that some one of our many readers would be glad to know how we are progressing. I came to this charge February the 1st. I found the work in a very poor condition, both spiritually and financially. There was a great want of organization and anything else but method in the management of the church affairs generally. There was no house for the preacher nor could one be procured. So we got the brethren together under the leadership of Bro. J. H. Simpson, one of the officers of the church, a man of zeal and one who loves to work for the cause. We went forward, purchased a lot at the cost of $100, and soon erected a building, one large room and kitchen at a cost of something over $120, which is well nigh paid for. When enclosed and completed will be quite a desirable little parsonage. When I came to this work I had just began to be convalescent from general dropsy, heart and liver troubles. I am still troubled with heart or sick dropsy, though notwithstanding I have every week or ten days to cut out from three quarts to a gallon of water from the chest, I have never missed an appointment. I closed on the 20th August a protracted meeting with the following result: Coverts 29. backsliders reclaimed 5, received from the Baptists 7. Total 41. Bro. S. Cowan was with us and rendered us good service. Elder Bradford and Bro. Trotter, of Grenada, also paid us a visit. Our presiding elder G. W. Barney remained with us through the greater part of our meeting and gave us the benefit of his counsel as well as his old fashioned sledge hammer sermons, which generally drove conviction to the heart. The elder held our quarterly meeting on the 19th and 20th. Baptized 10 infants, administered the sacrament to 130. We are greatly outnumbered here by our Baptist brethren, who are very unchristian like and intolerant. They did everythig they could to prevent the success of our meeting, and as the churches are in stone throw of each other, they were enabled to annoy us very much under the pretext of carrying on meeting of some sort themselves. They would get after our converts and try to coax and persuade them off, and tell them they could not even hope to be saved unless they were buried in the water, as that was the way Christ went, and of course it must be done by a Baptist. We are having a hard fight here. Pray for us and this people, that their minds may be illumined with the light of truth, and that their leaders hearts may be made as soft as their heads. I hope the next time your assistant pays a visit to Mississippi he will give us a call, as I think jointly we will be able to do something for the Southwestern. It would be a God send if it could be put in every family in all this section. Faithfully.

A. K. Davis

The astronomers who recently went to Egypt to witness the total eclipse of the sun, describe the fright of the natives when the mysterious darkness crept over the land, and the sun seemed to have been extinguished in the heavens. There went up a shout of wonder and horror from the crowd collected along the banks of the Nile and around the observing station of the astronomers, as the last gleam of sunlight disappeared. The excitement of the natives was increased when they saw on the right of the hidden sun the form of a flaming cimeter. It was a near comet, whose existence had not been suspected before. It had been concealed in the sun's rays, and the sudden withdrawal of the light of the great luminary revealed its hidden place. Such is the constitution of the human mind, that probably a thousand astronomers would be unable to convince the ignorant dwellers along the Nile that that sword-like comet was not an omen of the warlike events that have since taken place in Egypt.—Exchange.

The pastor will do well to remember that the bare statement of a general truth will have little force until it is indorsed by definite facts or enlivened by fresh illustration. The average hearer will not enjoy discourses that are pure abstractions, even though they be profoundly logical.

A lad crawled into a sugar hogshead and his first exclamation was, "Oh, for a thousand tongues!"

From Our Mission Rooms.

Rev. George B. Smyth, of the Newark Conference, a graduate of Drew Theological Seminary, who has been appointed by Bishop Wiley to the Foochow Mission, left New York for his field of labor September 2. He will receive ordination under the missionary rule at the session of the Iowa Conference in Muscatine, Iowa, and expects to sail from San Francisco in the steamer Rio Janerio, September 19. Mr. Smyth will devote himself to our important educational work in the Anglo-Chinese college.

Rev. N. Sites has returned to Foochow from a visit of thirty-five days among the cities and towns of Kacheng and Yuegping districts and reports "much encouragement" in the work. At Foochow the arrival of re-enforcements for college work is eagerly looked for.

India. The Decennial Missionary Conference which will assemble at Calcutta in December next will be organized under the presidency of Sir Henry Ramsey, who has often proved himself so good a friend to our and to other missions in India.

A special interest is awakened at present in the various India missions on the subject of united prayer for Christian work in that land. The laborers seem to be conscious of the great need of succor from heaven—of a more abundant effusion of the Spirit for sanctification and conversion. There seems to be a stay of progress in many quarters. An Indian Pentecostal Prayer Union has been formed to which attention is called in the Indian Witness. This Union is a simple agreement of Christian believers in different parts of India (and many have signified by name their co-operation) to unite their faith in a special prayer for a general outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon: (1) All truly converted people. (2) All clergy, ministers and missionaries, (2) All unconverted Europeans and Eurasians. (4) The vast masses of the heathen. (5) The world at large. No absolute rule is imposed, but Sunday is suggested as a suitable day for united petitions.

The Witness of July 1 concludes a series of six interesting and helpful papers on "The Native Sunday School," by Rev. J. E. Scott, our missionary at Sertapore. These papers discuss the importance, scope, organization, teachers, teaching and needs of the Sunday-school.

The Zenana work at Roy Bareilly has greatly increased within the past two months. Frequent instances give evidence of substantial progress. A woman reported to the lady missionary a fact which gave the latter great encouragement. Several women were gathered at a well discussing the subject (now the usual topic of conversation) of Christianity and its mission work among the women. An old Brahmin Pandit was present who though carrying on his Puja, became an interested listener. Bye and bye the Brahmin spoke and told them that several religions and people had had their day. This was the "yug" of the Christians and their religion. There was nothing objectionable in what they taught and no harm could come of it. "Go to them," he said, "listen to what they say and learn from them, for you can only gain good." These words of their Pandit were heard with astonishment and joy by the women who were already deeply stirred in their own hearts.

Italy Mission. A very desirable property for our Mission has now been secured by Dr. Vernon at Bologna. A suitable church will soon be erected there. The location cannot be surpassed, being on one side of the Piazza Communale and forming an angle with one of the principal streets of the city. It is in close proximity to the Exchange, the Hotel d'Italie, the official telegraph station and all the government offices. A successful course of polemical lectures was held in the locality hitherto to occupied by us, in Via Urbana, during the month of May and June. Nine persons have recently joined our church on probation, all of whom are men of substantial social position.

That Monthly Missionary's Letter. A very interesting letter from Rev. M. C. Harris of the Japan Mission is ready at the Mission Rooms for the superintendents of all Sunday-schools organized as missionary societies, who will apply for it. We ask the attention of pastors and superintendents. Send for this letter to read at your next Sunday-school missionary meeting, and you shall have not only that but the succeeding letters monthly; all from different parts of the great field. We wait your application.

Hooduism and Fetichism.

A Florida correspondent writes to N. Y. Witness:

"Our people, as a race, have made rapid advancements since their emancipation. They are rising to intellectual and moral manhood. Their improvement is to be seen mostly in our cities, the centers of civilization and improvement, but in secluded places in the country their progress is slow. I pen these lines to your most excellent paper, hoping they would do much good. I appeal to our ministers and members in some of our churches for a more intelligent form of worship, and hope they will read, reflect, and listen to reason.

"It is now nearly twenty years since freedom dawned, yet some of us, in the dark corners and nooks of our land, hold on to some of slavery's practices. Now, why should this be? Cannot we learn? Are our minds dead to reason? or is it that we would rather grope in the dark and be looked upon as little less than heathen by the more intelligent races? God is a Spirit, and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and truth. He requires the worship of the mind, the intellect, the spiritual part of man. Ministers of the Gospel, it is for you to lift up the people! Cease not to battle for the right, and God will crown your efforts with success. All the circumstances that surround us demonstrate the necessity for the education of our people and ministry.

"Brethren, tell the people that this Hoodou dance is a heathen practice. In Africa they worship the different objects in nature—the sun, moon, stars, animals of all kinds, etc. Some tribes worship snakes. They put one in a pot, and, while it is boiling, they worship it previous to the eating it. They form themselves in a circle close to each other, and shuffle around in a ring-dance, some two or three standing aside clapping their hands singing, "Hoodou, Hoodou, Lungo, Lungo," making a terrible noise, those in this shuffling Houdou dance joining in the singing. Thus you see, it is a heathen form of worship. It is true you do not worship a snake and sing "Hoodou, Lungo," but you go through the same motions and dance, with songs with no sense in them.

"This practice was handed down to us in the dark days of slavery; but God has opened the way for us and expects better things of us. It is setting a miserable example for the rising generation. Some of our people did not know it was a heathen practice; now they are learning, and, of course, they will become ashamed of it and stop. It has died out of many of the city churches, yet in some instances it has revived, and lifts its monster head. In the emigration of our people from one part of the country to another, they carried with them this Hondon dance and Fetichism. The influence on the children is terribly bad. Those who go to school and learn better things, lose respect for those who practice the Houdou shout and Ebo dance. And those who are brought up in ignorance will take to the practice, believing that it is right. Often the children at their play-ground amuse themselves with it, and call it fine fun and have a jolly time with it. The car of progress is running onward, and all such things as Hoodou shouts and dances must give way or they will be run over and be thrown in the ditch by the intelligent and refined.

Jacksonville, Fla.

Senator Sherman made a political speech at Mansfield in which he is reported to have said: "The Sunday and the liquor questions are an irrepressible conflict" which must be met. He was in favor of the observance of the Sabbath. His father, and his mother, and all his ancestors believed in it. All civilized nations had a Sabbath. The men and women who founded this nation believed in and observed the Sabbath. Why should any particular class of men interfere with the Sabbath? Why should all kinds of business stop, and only saloon-keepers monopolize the Sabbath for their business? He said these men should be heavily taxed to help pay for the expense of the pauperism and crime they cause. He was not so fastidious as some on the temperance question, but was deeply impressed with the untold evils arising from intemperance.

Final Victory Sure.

Freethinkers and blasphemers of the Ingersoll school, who make a mock of sin, and despise and ridicule certain things that devout people love, are no new comers in this world. Like the plague and cholera they have existed in all ages, and will, we suppose, exist a little while longer to talk about the "cruelty, malice, and heartlessness of God," and ridicule religious people. "Nevertheless, the foundation of God standeth sure; having this seal: 'The Lord knoweth them that are his.'" We do not propose to be dogmatic on this subject. We admit that there are difficulties of a perplexing character to be encountered by all students who may desire to know and be governed by the law of God. At the same time we do not propose to make any apology for Christianity. We do not belong to that fraternity. Infidels have done their best, and have miserably failed. Every arrow they have shot has been broken. "Christianity is not contending for a foothold on this earth. Its roots are deep in the soil. It is a great, long-established, widespread, and still advancing religion." We can throw away all of our fears. The victory is sure. No mocking devil shall tauntingly say: "Ye began to build, but were not able to finish." Just for a moment look at the immense spread of the Gospel. Look at the vast congregations and crowds who flock to hear it. Look all over this country, and across the Atlantic and the grand old Pacific, and see how the leaven of Christianity is permeating every nook and corner of earth. Aha! Look at the islands of the sea. In our boyhood days some of these were fierce cannibals; they cooked and ate each other. They had never heard of the name of Jesus, but now they are a Christian people, and have a Christian government.

To us the signs of the times are full of promise, and while we sympathize so far as we can with the doubting and groaning ones, we are frank to say that we do not understand them. We have read the harangues of Ingersoll, but the granite foundation stands firmer and fairer than ever. More and more the truth prevails. Its final triumph is sure.

"Show This to Your Colored Neighbor."

These words in bold letters, in a paper of the Church South, which is read mostly by white people, attracted our attention, and we proceed to see what followed. The notice proved to be an advertisement, wherein the white readers of the paper were requested to call the attention of their colored neighbors to the cheap and extraordinary advantages offered colored young men and women, to obtain a good education at a merely nominal figure at a certain school. The price per month for board, tuition, fuel, light and furnished room is so small that any young man or woman who has any ambition at all to be educated cannot fail to secure the necessary funds with which to attend. All over this Southern country such advantages are being scattered in the midst of these people, schools built up for all young persons who have a purpose in life, and for the colored in particular. Why not avail yourselves of these benefits? We approve of the sentiment in the advertisement; only we would not have it limited to the "colored neighbors," but we would let the message be told to all neighbors, and we would invite them all in to partake of these blessings of Christian education, not only as neighbors but as brethren. This is good advice; if you know of any good thing for your neighbor, tell it to them, whether he occupies the red, white, yellow, black, or brown house which God gave him in which to live.

No man can be a messenger who is not sent. No man can be an agent unless he is appointed. No man can be an embassador who is not duly commissioned. No man can speak for God unless He sends him and tells him where to go, and what to say. Yet all over this land there are men who are declaring as God's truth their dreams and impressions. The church is in some trouble to-day from men who [illegible] their dreams and [illegible] for the truth of God. They claim to represent God, but he has never sent them. Dreams and impressions [illegible] God's word [illegible] [illegible] a man [illegible] and where He [illegible]

A Salvation Jubilee.

J. O. Peck, D. D., in the Christian Advocate gives an account of a "Thanksgiving Jubilee" he attended in London, of the Salvation Army, at Alexandria Place and Park. It was the eighteenth anniversary of their history, and was attended by over 30,000 people. In describing the meeting Dr. Peck says:

Thousands of the Salvation Army were there in uniform, or wearing their badges. All over the grounds they were holding "holiness" meetings, which blended the best type of the old-fashioned camp-meeting and a negro revival meeting, with bands and banners superadded. Some things seemed grotesque, but the blood-red earnestness and downright sincerity and aggressive boldness in winning sinners to Christ were beyond question. Every man and woman converted who could play any musical instrument in their sinful life, is welcomed into the "band" with that instrument "converted" to play for Christ. Hence in their "bands" were seen not only drums and brass instruments, but violins, accordeons, dulcimers, tambourines, banjos, and triangles. All these instruments playing, with hundreds of voices singing, was anything but ridiculous, however grotesque. This movement cannot be laughed down. It has a future, I opine, that few dream of. It is doing a work that needs to be done, and has in it, I believe, an inspiration of God.

O happy day
When Jesus washed my sins away,

Perhaps there are but few American Christians who will approve of all the methods of the Salvation Army, the military titles of their preachers, their war cry of "blood and fire," this so called "knee drills" and hallelujah merry go rounds" may seem shocking, but nevertheless they are doing good; they are reaching the lower classes as no others are doing. And Dr. Peck truly says:

Methodism in the United States must return to this work among the neglected masses, or God will find some other instrument and remand her to the "tomb of the Capulets."

We have no taste for anything that is grotesque or ridiculous, nor have we any special fondness for icy churches or Christians. We like a form, but do not want it frozen. We welcome all agencies that have a tendency to lead men to forsake their sins and help them to overcome the world, the flesh and the devil.

The concerts given by the troupe of Jubilee Singers at Union Chapel and Central Church recently were highly entertaining, and reflected much credit not only upon the participants, but upon the race represented. We have never heard any thing like it in this city. The Jubilee choruses especially, the familiar old plantation songs of our people's bondage, set to music, were rendered with such effectiveness as to thrill every chord of emotional sensation. The troupe, composed of Misses Tilly Jones, L. Parker, A. Murray, Mrs. M. Depuy, Mrs. Yarrington, and Messrs. A. Landry, J. Depuy, C. B. Wilson, and C. J. Dowden, were loudly and enthusiastically applauded. Where all did so well, it is hard to make exact comparison; but to Miss Tilly Jones the palm seems to belong. Her rendition of the solos "When 'tis Moonlight," by White, and "The Cows are in the Corn," by Leslie, shows her to be a singer of the highest order, and entitles her to the proud distinction of a veritable prima donna. She, with Miss Parker, who are to be joined in a few weeks by Mr. Wilson and others of the troupe, who are already North, have a year's engagement in California and the Great West. We wish them many good things.

A dispatch from Salt Lake City, Utah, says:

John Taylor, George Q. Smith and Jos. F. The Arkansas Election.

The Bourbon press is singularly silent on the subject of the State election held in Arkansas on the 4th instant. For the first time since 1876 the Republicans placed a ticket in the field, the shot gun policy making it futile to attempt an election in 1878 and 1880. Gov. Churchill expressed a desire for the good name of the State that Republicans should be allowed to vote this year. The correspondent of the Globe Democrat of St. Louis, an eye witness of the scenes he describes, writes from Helena, that the Republicans of Phillips county on two occasions made this distinct proposal to the Democratic County Committee, that Republicans should be permitted to vote the State and Legislative tickets, leaving the Democrats unopposed as to their county officers. Republicans also asked for one judge of election and one clerk at each precinct, which the law plainly authorizes them to have. The Democrats, however, refused to enter into any combination of this kind, but gave a pledge in writing that there should be a fair election and fair returns. Some two weeks ago Gov. Churchill sent over his private Secretary and Adjutant General, to whom the Democratic County Committee were profuse in statements that there should be no intimidation or falsification of returns. On Sunday night, 3d inst., the Court House was filled with armed men, wearing badges on which were lettered the words "Deputy Sheriff." At 4 a. m. the doors were barricaded, and these men elected judges and clerks from their own number. At 7:30 when the Republican candidates for judge and clerk appeared, to act according to law in the election by citizens at the poll of judges and clerks, they were told these had already been elected. On suggesting that Gov. Churchill had advised them the Republicans had the privilege, in case they were refused a judge or clerk, to establish another poll and vote there, the crowd declared it should not be done, and every ballot must go into the place they had provided. This was at once telegraphed to Gov. Churchill.

The poll opened at 7:45, the whole machinery being in Democratic hands, with only a hole a few inches in diameter to connect the judges and clerks with the outside world. Through this hole the tickets disappeared, to be disposed of as it suited the inside parties. Republicans made use of coupon tickets so as to detect the frauds that might be attempted, but the coupon holders were assaulted and robbed of the coupons, and an end made of that effort of precaution. While this was going on deputy sheriffs and others, flourishing revolvers, ordered the crowds to disperse, a thousand or so of negroes were frightened off not to return, and of course did not vote. The old trick was resorted to of so arranging the polling places that voters would have to travel miles to reach them. At the Presidential election of 1880 2,300 Republicans and 900 Democratic votes were cast in Phillips county. The frauds perpetrated at Helena are to give credentials to Democratic office seekers.

The correspondent of the Globe Democrat, while in the telegraph office, was surrounded by Democrats who demanded to know what he was there for, and assured him it was a Democratic county and they wanted no interference in their affairs. A sheet of paper was placed before him, he was given a pen and directed to write down the names of the persons from whom he had obtained information. Said the spokesman: "We know that you are sending off a mass of slanders and lies about this town, and we are going to know who has been giving them to you. You come down here and telegraph this trash, and hurt our business. Now you may just put those names down there, or you may skip. Take your choice."

As not one of these persons or any other had seen his dispatches, and as he had visited all places of interest during the day, it was certainly the knowledge of guilt that prompted this demand, which the correspondent firmly declined to comply with. He was escorted on the way to his hotel by City Marshal Mooney, Capt. Barlow, of the State Militia, and others, and took boat for Friar's Point. From thence, next day he returned to near Helena and visited different points in the county.

At other points in the State masked men destroyed ballot boxes, technicalities were availed of to throw out Republican ballots. At all points where a fair election was allowed the Republicans made large gains, and will increase their number in the Legislature and county offices. Of course the State has gone Democratic.

This table certainly deserves careful study, and should give an idea of the magnitude of the work still to be accomplished by the advocates of temperance and prohibition. These figures ought to give inspiration for even greater efforts for the redemption of our land from the curse of rum. We notice Louisiana ranking seventh, and by eight points leading all the Southern States on this "Devil's Roll of Honor." What proud Louisianian would have thought it? Louisiana ranks from nineteen to twenty-four degrees higher upon this black roll than either of our boundary neighboring States, Texas, Arkansas or Mississippi.

Of the thirty-eight States, South Carolina makes the best temperance record. This we cannot understand; for the reason that this real post of honor is incompatible with all the broils and bloodshed that have cursed that State since the war. We need some light here.

The candidates for Congress from the Third district of Louisiana are all nominated. The question is now practically before the people, "For which one of them shall we cast our ballots?" The duty to vote requires no argument, it is the highest in the exercise of citizenship. The selection of candidates to vote for demands intelligent consideration. One of the three men who seek the suffrages of the Third district, is Mr. Joseph H. Acklen, who secured a Democratic nomination at a very early date. It is not necessary to refer to a past unsavory record, for there is sufficient in his conduct after receiving the nomination to condemn him in the sight of honest and well-meaning citizens. His personal visit to Baton Rouge during the closing hours of the session of the late General Assembly; and the subsequent promulgation of the infamous election law, adopted on his advice and suggestion, are urgent reasons for his continued retirement in private life. Says the Donaldsonville Chief: "We reproduced last week a well-considered article from the Assumption Pioneer—evidently written by that distinguished citizen and Democrat, Col. W. W. Pugh—wherein the law is criticized in thoughtful and earnest language that must carry conviction to all unbiased minds. Other journals have expressed similar views, and it is apparent that the sentiment of the best elements of Louisiana Democracy is adverse to the amended law regulating the conduct of elections."

Tradition says that John Quincy Adams during his long service in Congress was never known to be late. One day the clock had struck and a member said to the Speaker, "It is time to call the house to order." "No," said the Speaker, "Mr. Adams is not in his seat yet." Just at that moment Mr. Adams appeared, but the clock was three minutes too fast. The tenth rule for a preacher's conduct in the Methodist Discipline reads as follows: "Be punctual. Do everything exactly at the time. And do not mend our rules, but keep them, not for wrath, but conscience sake." We know of some preachers who forget to observe this rule.

The residents of Cleveland county, N. C., have held an indignation meeting to take steps to compel the emissaries of the Mormons, who have for several months been endeavoring to make converts in that section of the country, to leave. And unless the missionaries depart bloodshed may be expected. This Mormon system should not, for a moment, be tolerated, but deserves in every instance to be summarily dealt with.

Alexander H. Stephens, weighing 108 pounds, and looking more robust than he has for years, has opened the campaign in Georgia. Gartrell, the opposition candidate, is popular, and is making such a vigorous canvass that the Democratic party leaders have decided to draw the color line against him, and thus defeat him. Some of the leaders think Mr. Stephens should be substituted for a younger and more active man. This color line is a murderous one, and ought to be obliterated. It portends no good to the nation, to the South or to either race. Don't retrace it, but blot it out.

Editorial Correspondence.

On the 2d of September at high twelve I left New Orleans for a short visit among the churches. Sometimes I hear the remark of this or that church that it is "the coldest, the loneliest place that a Christian can go to." What is the cause? The preacher lays the fault upon the people, and the people in turn lay it at the ministers feet. But if we come at the root of the matter we shall doubtless find that there is a crying need of more grace in the hearts of both ministers and people. Sometimes a word is said about the SOUTHWESTERN, when the preacher with a "hung down head" and wicked heart says, "I cannot get the people to pay for the paper, they say they like it, but they will not pay for it," when in fact he has made no effort in that direction, and the little money that some good brother or sister who loves the ADVOCATE has handed to him he has consumed on his own lusts. It was a sad mistake when the Bishop laid his hands on that man's skull. Let us speak plainly. The conferences have passed the character, beslavered, and whitewashed these guilty ones too long. A little wholesome discipline will help to correct some of the moral obliquities.

At Terrebonne, the honeymoon continues; in fact, the relation between pastors and people seems to wax sweeter and sweeter. Bro. Carr is a Christian gentleman. No uncertainties, no mobocracy in his administration. The church is putting on strength and moving up. All reports were in perfect order.

John Randolph, of Virginia, once charged his opponents with being the party of seven principles "five loaves and two fishes." At Houma the Republicans have not been able to agree upon their congressional candidate, and each faction charges the other with being after the "loaves and fishes," and here doubtless they tell the truth. But Bro. Ford is steering clear of these breakers, and the Church in her work is moving on harmoniously and strongly. We fear that along the latter part of November some of the men who have entered into this political canvass will feel a softness of brain that is incompatible with real success in life, and themselves in morals a little decayed. The writer always pities the Methodist preacher who leaves the Gospel for politics, he knows that he is on the road to ruin, and is close by the half-way house to perdition, and when he dies he is sure to be buried in the pauper section of the cemetery.

The Methodist preacher who is either too proud or lazy to work has a speck in his character that will rot to the core, he belongs to a class that are afflicted with what theologians call a hereditary bias to badness, and depend upon it that man will go to the bad. At the last session of the Louisiana Conference Bishop Peck sent Rev. H. C. Armston to Live Oak, where we had about twenty members, but not a nickle of church property. The church was duly organized, trustees were elected, and Hon. G. D. Cragin, the proprietor of the Dulac plantation gave a deed of a piece of land well suited for church and parsonage. Bro. Armston does not belong to the tribe of roving warriors. He saw what was needed, and earnestly applied himself to the one work of erecting a church. Application was made to the Church Extension Society for a donation of $200, the request was granted and the money sent. Bro. Armston, like his Master, was the son of a carpenter, and has with his own hands framed and will have ready for dedication on the second Sabbath in October a church 25x40, and fifteen feet posts with eight suitable windows all complete, without debt. The pulpit is a perfect gem. We have had some experience in the South in erecting churches, but in no instance have we seen so good a church for the amount of money. One good thing most always makes way for another. Every church and congregation needs a parsonage. Already our people at Live Oak are moving in this direction, they have the lumber bought on the ground and paid for, and Bro. Armston, D. V., will have the parsonage complete and occupied at the time of the dedication of the church. There is at and around Live Oak an open door, a wonderful opportunity to gather a good church and congregation. The fields are white and ready for the harvest. We can only wish Bro. Armston as much success in gathering the people into the fold of the Lord Jesus as he has had in erecting the church and parsonage.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Col. Thos. P. May is in the city.

—The Hon. W. W. Astor, the newly appointed Minister to Italy, sails in October.

—Senator Plumb opened the Kansas campaign, coming out squarely for St. John and prohibition.

—Hon. E. John Ellis painfully injured a leg while stepping down from a car to shake hands with a friend, while on his way to this city.

—Albert C. Janin, the independent candidate for Congress in the First district has been endorsed by the Greenback Labor party. He is an accomplished scholar and gentleman.

—Rev. D. W. Hayes, of Chattanooga, Tenn., had the misfortune to lose his little daughter Florence. She died in Murfreesboro where she had accompanied her mother on a visit.

—Rev. S. Duncan, presiding elder of the Shreveport district, Louisiana conference, has been in poor health for two months past, and is now recruiting at his home in Carrollton, La.

—Senator Logan, of Illinois, will go to with his family on a pleasure trip to New Mexico, where his son-in-law is about to settle. If his health does not improve, he will take no part in the fall campaign.

—Dr. O. P. Fitzgerald, editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate, has been ill since the Southern General Conference, and has improved but little since he left Nashville. He is at Emory, Va., the guest of Prof. Hoss, and surrounded by kind friends.

—W. B. Smith, Esq., of St Mary parish, called last Saturday. He is in the enjoyment of excellent health, and as a careful leader expects to assist in bringing out a heavy vote in his parish for the Republican nominees. Senator Kellogg will undoubtedly receive a large majority of the St. Mary vote for Congressman.

—Dr. J. M. Buckley, editor of the Christian Advocate, New York, is obtaining celebrity as a pedestrain. He preached at Plymouth, New Hampshire, on a recent Sunday, and the next morning walked to his summer home at Greeley's, twenty miles away, in six hours and a half. He evidently is a good traveler.

—Mlle. Berethe Marie de Rothschilds, daughter of the head of the Frankfort branch of that family, will be married to day to Prince Alexandre DeWagram. As a necessary preliminary to the ceremony, Mlle. Berethe received Christian baptism. Prior to the ceremony she formally signed an abjuration of the Jewish faith.

—Mr. G. W. Childs, it is said, is very anxious to get his friend, Gen. Grant, in the Episcopal Church. But he does not seem to be progressing much. The General says that while the Methodist Church service is short and the sermon long, the Episcopal Church service is long and the sermon short, which, as he expresses it, makes six of one and half a dozen of the other.—Pittsburgh Advocate.

—The numerous friends of Gen. A. S. Badger were gratified to hear that he had taken unto himself a wife. Rev. Hugh Miller Thompson, at Trinity church, last Saturday evening, performed the ceremony. The bride was Miss Blanche Bluean, a young Creole lady, whose beauty of person and qualities of mind are highly commended by those of her acquaintance. We wish the couple a long and happy wedded life.

An Indian Territory special says the trial of thirteen prisoners, taken during the rebellion in the Creek nation, has been concluded at Cane Hill, the verdict being guilty, and the punishment was fixed at 100 lashes on the bare back. Chief Chevote refused to pardon the condemned rebels, although two-thirds of the jury and many Indians had signed the petition praying him for executive clemency. The sentence of the court was duly carried into effect, the whipping being witnessed by a large crowd. Two or three of the culprits almost fainted, but a majority exhibited iron nerve. The infliction of the punishment was a spectacle never to be forgotten.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

J. Gould, pastor at Simpson Chapel, New Orleans, reports on the 3rd instant, excellent attendance at services. Many spoke for their Savior, and the sacrament was administered to sixty persons.

Our brethren at First Street, with Bro. Montgomery as pastor, are having a year of peace and prosperity. The congregations are large, and doubtless would be larger could the people be accommodated. The Sunday-school, with Bro. Y. A. Campbell, is accomplishing a good work. This is one of the best schools in the city. The report, from the class leaders is one of the best we have ever had: No. 1, 48 members, 25 visits of class leaders, $14 55 collection; No. 2, 30 members, 74 visits, 16 30 collection; No. 3, 50 members, 36 visits, 7 30 collection; No. 4, 40 members, 4 visits, 6 05 collection; No. 5, 51 members, 13 visits, 8 75 collection; No. 6, 45 members, 17 visits, 15 35 collection; No. 7, 51 members, 79 visits, 10 85 collection; No. 8, 36 members, 57 visits, 5 95 collection; No. 9, 25 members, 13 visits, 9 50 collection; No. 10, 38 members, 36 visits, 5 60 collection; No. 11, 43 members, 21 visits, 5 30 collection; No. 12, 12 members, 6 visits, .60 collection.

Number twelve is a new class recently formed. Relatively, class number nine has collected the most money, and class number eleven the least. The leader of class number two has made the most visits, that of number four the fewest. Had all the classes done as well relatively as number nine the class collections would have been $220. Let us provoke one another by love and good works.

As a result of the glorious revival the Lord gave the Sixth Street Methodist Episcopal Church last March, Bro. Dyer, their pastor, at a love-feast held last Monday night, received forty-four into full connection with the Church. Of necessity, Sixth Street will have to enlarge her borders. The church will not accommodate the people who want to make that place their religious home.

MISSISSIPPI.

Rev. N. Cannon informs us that at Pearlington an entertainment was given by three ladies not members, for the purpose of painting the church. Their names are: Mrs. Josephine Burton, Mrs. Louisa Goodridge, Mrs. Matilda Burton. It was liberally patronized by the community.

John Eanes, of Starkville, writes us some particulars of the death of Hon. C. A. Sullivan, which took place on July 5, 1882. He was a true Republican, gave good advice, advocated peace between the races. On his death bed he desired colored brethren to come to his house and commune with him, and they did so, visiting him on several occasions. He also requested his colored friends to attend his funeral. Bro. Eanes says, "It is not common to see a white man in the South who thinks enough of colored men as to want them to commune with him."

A. Lemons, Durant: "Third quarterly conference was held at Lexington, July 29, by presiding elder G. W. Barney. Finding the Lexington church in debt, and very few members, we also found that they were willing to improve the church and lift the debt by Oct. 1. The following are the subscribers to that end: Mary Dyson $6, Martha Haynes 50, Minerva Nallis 1, Eliza Huston 1, Martha Brown 1, Amanda Williams 1, Puse Wade 1, Louisa Hinly 1, Alice Giles 1, Lou Bowe 10, M. M Geddings 1, Sarah Jane Davis 1, Mollie Giles 1, Dilsa C. Lowers .50, Darcy Ford 1, Booker Coleman 2, A. Harrington 1 50, B. Hoover 5, H. Brown 1, W. Nolley 1, S. Wright 50, H. Sapho 1, A. Coleman 2, H. Eskridge 2 50, J. D. Weatherby 2, S. W. Weatherby 1, J. Austin 1, W. H. Geddings 3, D. Jones 1, J. S. Austin 1, J. W. Williams 1, S. J. Hatcher 5, A. Lemons 2·50, S. Ford 3, J. Rhinehardt 5, H. Hamilton 5, W. Suber .50, D. Wright .50."

TEXAS.

E. Jefferson, Huntsville: "Protracted meetings have closed at three of our appointments, with thirty on probation, five backsliders reclaimed. The two Sunday-schools are in fair condition, and the work is prospering."

James R. Price has written us a letter from Spring, detailing hardships suffered this year. It appears that the pastor who preceded him had been removed, and the church sought to visit their revenge upon Bro. Price. He was not welcomed, he could not find shelter for his family, save for a time at Hartley; from thence he removed to Houston, but returned to Hartley again. At this point members are moving away, and Bro. Price fears the work will be broken up. But through all conflicts the good brother has stood by his commission from the Bishop, has made converts, and more are coming. He asks for prayers and sympathy.

TENNESSEE.

G. J. Wilcox, Capleville: "Our quarterly institute was held by Elder J. P. Price, Aug. 18th to the 20th; opened with singing and prayer by Rev. M. Morrison, reading 1st Psalm by G. J. Wilcox, the programme by W. S. Brandon, and a welcome address by Rev. James Beaver. An essay, "what is a Sunday-school institute" was read by E. J. Wilcox, followed by a short drill in the catechism by Elder J. P. Price, and a review of the lessons from Jan. 1 to May 7 by Superintendent S. B. Danly. Topics discussed: "What is the best time to open Sunday-school," by James Beaver; "How may home help the Sunday-school," by J. W. B. Matthews; "The duty of church members to the Sunday-school," by Rev. O. Sanders; "How long should a Sunday-school session continue," by S. Garth; "How much time should be given to the class study of the lesson," by Miss E. J. Wilcox. Essays: G. J. Wilcox, "Amusement;" W. S. Brandon, "The Bible;" Miss Rosie Johnson, "Mind your own business;" Miss Annie Wilcox, "What to do;" Miss Louisa Browne, "Half a dozen more;" Miss A. J. Thompson, "Two words to parents;" Miss Sarah McKinney, "How to conduct family prayers; C. W. Roberson, "The law of parents;" Madison McKinney, "Politeness." Verses—Mrs. Ritter Roberson, the leaven of the Pharisees, Mark 8; Miss Sarah Franklin, Matt. 19; Mrs. Sarah Ann Holmes, Matt. 25; Miss Nancy Jane Matthews, John the 9th; Miss Nettie Matthews, Luke the 11th; An essay by Mrs. Barbara Phillip, "Our Duty," and Mr. W. R. Allee, "Personal Liberty." At love feast one hundred spoke. Raised for the presiding elder $12 40. Total collection on that day $18 90. A large collection at the communion table, two additions to the church; also a large number at the altar for prayer."

San Antonio District.

MR. EDITOR: I take this occasion to place before the District Stewards of San Antonio District the following facts: Dear brethren, after patiently enduring the scarcity for a long time, I feel it my duty to lay the matter before you. After using the strictest economy, I find myself sinking farther in debt, and without means to lift myself out of it. I take this occasion to inform you of this fact. My house rent is only $40 a year, but wood, water and provisions are had at very high figures. Living on the plainest fare, [illegible] from no extravagance whatever. The extent of territory I am obliged to travel, to reach parts of the district, has caused heavy expenditures out of the means placed in my hands to meet these wants. I [illegible] believe the people everywhere on the district have shared with their presiding elder liberally during the long season of scarcity. I believe also that the pastors have co-operated with you in having them to do so. My attention heretofore has been called to other important matters of the district, so that this particular matter has been neglected by the writer till now. A district conference might have obviated this matter as well as [illegible] very beneficial otherwise. [illegible] knowledge of the distance [illegible] you would have to travel [illegible] such a meeting, has [illegible] very strongly against the [illegible] of its convening, together with heavy and immediate [illegible] to each circuit and [illegible] to have the members at [illegible] in my judgment is beyond [illegible]. Further[illegible] in extensive districts like [illegible] [illegible] to have all [illegible] [illegible] a district [illegible], long lines of [illegible] are placing new advan[illegible] [illegible] parts of this exten[illegible] [illegible].

Yours affectionately,

For the SOUTHWESTERN

A Trip through Eastern Arkansas.

MR. EDITOR: Trusting that a few items respecting our trip to the District Conference would be of interest to the many readers of the SOUTHWESTERN, we send you a few notes which we observed on that occasion. In company with Rev. S. Neal, P. C. of this station, we boarded the train on the Iron Mountain & Helena Railroad Aug. 17th ult, and we were carried along through swamps, marshes, over creeks and brooks, amid beautiful farms that met our vision on either side. After several hours' riding we reached Forrest City (of which we will speak again), a beautiful town located at the junction of the Iron Mountain & Helena Railroad with the M. & L. R. R., where we were met by Bro. Beriah McClain (P. C) of Forrest City circuit, who spared no pains in making all necessary arrangements to show us out to the camp meeting then in session, five miles from town.

Having selected for us a place of lodging we were next conducted to the camp ground, where we met that untiring servant of God, elder I. G. Pollard, who appeared to be actively engaged giving each his meat in due season. We soon realized the power of the Holy Spirit and found ourselves in the midst of a glorious revival. The most interesting feature of the meeting was the Christians having all things common, while sinners were being convicted and mourners converted to Christ. Copious showers of mercy were poured upon us for three days, which proved that the Lord of hosts was there and made us feel that we were nearing the gate of the eternal city in the paradise of God. Surely we were blessed far beyond conception, and the result was truly remarkable. There were twenty-one conversions and twenty-five accessions to the church. Bro. B—— is certainly the right man in the right place, and it is truly remarkable to know how under God he had built up his work in this part of the rural vineyard. Be it said to his credit that under many trying difficulties he has overcome them all.

The services were largely attended, and we observed several persons of different nationalities, of various hues, all assembled on the ground, while the great spirit of truth seemed to have its effectual workings among all classes, proving that God is no respecter of person. Thus the good work went on until the holy day of rest—the Sabbath was ushered in. Just here we would pause, for surely language cannot describe the interest and character of the meeting on that memorable occasion. At an early hour a very large concourse of people had assembled to participate in the love feast. The battle was renewed upon Satan and his kingdom, and at 11:30 A. M. Elder Pollard preached the funeral discourse of Sister America McCain, who departed this life August, 1881, from Rev. xiv, 13 v. At this point many were willing to concede the victory to the great head of the church, and all joined in giving thanks and praises to God, who heareth the raven when it cries. The holy sacrament was administered, and many came forward and received the blessed emblems in commemoration of their dear Savior. At 8 p. m. Rev. Henry Dunlap (who late came to our church from the Baptist church) preached an able sermon to a very large congregation. Bro. D—— is an able minister, and at times it seemed that our souls were carried away far beyond sun, moon and stars. It certainly was a time long to be remembered by the people of Wesley Chapel and Telloo Bottom. The work of the M. E. Church is surely planted here and will survive all time and the wreck of worlds. On Monday, the 22d, the writer preached from Luke 15:19 v and owing to the short time left to us we were compelled to close our services on Monday night preparatory to the district conference. Tuesday the 23d we find ourselves again at Forrest City. This is a growing town of about 1200 inhabitants, and forms a junction of three railroads. It is also the capital of St. Francis county. Here we have a church building in process of erection. Our society is quite small at this place, but has several very active workers, among whom are Prof. H. M. Henry, James A. Roper, M. D., and Hon. A. M. Neely, all of whom are working earnestly for the completion of the new church-house. The future of this place is very hopeful owing to the fact that the sale of whisky is [illegible], the saloon doors are [illegible], I hope never to be opened [illegible]. We regret to say that [illegible] twin brother to [illegible] be simultaneous, still we are willing to wait, and when the former is dead the death of the latter is insured. We arrived next at Brinkley. This is a town of some note, and is the place where the lamented Bro. Todd, a companion in ministry with elder Pollard, was shot for the sake of truth, and from which he died. Bro. P—— showed us the place (at the rear end of an old saloon) where he escaped from his tormentors, and where he (Pollard) was handcuffed for bearing testimony to the same truth for which Rev. Todd had sacrificed his life.

After changing cars eeven miles further, we reached Saulsburg, the seat of the District Conference We were met here by Rev. H. H. McAllister (P. E.), who escorted us to the church—Todd's Chapel. Bro. McAllister though unwell, had made due preparations for the Conference's session. After spending a few minutes in Prof. J. F. Britton's day school, we were turned over to our friends, who spared no pains in securing comfortable places for our stay during the conference. Thursday the 24th was a beautiful day, and the morning train brought more membess of the conference, among whom were W. O. Emory, and Donahoo of Little Rock. The first day was spent in organizing and appointing various committees. And as I am forced to conclude, I must say that the entire session was harmonious, instructive and profitable. The attendance was large, and the spirit of sympathy seemed to be the chief characteristic; and the members were deeply interested in preparing their essays, which showed marked improvement in writing and serious thought on subjects discussed.

Those who visited our session during the day will bear us witness that the daily proceedings in our room was a scene of brotherly love, and the spirit of true Christian friendship was the chief ideal throughout. Among the lectures, we would mention one on Temperance, by Rev. W. O. Emory. He certainly knows something of the evil workings of "King Alcohol," and his lecture was an able one, and struck a death-blow at the great chieftain whose mission it is to baptize our land with tears, and to send 70,000 souls annually, unprepared, to appear before a just God. There were other lectures and essays that did much to promote every interest of the Church. On Sunday, the last day of our services, was an occasion that will not be soon forgotten. From every neighborhood we saw multitudes of people all pressing toward the house of God—Baptist, Presbyterians, Methodists, all were seen at the love feast, and at the sacramental board.

At 11 a. m. we listened to an able sermon by Elder Pollard, admonishing all to "walk in the spirit." Bro. W. O. Emory filled the stand at 3 p. m., and Elder G. B. Donelley at 7:30 p. m. Our collections were good, and at the close several joined the church, among whom was Prof. J. F. Britton. Bro. Britton has a very prosperous day-school, and he formerly belonged to the "Society of Friends." Thus ended one of the most interesting sessions that it was ever our privilege to attend.

If Secretary Henderson, of the Republican Congressional Committee at Washington, is furnishing money to pay the campaign expenses of ex-Congressman Chalmers in Mississippi, he is doing what the Republicans of the country cannot approve. Chalmers is a bad man; with a bad record, and from the time he led the massacre of the negroes at Fort Pillow until the present day he has done nothing with which the Republican party can have the slightest sympathy. The blood of innocent men is on his hands; his political career has been marked with fraud and intimidation and murder, and because the Democratic party has cast him out there is no reason why the Republican party should adopt him. His ambition to be elected to Congress as an independent candidate is based upon the hope of an opportunity to revenge himself upon the Democrats, and while the Republicans can afford to look on and see the fun, they cannot champion any such man without a sacrifice of principles and self-respect. It may not be true that the Congressional Committee is furnishing him with money to pay the expenses of his canvass, but the charge has been made so frequently without contradiction that people are beginning to believe it. —Inter Ocean.

THIRD QUARTER. LESSON XI. Sept 17 WATCHFULNESS ENJOINED. (Mark xiii, 21-37.)

Did you ever watch for any one? Can you watch when you are asleep? No, indeed; watching and sleeping don't go together. They drive one another away. Thieves come in the night when they know no one is watching. They pass by the houses where they see bright lights and hear voices. Now sins are thieves. Let us see what they are after. They are after your soul. The want to rob God. You belong to him, and sins can never get you without robbing God. Did you ever feel these bad thieves in your heart? We put locks and bolts on our doors to keep thieves out; so we ought to have a lock for our hearts. Just keep the name Jesus in your heart and it will keep these robbers away. All you need do is to watch while you are awake. God watches for you all night. He knows you need rest, so he wont let a single sin try to hurt your soul while you are asleep. Now, we can remember by one word, so we will print it—Watch. This is your light, and if you keep watching you can keep these wicked thieves away. When you see or feel them, if you ask Jesus to help, the you are safe from them all.—Western.

The governor of Iceland has published an appeal for aid, and reports a terrible famine among the people of that interesting island, a country which has flourished remarkably since it received its liberal constitution eight years ago. Food for the people and fodder for the stock must be obtained before winter sets in, or a terrible chapter of starvation and death will be written.

Taylor, candidate for county clerk, was abused at the courthouse and made to give up his tickets. Judge Bennett and Jacob Quiber were treated in a similar manner, and notified that they had better go home. The Eutaw (Ala.) Whig, a democratic paper with independent proclivities, says: "Jack Turner, colored, of Choctaw county, was last week accused by a number of citizens of heading a general conconspiracy to murder the whites. Popular clamor, from the evidence, seemed to think he was guilty, and accordingly he was hung. We are not prepared to pass on the sufficiency of the evidence upon which this popular verdict was given, but there is one thing we do know; he was not hung according to law. We have courts and juries constituted to deal with such offenses, and certainly this case has no element about it that called for mob law. Every one knows that the white race stand in no danger at the hands of the black race, for they are only a drop in a bucket full in point of power compared to the whites; nor has the past shown that they have the disposition to attempt to carry out this foolish idea. The only claim that mob law ever had to any respect was when the law of the land could not meet the case; but in this instance such was not the fact The colored problem has not yet been solved, but it can be laid down as a safe rule that we if show them justice we have both conscience and power on our side to command it of them."

Bayou Letsworthy, La.

In sorrow are we called upon to chronicle the death of Bro. Hardy Forrest, who departed a Christian life September 1st, 1882. Bro. Forrest has been a professor of religion for thirty years, and about fourteen years ago he became attached to Simpson Chapel, and it was only through death that he was willing to sever his connection with said church, hence in his death the church loses an efficient member, his wife a dutiful husband, and his son a kind friend. To them we say prove faithful as did Bro. Forrest and you shall meet him in heaven. His age was about sixty years. He was born in Stanly, N. C.

Forty Year's Experience of an Old Nurse

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is the prescription of one of the best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and has been used for forty years with never failing success by millions of mothers for their children. It relieves the child from pain, cures dysentery and diarrhoea, griping in the bowels, and wind-colic. By giving health to the child it rests the mother. Price twenty-five cents a bottle. 20-1y

On the 1st inst., Gov. McEnery commissioned the following appointees: "Louis M. Deverbois, constable, third ward of Iberville; Thos. Traiser, clerk of registration of Lafourche; W. H. Armstrong, clerk of registration, Sabine; Henderson Crawford, justice of the peace, fourth ward of St. Mary; Jean Bernard, justice, third ward of Lafayette; George McQuiller, constable third ward of Ouachita; Taylor Andrew, justice of the peace, seventh ward of Ouachita; A. A. Carter, justice of the peace, fifth ward of Caddo; Jules Pechon, alderman, town of Covington, St. Tammany parish.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT

The Language of Disease is Pain. Respond to it wisely by reinforcing nature. An admirable preparation for this purpose is TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT. It expells all acrid matter from the bowels, regulates the liver, braces the nerves, strengthens the digestive organs, dissipates unwholesome humors, cools the blood, and puts the whole machinery of the system in good working order without irritating any of the delicate internal membranes

Labor Saving.

The demand of the people for an easier method of preparing Kidney-Wort has induced the proprietors, the well-known wholesale druggists, Wells, Richardson & Co., of Burlington, Vt., to prepare it for sale in liquid form as well as in dry form. It saves all the labor of preparing, and as it is equally efficient it is preferred by many persons. Kidney-Wort always and everywhere proves itself a perfect remedy.—Buffalo News.

MALARIA

Malaria is an almost indescribable malady which not even the most talented physicians are able to fathom. Its cause is most frequently ascribed to local surroundings, and there is very little question, but this opinion is substantiated by facts. Malaria does not necessarily mean chills and fever while these troubles usually accompany it. It often affects the sufferer with general lassitude, accompanied by loss of appetite, sleeplessness, a tired feeling and a high fever, the person afflicted growing weaker and weaker, loses flesh day after day, until he becomes a mere skeleton, a shadow of his former self.

Malaria once having laid its hold upon the human frame, the door of the system is thrown open to nervous diseases. The body weak and enfeebled absorbs no nourishment, but subsisting upon itself, the digestive organs no longer perform their functions; the liver becomes torpid, and other organs failing to do their routine work, speedily become disordered, and dissolution and death are apt to ensue.

In addition to being a certain cure for malaria and chills and fever, BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is highly recommended for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient tonic; especially indigestion, dyspepsia, intermittent fevers, want of appetite, loss of strength, lack of energy, etc. Enriches the blood, strengthens the muscles, and gives new life to the nerves. Acts like a charm on the digestive organs. It is for sale by all respectable dealers in medicines, price, $1 per bottle

Be sure and get the genuine BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. Take no other.

TIRED MOTHERS.

[illegible] little elbow leans upon your knee—
[illegible] tired knee that has so much to bear;
[illegible] eyes are looking lovingly
[illegible] underneath a thatch of tangled hair.
[illegible] you do not heed the velvet touch
Of [illegible] fingers holding yours so tight;
[illegible] do not prize the blessing over much,
[illegible] almost too tired to pray to-night.

[illegible] is a blessedness! A year ago
I did not see it as I do to-day;
[illegible] so dull and thankless, and too slow
To catch the sunshine till it slips away.
And now it seems surpassing strange to me
That while I bore the bonds of motherhood
I did not kiss more oft and tenderly
The little child that brought me only good.

I wonder so that mothers ever fret
[illegible] children clinging to her gown,
Or that the footprints, when the days are wet,
Are ever black enough to make them frown.
If I could find a little muddy boot,
Or cap, or jacket, on my chamber floor,
If I could kiss a rosy, restless foot,
And hear its patter in my house once more—

If I could mend a broken cart to-day,
To-morrow make a kite to reach the sky,
There is no woman in God's world could say
She was more blissfully content than I.
[illegible] the dainty pillow next my own
Is never rumpled by a shining head;
My singing birdling from its nest is flown.
The little child I used to kiss—is dead.

How to Learn to Say No.

[illegible] a promising young man has [illegible] ruined because he did not know [illegible] say No. Hannah More, in [illegible] story of "Parley the Porter," illustrates the evil results of dallying [illegible] temptation. There are many [illegible] who say "No," but so faintly [illegible] the word seems to stick in the [illegible] only invite further persuasion. [illegible] one little boy who [illegible] tried to persuade his [illegible] to reconsider some decision [illegible] came, "When my [illegible] says 'No,' there is no Yes [illegible]."

[illegible] a man, tempted by appetite, [illegible] without, says [illegible] but feebly and faintly; his No [illegible] Yes in it, and the Yes finally [illegible] the No. We remember [illegible] of a young Rhode Island [illegible] we put in substance as [illegible] related.

[illegible] was coming along up the [illegible] day with a young man who [illegible] him, who was somewhat [illegible] with strong drink, and [illegible] along awhile his companion [illegible] a bottle from his pocket [illegible]

[illegible] hand it over," replied our [illegible]

[illegible] was passed to him, and [illegible] he hurled it with a [illegible] the stone wall, and [illegible] dazed and astonished [illegible] said, "There, don't you [illegible] lips again."

[illegible] young man was perhaps a [illegible], but had [illegible] no further [illegible] his solicitations to [illegible] reason to suppose [illegible] example set before [illegible] had a restraining influence [illegible] back from an [illegible]

[illegible] Conscience.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

H. J. Wright, Alexandria: "I left the Creek Sunday noon, and will now return. The new church looks grand." A postal from Bro. Wright, dated Spring Creek, Aug. 21, says: "Our new church, in five hours after completion, together with the old one, was fired by some incendiary in Spring Creek, at eleven o'clock last night. I was aroused by the cry of the people to see our nice little new church in ashes, and all of our tools. Lost nearly $500."

J. W. Hilton, Shreveport: "St. James is moving on, and we have about settled our debts. A protracted meeting resulted in twenty-four converts, ten reclaimed. We have raised $949 25 already. Our Sabbath-school is looking up. We are under a thousand obligations to brethren for aid. May God bless the old Mother church. We will all get to heaven some of these days and will shout over the victory."

We glean the following facts from the report of C. D. Bryan, recording steward of St. Peter M. E. Church, Donaldsonville, La., to the third quarterly conference: "The two-story church and lot is valued at four thousand dollars; the membership is 208, probationers 134—total 336. Moneys raised since last quarter: For pastor $118 60, sexton $10, fuel $5 30, assessment 2 20, rent $9, benevolent purposes $14 15, other purposes $17; from beginning of parsonage all collected $457 90—Total collections $684 15. Baptisms—adults 4, infants 11, probationers 10, members 2. The lot in Darrowville presented by Mr. Ben. Gibson, is valued at $75. The new parsonage, when completed will be valued at $1500; its erection is due to the energy and excellent management of the pastor, Rev. Wm. Smith; and it will be an ornament to the locality, and a credit to the church. There is only one debt, the note to the late R. J. Green, for painting, on this $80 has been paid, and the principal and interest amounts to $106. Another payment will be made on it this year from the fund derived from the rent of the lower story of the church as a public school room. Brethren are congratulated upon the good condition of the church under the efficient administration of its pastor; and all [illegible] the prospects for [illegible] advancement. Each class leader handed in a written report of the condition of the class and the money [illegible]. The presiding elder gave a beautiful lecture on [illegible]. The Sabbath-school, C. D. Bryant superintendent, is a missionary society, numbering 105, an increase of forty-five for the quarter. Collections amounted to $8 10.

TEXAS.

W. [illegible] Jewett: "At the request of the presiding elder I held the third quarter for Bro. M. [illegible] on Madison circuit. The [illegible] seems to be growing spiritually. He has 4 appointments, [illegible] 190 members. All are [illegible] with their pastor. [illegible] conducted nicely. [illegible] collection was $1 20—this [illegible] me think of the sufferings of the presiding elders and their families. Crops are good all over the country and we think the churches will be able to support their ministers."

MISSISSIPPI.

[illegible]: "After a [illegible] meeting of five days at [illegible], seven were added, six in full membership and [illegible] probationers. Bro. C. Page [illegible] of $4 10. Sabbath [illegible] a sub[illegible], and [illegible]

There are 19 members. I feel that God has prospered my work on this circuit.

M. Brown, Shubuta: "Our Sunday-school is doing well. We gave an exhibition Aug. 13. The exercises consisted of singing and recitation of verses. The children pleased us."

A Valuable Addition.

Because it is beneficial to the scalp and adds to personal beauty by restoring color and lustre to gray or faded hair is why Parker's Hair Balsam is such a popular dressing.

To Christian Women.

We do not think that any crisis more important has ever presented itself to the State of California than that which is now upon us—

1st. Never before in the history of Anglo-Saxon civilization has a political party arrayed itself against the legal protection of the Sabbath. The action of the Democratic State Convention at San Jose is a most alarming and ominous assault upon the very foundations of civil liberty and our holy religion. As long as the Sabbath was assailed only by the worst classes of foreigners and criminals, we felt but little concern; but when a political party convention, induced by the persistent scheming, threats and promises of these men, deliberately resolves to abolish the Sabbath, as far as it is possible to do so, it is enough to arouse every lover of his country and every Christian to prevent the consummation of this desperate scheme of wickedness. The rum-sellers of San Francisco are the chief conspirators in this nefarious plot to corrupt our legislators, and rob humanity of its God-given right to a day of rest and of worship.

2nd. The women—wives, mothers, sisters, daughters—are especially involved in this attack upon the foundations of our very homes and our holy religion. The Sabbath is to be destroyed to benefit only one class of men, to wit, liquor dealers. They have inspired this assault with an impudence begotten in criminal pursuits and a remorseless greed that knows neither honor, love nor pity. These, our worst foes now make war on the sanctity of our homes and the altars of our God. They claim exemption from all obligations to obey the laws, and intend to violate them as in the past, and now they propose to abolish God's holy Sabbath.

3rd. Our fathers for nine hundred years have guarded the poor man's day of rest by just laws, which have been uniformly sanctioned and sustained by our courts and our suffrages. If this rum-seller's str[illegible]y succeeds, women will chiefly suffer, as they do now, by the liquor business. For the sake of your sons and daughters and husbands, brothers and homes, we plead with you to help.

4th. Women of California, you cannot afford to be indifferent in this time of imminent peril to the State! We suggest, in view of the condition of things, that you can do much to influence the votes of your friends who are not already lost to every sentiment of justice and love. We most earnestly suggest that you organize for this contest in every neighborhood. You can pray for the success of truth and righteousness. You can distribute good reading matter, and adopt sufficient means of influencing public opinion. By entreaty, by expostulation, by prayer you can help. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union will, no doubt, gladly co-operate with all Christian ladies in furthering these mighty interests. In our regular prayer-meetings let us not forget to ask God's help, and let us institute means to prevent the overwhelming disaster threatened to our State.—California Christian Advocate.

At the recent session of the English Wesleyan Conference the venerable ex-President, Dr. Geo. Osborn, read the following original letter of John Wesley's which we believe had not been in print:

"Dear George—What you said was exactly right. The work of God is undeniably instantaneous with regard to sanctification, and it is no objection at all to this that the work is gradual also. Whatever others do it is your duty to exhort believers to go on to perfection, and to encourage them to expect it by simple faith. This is the preaching which God always has blessed and always will bless to them which are upright of heart.

"Dear George, your affectionate brother, John Wesley."

EARS FOR THE MILLION!
Foo Choo's Balsam of Shark's Oil

Positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.

This Oil is abstracted from peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as Carcharodon Rondeletii. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese People. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1 per bottle.

HEAR WHAT THE DEAF SAY!

It has performed a miracle in my case.
I have no unearthly noises in my head and hear much better.
I have been greatly benefited.
My deafness helped a great deal—think another bottle will cure me.

"Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer can personally testify, both from experience and observation. Write at once to Haylock & Jenney, 7 Dey street New York, enclosing $1, and you will receive by return a remedy that will enable you to hear like anybody else, and whose curative effects will be permanent. You will never regret doing so."—Editor of Mercantile Review.

Lost Friends.

(We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers. All others will be charged fifty cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.)

Dear Editor: I desire to learn of the whereabout of my husband and my brother. My husband was named Preston Hughes, and my brother, Henry Graves. I left them in Vicksburg, Miss., about thirty-four years ago, I was taken away to Arkansas by my owner, Mr. John Wadsworth. My name is Silvie Hughes. Let any information be addressed to me in care of Rev. S. Priestly, Union Chapel church, New Orleans, La.

Dear Editor: I am inquiring for my lost kindred. My mother is Margaret Johnson, my sisters are Julia and Mary, brothers are Everetta Ben, John, Peter and Nepoleon, They belonged to John Douglas, Richmond, Virginia. I was brought out from there by the negro traders to Alexandria, La., eight years before the war. My mother and father belonged to the Methodist Church. My father's name was Ben John Douglas. Kept a boarding house, my mother worked at the boarding house. Douglas had two sons, one was a lawyer. Walter Douglas, the other I do not remember. Any information of my people will be thankfully received. Address in care of my pastor, Rev. H. J. Wright, Alexandria, La. Virginia Hines.

Dear Editor: I am anxious to hear from my son Albert Smith, son David Smith. I received a letter two years ago from home, and he was in Tennessee, married, and with a family. His uncles Randall and Jordan, who resided in Georgia, say he has been gone not more than seven years. I now reside in New Orleans. Address me care of Rev. S. Priestly, of Union Chapel, M. E. Church, New Orleans.

Rosina Nicholson.

Dear Editor: I wish to inquire for my aunt Adeline Lomach, and her two daughters Sophronia and Laura Morgan. The last I heard of them they went to New Orleans about 1865. We lived four years with Thomas Abbey, of Claiborne county, Miss. At that time I was Paddy Abbey, but now I go by the name of William Young. Address me at Jackson, Mississippi.

Dear Editor: I wish to inquire for my relatives, father, mother, sisters, brother, uncles, aunts, grandfather and grandmother. We all lived in Virginia. Mothers and children belonged to David Nolan at or near Flint Hill, Rappahanock county. Mother was Emily and father Henry Williams He belonged to Gibb Fletcher and lived in London county. Mother and father were both sold long before the war, down South, and apart. My three brothers were James, George and Henry Williams. James was sold about eight years before the war to a man in Baltimore, the last time I heard of him. My sister was Sarah, my name Mary Ellen Williams, but I married and am now Mary Ellen Chapman. Sister was sold South too, and brothers George and Henry were sold with me. We lived together until the close of the war. We were first sold to a runner, and he sold us to Mr. Williams, who moved with us to Mobile, Alabama. After the war my brother George left, and I have never seen or heard of him since; and brother Henry lives with me yet. My grandfather was George Roots, grandmother Sarah, and my aunt Ellen Roots, uncles were George, James and Philip Roots. My grandfather bought all of his family, but my mother and uncle Philip, at Flint Hill, Va., and moved all of them to Muskingum county, Ohio. I heard that uncle George Roots was living in Green county, Ohio. Grandfather bought all from David Nolan, long before the war, and the last I heard from them they were all living at Zanesville, Ohio. I have never heard anything of mother, father, brother James and sister Sarah since the war. I heard that uncle Philip was sold to a man in Kentucky, before the war. Address, in care of H. Adams, No. 237 Howard street, New Orleans, La.

Mary Ellen Chapman.

Mr. Editor: Fanny Ford, who belonged to Mrs. Nancy Brown, sister of Jack Baker, of Faqnier county, Va., near Warrenton Court House, was married to a freeman named Elija Ford, by whom she had four children, Beverly, John, Robert and Benedict. She was sold and sent to New Orleans about thirty-seven years ago, since which time she never heard of her children and her sister Cleavy, who married with Jack Baker. Any information of their whereabouts will be thankfully received by said Fanny Ford, care of Eugene Martin, 232 St. Philip street, New Orleans, La.

Good for Babies.

When I have a baby at breast nothing is so useful for quieting my own and baby's nerves as Parker's Ginger Tonic. It prevents bowel complaint and is better than any stimulant to give strength and appetite.—A Newark Mother.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC.

A combination of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark and Phosphorus in a palatable form. The only preparation of iron that will not blacken the teeth, so characteristic of other iron preparations.

GENTLEMEN: I have used DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Diseases, Dyspepsia, and an impoverished condition of the blood, this peerless remedy, has in my hands, made some wonderful cures. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians, have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC is a necessity in my practice. DR. ROBERT SAMUELS,
ST. LOUIS, MO., Nov. 26th, 1881. 2104 Wash Avenue.

It gives color to the blood, natural healthful tone to the digestive organs and nervous system, making it applicable to General Debility, Loss of Appetite, Prostration of Vital Powers and Impotence.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

Notes, 1882.

[illegible]

II. The general interest of the [illegible] aggregating, with other detached districts, 100 preachers filling appointments, 96 local preachers, 7,936 members, and 1,057 probationers.

III. Let fervent thanks be offered to God for the devotion of these early laborers, and for his blessing upon their work, already granted, with prayer for its abundant continuance upon them personally, and upon their present efforts in each field of Christian endeavor.

IV. The present state of the work in New York City and vicinity, the birth-place of the Mission and great port of entry for the increasing immigration, claims a special interest. The Bethel Ship, which succeeded the original one in 1857, was transferred to Brooklyn in 1876, but subsequently abandoned as a place of worship. The Swedes built a church there, a good brick structure, valued now at $24,000, which seats comfortably 500 people, and soon after a new church was erected for the Norwegians, (dedicated in 1881,) valued at $15,000, chiefly at the expense of a liberal layman of New York, Mr. Edwin Mead. The society numbers 79 members and 20 probationers. Since last conference 14 have been received into full membership, and 10 more stand recommended. The society raises $2 66 per member for Missions. Perth Amboy, N. J., mostly a Danish membership, makes a part of this charge, as also another preaching place in Jersey City, all being connected, as well as the whole Swedish work in New York and vicinity, with the New York East Conference. A library and reading room has been formed at the Norwegian Church by the pastor, (appropriation from the Methodist Episcopal Tract Society and [illegible] Friend Society,) who [illegible] organized libraries on [illegible] Norwegian shipping. One of the members, Ernst Jackson, [illegible] for the American [illegible] at Castle Garden. [illegible] which he reports for the [illegible] months may be properly [illegible] here, though it is to be [illegible] to the Bible Society [illegible] serves. Among the [illegible] have been distributed [illegible] Bibles and 24,518 Testaments, [illegible] to the amount of $[illegible]1 35; vessels visited, 393; [illegible] supplied with 135 Bibles and 3782 Testaments; sales, $54 99.

The Swedish Church in Brooklyn [illegible] that in New York proceeding also from the Bethel Ship, are enjoying much spiritual prosperity under the arduous labors of the two pastors. Much house-to-house visitation and, as in the early days of the mission, care for the temporal welfare of their people is required of them. Evening meetings are numerous. The former conference year saw 150 received on probation and 136 in full membership [illegible] of the present [illegible] joined on probation, [illegible] in full. Very many [illegible] occur by removals. Funds are being gathered to build a church in New York, the society now hiring a place of worship.* The Swedish work here needs an [illegible] pastor or evangelist to [illegible] among the immigrants on [illegible] and among the sailors. [illegible], N. J., about forty miles from New York, is embraced in the circuit. The society in New York raised an average of $1 35 per member for Missions.

V. Let prayer be offered, especially for the continuance of [illegible] blessing upon the pastors [illegible] workers and the societies [illegible] New York and vicinity, success [illegible] Pastor Hedstrom and the [illegible] as upon the immigrants [illegible] our mission efforts at [illegible] be effectual to save [illegible] skeptical and immoral [illegible]

[illegible] Let the whole field be surveyed. The Scandinavian immigration into the United States for [illegible] to 91,810; Swedes, [illegible] 26,964; Danes, [illegible] the port of [illegible] up to June 30, [illegible] of 85,678, with an [illegible] to 47,000 for [illegible] Swedes, [illegible] of the present [illegible] with the [illegible] thickly peopled with Norwegians. The Danes worship with the Norwegians in a few societies (as especially at Neenah, Wis., and Danville, Dak.) making up a large portion of the membership.

The charater of the Scandinavian immigrants for industry and good citizenship is well known. They have almost universally received an early religious education, and little infidelity is found among them, except such as acquired after their arrival in this country.† The formality which dominates in their conceptions of religion, the bigotry of the Lutheranism in which they have been educated, and which is cherished by external influences on their arrival here, forms a serious barrier to the progress of our mission work, though the vices from which many of them are not free offer a vulnerable point of attack for the most earnest spiritual preaching and pastoral labor. Other embarrassments in building up societies, especially among the Swedes, are the frequent removals and widely-scattered locations occupied.

A few words concerning the two Conferences distinctively must find space here.

1. The North-west Swedish Conference extends over parts of 15 States, namely, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas, Texas, and California. Outside of this Conference are the above-mentioned stations in New York City and vicinity, one in Boston, and one in Worcester, Mass. Present published statistics show in the Conference 57 preachers filling appointments, 4,930 members, 587 probationers, 3,256 Sunday-school scholars, 66 churches, 25 parsonages; total value, $188,915;‡ average per member in Missionary collection, $0 48.2 § The churches are mostly free from debt. In Chicago there are two good churches, and a third projected. There has been in that city a constant revival in progress for three years. At Galesburgh, Ill., Minneapolis, Minn., and other places revival successes have been reported during the year. Other chief stations are Bishop Hill, Andover, Rockford, and Moline, Ill., Burlington, Ia., St. Paul, Minn., and Jamestown, N. Y.

Much use is made of tracts by the pastors in their work, which are obtained from our Tract Society, the pastors furnishing new tracts from year to year. The Sandebudet, a weekly paper published in [illegible] subscription list amounting to about one-half the membership of the Swedish Churches. The past year has shown an increase, and special effort is soon to be made to extend the power and influence of the paper. A Sunday-school paper is also published. A new hymn-book is in process of preparation. The education of Swedish preachers has been conducted since 1870 through a theological class located at different places, but now connected with the Biblical Institute at Evanston. Dr. Wm. Henschen (Editor of the Sandebudet) is the Professor in Swedish. The Rev. J. O. Nulsen, of Minneapolis, teaches the first year's class. Ten students were in attendance last year, and twenty-four have graduated up to the present time. The endowment fund for the school has been increased the past year, now amounting to about $8,000, while over $5,000 were raised during the year for a building to be located at Evanston.

2. The North-west Norwegian Conference covers portions of Michigan, Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Dakota. Present published statistics show 34 preachers filling appointments, 2,821 members, 310 probationers, 1,445 Sunday-school scholars, 43 churches, and 17 parsonages; total value, $87,250; average per member in Missionary collection, 80.1 per cent. Nine of the preachers are Danes, which is more than double the proportion among the membership. In Chicago there are two churches, with one parsonage (value $20,000.) On Leland Charge, Illinois, are three churches and a parsonage. Racine, Wis., Forest City, and Washington Prairie, Iowa, with Newburgh, Minn., are important stations. Outside the Conference, besides the [illegible] already mentioned near New York City, there is one society in [illegible] [illegible] Talsmand (Christelige [illegible]) paper, has [illegible]

Missionaren. The Rev. C. O. Treider was editor of these papers from 1873 to 1880. A printing-office was established at Chicago, which has been made to yield a profit, now devoted to the theological school fund. Several or eight small religious books have been published, besides a hymn book. A Sunday-school paper has been issued since 1875. The papers are made to do very efficient work, though a few Norwegian tracts are also furnished from our Society. The Talsmand has now a subscription list nearly equaling the Norwegian membership. This press, it has been said, "has been a chief aid in doubling of the number of Norwegian and Danish Methodists in the course of the last ten years." A theological school fund exists among the Norwegians, as yet small—$3242; but the churches are feeling the need of some means to educate their preachers. Most of them (and such is much the case with the Swedes) are self-made men. There were seven Norwegians and Danes at Evanston last year, and a few young men have been there every year since 1865, but they have wanted the advantage of a Norwegian professor to prepare them properly for work among their own people. This was secured to them for two years by aid from the University. One has graduated this summer from a full nine years' course. Another returns to join the Conference from Norway, whither he had gone to qualify himself more properly in his own language. This plan can, perhaps, be followed by a few others, but is not the natural supply for the need. The educational problem is a specially difficult one for our Norwegian and Danish preachers, with their comparatively narrow resources.

Altogether the progress and development of our Scandinavian Churches can proceed only by maintenance of the same spiritual zeal and diligence which gave the work its first impulse. There is good evidence of unabated devotion. The aggregate total of 7,936 Scandinavian members and 1,054 probationers for our American Methodism is a grand result from the first Bethel-ship venture. In this day, the cause of education and work of the press among the people particularly demand the sympathy, and aid of the Church at large.

VII. Prayer for the Scandinavian Churches and pastors throughout the country that revivals of increasing power extent may prevail among them; that the Divine blessing may attend the religious press to increase its influence; that the needed funds may be provided to render a suitable education accessible to the young men who are called of the Spirit to the ministry.

Our Letter From China.

PEKING, CHINA, May 24, 1882.
"Filial Piety" Alley.

One needs to have breathed the sultry, impure air of the last week to know how delicious is this sweet, fresh air that has been washed and cleansed by a pouring rain. The rain followed a blinding dust storm which concealed the Gate Tower, which on a clear day rises up so boldly before us, as it is less than one hundred yards from our Compound. This is the tower before which Dr. Newman is often quoted as having exclaimed in rapture: "Grand old structure."

Dr. Edkins in his article on Peking in "Journeys in North China," says, "The wall is thirty-five feet five inches high by native measurement, or about forty feet by ours. It is nearly as thick as it is high, and is defended by massive buttresses at intervals between the gates. The towers are ninety-nine Chinese feet in height; there is one over each gate. The towers like the walls, are built of brick, and have a large number of embrasures for cannon. Their aspect to the traveler on approaching is very imposing."

Most of the gates leading on to the wall are closed and sealed by the officials, but fortunately for us this which is nearest is open, affording us access to the only place where one can walk with pleasure, because it is up above the dust, filth, and crowds that render the streets so disagreeable.

From the wall may be seen interesting sights, but it would take a long search to find "the red clock on the tower," which one authority (?) says, "struck ten as she entered the gate!" Not a public clock can be seen or heard in all this city. In most of the stores are many clocks of various kinds, but usually no two of them are agreed as to what time of day it may be, being of as many different minds as the same number of people would be, and some are so obstinate as to stand still and refuse to give any information at all.

One person looking down upon the city from the wall when summer had robed the trees in their heaviest, richest garments, wrote home: "One can hardly see the houses in Peking for the many trees." Later, after Jack Frost had loosened the cords that held their wonderous drapery, and the rude winter winds had blown it away. Another, looking over the same city wrote back saying: "There is not a tree to be seen in all Peking." Then, years ago, from the wall, we watched Gen. Grant and party as they moved down Legation Street. We failed, however, to get a glimpse of the "two fierce lions" which the Chinese said accompanied the "American Emperor." "Why do they tell such a story as that? Is it good or bad meaning?" we asked. "Good, to be sure," said our teacher. "It is said out of respect to your Emperor; any ordinary man could bring two dogs, but what a great man must he be, who comes accompanied by two fierce lions!" Other cities did our ex-President great honours, but it was Peking that lionized him.

It was high pleasure on the city wall—and a hot one too, for warm does not apply to Peking suns, but it was more enjoyable in the cool of the evening to meet Gen. and Mrs. Grant in the elegant drawing room of the U. S. Legation. He shook hands in a very friendly way, evidently bearing no grudge against us, because years ago at Round Lake, N. Y., we were among the thousands who kept him standing and bowing and smiling and shaking hands and thinking up wise, kind things to say!

Early one morning looking down from the wall upon the busy venders who crowded through the gate with their country produce, suddenly appeared a strange apparition, alternately running and bowing to the ground. As she drew near we could hear the clanking of the chains that were fastened to her ankles. We were too high to read the characters on the yellow placard on her back, but we knew she was doing penance, and we could imagine an aged parent sick, near death; the daughter falls before her gods and promises if they will but spare her loved one she will perform the pilgrimage to some temple and there present her offering of gratitude. Gradually the sick one recovers and now the vow is upon her!

This day when our hearts are [illegible]

full of the peaceful joy of the beautiful morning, she dons the scarlet robes and unfastening her long locks, usually so neatly combed, and allowing them to stream over her shoulders, she starts on her weary pilgrimage. Perhaps she was never on the streets before, or it may be attended by servants and out riders, dressed in embroidered silks and satins, she has been borne in her sedan chair through this same gate, little dreaming of such a time as this.

Alone, unprotected, first on this side of the street, then on that, to avoid the angry dogs who rush out growling at the strange sight, and mingle their barking with the taud of her chains. On she hastens, now running ten steps now bowing her head in the dust, until she is lost to our sight.

Many a time we have looked from the wall over on the palace grounds and seen the yellow tiles of the porcelain roofs gloriously gilded by the setting sun; then as the sun went down behind the "Western Hills," and the gilding gradually wore off, and the gray twilight settled down over the city, we have watched the belated traveler hastening down the long streets, fearful lest the iron gate should close between them and "home;" others come rushing in. How the bystanders scream! One gate closes! Faster and faster beat the gongs! Now the other gate closes! All is quiet, but we linger a little to think of the time when the race shall be run, and the struggles and fears of life exchanged for the bliss of knowing I am safe within the city—"to go no more out forever." How to Make Application for Donations.

1. Send for a blank to Dr. J. M. Freeman, 805 Broadway, N. Y., and state what you want it for.

2. Be careful in filling out the the blank, and have it signed by the pastor and Sunday-school committee.

3. Accompany the blank with a letter, stating in full the condition of your church membership, size of congregation, the amount and kind of literature you are using.

4. State whether any publishing house has made you an offer, or whether you ever received a donation from any publishing house; if so, how much.

5 State number of months you hold regular sessions of your Sunday-school each year.

6. State whether you have ever used our Sunday-school literature.

7. State whether the church has taken a regular collection for our Sunday-school Union.

Mr. Henry Samuel Morais has published a short account of the Daggatouns, a tribe of Jewish origin in the Desert of Sahara, recently brought into notice in the narrative of the Rabbi Mordecai Aby Serour, of Akka, Morocco. They have skins perfectly white, and are very handsome, much more so than the finest-looking Jews of Africa. They have changed their belief, and seem to occupy a low social position among the tribes. The change in belief seems rather to have been a loss of belief, for it is remarked respecting the exercise of their religion that they never utter a prayer, and have no regular form of public worship, but simply invoke the name of Mohammed.

A Texan Baptist pastor recently said that the spiritual condition of his churches was rather poor, because the crops were so good. And we fear that many a pastor in Kentucky, and elsewhere, will have to take up the same lamentation.—Western Recorder.

It has been repeatedly asserted that the use of tobacco tends to prolong life. The fact cannot longer be controverted. A party of lynchers in a Colorado town lately postponed the hanging five minutes to allow the victim time to finish smoking a cigar.

A crusty old fellow once asked: "What is the reason that griffins, dragons, and devils are the ladies' favorite subjects for embroidery designs?" "Ah, because they are continually thinking of their husbands," was the lady's quick retort.

Colquitt and Stephens.

Governor Colquitt is stumping Georgia in behalf of Mr. Stephens. The differences between his political speeches in the South and his Sunday-school speeches in the North will surprise some people. At Camilla, on the 25th ult, he said:

"There is installed at the national capital an administration ready and determined to thwart every constitutional measure favorable to the Southern people. The patronage of the government and the great corruption fund its agency employs are used for our disadvantage. The present administration of General Arthur will ruin us if it can. The white Democrats have brought out Mr. Stephens. The colored people, in obedience to orders from Washington, have brought out General Gartrell, and now you colored people are saying all over the State, 'the white folks have put out a man and the niggers have put out a man; let's go for the nigger man!' I say to you, my colored friends, don't be misled. You shall have your rights. But the white people of this country will never consent for you to make them subordinate to the blacks. That will never be done. The colored people, when I talk to them about this, reply, we can't help it. We are obliged to do as we are told to do by the Republican leaders. My colored friends, you can help it.

"Now I repeat it, the Republican party in Atlanta consulted the administration in Washington, and was told to nominate Gartrell. They did it under orders of Arthur. When the radical party had impoverished poor Georgia its leaders left. Now that the State is becoming rich they are trying to get it again. They are determined on this and the administration in power at Washington will use all its money and patronage to accomplish this object. Now I ask you is it a time to give way to little petty objections to Mr. Stephens? Why will some parties in this portion of the State be so indifferent to his nomination when by his election we have our only means of thwarting our enemies at Washington? In middle and upper Georgia there is but one question, and that is, shall the white race be subject to the black race? Mr. Stephens has been and is now strongly opposed to the schemes of the Republican party. The leaders know it and want to defeat him. But what are some of the objections urged against him? Some say he is old. Is that an objection? The Bible, nature, reason and experience teach us to esteem old age. It will be a sad day for Georgia when her young men repudiate the old from her councils and her government. Young men of Georgia never say "stand aside old folks," to your parents and neighbors. That spirit is a wicked one. So some people say to Mr. Stephens, "you have done a great deal, but your day is past; stand aside now." I say here to-day that God will blast the marrow of those who thus dishonor age and experience. I did not approve of all his course during the war. But we have had a hard battle since the war, and no man has done more to vindicate the righteous southern cause than he. That little frail hand has penned books which have taught the living world to respect us, and posterity to honor us. Mr. Stephens has, by his services with his tongue and pen, wiped out the disgrace our enemies tried to heap on us. He has atoned for all his mistakes by the honor he has gained for us throughout the civilized world. To-day, if he were to land in Liverpool in his little roller chair, all England would wish to do him honor as the greatest man in America."

It is easy to discover from the above who is stirring up strife between the races. It is alarming to see such a one, after being petted in the North by Union people as Gov. Colquitt has been, stooping to such demagoguism and unblushing falsehoods. What does the North expect to gain by cultivating such fraternity?—Methodist Advocate.

Presbyterian Fraternity.

We have seldom seen more violence, bitterness and prejudice than is manifested in the articles of Drs. Palmer and Dabney upon the question of fraternity between the Northern and Southern Presbyterian churches. It is manifestly a vigorous effort on the part of these irascible men who cannot forget to revive an old quarrel. Dr. Dabney says that the almost unanimous action of the Southern Assembly was a "trick." We supposed that it was composed of the best men in that Church, but the Doctor speaks of them as "deserters of their own principles," of their action as "dishonest" and more worthy of "a spaniel than a Christian," of the Assembly as "cowardly and cringing, a sinful libel of past Assemblies." Dr. Dabney is, we believe, President of Union Theological Seminary, Virginia. He must have heard of David's Ointment. With Dr. Palmer the action of the Northern Assembly was quite satisfactory save its resolution "concerning loyalty and rebellion," referring to this he says:

Whilst in the act of folding us to its bosom [it] delivers with its mailed fist a blow between our eyes, which fairly knocks the fraternity out of the fraternal relations. It says plainly that formal intercourse cannot be established with them, except upon the historic record of our past alleged disloyalty and rebellion.

The Doctor objects to this resolution because it charges disloyalty and rebellion against the Southern Assembly. But is not this true? There was disloyalty and rebellion, and the Southern Assembly was in the midst of the rebellion and full of disloyalty. No man knows this better than Dr. Palmer. The Northern Assembly cannot say that the Southern Assembly was not disloyal and rebellious. And while this is true, it is also true that it does not care to touch the war record of either Assembly. It recognizes the Christian character of the Southern Church and asks that fraternal relations be established. Few things have afforded us more satisfaction than the establishment of fraternal relations between these two churches, and we cannot for a moment believe that the Southern Church can be persuaded by a few irritable divines to go back upon her word given before the world and God. "Let us have peace," and see who can love most and work best.

Some three months ago the home of a certain clergyman in St. Mary parish was destroyed by fire, with nearly all of his household goods. While some of his neighbors were extending to him their sympathies the poor man seemed to get comfort from one thought, viz, that "the [illegible] had poisoned his house and his wife never did enjoy good health in it, and he hoped now to have a new house not poisoned by the Hoodoo." This clergyman is an ordained elder in his church, and has himself the oversight of [illegible], but is a firm believer in the most degrading forms of African Hoodooism, and his people [illegible] join in the Hoodu and [illegible] dance. If there is any truth in the old adage "Like priests, like people," what have we to hope from such a ministry? A more pernicious [illegible] was never entertained or promulgated. Political Assessments.

The project to raise a campaign fund of $27,000 by assessment of employes of the New-Orleans Customhouse, to be mainly devoted to payment of the campaign expenses of Senator W. P. Kellogg in his candidacy for Congress in the Third district of Louisiana, is not received with good grace and should be stoutly resisted and repudiated by those employes. The fact is well known that nearly every holder of a National office in Louisiana secured appointment through the interposition of Mr. Kellogg, and the general opinion is expressed that upon the prompt payment of the assessment their tenure of office depends. The Protectionist, official organ of the Republican State Executive Committee, declares that all should be called upon to "fish or cut bait," and is quite as dictatorial in cracking the party whip in the assessment business as the most obstreperous Bourbon Democrat or plantation overseer.

The Republicans of Louisiana should know that in New York and Pennsylvania the party is in revolt against such practices; also, that Jay Hubbell the chairman of the Republican congressional committee, has been defeated for a renomination in Michigan, and is to be succeeded by a popular German. In Massachusetts, Congressman W. W. Crapo, invited to enter the gubernatorial race, has replied to an office holder, who sought his advice in the following comprehensive manner. We extract from this letter, which was published in the Boston Advertiser:

"I am utterly opposed to the assessment of office-holders for political purposes. There can be no mere political exigency which will justify a compulsory demand upon them for money or other aid in carrying elections. There are obvious reasons why the solicitation for contributions by members of Congress, or by authority of a Congressional committee, from employes of the Government, is specially objectionable. The influence which members of Congress may be supposed to exert under the present system in appointments to office gives to their circular a peculiar significance. While a simple request from proper persons to office-holders and other citizens to aid in meeting the legitimate and proper expenses of a political campaign cannot reasonably be objected to, any form of application which even indirectly is or may be felt by the office-holder to be compulsory is censurable. Nor are Congressional committees or their agents proper persons to make such a request of office-holders. When first the Hubbell circular of this year was issued, it was distinctly stated, both in the Senate and the House, by members of the Republican Committe, that nothing in the nature of an assessment was proposed, and that contributions made in reply to it would be regarded as entirely voluntary, and one would be free to give or to decline to give without prejudice to his employment. The circular of August 15, which you inclose, by its importunity naturally alarms many who receive it and may induce contributions which otherwise would not be made. Thus I answer your special inquiry as I have uniformly answered others who have asked my advice and opinion, by saying that no one should make payment in response to any request for campaign funds unless his ability, inclination, and sense of propriety lead him to do so. A very small percentage of the office-holders of the country responded to similar invitations in 1880, and no person failing to respond was ever disturbed in his position or suffered annoyance in consequence of his neglect or refusal. No harm, in my opinion, will come to those who decline to make the contributions requested. You have a right to rely upon the explicit statements of the chief executive officers of Government upon the law enacted by Congress, which, if not in terms covering these circulars, applies to them in its spirit, and upon that public sentiment which will not tolerate removals from office for such a cause. The fear of discharge should not influence your response to this or any appeal for funds to be used for party purposes. Further than this, contributions by office-holders to a person representing members of Congress, although they are said not to be forbidden by the letter of the statute, are, as I have indicated, certainly opposed to its spirit, and are condemned by the moral sense of the community. I therefore advise, no such contributions be made. Such appeals and such gifts are a source of weakness to the party, and success so purchased is a worse evil than defeat."

United-States Senator Ben Harrison is an opponent of the spoils system, and in a recent speech in Indianapolis said:

My brief experience at Washington has led me often to utter the wish, with an emphasis that I do not often use, that I might be forever relieved from any connection with the distribution of patronage. I [illegible] the free and unbiased support of my fellow-[illegible] to be able to give [illegible] to those [illegible] to the [illegible] have com[illegible]

[illegible] letter has been knowledge that certain unauthorized persons, styling themselves a "Republican campaign managing committee of the Third District of Louisiana," have been sending assessment notices to all the various Federal officers and employes of the State in as well as out of the district, assessing these officers and employes 5 per cent. on their yearly salaries for exclusive use in the said Third District. It being well-known that this district is largely Republican, and that it can be carried, as it always has been, without resorting to such unusual harsh and extraordinary means, but that other and closer districts in the State do need help, I beg to suggest that you officially issue a notice to all the Federal officers that no such fund is needed in the Third District; that the persons issuing the circular have no authority to do so, and advise them to pay only the voluntary contribution asked for by the National Congressional Commmittee, of 2 per cent, as this fund will be used where it is needed, in the close districts of the State.

Very respectfully,

C. B. DARRALL,

Member Congressional Committee.

It is safe to say that no personal interest which Mr. Darrall had in writing that letter can affect the soundness of the position taken against the payment of the Third district assessment. A district with 5000 Republican majority ought to be required to uphold its candidate; besides Senator Kellogg has enjoyed the emoluments of office long enough to be able to pay a considerable part of his canvass expenses, and the men drawing small salaries, who do not live in the district, should not be robbed of the means of supporting their families to create a large corruption fund. For assuredly the proposed fund deserves that designation. To ensure the success of Mr. Kellogg and his friends and to prevent the Democratic candidate from carrying the district, Republican opposition is to be silenced by a liberal distribution of money. Concede the justice of such assessments and the independent reformatory sentiment of a party in any district, may be crushed by an outside combination, regardless of its better interests or the will of its majority.

If parties are properly conducted, as the exponents of sound principles of government, under the leadership of men of popular choice, their campaign funds may be acquired as readily as funds are now acquired for church building and missionary purposes. The people may be trusted to uphold the right; they are reasonable; they know that travelling expenses of speakers, and halls or stands for the use of meetings must be paid for, and they will cheerfully contribute for these purposes. A party that can not be sustained on such a basis is a shameless fraud, serving personal ambitions without regard to the general welfare; and it will go without honors even at its own home.

The carnival of crime in Phillips county, and numerous other parts of Arkansas, has been followed by a shameful effort to steal the offices of Pulaski county, in which the capital of the State is located. It contains a large proportion of whites from the North, and colored people. The vote in 1880 stood: Garfield 3,851; Hancock 1,971. The Little Rock Gazette said that if Col. Oliver received two-thirds of the legal votes for sheriff he should not be allowed to have the office. A heavy Republican vote was polled, but the Bourbon commissioners, in defiance of law or decency, have thrown out the votes of five townships, and one ward of Little Rock. The disfranchised ward embraced a third of the vote of the county. There is not a court in the State through which the wrong may be righted, so carefully have the Ku Klux provided for such a contingency; and the Southern press, by general understanding and sympathy with the law breakers, is engaged in systematically concealing or perverting the facts. The only hope for order and decency is expressed by the Chicago Inter-Ocean: "The time is coming, and ought not to be long delayed, either, when Congress in accordance with its duty to see that a republican form of government is maintained in every State, will undertake the redress of such wrongs in States where local redress is denied."

From Egypt we have the welcome news that Arabi Pasha, Toulba Pasha, and 10,000 troops have laid down their arms unconditionally. The British troops were welcomed in Cairo. Gen. Wolseley announces that the war is over, no more men from England will be necessary, and that he will change his base from Ismalia to Alexandria. On the arrival of the Khedive at Cairo courts will be established for the trial of the rebel chiefs

Maine and Vermont have gone Republican with increased majorities. The entire Congressional delegation of both States is Republican. Should all the Northern States follow suit, the prospects for [illegible] Congress will not be [illegible]

When the lawless Bourbon klans made incursions into Kansas, and by the same methods which they now use to gratify their greedy lust for power in the Southern States, a John Brown appeared to lead the opponents of fraud and intimidation at elections; and they were provided with rifles and powder, and men hastened from the free States to reinforce them. There may a time come when the better sentiment of the country, tiring of Choctaw county and Phillips county methods, will vigorously assert itself in like manner, governed by the same spirit of resistance to political slavery. No greater danger menaces the country than the possibility of the attempt, through bulldozing a dozen or more Southern districts, to obtain control of Congress or elect a President. Thoughtful men should make their counsel felt now, assurred as they may be, that the country will not quietly submit to a Congressional majority or a President so elected.

A Sunday-school superintendent writes to an exchange: "We never go into winter quarters as some do; I see no need of any Sunday-school closing out in winter." Neither do we. There is no necessity for it. The Sunday-school ought to, and can be made lively, spirited or profitable for at least fifty-two, and occasionally for fifty-three Sundays during the year. We have little faith in the efficiency of those Sunday-schools that generally commence to freeze with the first frosts of November, and that continue to freeze the winter through until they begin to thaw with the spring weather sunshine of April or May. Set your Sunday-schools in motion, keep them actively going and they will undergo no danger of freezing during the winter.

Editorial Correspondence.

Dr. Lafferty, of the Richmond Christian Advocate, M. E. Church South, says that "the unread Methodist is as helpless in the hands of his proselyting neighbors as a 'muly' ox among Texas cattle with horns two feet long." "The unread Methodist" cannot know what his Church teaches, nor what it is doing, and as a consequence is not likely to become an intelligent and useful member. It is a very rare thing to find a man or woman, ignorant of all the Church teaches or is aiming to teach or do, that is of much religious use. Where no religious books are read and no Church paper is taken and read, is a sure indication that the ministers and Church are to have a hard time. Where there is no religious reading there will be little or no religious thinking or action. It is seldom that we see any of our Methodist books on the tables or at the homes of our people, consequently most of them are ignorant not only of the doctrines, but also of the achievements of Methodism. Brothers, it is not enough that we from time to time are able to count the converts we have made. We must educate and train those converts. We want them ready to give a reason for their hope. One of the prime duties of the Methodist preacher is to see that each convert he makes is well supplied with Methodist reading. Get them to subscribe for the SOUTHWESTERN, and they will read about the glorious revivals going on at home and abroad, and become fixed in their views and strong in their attachments to the church. The wise pastor knows the value of a Methodist paper, and will not rest until he is able to put one in every Methodist home.

Morgan City is beautiful for situation. We have some excellent people here—a heroic self-sacrificing band of men and women. They have just completed their parsonage, 16x42, and eleven feet high, making one of the most desirable homes on the district. There is a debt of $79, which Bro. Claiborne hopes to pay on or before Christmas.

Of all the pedestrians we have ever had the privilege of walking with, Rev. J. W. Richardson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Centerville, is the most remarkable. He met us at the depot at Bayou Sale—the road to Centerville, because of the mud, being impassable—but just how deep that mud was, no man could tell, because no man knew. After the usual salutations, "I reckon," said Bro. Richardson, "that you will both have to walk to Centerville," referring to Brother Lyon, who was at the depot. Now, Brother Lyon, in his stature, is the least man in the Louisiana Conference, but there is no smallness in his mental or moral structure, while Bro. Richardson and the writer are each over six feet in their stockings, so there was a wonderful contrast between us. With Brother Lyon, we had always supposed ourselves a little extra as a pedestrian, but as compared with Brother Richardson, who is a perfect colossus of roads, and whose entire machinery seems to have been put together for the purpose of walking, we were exceedingly slow and constantly in the rear. However, we kept pressing on, and in due time, by a way we did not know, were led to the home of a sister who had provided a bountiful dinner for us. Our stay in Centerville was pleasant. Bro. Richardson is doing a good work, and is respected by the people. The reports at the quarterly conference were all in order. We wish the Methodist Episcopal Church here the best success in all of her efforts to elevate and save men, The Lord help all to do what they can.

Our Church at Murfreesboro.

August 20th found me at Murfreesboro. Sunday morning at 9:30 I attended Sunday-school and found a most active staff of teachers at work, among one hundred and ten young plants. Brother Cooper, the superintendent, is a most excellent man, and understands his work. While in company with the pastor, Rev. H. Primm, he remarked: "Brother Cooper is always full of Sunday-school. He studies the lesson thoroughly, and the pastor must study to keep up with him." We will not attempt to describe his manner of proceeding with the exercise. Let it suffice when we tell you everything is like clock work, moving in harmony. After the regular exercise the writer was called upon to make a few remarks which he did. At 8 o'clock we tried to preach to a very large and appreciative audience, from Michael iv. 2, and again before the time for services the house was crowded to overflowing and we tried to preach from 2 Samuel v. 24 verse. We felt indeed it was good for us to be there for the Lord manifested his presence greatly. After services the roll was called and a collection of $58 35 was taken up for the new building. After this a collection was taken up to send the writer home, resulting in $2 25, making the total collection for the day $60 60. Elder H. W. Key, the ex-pastor and now presiding elder of the Murfreesboro district always says to his people, "Pay and pray is my motto." They have the right spirit. The pastor's support is taken up in the classes on Friday nights, leaving the public collections for their new building and defraying the incidental expenses of the church. Rev. H. Primm is greatly beloved by all of his people, and they say he is a good preacher. Murfreesboro is a nice little town, full of enterprise, having several churches. Our church there when finished will be a marvel of beauty, and should bear upon its top a large key representing the name of its founder, Rev. H. W. Key, whose name will always be revered and shall live when he is dead

McMinnville, Tenn.

District Conference.

The Second District Conference for Nashville district has been called to meet at Dover, Stewart county, Tenn., November 10. Now the annual conference will meet in Brownsville, Tenn., November 23d, just thirteen days after this conference. The brethren are requested to come prepared for the annual conference, and as a matter of economy, but few, if any of them can go back home and return to conference. It is known that each member of the district conference is expected to attend the district conference, viz: Traveling and local preachers, exhorters and one Sunday-school superintendent and class leader from each pastoral charge in the district, which will make not less than fifty members, not mentioning wives and visitors that must be entertained by the good people of Dover for thirteen days, or else the good people of Brownsville, where the annual conference meets must lengthen the time of entertaining that part of the annual conference contained in this district, or else the attendants at district conference must board themselves. Now to do the first is to impose upon the laity; and to do the second is to impose on the clergy, either of which is unfair. Now it does seem to me that this is the best way in the world to have no district conference, and as but two or three attended the Frst district conference at Springfield we will have no district conference this year. I hardly think the appointment meets the approbation of the members of the conference. Now is the time attention should be called to this matter. If we are to have a district conference, the time and place ought to be changed.

Respectfully,

LUX.

Rust University.

The following amounts were received for Rust University during the month of August: Elder J. W. Dunn $25, by W. W. Hooper 9 50, as follows: S. E Cain 5, L. C. Forbes 4 50.

Is it possible that this is the whole amount that could be raised within the bounds of the Mississippi Conference during one whole month! One hundred and eighteen charges and circuits, with over twenty thousand members, and only $34 50 toward a building which will cost $25,000, and which will be the property of the Conference!

It will be noticed further that this amount was given by three individuals.

Do the brethren of the Conference remember the pledges they made at our last session and the resolutions adopted in connection therewith? For the benefit of any who may not have a copy of the Minutes of the Conference, or having them do not read them, I will repeat three of the resolutions passed at our last session:

1 WHEREAS, We have at this conference pledged ourselves as individuals, to raise certain specified amounts; therefore,

1. Resolved, That we will enter at once heartily and faithfully upon the prosecution of this work, and that we will never cease our efforts until every dollar of these amounts has been raised.

3. Resolved, That it is hereby made the duty of the Presiding Elder and preacher to aid in raising these amounts subscribed, and that each pastor as soon as he goes to his appointment shall begin at once.

4. Resolved, That Prof. W. W. Hooper, Holly Springs, be appointed Treasurer of the Shaw University Building Fund, and that as fast as raised the preacher will forward it to him and he will send personal receipts, and publish the same in the SOUTHWESTERN.

Have you, brethren, faithfully kept these resolutions?

Did you begin at once heartily, and have you continued your efforts, and have you forwarded as fast as raised?

The contract for the building was made with the express understanding that the Conference would raise during this year every dollar of the four thousand pledged. More than $15,000 has already been expended on the building and less than $300 has been raised in this Conference thus far this year. Yet we have been patient and hopeful for we know that the fall of the year is usually, with us, the best time for raising money. That time is now upon us, every brother should now throw all his energies into this work, not one should expect to raise this money without a sacrifice, without the giving up of something that he would like to have, and it would be no credit to him if he could. We are now erecting a building that will be doing good work for the Conference a hundred years hence, and can we expect to do this without an extra effort?

No special agent is sent out to aid in raising this money in order that every dollar raised may go directly into the building, and not be absorbed in paying salary and travelling expenses.

Each preacher, therefore, should consider himself a special agent, and should exert himself as he would if he had been sent on a special mission to raise money for the University.

Shall we not hear from each one of you during the next month?

W. W. HOOPER.

Opening of New Orleans University.

Rev. Dr. Dean arrived last Friday night, and assumed duties at the New Orleans University on Monday morning.

The Dr. is not unfamiliar with the labors upon which he now enters, having been for more than a dozen years at the head of educational institutions, and for three years president of the East Tennessee University. Nor is he ignorant of the wants of the South, or indifferent to its interests; having been connected with its educational work for about ten years. He believes that the leading idea in all education should be thoroughness; and those who shall attend this institution may be assured that whether their connection with it be long or short, they will be sent out to their life work not mere imitators, but with a well-grounded knowledge of whatever branches they may have studied.

We trust that our colored people will avail themselves as far as they possibly can, of the excellent opportunities afforded by this institution for a thorough education.

It would be well for all students to enter at the earliest day possible, as we are informed that the classes will be organized at once.

Days of Prayer for Sunday Schools.

The committee of the London Sunday-school Union has issued its annual call for the observance of Sunday and Monday, October 15 and 16, as days for universal prayer for Sunday-schools. In response to this idea, the attention of the Sunday-schools of the Methodist Episcopal Church is affectionately called to the appointment.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—A current paragraph says Bishop Peck has lost 100 pounds in weight during the last year.

—Mrs. Lucretia Garfield bought for $50,000 cash, the Ralph Worthington residence, on Prospect street, Cleveland, Ohio.

—Dr. Hartsell was able to represent the Freedmen's Aid cause at the Michigan, Northwest Swedish and Iowa conferences

—Rev. J. W. E. Bowen desires his correspondents to address him at the School of Theology, Boston University, Boston, Mass.

—Mr. Philip Phillips has been spending about a month in Sweden, filling several engagements to sing in some of the principal cities.

—Mr. Samuel Harris, a colored merchant of Williamsburg, Va., is reported to be worth $25,000. He handles $5,000 worth of goods annually.

—The Marquis of Lorne, Governor General of Canada, and his wife the Princess Louise, have made a trip across the continent to San Francisco.

—Dr. P. Akers was ninety-two years old Sept. 1st. Sunday, Sept. 3d, he was to preach in Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church, Jacksonville, Ill.

—Mrs. Grant, the venerable mother of President Grant, sojourning for some time at Ocean Grove, was honored with many calls to pay respects to her.

—Bishop Foss is at Saratoga Springs, and under the care of Dr. Strong. He is gradually improving, and will probably soon be again at his official work.

—Bishop Harris, who returned re. turned to New York from his long Episcopal tour, traveled over 32,000 miles and met his appointments without an hour's detention by sickness.

—The Duke of Argyle has so far succumbed to the prevailing fashion of temperance principles in Great Britian that he is removing all whisky shops from his land and will permit no more to be constructed.

—The Rev. J. P. Newman, whose serious illness prevented him from making a proposed European tour, is now in the Adirondacks. His health is so far restored that he expects to preach at his church in New York, September 10.—Methodist.

—We are pained to announce that according to our latest advices Rev. S. P. Craver is again threatened with the progress of the lung disease, from which he has been suffering. His life is a valuable one for our mission in Mexico. Let the Church pray God yet to spare it and to give him strength for many years of service.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

D. Shelby, Allen: "Elder Duncan has done much good among our poor people. They received him well."

Rev. J. G. Vaughan, pastor of Ames, is having constant encouragement in his work. The congregation is slowly but surely increasing. The Sunday-school has nearly doubled in its attendance.

A. Moore, Coushatta: "We had a baptizing, Aug. 7, and the rite was administered to twelve persons; ninety-two came to the Lord's table. The elder was with us on the 12th and 13th. Cotton is opening, and picking has commenced."

The following contributions have been received for Ames Mission in response to the call of the pastor: Gen. Meyer, New Orleans, $5; R. F. Fenno, New Orleans, $10; Rev. E. H. Vaughan, Manassas, Va., $5; M. L. Butler, Jonesboro, Tenn., $5; Rev. E. Eastman, Haverhill, N. H. $2.

B. H. Johnson, S. S. Superintendent, Avoca: "We have had a grand exhibition in St. Luke Church, of which Rev. Wade Hampton is pastor. The young people spoke. About 150 were present, and they expressed great satisfaction. Two dollars were raised for the school, which was badly in need of books. A package of "Good Tidings" was gladly received. Our pastor closed a basket meeting on the 20th with success. Sabbath-school is in good condition, with sixty-two names on the roll. We have few books, and times are hard. I am going to do all I can this fall for the SOUTHWESTERN. There are a good many readers in this community."

TEXAS.

Wm. Allen, Cotton Gin: "A protracted meeting just closed, resulted in 25 converts, and one backslider reclaimed. Some 40 or 50 were at the altar for prayers day and night."

SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

THIRD QUARTER. REVIEW. Sept. 24.

Three months more we have learned of Jesus. Our lessons were about Jesus blessing children. Then the rich young man who lacked one thing. He needed more love. Next came our lesson about Serving. Those who do most love most. The blind Bartimeus you can all remember. Then comes the lesson about the ride Jesus took when they cried "Hosanna." The Fruitless Tree, with only leaves, taught you to show good deeds as well as to say you love Jesus.

Praying and Forgiving you must never forget, for you say the lesson text every time you pray. Then we had a lesson about a vineyard, and one about a penny, you learned that godliness meant being like God, and that always brought peace. Then came our ten commandments in two little ones, "Love God with all your heart, and your neighbor as yourself."

Eleven brought the lesson about a wise or prudent man. Wise people all love Jesus. Sin brings trouble to all. Then came our great lesson with the printed word Watch. Every lesson is grand and good, but what you need most is this one word, watch. If the soldiers are on the watch they are always ready to meet the enemy, but if they are asleep the enemy can do a great deal of harm. Every little one must watch when all are playing so that their hands and tongue behave well. Sin is always ready for them. Now the three months are gone, and if you have learned every lesson, you know a great deal about how Jesus lived here. He was always doing good, and he wants us all to be as near like him as we can.—Western

JIM BENTLEY'S RESOLVE. By Lydia L. Rouse. American Tract Society, 150 Nassau St. New York. For sale by W. D. Skillman 94 Camp St. New Orleans. Price 75 cents.

We hail all such books with gladness and cheerfully commend them to parents and to the young. It will do good, we wish a wide circulation.

VICTORY AT LAST. By Catherine M. Trowbridge. American Tract Society, 150 Nassau St. New York. For sale by W. D. Skillman, 94 Camp St. New Orleans.

Miss Trowbridge has made quite a reputation by her former works "Steadfast," "Crown of Glory," "Forestville," "Sheaves," etc. We regard this as good if not better than those that have preceded it. It is worthy of a place in every Sunday school and home library. It is neatly bound and sold for $1.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Henry James, Jr., has written for The Century Magazine, to be published early in the coming volume, a sketch called, "The Point of View," —a series of eight letters concerning America, its people, society, manners, politics, railways, etc.,—chiefly in contrast with the same features of European life; the whole lightly strung on a thread of fictitious characterization. As the title indicates, the letters are written from different points of view, the writers including American ladies and gentlemen who have lived in Europe a member of Parliament, and a member of the French Academy.

The Princeton Review for September contains the following list of articles: "Can Americans Compete in the Ocean Carrying Trade?" by George F. How Does Compound Oxygen Cure?

We answer in two important ways: First, by a rapid purification of the blood, in consequence of a larger supply of oxygen to the lungs, and second, by revitalizing all the nerve-centres, the Compound inhaled having in its manufacture become magnetized, which gives it the quality known to chemists as "ozone." A new and healthy action is at once set up in the diseased system, and general improvement follows as surely as effect follows cause. If you wish to know all about this new and remarkable remedy, the use of which is rapidly extending to all parts of the country, send to DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, Nos. 1109 and 1111 Girard Street, Philadelphia, for their Treatise on Compound Oxygen. It will be mailed free.

Ocean Grove Home Missionsionary Meeting.

The success of the National Educational Assembly, held at Ocean Grove, N. J., Aug. 8th and 9th, inspired the friends of our Southern work with much interest. The condition of the South so possessed the minds of the speakers—though of national fame—that the burden of their thoughts and volume of their utterances were touching this great Southern problem. Many thought a supplementary meeting of a more specific character ought to be held in the interest of the Woman's Home Missionary Society. Accordingly Dr. Hartzell arranged, with the consent of Dr. Stokes, to have one Monday, August 14th. Mrs. Dr. W. C. Palmer presided, and introduced the speakers with grace and fitting words. Miss Cowgill, a missionary of eight years' experience in Louisiana, brought here by the kindness of some friends for her recuperation, gentle in manner, but intensely in earnest in her work, interested the audience with the portrayal of her heroic labors and incidents coming under her own observation. Such courage and devotion must accomplish good in the fields of toil and elicit, as this speech did, great interest among our ladies at home. Rev. Mr. Lawrence, the professor of Latin in the Claflin University at Orangeburg, S. C., followed with an effective speech, setting forth the strange admixture of races, and giving cogent reasons for helping both classes in the South. Loyalty must be cultivated there. Educational measures and missionary effort must precede legislation to secure the enjoyment of the civil rights to the oppressed colored man. Mrs. S. B. Darnell urged the province of home and mother in shaping the destiny of society, and showed the necessity of the work done by the ladies under the care of the society in this open and inviting field. Her husband spoke of the cabin life, and what hindrances this interposes to healthy development of social life; also the destitution of ideas concerning the care and training of children, the need for our agencies going into the South since almost the entire forces once sent there have been so circumscribed that they been practically expelled. The last speaker, Professor Caldwell, warmed up to the occasion with his accustomed zeal, and inspired the audience with enthusiasm, so that they desired to hold a meeting of general inquiry. Several ladies sought private interviews with those who took part in the meeting, and resolved to answer the objections they had so often heard in the Churches against organizing the work, and to push the battle vigorously forward, feeling more than ever the national necessity of the Woman's Home Missionary Society.—Western Christian Advocate.

DEATHS.

Mrs. Fannie Benton, daughter of Rice and Elizabeth Morse, of this city, departed this life Monday evening, September 11, at 5 o'clock, under peculiar circumstances. For some days she had been ill, and her friends being aware that she was passing at that time, as in the past few years, through very sore domestic trials, attributed her illness to the same. On Monday eve, before her friends and relatives were aware, she became a raving maniac, and procuring a deadly poison she took the same, which resulted as above stated, at the close of the day. She became conscious toward the last, and seemed at perfect ease until the weary wheels of life stood still. She was a faithful member of Clark Chapel, as well as a faithful mother. In this case, we can only hope for the best. Her parents are among the leading people of this city. Her funeral took place from Clark Chapel, Thursday, September 13, 1882, at 10 a. m., services by the pastor. L. M. H.

With regret I announce to the readers of the ADVOCATE the sad intelligence of the death of Bro. Reason Eonis, which occurred September 8, age 63 years. He leaves a wife and daughter to mourn his loss. He has been an active member of the Louisiana Conference, was assigned to the Springfield work by Bishop Scott, and was superannuated four or five years ago.

Biloxi, Miss. P. E. BARDWELL.

Erastus L. N. Johnson, the only son of Rev. Green N. Johnson and Mrs. L. J. Johnson, of the Tennessee Conference, died at Galloway Station, July 19, 1882. He was born October 14, 1881. Bro. Johnson and wife have our sympathies.

JESSE D. PEIRCE.

Sister Martha Zober died July 27, in the triumph of faith. Sister Elizabeth Outlaw died August 7, after earnest prayer.

Starkville, Miss. JOHN EANES.

Bro. Sidney Breese, an old and faithful member, departed this life, August 23, we hope, in the full triumph of faith.

Henry McGowen, after some three or four months illness, died July 22. A wife and children mourn his loss. He believed he had made peace with God.

Oold Springs, Texas. H. W. WILSON.

Sister Mandy Pollock lived and died a Christian within the Methodist Church, August 29th. She welcomed death. She leaves a husband, a child, and brothers and sisters to mourn her loss. JOHN L. SMITH.

Burleson, Texas.

Sister Julia Gamble departed this life August 20, and said she wanted all God's children to meet her around the throne. Aged 50 years. She was a faithful worker in the church, and will be greatly missed. A husband and four children mourn her loss.

Sister Smithia Busby, aged 21 years departed this life August 27th. She said the Lord had sanctified her and died happy. A husband, sisters and brothers mourn her loss. WM. AIKEN.

Drunkenness.

Those who have taken Simmon's Liver Regulator declare that it sets the liver in action and invigorates the system in such a way as to destroy the craving for strong drinks.

An excommunicated member of a Memphis church, says the Wheeling Register, attempted to whip the pastor because he refused to let him partake of communion. The minister was equal to the occasion, however, and the assaulting party is in the hospital for repairs.

A full feeling after meals, dyspepsia, heartburn, and general ill health relieved by Brown's Iron Bitters.

The tariff commission heard representatives of the Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota lumber trade. They expressed themselves favorable to retaining the present duty on lumber, which was only from 10 to 15 per cent. The statistics of the trade of these three States showed that the capital engaged can only be stated in nine figures, and the quantity produced in ten figures; over 51,000 men are employed, and their yearly wages amount to $17,000.

Opinion of Eminent Dr. H. R. Walton, Annapolis Md.:

"Colden's Liquid Extract of Liebeg's Beef and Tonic Invigorator is a most excellent preparation. It is par excellence, superior to cod liver oil or anything I have ever used in wasted or impaired constitutions, and an excellent preventive of malarial diseases." (Remember the name Colden's—take no other.) Of druggists generally.

The Power of The Press.

In no way is the power of the press more surely shown than in the universal knowledge that has in less than a year been diffused throughout fifty millions of people of the wonderful curative properties of that splendid remedy Kidney-Wort. And the people from the Atlantic to the Pacific have shown their intelligence and their knowledge of what is in the papers, by already making Kidney-Wort their household remedy for all diseases of the kidneys, liver and bowels.—Herald.

There is a great influx of settlers from the North all along the line from Jacksonville to Key West. They come in by colonies, and are composed of men of capital and of sound common sense. The culture of the grape tends fair to outrival a few years hence the celebrated vintage of California, and efforts are being actively taken to establish the culture of the silk worm. These, with the orange groves, undoubtedly prove the vast resources of our Land of Flowers. We are glad to note that a few colored men are employed in the cultivation of their own farms. May they prosper and be happy.—Pensacola Journal of Progress.

The advertisement of Roses of Messrs. Miller & Hunt which appears in our columns, should attract the attention of all lovers of the beautiful. They are the largest house in this line west of the Atlantic coast, and can be relied upon as reliable men.

A Valuable Addition.

Because it is beneficial to the scalp and adds to personal beauty by restoring color and lustre to gray or faded hair is why Parker's Hair Balsam is such a popular dressing.

MALARIA

Malaria is an almost indescribable malady which not even the most talented physicians are able to fathom. Its cause is most frequently ascribed to local surroundings, and there is very little question, but this opinion is substantiated by facts. Malaria does not necessarily mean chills and fever while these troubles usually accompany it. It often affects the sufferer with general lassitude, accompanied by loss of appetite, sleeplessness, a tired feeling and a high fever, the person afflicted growing weaker and weaker, loses flesh day after day, until he becomes a mere skeleton, a shadow of his former self.

Malaria once having laid its hold upon the human frame, the door of the system is thrown open to nervous diseases. The body weak and enfeebled absorbs no nourishment, but subsisting upon itself, the digestive organs no longer perform their functions; the liver becomes torpid, and other organs failing to do their routine work, speedily become disordered, and dissolution and death are apt to ensue.

In addition to being a certain cure for malaria and chills and fever, BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is highly recommended for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient tonic; especially indigestion, dyspepsia, intermittent fevers, want of appetite, loss of strength, lack of energy, etc. Enriches the blood, strengthens the muscles, and gives new life to the nerves. Acts like a charm on the digestive organs. It is for sale by all respectable dealers in medicines, price, $1 per bottle.

Be sure and get the genuine BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. Take no other.

A LETTER FROM GERMANY.

SIEGEN, January 9, 1882.

Very esteemed sirs:

The praise your Liver Pills have called forth here is wonderful. After taking one and a half boxes of your genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, I have entirely recovered from my four years' suffering. All who know me wonder how I, who, for so many years, had no appetite and could not sleep for backache, stitch in my side, and general stomach complaints, could have recovered.

An old lady in our city, who has suffered for many years from kidney disease, and the doctors had given her up, took two of your Pills, and got more relief than she has from all the doctors. Yours truly,

J. VON DER BERG.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar-coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression: McLane's Liver Pill.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signature of C. McLane and Fleming Bros. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently, but of same pronunciation.

If your storekeeper does not have the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, send us 25 cents, and we will send you a box by mail, and a set of our advertising cards.

FLEMING BROS., Pittsburgh, Pa.

EARS FOR THE MILLION! FooChoo's Balsam of Shark's Oil

Positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.

This Oil is abstracted from peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as Carcharodon Rondeletii. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese People. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1 per bottle.

HEAR WHAT THE DEAF SAY!

It has performed a miracle in my case.

I have no unearthly noises in my head and hear much better.

I have been greatly benefited.

My deafness helped a great deal—think another bottle will cure me.

"Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer can personally testify, both from experience and observation. Write at once to Haylock & Jenney, 7 Dey street New York, enclosing $1, and you will receive by return a remedy that will enable you to hear like anybody else, and whose curative effects will be permanent. You will never regret doing so."—Editor of Mercantile Review.

Lost Friends.

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my mother, three sisters, and one brother, the names of whom are as follows: My mother's name when last I heard from her was Betsey Clark; my brother's name was Adolphus Clark; my three sisters names were Adeline Clark, Serelle Clerk, and the third one is the daughter which she had after we were separated, and the name of whom I have not learned. These relatives were sold from me near Covington, La., in or about the year 1839, leaving me a boy about sixteen years old. Before we were sold from one another, we belonged to one Joyner. I myself was sold to a woman by the name of Mary Fox, who afterward married a man by the name of Sam Simpson, with whom I remained till the close of the war. I still go by the name of Simpson. I visited my mother at New Orleans about fifteen years ago, and succeeded in finding them all in that city. Only one of my sisters (Serella) was then married. My mother had married a man whose name I do not recollect. She had had only one child by the man whom she then had. So you see New Orleans is the last place in which I saw them, and I wish to know whether they are still there or not. I may have possibly mistaken a little in giving the surnames of the above named relatives, bot the given names are correct. Wherever my mother is, she is known by the name of the man whom she last married, bot the last name by which I knew her was Betsey Clark; and so for all of the above-named relatives. Myself and Adolphus were the only sons she ever had that I know anything of. My address is Barksdale, Attala county, Miss. WM. SIMPSON.

DEAR EDITOR: I desire to inquire for my sister Martha, who was sold from us when about seven years old to a man who lived near Bolivar, Tenn., named Tom Boyle. At that time we all belonged to John Green, except father, who belonged to Nat Woods. Father was Granville, mother Dollie, brothers William, Granville, and Richmond the baby, sister, Laura. We all went by the name of Norman. Father belonged to Tom Norman, who lived at Whiteville, Hardeman Co., Tenn. Grandfather was Squire Norman, grandmother, Jennie Norman. Mother and all the children except Sister Martha are here in Texas. I desire to find her. Pastors, please read this to your congregations. Address, at Austin, Texas, her brother,

38 3m REV. GRANVILLE NORMAN.

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to see if my relatives can be found. I have a father, mother, and one full sister. Father was August Brown, sister, Louisa Brown, three half-sisters were Mary, Eliza, and Harriet Brown, two brothers were Joseph and George Brown. I was born in Maryland, and when eleven years old was brought to Tennessee. I remained there four years, and was taken to Missouri, and after being there two years came to Texas. I was brought to Tennessee by Jose Gamden, a speculator. Jesse Breese was my last owner. This occurred 1858 to 1866. I am about 39 years old. Address me at Roxton, Lamar county, Texas.

37-8t SARAH ANN LEWIS.

MR. EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my sister and father. I left sister in Fayette county, Tenn., 35 years ago. She was named Everetta, and belonged to James Parchman, who sold her to Mr. Fox. Her mother, Catherine, was brought from Tennessee, by Parchman, to Texas, 35 years ago. My father, Alfred Gwinn, belonged to Atwood Gwinn, and old mistress was Margaret Gwinn. Father had two children by my mother, one Alfred, and the other Henry Jackson. Address me at Laredo, Texas.

A. J. TURNER.

DEAR EDITOR: I desire to know of my sister's welfare. Her name is Lydia Summers. Her father is Willis Summers. The last I heard of him, he was in Harrisburg, Texas, and he wrote me that my sister was in Houston. Since that time I have written to them, and can get no answer. Any one knowing of her whereabouts who will write to me I shall owe much gratitude. Address me, at Double Bayou, Chambers Co., Texas.

GEORGE RIVERS.

Miss Priscilla Davis is inquiring for her family. She was born at Mr. John Andrus' plantation, in the parish of Iberville, La., and was the daughter of William and Eliza Davis. She has a brother Moses and a sister Matilda Davis. She has not seen them since the war. Address at Union Chapel M. E. Church, New Orleans.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC

A combination of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark and Phosphorus in a palatable form. The only preparation of iron that will not blacken the teeth, so characteristic of other iron preparations.

GENTLEMEN: I have used DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Diseases, Dyspepsia, and an impoverished condition of the blood, this peerless remedy, has in my hands, made some wonderful cures. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians, have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any Iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC is a necessity in my practice. DR. ROBERT SAMUELS, ST. LOUIS, MO., Nov. 29th, 1881. 2835 Wash Avenue.

It gives color to the blood, natural healthful tone to the digestive organs and nervous system, making it applicable to General Debility, Loss of Appetite, Prostration of Vital Powers and Impotence.

This Beautiful Life.

How beautiful this earth, where God
His [illegible] bounty shows,
The dropping of autumnal fruits,
The fragrance of the rose,
And all the varied harvest wealth
That he on man bestows.

How beautiful the snowy flocks
That in green pastures feed,
The patient, plastic herbs intent
Their master's call to heed,
And with intelligence endued
The noble, prancing steed.

How beautiful the human face,
Through these expressive lines,
Amid the dawn of infant grace,
Or where bright youth refines,
Or age in holy calmness smiles,
Creative glory shines.

How beautiful the undivided mind,
Where Reason fills its are,
And Knowledge [illegible] gold,
And lights of Fancy burn,
The Memory bids the buried Past
[illegible] return.

How beautiful the immortal Soul,
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] heightens every joy,
And every sorrow heals.

How beautiful this life we lead,
[illegible] year by year,
[illegible] the hope

[illegible] Roberts a very Modest Man.

BY [illegible]

[illegible]

"Well, stranger, have you a desire to serve the Lord, and go to heaven?"

"I have such a desire."

"How long have you had this desire?"

"A great many years."

"Well, do you think, old gentlemen, you know anything about religion?"

To this blunt inquiry the bishop modestly replied that he did, and that he had a good hope of salvation through faith in Christ. Then this uncouth leader exhorted him, the meeting closed, and the bishop returned to the tavern.

Shortly after reaching his home the tavern keeper, with evident hesitation and doubt as to the character of his guest, said:

"Old gentleman, you seem to know something of religion. We usually have family prayers. Perhaps you will read and pray with us?"

"I have no objection if you wish it," replied the bishop.

Bishop Roberts was always mighty in prayer. On this occasion his wondrous power in supplication astonished the landlord. He had never listened to such fervent pleading with God, and was fairly entranced. After rising from his knees, he gazed for some moments at the bishop in silent amazement. At length he said to him:

"Old gentleman, if it would be no offense to you, I would like to know your name."

"No offense at all. My name is Roberts."

"Any relation to Robert R. Roberts, one of our bishops?"

"I am Robert R. Roberts."

Thus only by being questioned did the good bishop make known his official position. The landlord was too happy to sleep much that night. The thought that he had a bishop under his roof kept him awake. The next day he published the fact far and near, and persuaded the bishop to remain two days and preach to the people who gladly came together to hear him.

Perhaps that noble man was too reticent concerning himself while traveling among strangers. Perhaps not. He certainly gained knowledge of human nature by it, since it showed him the disposition of many to respect an officer more highly than a man. It is also certain that if he erred it was on the right side, since it is better to be modest over much than to be vain, pompous, and greedy of special attentions.

For the Southwestern.

A Talk with a Hopeless Case.

BY REV. S. P. BELL.

Mr. R. is the man who built our little church at Leesburg, and I suppose is as good a house carpenter as can be found in the State of Tennessee. Almost every street of this little town is decked with buildings testifying to the fact that he is "Master of his trade." He tells us that in time past he has taken contracts for a single building which would pay him four thousand dollars.

But Mr. R. don't take any such contracts now, nor can he get them, let him try ever so hard. Is it because he is not a good workman? No, certainly not, for his works show for him. What is the matter then? Is it because he is a colored man? No he is a white man. It is because he drinks. A few days ago we were going to our appointment not far from Mr. R.'s home and happening to catch up with Mr. R. riding along on his way from taking a load of wood to town, (the only way he has of making a living,) we were invited to take a ride, and as we drove along through the wood, across the stream and up the hillside, we talked as follows: "Mr. R. can you tell me what first started you drinking, and what was it that formed your taste for liquor?"

"Yes, I am now sixty-five years old, [illegible] I never drank a drop until I was forty. The first thing that awakened my appetite for drinking [illegible] cider. We raised a [illegible] apples and made cider. [illegible] but [illegible] it and said [illegible] in it. Even [illegible] been drinking [illegible]

[illegible]

"About three dollars."

"Can you not stop drinking if you try?"

"No. I have tried sufficiently. I expect to be a slave to it as long I live, which I don't think will be very long. I believe to stop would be certain death to me. And now I tell you the truth, though you may not believe it. This wagon and team is my only means of making a living by hauling wood to town to sell. But to tell you the truth, I must have whiskey. If I get five dollars I must get whiskey first. If I get fifty cents I must get whiskey before I get anything else, either for my family or for myself." We find that by calculation that this Mr. R., has drank in twenty-five years at $2 00 per year the sum of $5,000, and is now going at the rate of $156 per year. Suppose he lives five years longer, (which is very likely.) This will make him seventy, and he will have drank up $5,780 in clean cash, to say nothing of the money paid in fines for being drunk, fights, loss of tools, breaking of wagons, etc. This $5,780 invested in land at the average price of land in Tennessee, would purchase a farm of 578 acres. This sown in wheat, if it only averaged five bushels to the acre, would produce 2,890 bushels, and had it sold at $1 10, the price of wheat this summer, would have brought $3,179 Multiply this amount by twenty-five, the number of years he has taken to drink it, and you have an enormous sum of $79,475. Take $2000 of this to build a college and you have $59,475 left with which to endow it, or which would keep 398 students in school for a year at a cost of $150 each. All of this might have been done had he not taken that little "no harm drink of cider." All of that squandering of his life and living has been made by his taking it. Surely "one sinner destroyeth much good."

Brethren, are there not some around you, yea in your midst, in your churches who are likewise treading upon this very dangerous ground? Would you not do well to recite the above figures to them, and awaken them to a sense of their danger before it is too late? Apples are getting ripe. The passion is being made; it is found sitting upon the dining tables of some of your best families. Show them the reptile before "it bite like a serpent and sting like an adder." Don't enter into any compromise with the demon. There lies the danger. He is in the path of the children. He is in the bosom of the mother and father, and he is offered to the minister of the Gospel. Kill him with the word of God. "For blessed art thou if thou shalt put the brethren in mind of these things."

A Letter from Allen.

ALLEN, LA., Sept. 6, 1882.

MR. EDITOR: Allow me space in your paper for a few sentences concerning our little town. It is located on the right bank of Bayou Taplacat, on a pleasant hill, it has 1000 inhabitants, and is a healthy place. There are large cotton and corn farms on the left bank of the bayou, and the land is rich. It is about five miles from Spanish Lake. Any one can raise stock of the finest breed, and it is the place for all who wish to make a good living and some money. There is but little prejudice between whites and blacks, and all are civil. Liquors were voted out once, but some say they keep them for plantation use, and the country is alarmed by the whoop of victims of whiskey.

I was up about Gloster on the New Orleans Pacific railroad, and attended Boggy church 2½ miles from Gloster. It should be in the Fairfield circuit. There are 28 members, and all are delighted with the SOUTHWESTERN; 25 say they are going to subscribe for it. A good many have homes and land. Mr. Dave Blackshier will sell.

A Tie Vote.

MR. EDITOR: At the State election held Sept. 4, in [illegible] township, a colored man and a white man who had held the office before, and been a citizen of the county for several years, ran for the office of justice. They tied. The bottom rail is getting on top.

Corea—its Present Condition.

Corea is a kingdom of Eastern Asia the greater part of which occupies a peninsula stretching south from the northern portion of the Chinese Empire. Its area is estimated to be about 79,400 square miles, or about two and one-half times the size of Scotland. It is known in Chinese history about 1122 B. C. as affording an asylum to the refugee viscount Ke, and since that time it has been claimed as an integral part of the Chinese Empire. For centuries it had no political importance. In 1392 A.D. Tia-tso or Li-tan became the founder of the present dynasty of Tsi-tsien, and the author of the system of administration still struggling for supremacy. In 1874 the Christian religion was first introduced into the country, and in 1831 a vicar apostolic was appointed by the Pope and repeated efforts were made to gain a footing, but in 1866 the last Europeans were expelled and French missionaries were murdered. Several American vessels having been burned by the Coreans, the United States in 1867 dispatched Commander Schufeldt to remonstrate with the native authorities, but his mission was fruitless. In 1870 Admiral Rogers of the U. S. Navy approached the Corean capital with his fleet, with the intention of communicating with the government. He was met by a determined resistance, and was constrained by political difficulties to bring his expedition to an end. Within a few months Commodore Schufeldt again undertook the task of opening Corea, by treaty, to commercial relations with the United States, but late advices to the Navy Department announce that the proposed treaty has been rejected by Corea, as has also those proposed by Germany and France.

There are two political parties among the ruling classes of Corea. One party is known as the party of progress, favorable to opening the country to foreign trade and intercourse, and the other party absolutely opposed to progress. They are now known as "Insurgents," and on the 23d of July, 1882, in organized body took possession of Se-Oul, the capital of Corea, and murdured the royal inmates of the palace, except the king, and the country was at last advices in a state of anarchy.

The population of Corea is variously estimated at from 8,000,000, to 20,000,000, the inhabitants being of the Mongolian race, of larger size than the Chinese and resembling the Japanese. In dress, architecture, and social customs, they much resemble the Chinese, and are the only people in Eastern Asia where ancient caste distinctions are still rigidly in force. The language is unlike either Chinese or Japanese, and its alphabet has only twenty-seven letters.

The country is mountainous, and agriculture is the chief business. Rice, wheat, tobacco, cotton and hemp are the principal articles of cultivation. The industrial arts are but slightly developed. It is well supplied with rivers and small streams, and rich in minerals of gold, silver, copper, and iron. Coal is also abundant. Women are held in a very low position, and have no recognition under the laws of Corea. Marriage is a matter of etiquette; the terms are settled by the heads of the families. The bride and bridegroom have no opportunity of seeing each other until they meet on the marriage platform and bow to each other as man and wife. Polygamy is not permitted.

Education, as in China, is ostensibly held in high estimation, and all public officials must pass certain examinations. Examiners are appointed by the government, which take account only of results. These examinations are held each year at the capital, and candidates flock there from all of the eight provinces into which the country is divided. After the examination is concluded, then follows a burlesque initiation which, though not enforced, is rendered imperative by custom. The novice puts on his robes and has his face stained with ink and besprinkled with flour, and is subjected to whimsical insults, as he proceeds on horseback with sound of music to visit the chief dignitaries of the State, the examiners, etc.—N. E. Journal of Education.

John G. Whittier was chosen as a delegate to represent Amesbury in the Republican convention of his congressional district.

From Our Mission Rooms.

The Subject of the Missionary Concert Programme for November will be, "The Africa Mission." The present is the fiftieth year since the origin of our Mission to Africa. On the 6th of November, 1832, Melville Cox sailed from Norfolk in the "Jupiter," bound for the coast of Liberia. He went out in the spirit of our latest martyrs in that work, saying: "I know I cannot live long in Africa, but I hope to live long enough to get there." That he "got there" under the auspices of our church; that our church is on the ground in that land in its present strength, is much to praise God for. It is to be hoped that all our churches will take special interest in this concert of prayer for Africa in the month of November, trusting that God will graciously hear our prayer and open a way to us for "greater things" in that work.

The North West Swedish Conference (embraced in the subject of the programme for October) adjourned its session at Chicago on the 11th inst. The summary of statistics for the year shows 5,086 members and 641 probationers; 52 local preachers; 69 churches valued at $181,798 and 27 parsonages at $27,450, $5,950 have been paid on church property debts, but, with the increase, the debt, which is not large ($11, 112), remains about the same as last year. For church building and repairing $13,697 have been raised. The Sunday school scholars number 3,273. $2,574 51 were raised for missions of the Parent Society.

Map of the World for Sunday School Superintendents. A map of the World, colored to represent the prevalence of different religions was published in the July Manual. This map with ten pages of statistical matter will be furnished from the Mission rooms gratis to the Superintendent of all Sunday schools which are organized as missionary societies auxiliary to the Missionary Society of the M. E Church. The superintendent has only to apply to the Secretaries for the map, giving the name of the school and his post office address. The map is thus furnished in expectation that it will be enlarged on the blackboard or otherwise for illustrations in the missionary meetings. It will be found very serviceable for the purpose.

China. Death of Rev. Hu Po Mi's son. Rev. N. Sites writes from Foochow under date of July 12th: "We have just been called to mourn the death of Hu Chaik Sing, age 21 years, the son of Rev. Hu Po Mi; a devoted Christian, a dutiful son and the most promising of our college students. We had hoped that he, ere this fall, would serve as a valuable assistant teacher. But our loss is his infinite gain. On Friday he left loving farewell messages with his friends. Saturday morning he told us his hour had come, that the Holy Spirit told him so, and that he need not take any more of earthly nourishment. And, true enough, at 9 A. M. his happy spirit was gone. Earth is poorer, but heaven is richer. "Even so Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight."

"Opportunities are multiplying," continues brother Sites," and from every region, from every district, reports came in of better and more respectful attention being given to the preaching of the gospel. Rev. F. Oblinger and family were, at the bove date, at sea on their way for a visit to Tientsin and Peking.

Japan Mission Theological Seminary. The transfer of the Theological Seminary and training school from Yokohama to Tokio has been accomplished. We are informed by Dr. Maclay that pending negotiations for the purchase of a suitable site for the institution, a building has been temporarily rented within what is called the Foreign Concession of Tokio, where for the present the exercises of the two schools will be conducted. Rev. M. S. Vail, principal of the Seminary, has removed his residence to Tokio, and in conjuction with his sister, Miss Jennie S. Vail, who continues to render effective service in the educational department of the mission, occupies the house formerly occupied by Rev. M. C. Harris. The class exercises of the schools will commence in September, and a prosperous year is anticipated for the educational work.

Rev. C. W. Green, a re-enforcement to the Japan mission, reports his arrival with Mrs. Green at Yokohama, August 20. "Voyage quick, smooth, pleasant. Little or no sickness to either Mrs. G. or myself." Mr. Green's address is now Hakodati, Japan, to which place he is appointed.

South American Mission. Our church edifice at Montevideo has been undergoing a thorough renovation which is now completed. The church as rebuilt was opened for worship by Rev. J. F. Thompson of Buenos Ayres on Sunday July 9 All trace of the old theatre has disappeared. It is now a neat, comfortable sanctuary, with a seating capacity of six hundred. The Government of Uruguay gave $1000 toward the cost of repairs. The congregation raised the $1500 in addition and are happy in not needing to receive aid from the Missionary Society for this object. The achievement intended as a pleasant "Welcome Home" to the superintendent Rev. T. B. Wood, on his return, and has been wholly planned and executed during his absence.

Dr. Fowler's Visit.

The conferences on this coast have had the visit of a bishop nearly every year for thirty years past. For the first time this year they have had the visit of our General Missionary Secretary. It is an occasion that calls for more than a passing note in the Advocate. We may express a doubt if the visit of any one man to these conferences has ever touched our work at more vital points, or with more vital effect, than has that of Dr. Fowler. Something of this may be due to the personality of the visitant, but it is more largely due to the fact that he represents the greatest evangelizing agency of our great church, and represents it with such singular personal harmony in spirit and methods with it. His addresses on the platform, his speeches before the conferences, his sermons in the pulpit, have been powerful pleas for the great cause which is alike his and ours. Never before has the Methodism of this great northwest stood face to face with our missionary work as now. Never before did our pastors feel its burden upon them as now. The man who is largely the embodiment of its executive force, who touches the springs of evangelistic power in all hemispheres, has spoken to us. His words have "struck us in the face." He has given us the sharp reproofs for our timidity and lukewarmness that we may have so sadly deserved, and which he is too good a friend to us and our work not to administer. He has put the missionary work on our hearts—into our hearts—as it never was before. Showing us how little we have done, he has showed us how much we can do. It cannot, therefore, but be a great benediction to our cause and ourselves that has been among us.

In yet another direction his visit is most opportune. He has seen the swell and felt the thrill of marching empire on the northwest coast. He is too much a pioneer himself not to understand it. He is a prophet; and, withal, an evangelist of to-day. He has absorbed the conditions of our work and of our grand country. He is in sympathy with them. Consequently he can do us justice, and such are the grave, cold elements of his mind and heart that he cannot do injustice when he knows what justice is. We do not ask him to be unjust to others to benefit us, nor would he do so if we did, but we see how his knowledge of us and sympathy with us will do our work and our country great good before the Missionary Board, and before the whole Eastern church. Thus in these two ways; in a truer appreciation of our work done by the Missionary Board, and a deeper sympathy with the work of our common Methodism by us; there will great good result from this visit of Dr. Fowler. He leaves us with the prayers and love of all our pastors and people. —Pacific Christian Advocate.

Our Country's Future.

Not long since a public journal made a statement which startled the public as an almost unthought-of fact. It showed, first, that the territory of the Republic is now larger than all Europe; and, secondly, that, according to the well-ascertained ratios of the growth of its population, the latter will, in about sixty years, equal the present population of Europe. What a consummation will this be! What a thought it would be to a German, or Frenchman, that in sixty years all Europe would be under his national flag, from the Maderia Isles to the Ural Mountains; from the Polar Sea to the Malta—all speaking one language, all having inter-free trade, the same political system, the same social habits—all with perfect civil and religious liberty and unrestricted play for every honourable emulation and aspiration. There are thousands of American children who will see that day for their country. Surely this is a marvelous destiny for any country; history records, thus far, nothing like it; it should make every American an unshakable patriot.

With this latter view the problem becomes singularly interesting. One thing is clear—there can be no war against us after that period. No foreign nation could think of making war against all present Europe combined. The American Republic, will present the same formidable impossibility sixty years from to-day.

Further: What must be the power of the Republic, at that time, over the other nations of the civilized world? Moral power, we mean, of course; for the Washingtonian policy of entire abstinence from "entangling political relations" with European States will, it is to be hoped, be ever maintained by us. Public opinion can, nevertheless, give them a sort of moral sovereignty to the Republic—a sovereign, moral dictation on questions of public right or wrong.

But we need not pause to dream over these problems; we are working inevitably on toward them; let us go on meeting them as they come; let us build our schools and churches; dig out our resources; be faithful to our flag and our God, and hail with joy the future for our children.—Central Christian Advocate.

What are you Smoking?

In New York city 826,669,000 cigars and 229,800,000 cigarettes are made annually, and 25,000 persons are engaged in the manufacture.

Fifteen factories employ chemists for flavoring cigars. It is said that few cigars are free from vanilla; the fillings are soaked in an alcoholic tincture of it. Into cigars enter also the toka bean balsam fir, and cedar oil; and into cigarettes also cascarilla bark. But the best imitator of tobacco flavor is valerian; by the use of vanilla and valerian the poorest stems may be made to answer for fair tobacco. Besides these ingredients, potato leaves, sugar, potash, tamarinds, aniseseed, gum and other articles are used.

To make cigars burn freely, ammonia is used, and they are soaked in saltpetre; this chemical is to make the young old with dispatch. The intoxicating effect of some cigars is due to the addition of rum, or a solution of sulphric ether and bromide of potassium.—Christian Intelligencer.

A correspondent of the Western Christian Advocate, in a letter dated Toronto, August 19th, says: "The Methodism of Canada is the largest thing in it. It has the most worshipers, the largest number of communicants, and the finest churches in the Dominion. The Metropolitan Church occupies an entire square, and is really finer than any Methodist Church building in my knowledge. The Publishing House, in which the Christian Guardian is issued is the largest in Canada, and it seems to be doing a sound and growing business."

Ex-Governor Davis, Chairman of the Texas Republican State Committee, is making effective use of the tariff question in his canvass for election to Congress. He gives in his speeches some striking illustrations of the growth of the wool interest in the State under the protective policy, and the disasters which would certainly overtake it were the Democrats to come into power and reduce the tariff.

A mixed English and Egyptian commission will try the rebel chiefs. Arabi Pasha says he was compelled to fight against his will. The Sultan was in direct communication with him. The London Times says: "Punishment for the crime of rebellion is death, and without vindictiveness it may be said that never was punishment more richly earned than by Arabi Pasha and his chiefs.

Not a telegraph pole is to be seen in London, Paris or any other large cities in Europe. More than a thousand miles of underground telegraph lines are in successful operation in European cities.

A Word to Young Ministers.

That some preparation for the pulpit is indispensable most all preachers admit. But few, and that number is growing less, will attempt to preach without some special preparation. When then a minister is preparing to preach what ought he to do? First, let him inquire what the congregation will probably be—whether old or young, converted or unconverted, and then select a text or subject that will be appropriate. Having selected your text, next inquire as to its literal meaning, when and by whom spoken or written, what was intended by the speaker, what doctrines or duties, what threats or promises are involved therein, and how may these be most profitably presented? The careful answer to these questions will furnish the plan of the discourse, which must be carefully studied in all of its parts; not merely in its frame work, but to the filling up of the entire plan including the introduction and practical improvement. You must study as if there were no God to help and bless in the effort, and then deliver it while it is fresh and burning in your own heart as though all depended upon God. If we may be allowed to refer to experience, we should say there are two modes of composing a sermon. One is on paper, the other is in the mind. The paper composition can be made only when table, paper, pen and all the fixtures are present. The mental composition may proceed without table, paper, or pen, in the cars or buggy, on horseback, in fact most anywhere. Every minister should be familiar with both of these methods. This however is to be said. The paper composition can only be used in the regular pulpit or reading desk, while the mental can be used in the school-house, under the trees or wherever needed. But whether the composition be on paper or the mind, Jesus should be first and last. He is "the way, the truth and the life." A sermon without Jesus would be as a system of solar astronomy with the sun left out. A Christian sermon is as Eden would have been without the river to "water the garden." In Christ there is a fountain of thought fresh and exhaustless as the Divine mind. The Bible is full of Christ. He is in every text. Let Him be in every sermon. No doctrine will men welcome more gladly than that Jesus Christ came to save them. Brethren of the pulpit, give it prominence in every sermon.

Be Ye Holy.

This is the command of God. It is clear imperative, and relates to the present tense. All that we have to do is to obey. This command does say, God more religion, get a blessing, nor seek to be holy but, "Be Ye Holy." It is imperative and in the present tense, and we must obey now. What St. Paul calls the old man will never [illegible] outside, he must therefore be crucified. Every vestige of sin must be put off, and the new man which after the image of God is created in righteousness and true holiness put on. The vital question for each one of us to ask is [illegible] "Was I ever converted?" Past experiences sought for encouragement and strengthening but can never satisfy a present want and need. We must be holy now, [illegible] it will not satisfy. [illegible] have the thing itself. Christ's example is holy. If we would be his followers and dwell with him we must be holy too.

Death of Bishop Wiley's Son.

William E. Wiley, the only son of Bishop I. W. Wiley, died at Cincinnati, Ohio, September 15, under the most distressing circumstances. The building of Charles E. Coffin, a wholesale oil establishment, had been the day before partially destroyed by fire, and the cellar flooded with water. Young Wiley, with the porter, was in the cellar trying to raise some barrels of oil remaining there, when one of the barrels exploded, and streaming over the lantern they had taken with them, took fire, and instantaneously the cellar was filled with smoke and fire. When the explosion occurred it seems that young Wiley started away from the blaze, and had almost reached the hatchway, when he fell between two barrels. He lay, when found by the firemen, with his face downward and half submerged in oil and water. He breathed just once after he was carried out into the open air. He was twenty-one years of age, a young man of promising abilities, in the senior class of the college at Delaware, Ohio. Bishop Wiley, at the time of his death, was conducting a conference at Winterset, Iowa. As we read the account of this terrible tragedy, we remembered the days when the iron entered our heart, and how we were strengthened by the expressions of sympathy that came to us from our brethren, who, like the dead—

"Live in our memory still,
And in our love must live forever."

But above all, and more precious than all, were the assurances of the Divine presence and support that came to us in that night of darkness. Bishop Wiley and his family not only have the deepest sympathy of their brethren in Cincinnati in their great bereavement, but every where as our people learn of their sorrow there will be the greatest expressions of sympathy and earnest prayer in their behalf.

"It costs more than it comes to," say not a few who frequently speak of the expense of keeping up the services connected with the Christian Church. We know that the cost can be easily reckoned up in dollars and cents. It costs so much a year. But the "come to" refers to the other side of the ledger, and is the only true measure of gain or loss. Suppose a soul is converted to God, what about figures in this transaction? Who can tell us how to express in figures the value of a soul gained? Sometimes we have seen the heads of families converted, and soon the evening and morning prayer is heard in that home. There is another item for the opposite side of the ledger. We have seen the maker and seller of strong drinks, the hardest of all persons in the community, reached and saved through the agency of the church. By what figures are we to express the value of such fruit? Where is the arithmetic that shall express the value of the soul saved? Say not that "it costs more than it comes to." Let us be hopeful and work on.

Next to Senator Kellogg, the ablest Louisiana Republican nominated for Congress is unquestionably Gen. W. L. McMillen, of East Carroll parish, now holding the office of postmaster of New Orleans. The fifth district has a majority of over 8000 colored voters and formerly sent Republicans to Congress. Beginning with an era of systematic bulldozing, Gen. J. Floyd King was allowed admission, by a Democratic majority, to Congress in 1879. From that district the negro exodus began under the leadership of a bulldozed candidate, and able colored Republican, A. Fairfax, who is now a Congressional candidate in the State of Kansas. Gov. Francis T. Nicholls, with the usual candor which characterized his administration, found it necessary to rebuke the assailants of Mr. Fairfax in Tensas parish, much to the dissatisfaction of the Bourbons. The present Governor, Samuel D. McEnery, was elevated politically by the latter class, and was one of its boldest defenders in the parish of Ouachita. It is to be hoped that, owing to the progress of events, and to wisdom acquired by experience, the candidacy of Gen. McMillen will not be obstructed by any of the methods of the past. Citizens of all parties are interested in free ballots and honest counts. There should, deservedly, be no peace without them. But, whether this be conceded or not, it is the duty of the citizen to cast his ballot for the candidate of his choice; and no slight impediment should deter the [illegible] voters of the Fifth district [illegible] going to the polls. Gens. King and McMillen are both good des[illegible] and public speakers, and if a [illegible] joint discussion could be arranged [illegible] them, it could not fail [illegible] the enlightenment of voter [illegible] while it would [illegible] bitter mem[illegible]

Editorial Correspondence.

There is nothing stationary in the universe. The earth moves, the sun moves, the stars move. Every luminary in the heavens moves, and is constantly advancing in a prescribed course. The solid foundations of which some men speak, is an absolute worn out idea. The earth itself, that seems to us so solid, is a moving body, and never at rest. Just how God regulates these continually moving bodies, no one knows. The globe on which we live is said to move at the rate of sixty-eight thousand miles per hour. It is amazing, and a fearful rate to travel, but somehow there are certain invisible ligaments that seem to fasten all of us to this flying ball, and no matter how fast it travels we do not experience a jar or tremor to disturb the nerves of the most sensitive being. We call it wonderful adjustment of means to ends, and so it is. Thus, not long since, we heard a brother talk to his people, and this was his application: "In the Methodist Episcopal Church there is no one standing still, no one at rest, all are moving. The bishops, the presiding elders, and the preachers are all moving." Ah me! this poor wandering child has had a little experience in moving, and not always by clock work either, but generally enjoyable. The fiat went forth, and he moved. Surely it cannot be a sin for one thus to write.

The Divine Artificer has made Baldwin on the Teche "beautiful for situation." We are always sure of a kind reception here. In this village, with some of its hospitable people, we have found pleasant homes. We found Bro. Fitch, President of Baldwin Seminary, busy making arrangements for the opening of the school. Father Baldwin was doing the best he could to put the boarding house and other buildings in order. The Lord bless President Fitch and Father Baldwin, and wonderfully help them in their work.

At La Teche Bro. Lyons is no failure, he is a diligent and faithful itinerant. He believes in brains and muscle too, and will use both to drive the devil any time. But the weapons he uses are never carnal, he is no fighting-priest. He looks well after the interests of his people. The SOUTHWESTERN is not forgotten. This is no figurative language. Sabbath the 9th inst was a gala day. We had the privilege of preaching four times; once at Baldwin, once at La Teche; when, through the kindness of Bro. Fitch, we were driven to Franklin in time to preach for Bro. Fount Le Roy, pastor of the M. E. Church South, who is a man of unspotted Christian character, devoted to his work, full of usefulness, and greatly beloved by all people. We found Bro. Williams and his people waiting, and Bro. Lyons, who had followed on from La Teche, exhorting like a true Methodist, save this difference, here the exhortation was before the sermon. The sermon and collection were out of the way about ten o'clock, p. m., and the writer, about as well worn as it is lawful for any Methodist minister to be; but in this world there is work to be done, and somebody must do it. "The night cometh, when no man can work." A good night's sleep was refreshing; but it did not take all the tire out of me. In ten days, we have rode in the cars 250 miles, in a buggy 50, and walked 15 miles, preached ten times, held seven quarterly conferences, and administered the sacrament of the Lord's Supper three times. O.

England and Egypt.

No country is more prominently before the world at this time than Egypt. On some accounts it is one of the most wonderful countries on the face of the globe. It has been described by Moses under the Pharaohs, by Herodotus after the Persian conquest, by Strabo and Diodorus during the Grecian and Roman occupation, by Pliny, the naturalist, and Arian the biographer of Alexander, and by several other eminent writers. But, it is not of Egypt as a country that we propose to speak just now The eye of all the world has been turned toward both Egypt and England that they might, if possible, get the facts which underlie the controversy going on between these two powers.

What right has England to enter the harbor of Alexandria and dictate to the Egyptians where they shall and where they shall not build their forts? Or what right has she to fire on Egyptian forts? These, or similar questions are often repeated. England is simply doing her duty, growing out of a covenant made to the Sultan of Turkey in 1840. It is a well known fact that at that time the powers of Europe determined what form of government Egypt should be, and the relation it should sustain to that of Constantinople. They decided that there should be no other power than a vice-royalty in Egypt, and that he should pay the usual tribute to Turkey. It was then further determined that the government should be "hereditable by the eldest male of the family." The present government has come down regularly according to the treaty of 1840. The present Khedive is said to be the best of the whole line, wise and humane in his administration, and prudent in personal expenditure, and while the rest of the powers held back England has gone forward, and is doing her duty in the case.

A further reason for England's course in this matter is found in her property rights in Egypt. In 1876 the father of the present Khedive found himself in financial distress and sold his shares of the canal to the British Government. Thus England secured something more than political rights to the use of the canal. She has property interests there, bought and paid for. It was her duty to protect these interests. She could not sit by and see a power rise up under the hollow watch word "A national party for Egypt" with Arabi Pasha at the head of affairs, which she had every reason to believe would set aside and trample upon the covenant of of 1840, and repudiate all the property interests England and British capitalists had in Egypt and the canal. She knew that she might as well attempt to treat with the street dogs of Damascus as with the fanatical Moslems so long as Arabi Pasha was leader. It is difficult to see how England with due regard to herself and the rights of English people could have done otherwise. How this trouble is to end we are not prepared to say. We know that Russia has not forgotten England's part in upholding the Turk in the Crimean and Russo-Turkish wars. Here all thoughtful men anxiously wait events. We have no thought that Egypt will ever rise again to power in the scale of nationality she must be a mere dwarf. In her pyramids can be seen the impress of the power and majesty which once made the name of Egypt a terror to nations, but to-day her greatest inheritance is her overwhelming debt and degraded inhabitants. Paradoxical as it may seem to some we incline to the thought expressed by others, namely, "that England is co-working with God to insure the Gospel to Egypt."

New-Orleans University.

We are sure that our readers will not only pardon us for bringing this institution so frequently to their notice, but that very many of them will, in their hearts at least, thank us. While its doors are wide open to persons of all races, yet the colored people, who are shut out from nearly all our schools of high grade, will reap the chief advantage from it. To them, therefore, we say, as we have said before, crowd its recitation rooms; avail yourselves to the utmost of the wide opportunities that are presented to you so richly, and yet so cheaply. Do our people of this city all know that they have at their very doors an institution where not only their sons, but their daughters as well, can for simply one dollar a month obtain as thorough an education as can be had in any institution in our State? Yet this is an indisputable fact. Do you know, furthermore, that in this institution, and in this alone, in the whole city, your children will be taught to revere the name of John Wesley, and the doctrines which he taught? Yet this is true, also. While no attempt is made to proselyte children of other churches, yet we wish it to be distinctly known that this is a Methodist school, and that nothing contrary to the doctrines of our Church will be taught to its students; and that whenever the doctrines of the Bible are referred to, as they must be at times, of necessity, they are presented according to the Methodist standards. The morals of the students are carefully guarded, and their manners and language corrected whenever necessary. We are glad to learn that the college opens, under its new management, with an unusually large number of students. Notwithstanding the date of opening is two weeks earlier than usual, the number that has been enrolled is larger than ever before, during the same time, with one exception. We are glad that our people are giving the new president, Dr. Dean, so cordial a reception, and we feel confident that none who intrust their children to his care will repent of it. He informs us that not one student who desires to enter, whether for the highest classes or the lowest, will be turned away, but that provision will be made for every one. Send in your children, and give them an education, and that too where they will be safe from all contaminating associations, and where an active religious influence will be exerted over them.

Let our young people from abroad also come. Young men can obtain good board in the college, and young women in good private families, for ten dollars a month. We say again, don't fail to avail yourselves of these golden opportunities.

What Are You Doing?

The leading thought of God's ministerial servants ought to be, "What shall I accomplish for Jesus?" We find many things we can do, but for fear of some physical strength being exerted, we shrink from many duties devolving upon us. We do the niceties and shun the idea of pulling off of our coats and doing the act we ought to do. I speak, from general observation; in many instances you ask such a one, "What are you doing?" and the response will be, "All I can." I dread the answer of many of our leaders as they delight to give the number of large conversions, when a strict search of their work will not bear out this assertion; and when you do find out what they are doing it will be receiving their salaries, sleeping late on the blessed sabbath of our Lord, and getting the local and all other available preachers to do their work. And they will tell you God sent them to preach, and the Bishop sent them to feed the flock, and they are sitting down in the parsonage doing nothing. When we left the District Conference, we left to finish the work to do, or die trying. We left Alexandria with tools in an ox wagon, Bro. Adam Baxter, of Alexandria, a mechanic, and myself in a buggy, for the pine hills, better known to all as Spring Creek, where the water is of the purest and springs of everlasting water never run dry. We started on our church on Aug. 16. We cleared the land, burnt off the grass, and finished on the outside. On Wednesday, Aug. 30, sundown, I had traveled all night with a corpse, thirty miles or more, and reached the church at 1 P. M.

That night I was aroused by loud calls from my sleep at eleven o'clock, to cast my eyes wet with tears, upon the burning building where I had labored hard and earnestly, doing all I could towards the finishing of a neat church 20x26, twenty-two feet high from the ground beneath. Located fifteen feet from the new church stood the old one, which we intended to move and turn in to a parsonage with some alteration. It was burnt too, along with all of our tools. My loss is badly felt. I was doing all I could to promote the cause and to give the people a good house and by the hand of some incendiary, a midnight assassin who laughs in his sin of destruction, fired the house. The day for our meeting had come; some said, "Parson, what are you going to do?" I answered, "I am going on with my camp meeting just as though nothing had happened." "Well, what are you going to do with your people for a church?" etc. I am going to build again, as we built that, so we can again. That is what I am going to do, and with this reverent mind and a spirit of go-aheadness the white people said, "Go on, we are going to help you." I rode around seven miles in the four directions from the ashes of the burnt building, and the whites subscribed $48 50, and more to follow. The colored people subscribed $60 00, and more to come. We are Methodists, tried by the fire, and we are not burnt out, even if our houses and tools are. We are going to do the will of the Master, and not consider the hardships or even count them. My family has lived, thank God, while I worked for the church in a distant field. This should suffice the most critical inquiry as to what I am doing.

My camp meeting wound up Sunday night with a grand old Methodist love feast, six accessions to the church, and two backsliders reclaimed, baptized three infants; $16 00 collected towards paying off debt of church; as for me I very seldom receive any means from the people. The whites have kindly given me the use of their church, built for Methodists and Baptists, now used principally for a white school, to hold my services. When Bro. Albert comes they wish me to have preaching during the day; they delight to listen to us and we are glad to have them come. We preach plain doctrine, and use a language that we are familiar with. We love our church, her law and her people, and what we do, we do cheerfully for Jesus. We have plenty to eat among this people. They own their little farms.

We went up to the Hineston Methodist Episcopal Camp meeting (South Church) to attend the meeting for Friday the 8th. The people were gathering from near and from far. We met Rev. F. C. Hocutt P. E. and some of the other brethren there, preparing for the night. They asked us of our mission, we we informed them, and we received some aid from Rev. F. C. Hocutt and others. We further informed them that we came to hear and to see; the elder responded that that was no place for preachers to look on, but that all must preach who came there; that they had hearers in plenty. Services were not until night and no place to lay our head, and being on other business we left before services for our place of abode, nine miles down the creek. From the time we commenced on the building to now we have ridden 195 miles, walked ten miles, eaten three meals a day when we could get them, and others very scant; buried one child, five visits to the sick, attended one love feast, five prayer meetings, preached eight times, baptized three infants, held three board meetings, made thirty visits, hauled lumber two days, worked nine whole days on the church, worked three days and nights in camp meeting, and picked cotton one day to help a sick brother and sister. In our ramble, and a night spent at one of our brother's houses, we chanced to meet one of our old sisters in the person of Violet Brown, who is not over sixty-five summers and looks twenty-five less, the picture of health, a good old Methodist, bringing up a family of fifty-eight children and grand children together in our church on Spring Creek. Besides the great grand children she has 142 cousins in the neighborhood, she mentions those in Texas 120. She is the mother of eighteen children. We left the creek on Saturday to visit our little ones for a few days. We have more to do, we will leave in a few days for Stuart's chapel. If any of the brethren come to our home you will hardly find us, but you will find my wife and children there to receive you and treat you in Methodist style; but for us, we live at the present mostly in the saddle on the back of our pony trying to do the work of an itinerant. We find more to do than we can do, or find means to do it with, but by the help of the Lord, his grace is sufficient for all things.

Yours truly,
H. J. WRIGHT.

West Tennessee District Conference.

The second session of the West Tennessee District Conference under Elder J. P. Price was held at Mason, Tenn., August 23d, 1882. Rev. S. B. Danley, of the Memphis circuit, preached the opening sermon. G. N. Johnson was elected secretary, J. W. Pickett, E. Manson, J. W. Hall, L. J. Johnson, assistants. The usual committees were appointed, and the regular business of the conference was dispatched with much readiness.

Elder J. P. Price read his report, which was very encouraging. All the pastors were present but three and they sent in their reports and excuses which were valid. This has been one of the best attended district meetings we have had, the reports encouraged the brethren very much. The Lord hath done all things well, praise his name.

On Thursday night T. Woods, of Henderson circuit, preached the sacramental sermon with much power and acceptability. 173 took of the Lord's Supper, twenty-seven were licensed to preach God's word. The following were recommended for admission into the traveling connection: S. B. Danley, A. P. Blakemoore, Henry Irvin, J. S. St. Clair, George Sanford, Joseph Harper.

Friday night Rev. J. W. Pickett preached the missionary sermon to a large congregation of white and colored. The people returned home, greatly pleased with the speaker. The District Institute held in connection with the conference was a grand success. Our preparatory preacher, Rev. C. E. Alexander, had his organ moved to the church and furnished the Institute with music, which made the exercise spicy.

A resolution was passed to continue the hour of the Sabbath-school meeting all over the district at 8:30 and be in session at 9 o'clock, a. m. Several resolutions were passed, one on temperance, education, thanks, etc.:

1. WHEREAS, We have been so pleasantly entertained by the good people of Mason, both white and colored,

Therefore resolved, That we return a vote of thanks to those good people for their hospitality.

2. That we return a special vote of thanks to Mrs. Jane Mason for her liberality in boarding ten or twelve members of the conference at the hotel.

3. And to Mrs. Griffin for entertaining the elder and family, and fifteen members of the conference on Sabbath.

4. Also Dr. Elkins for administering to the necessities of the sick of our conference, free of charge.

We had a glorious time at Mason. We have a good sized church there, but it was not large enough to hold one-third of the people attending, hence the preacher took his stand in the door and preached to a multitude of people, both white and colored. Mason is notable for many things, among which is the good feeling that exists between the races.

A white man can vote for a negro without being ostracised, or his business curtailed. We have several negro officers at this place. A resolution was passed that we patronize our papers published at Atlanta and New Orleans, also our church and Sunday-school literature.

The committee reported the following collected on the benevolent claims: Missions $91, Church Extension $13 13, Tract $2 45. Sunday-school Union $30, Freedmen's Aid $35 25, Education $11 50, Bible $2 80, Conference claimants $4 36. This closes one of the best district meeting we have had on the West Tennessee district.

Remember.

To the brethren of the Okolona District, Mississippi Conference: It is a matter of profound regret that I was not able to meet several of my appointments of the third round, on account of sickness in my family. But from this date, the Lord being pleased, I shall meet each quarterly conference in season as heretofore.

Now, dear brethren, we remember our pledge at the last annual conference to raise the amount that we subscribed so cheerfully for the new building at Rust University. As this is the time of the year that our people have money, let us make a grand rally all along the line. Let every preacher that subscribed begin at once, and be not content until the whole amount has been collected and forwarded to the treasurer at Holly Springs.

You remember on last year we determined to make the Okolona District the banner of the Mississippi Conference, and at the last session we found that our efforts were successful. Shall we keep the banner in the eastern part of the State, where it has just as much right to be as anywhere else? If we would; (I repeat again,) let every minister be sure that the amount he promised, by the help of God, be collected. Not for an outside show to the world will we raise our amounts subscribed, but because we love our university, the salvation of souls, the up-building of the Redeemer's kingdom, and the spreading of Methodism throughout the world. Fraternally yours,

J. MORRIS SHUMPERT, P. E.
Columbus, Miss.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Bishop Foss has appointed Rev. Wilmot Whitefield superintendent of the Dakota Mission.

—Dr. Edward B. Pusey, leader of the famous Tractarian movement, and an eminent English divine died on the 23d.

—Rev. J. H. Owens, of New England Conference, is to take charge of Rust Normal Institute, at Huntsville, Ala.

—The report that Henry O. Flipper had been appointed to a captaincy in the Mexican service proves to be unfounded.

—Hon. Luther M. Hutchinson, Speaker of the House of Representatives, Maine, died at Lewiston, Me., Sept. 8, aged 38.

—Senator Kellogg enters upon his canvass this week, and will speak at the prominent points in his district before the close of the campaign.

—Major-General M'Dowell, at San Francisco, will be placed on the retired list about the middle of October. General Schofield will succeed him on the Pacific coast.

—One of the privileges said to be recently accorded to Midhat Pasha, who was once Grand Vizier of the Sublime Porte, but is now in banishment at Tafilet, in Morocco, is that of explaining the Koran to a certain number of children.

—Miss Jennie Rawlings, daughter of the late General John A. Rawlings, secretary of war, and chief of General Grant's staff, was married on the 8th in the Presbyterian church at Goshen, N. Y. General Grant gave away the bride.

—Prof. Clifford of the New Orleans University, whose return has been delayed, is to be here on Thursday, accompanied by one of his sisters, who will be added to the teaching force of the institution. The college will then be prepared for a thorough year's work.

—Ex-Gov. Pinchback has returned his daughter, Miss Nina, to Burham's Seminary at Northhampton, Mass. Master Pinckney, his eldest son, goes to the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy to learn the profession of druggist and study medicine.

—It is stated that Rev. Fr. Van Schluembach, formerly of our work in Texas, and more recently secretary of the German Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association, has entered into the service of the State Church in Germany, as an evangelist. A number of wealthy Christians in England have agreed to pay his salary.

—Zion's Herald says: Dr. James A. Dean, who has been appointed president of the New Orleans University, is well known in this vicinity, having labored in the Providence and New York East Conferences. He graduated at Middletown in 1847. He was afterwards a professor in Randolph and Macon College, president of the Ohio Wesleyan Female College at Delaware, and still later of the East Tennessee University at Athens. He brings abundant experience to his new chair.

—The Rev. F. W. Briggs, M. A., of Liverpool, England, visits this country to receive the sympathy of American Methodists with the project, now well advanced, of erecting a worthy Memorial Chapel at the birth-place of Francis Asbury. We commend the cause to the interest and contributions of all broad-minded Methodists. Next to John Wesley stands Francis Asbury in the development of American Methodism, and in services and sacrifices for it far before him.—N. Y. Advocate.

—Hon. W. C. De Pauw, of New Albany, Ind., who had just returned with his family after a year's visit to Europe and Egypt and Palestine, called at our Book Concern last week, and on learning that the Annual Conference embracing his home Church would meet the next day, immediately went to the Missionary Treasurer, Mr. John M. Phillips, and handed him a check for $1,000, stating that as he had been accustomed to send that amount yearly to the Conference for the benefit of Missions, and could not reach the Conference session in time to do so this year, he would pay the money here and forward the receipt to the Conference Treasurer. Such considerate care in aiding in the benevolent work of the Church should be suggestive to many.—N. Y. Advocate.

We lost at least a million of money for the Mississippi by not having the bill passed as a separate measure.

MISSISSIPPI.

L. J. Terrell, Ripley: "My protracted meetings are about closed. At Mt. Olive, 5 converts; St. Paul, 3; Mt. Zion, 5; Berry Chapel 3—16 in all. Three Baptists united with us. We have taken in this year 34."

D. W. Calvert, Starkville: "We have just closed our protracted meeting. We had 46 converts. Three backsliders were reclaimed, and 31 joined on probation. Our conversions for the year stand 63. All united with us except one, who went to the Baptist church. We can truly say that our work is in a proper condition up to this time. The whole number of additions to the church this year is 120. Some of them are from the Baptist church. We are preparing to recover and ceil the parsonage. Part of the lumber is on the ground."

R. Hayes, State Line: "Elder Dunn held my third quarterly conference, administered Lord's supper to 35, and preached an excellent sermon. Sixteen were received in full connection, two by letter, one from the Baptists; there are five on probation. Elder's collection was $13 75. We have bought a house, with four rooms for a parsonage, half a mile west of State Line, and moved in June 27. The price was $58. Both Sunday-schools are doing well. We are having good meetings; pray for us."

O. Tolson, Hickory: "The quarterly meeting was held at this point on the 1st and 2d of July. J. W. Dunn, presiding elder, being present administered sacrament to 54, presiding elder's collection, $15 35. Children's day was observed, collection $2 00. We have erected a new chapel at Bethel, size 30x24. We had a grand meeting at St. Mark on the fifth Sunday in July last. Bro. H. Cawthorn, of Enterprise, present, and he also gave an excellent address. We have taken up a collection for the benefit of the church. Donations amounting to $14 20 were made."

MISSISSIPPI.

M. V. Keever, superintendent Sunday-school, Meridian: "Owing to the absence of the superintendent of the St. Paul M. E. Sunday-school upon a soliciting tour for our Academy. The observance of "Children's Day" was deferred until the 17th. A committee of young ladies had decorated the church with evergreens and flowers, and at the appointed hour the children with happy faces, and accompanied by their parents and friends, began to fill the room. The services were held in the morning and at night and consisted of the recitation of verses, reading of Scriptural lessons, short addresses and singing. Withal we had a good time. Collection $13 55."

FOURTH QUARTER. LESSON I. Oct. 1.
THE ANOINTING AT BETHANY. Mark xiv, 1-11.

Our golden text says, "She hath done what she could." Of course then, the lesson tells of a woman. Her name was Mary. She was sister to Martha and Lazarus. Jesus loved to go to their quiet little home, and they were his dear friends. In this lesson Jesus is in Bethany, at Simon's house. His enemies went to catch him and kill him, but they are afraid because so many have learned to love him. Mary loved Jesus, and so she came and poured precious ointment on him. Judas found fault, because he said it was wasting money. He said the poor needed the money. You see Judas carried the little money the disciples had, so he wanted the money it cost. Judas loved money. He sold his Savior for money. But Jesus knew Mary's heart and said, "She hath done what she could, and wherever my Gospel is preached this also that she hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her." What an honor. Judas is only remembered for his bad deeds, but Mary is always remembered for her love. Jesus [illegible] good and kind now as then. He [illegible] all you do for him; and then you do all you can, no matter how little, he will [illegible] and the golden [illegible].—Western.

The expenses of a habit which one [illegible] illustrated by Mr. Staples one day this [illegible] as follows: Six months ago [illegible]

Mr. Burke telegraphs an editorial from Washington to the Times-Democrat, of Sunday morning, that contains a singular sentiment. Speaking of the duel he fought with the Picayune editor he says: "When he had done his work and earned his pay, the common decencies and observances practiced in the circle of gentlemen, to which I had elevated him by the meeting, should have sealed his slanderous lips." The italics are ours and suggest the point. We are of the opinion that neither gentleman was elevated by that encounter but rather the reverse. The idea of a man being elevated by standing up as a target for somebody's pistol! Who considers it an elevation? Was wounded honor relieved? Was insulted manhood appeased? It seems not. Alas! for such barbarity, and all hail to the growing sentiment that frowns upon such brute courage. We have outlived the "code of honor." It is now, in popular estimation, the code of dishonor. Editors should first avoid personal journalism, and secondly, hold their manhood and profession too high to be parties to an "affair" or the bullies of the ring. This is the second half of the nineteenth century. Mark that.—New Orleans Christian Advocate.

THE TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—This is a practical method of teaching the young the first principles of temperance—the nature and effects of intoxicants—and doing it most attractively. Any one familiar with Sunday-school work can easily take it up, and thus carry out the recommendation of our last General Conference with regard to temperance education. It has proved successful in many localities. Full directions for organizing and sustaining it are given in a little pamphlet, called "The Temperance School," which will be posted free to any address by Miss Julia Colman, 76 Bible House, New York City.

Rev. A. M. Green, at St. James Chapel, to-morrow evening (Friday 29th,) will repeat his lecture on "The Present and Future Outlook for Africa," by special request of the West African Trade Society.

NEW BOOKS.

LECTURES ON EVOLUTION. By Prof. T. H. Huxley. (Illustrated.) Price 15 cents. J. Fitzgerald & Co., Publishers, 30 Lafayette Place, New York.

This valuable work forms number 36 of the "Humboldt Library," a collection of works by the most eminent scientists of our time. They are printed from clear type, on good paper. The enterprise of bringing the best popular scientific literature within the reach of all merits, and doubtless will receive, the hearty support of every one interested in the diffusion of useful knowledge. Instructive volumes like these, in which the charms of literary style serve to render attractive the teachings of science will in time have the effect of banishing from our homes the demoralizing trash which passes current as "Literature." For sale by newsdealers.

THE BOOK OPENED. By Alfred Neven, D. D. Indiana: The Religious Publishing House, J. C. Sherrill proprietor.

This is not a book for learned theologians, nor metaphysical or philosophical thinkers. It will, however, be of great use to those whose opportunities to read or study are somewhat limited. As a manual of Biblical truth we commend it. It will be a good addition to any library great or small. The general spirit of the work is devout, the style simple, lucid, and engaging. In a brief but comprehensive manner it sets forth the important facts and characters connected with Bible history. To all of our preachers engaged in the Southern work, "The Book Opened" will be a great help. It may be ordered from this office. Price $1 50.

MRS. SOLOMON SMITH LOOKING ON. By Pansy. Boston: D. Lothrop & Co., Price $1 50.

This story has for its principal character an old New England country lady of primitive ways, but really and practically pious. She is a close observer of men and things—her comments on what she sees and hears is always to the point. She goes from her country home to the city, and attends a Sunday-school convention. Her descriptions of what she sees and hears there are true to life. Mrs. Solomon Smith, whether at home, or away among her relatives, always had a right word at the right time, and said it in a pleasing and effective manner.

MAGNA CHARTA STORIES. Edited by Arthur Gilman. Illustrated. Boston. D. Lothrop & Co. Price 1 00.

This is a wholesome book. The twelve stories here brought together are intended to illustrate the hate and persistence with which the idea of freedom and liberty has been pursued by tyrants through all the centuries. The style of the writer is dignified and interesting, with a close adherence to the facts of history. All sensible parents will wish to place this book in the hands of their children. The volume is well illustrated, and handsomely bound.

N. Tibbals & Sons have in press, The City Temple Pulpit Sermons by the Rev. Joseph Parker of London, with other homiletical matter. There has been a call for the sermons of this brilliant writer and speaker, which the publishers hope this volume will meet. It is proposed [illegible] with other volumes, [illegible] with favor. It will make a 12mo. volume of 300 pages. Price $1 50. N. Tibbals & Sons, 124 [illegible] Street, New York.

Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine (New York; Leonard Scott Pub. Co.,) for September opens with a paper on Rachel, the great actress; others are Birnam, the coming of the Mahdy, Lieutenant Colonel Patrick Ferguson, a career of the American Revolution, affairs at Constantinople, and Curiosities of British Politics. Price 30 cents at newstands.

The American Agriculturist, published by the Orange Judd Company, 751 Broadway, New York, comes to us in an entirely new dress. We regard this by far the cheapest and best agricultural journal published in the United States. The reading matter is always excellent, being both useful and practical, and will interest and instruct any who read the paper. A supplement accompanies this number filled with the greatest variety of useful premiums presented to those who procure subscribers. The Agriculturist is supplied for one dollar and fifty cents per year.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine, for October overflows with good things. "The Religion of the Ancient Egyptians," by J. Newenham Hoare; "The Study of Biology at Princeton College;" "Lace-making;" "The Mount Axen Road in Switzerland;" "The Copts of Egypt and their Church," are among the profusely illustrated articles. There are some admirable sketches and essays, one by Rev. Dr. Talmage, "The Old Homestead." Marion Harland's serial, "A Good Fellow," is concluded, and MacDonald's "Weighed and Wanting" is continued. Among the poems is a beautiful one, "The South Wind," by the late Fanny Parnell. "The Home Pulpit" has a sermon by Dr. Talmage, "Christianity as a Delusion." There are also "Wit, Wisdom and Pathos of Childhood," "The Collection Basket," Information for the Curious," "The Bow Unbent," etc., and an abundance of brief articles, paragraphs, etc. The price is 25 cents a number; $3 a year, postpaid. Address Frank Leslie, Publisher, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

DEATHS.

Oscar Le Blanc, only son of Joseph and Savannah Leblanc, born Dec. 23, 1880, died Aug. 23, 1882, aged two years and six months. He was baptized at Bayou Black church. H. RICHARDSON.
Foster, La.

Bro. Peter Chaver died April 24, at Cedar Grove, on Cypress circuit, Texas. He leaves a wife, child, parents and friends to mourn his loss. He was a member of Cedar Grove church.

Bro. Alfred Stafford, died Aug. 23, aged 83 years. He was a member of the church for twelve years. From his testimony we judge that he has made his election sure. He bore a long illness with patience.

Conference Notices.

A camp meeting will be held at Kenner, on the New Orleans and Chicago Railroad, beginning Saturday Sept. 30, and continuing over Sabbath. The meeting will be under the care of L. P. Cushman, presiding elder of the South New Orleans District, and Rev. Austin Jones. A cordial invitation is extended to all the Christian people of Kenner to join in this effort to do something for the salvation of our young people. We also invite our brethren in the ministery to come up and help us in our work.

How Are You, My Old Friend!

Asked a bright-looking man. "Oh! I feel miserable, I am bilious and can't eat, and my back is so lame I can't work." "Why in the world don't you take Kidney-Wort? That's what I take when I'm out of sorts, and it always keeps me in perfect tune. My doctor recommends it for all such troubles." Kidney-Wort is the sure cure for biliousness and constipation. Don't fail to try it.—Long Branch News.

Forty Year's Experience of an Old Nurse

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is the prescription of one of the best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and has been used for forty years with never failing success by millions of mothers for their children. It relieves the child from pain, cures dysentery and diarrhoea, griping in the bowels, and wind-colic. By giving health to the child it rests the mother. Price twenty-five cents a bottle. 20-1y

There is one colored pupil to every twenty-four white pupils in the public schools of Columbus, O. The 'color line' in those schools has been withdrawn for the first time this autumn. There was very little disapprobation shown by the parents of the white pupils, and only one child was taken out of school for the reason of the admission of the colored children. The Northwestern says: Colored boys and girls have attended the public schools in Chicago with the white children for seventeen years, and no harm has been done.

DR. JOHN BULL'S
Smith's Tonic Syrup
FEVER and AGUE
Or CHILLS and FEVER.
AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

Notwithstanding the stringent laws passed by Congress forbidding the registration as voters in Utah of all who practice or profess polygamy, the Mormons still retain a majority. According to the report just submitted by the Commissioners the names of 10,000 Mormon voters will be erased from the poll lists. As the voting population is about 23,000, of which 5000 are Gentiles, the Mormon majority is still 3000.

No Drug Medication.

Compound Oxygen is simply a new combination of the two elements which make up our common atmosphere, and in such portions as to render it much richer in the vital or life-giving quality. It contains no medicament, unless the elements of pure air are medicines, and its administration introduces nothing into the body which the system does not welcome as a friend, accept with avidity and appropriate as entirely homogeneous to itself. Our Treatise on Compound Oxygen, its nature, action and results, with reports of cases and full information, sent free. Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 and 1111 Girard Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

The Colored Marriage and Aid Association of Mississippi, at Okolona, Miss., is still gaining ground. During last week marriage benefits were paid as follows: On certificate No. 73, Olivia Lovely, $29; on certificate No. 16, Benjamin Whitfield, $58. Both of these persons reside at Columbus, Miss., and had been members of the Association only twenty-nine days.

We advise all our readers to be law abiding citizens, and as far as possible to keep out of the courts, but if any of them have an adversary who is depriving them of their rights, we advise them to confer with Messrs Elliott & Tucker, whose card they will find in the SOUTHWESTERN.

Ayer's Ague Cure not only affords immediate relief, but it eradicates the malarial poison which produces the disease, without leaving any injurious effect, as is the case with quinine and many of the ague medicines advertised. It is the only medicine in existence which may be considered an ab lute antidote for fever and and ague, and kindred diseases.

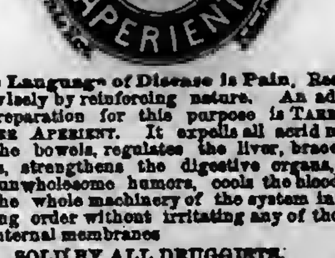
Remove the cause by regulating the bowels, by establishing good digestion and by quieting the nerves with Simmons Liver Regulator. Try it, and you will soon know the blessing of good health and sound sleep.

Dr. Pierce's Compound Extract of Smart-Weed is a sovereign remedy for all bowel affections. By druggists.



The Language of Disease is Pain. Respond to it wisely by reinforcing nature. An admirable preparation for this purpose is TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT. It expells all acrid matter from the bowels, regulates the liver, braces the nerves, strengthens the digestive organs, dissipates unwholesome humors, cools the blood, and puts the whole machinery of the system in good working order without irritating any of the delicate internal membranes.

pastors neglect the children. Other churches watch this matter closely. The Church of Rome only wants the children to train them. Other churches form classes of catechumens and diligently instruct the children, preparatory to their assumption of confirmation vows, and we believe that all the baptized children of the church ought to be regularly graded and looked after by the pastors with the most diligent care. Every Methodist preacher ought to know well every child in every Methodist home; and if only attention be paid to them, the children will love their pastor and become proud of their relation to him and the church.—Baltimore Methodist.

Uses of a Bridle.

Keep a bridle on your tongue. Do not speak rashly. Do not talk too much. Speech is an unspeakable gift, but silence is sometimes better. Speech is said to be silvern, while silence is golden. Keep a bridle on your passions. They go mad if they get unmanageable, driving you down a blind and headlong course to ruin; don't let it slip. Keep a bridle on your appetites. Restrain them when they go too far. Be temperate in all things.

A little girl was asked by her mother, on her return from church, how she liked the preacher. "Didn't like him at all," was the reply. "Why," asked the mother. "'Cause he preached till he made me sleepy, and then hollered so loud that he wouldn't let me go to sleep."

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

T. G. Montgomery, First Street Church, New Orleans: "We have a good Sunday-school and superintendent. The congregation is large and increasing. We have taken in this quarter 31, against 20 last quarter; on probation 12, baptized 2, excluded 1. Given to the poor $25 05. We are raising money to put a brick banquet around the church."

From Thibodaux: The third quarterly conference of Calvary M. E. Church was held Sept. 6th. Presiding E. Dale being absent, F. [illegible], pastor, in the chair, F. H. Taylor was secretary. The stewards reported received this quarter $845 85, for all purposes, applied as follows: To presiding elder, $11 35, to pastor $126 55, rent $18, sexton $6, oil $3 70, wood $6, benevolent purposes $1 65, incidental $1 75. The classes report as follows: Class No. 1 twenty-two members, received $4 50; No. 2 eighteen members, $6 55; No. 3 fourteen members, $3 90; No. 4 twenty-three members, $6 60; No 5 twenty-one members, $5 35; No. 6 fifteen members, $3 75. The superintendent of the Sunday school reported the school in prosperous condition. After considerable excitement the colored people of St. Louis agreed to send their children to separate schools established by the city board.

Habitual Costiveness

is the bane of nearly every American woman. From it usually arises those disorders that so surely undermine their health and strength. Every woman owes it to herself and to her family to use that celebrated medicine, Kidney-Wort. It is the sure cure for constipation, and for all disorders of the kidneys and liver. Try it in dry or liquid form. Equally efficient in either. Boston Sunday Budget.

MOTHERS READ.

GENTS:—About nine years ago I had a child two years old and almost dead. The doctor I had attending her could not tell what ailed her. I asked him if he did not think it was worms. He said no. However, this did not satisfy me, as I felt convinced in my own mind that she had. I obtained a bottle of DR. C. McLANE'S CELEBRATED VERMIFUGE (genuine). I gave her a teaspoonful in the morning and another at night, after which she passed seventy-two worms and was a well child. Since then I have never been without it in my family. The health of my children remained so good that I had neglected watching their actions until about three weeks ago, when two of them presented the same sickly appearance that Fanny did nine years ago. So I thought it must be worms, and went to work at once with a bottle of DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE between four of my children, their ages being as follows: Alice, 8 years; Charley, 4 years; Emma, 6 years; John, 9 years. Now comes the result: Alice and Emma came out all right, but Charley passed forty-five and Johnny about sixty worms. The result was so gratifying that I spent two days in showing the wonderful effect of your Vermifuge around Utica, and now have the worms on exhibition in my store.

Yours truly, JOHN PIPER.

EARS FOR THE MILLION!

Foo Choo's Balsam of Shark's Oil

Positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.

This Oil is abstracted from peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as Carcharodon Rondeletii. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese People. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1 per bottle.

HEAR WHAT THE DEAF SAY!

It has performed a miracle in my case.

I have no unearthly noises in my head and hear much better.

I have been greatly benefited.

My deafness helped a great deal—think another bottle will cure me.

"Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer can personally testify, both from experience and observation. Write at once to Haylock & Jenney, 7 Dey street New York, enclosing $1, and you will receive by return a remedy that will enable you to hear like anybody else, and whose curative effects will be permanent. You will never regret doing so."—Editor of Mercantile Review.

MR. EDITOR: I desire to inquire for my sister, Frances Yokum, who belonged to Tom Yokum. Have not heard of my mother since the surrender, but heard from sister Frances once, and she was then in Texas. Address me at Columbus, Sabine parish, La.,

EMELINE SHELBY.

MR. EDITOR: Please correct names in my letter of inquiry. I wish to find my aunt and her two daughters. Aunt was Adeline Chomax, and her daughters Sofronia Morgan and Laura Morgan. They lived with Thomas J. Abbey, in Claiborne county, Miss. At that time I went by the name of Paddy Abbey, but now I am Wm. Young. They went to New Orleans in 1864. Address me at Jackson, Miss.

WM. YOUNG.

I wish to find where Frances McConeco is. She was carried by slave traders from Franklin, Tenn., between fifteen and eighteen years ago. She is brown skinned. She married a man named Armstrong in Vicksburg, Miss. Nothing has been heard from him since the yellow fever was epidemic there. She belonged to the Baptist Church. Send information to Alfred or Mary Bowman, Clark Chapel, L. M. Haygood pastor, Nashville, Tenn.

I wish to find the whereabouts of Malichiah Hindman. He left Fayetteville, Tenn., fourteen miles from the town in Lincoln county, 1872. He married since he left. He went, or was carried to Louisiana. His sister Elizabeth died before the war. He belonged to a man named Zibilan Paro. I heard from him once. Any information sent to me in care of Clark Chapel, or to our pastor, Rev. L. M. Haygood, Nashville, Tenn., will be thankfully received by his mother.

EMMA GRIFFIS.

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to see if my relatives can be found. I have a father, mother, and one full sister. Father was August Brown, sister, Louisa Brown, three half-sisters were Mary, Eliza, and Harriet Brown, two brothers were Joseph and George Brown. I was born in Maryland, and when eleven years old was brought to Tennessee. I remained there four years, and was taken to Missouri, and after being there two years came to Texas. I was brought to Tennessee by Jose Gamden, a speculator. Jesse Breese was my last owner. This occurred 1858 to 1866. I am about 39 years old. Address me at Roxton, Lamar county, Texas.

37-8t SARAH ANN LEWIS.

DEAR EDITOR: I desire to inquire for my sister Martha, who was sold from us when about seven years old to a man who lived near Bolivar, Tenn., named Tom Boyle. At that time we all belonged to John Green, except father, who belonged to Nat Woods. Father was Granville, mother Dollie, brothers William, Granville, and Richmond the baby, sister, Laura. We all went by the name of Norman. Father belonged to Tom Norman, who lived at Whiteville, Hardeman Co., Tenn. Grandfather was Squire Norman, grandmother, Jennie Norman. Mother and all the children except Sister Martha are here in Texas. I desire to find her. Pastors, please read this to your congregations. Address, at Austin, Texas, her brother,

38 3m REV. GRANVILLE NORMAN.

MR. EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my brother and sister, who were sold before I was born, in Mississippi, by D. D. McKenzie. He lived in Tennessee and had two sons John and Joe, and daughters Lucinda and Rebecca. They were sold in Memphis, at public sale. Our mother is living, but father has been dead nineteen years. My brother was Lennies and sister Dinah McKenzie. Mother was Ruthe, father Ephraim McKenzie. We had a brother Jacob, sisters Caroline, Silvia, Triggia, Minnie, and Maria. Maria was the baby when sold. D. D. McKenzie had a man named Hope, and a woman Betty. It was about 40 years ago when they were sold, and I would like to know if any are living. I heard one of my brothers was in Eastern Texas, but do not know it. Address me at Box 13, Moscow, Texas.

WM. MCKENZIE.

DEAR SIR: For several years I have tried in vain to hear from my brothers and sisters, living in your State, and some, I think, in Charleston. Having charge of a large church, and a man of influence with my people, I have thought it possible that you may know some of my relatives, and would be so kind as to give me the information that I desire. I was brought to this State before the war, and was too small to recollect how far I lived from Charleston; but I know only a few miles. My father was named Peter Virgin, and belonged to a man named Richard Mimmons. His sons were named Carolina Virgin, Thomas Virgin, Peter Virgin, Albert Virgin. The girls were named Charlotte, Phillis, Susan, Jane. As my old home was not far from Charleston, I thought it more than probable that some of the children were living there, and you will confer a great favor upon one who is entirely isolated from her relatives, if you will read this letter to your congregation; and any information that you or they can give me will be thankfully received. Address Leota, Miss., care of S. K. McDowell,

MARY VIRGIN BROWN.

DEAR EDITOR: I desire to inquire for my father's relatives. My father, now deceased, was Hardy Forrest. He left his relatives in Stanley's Creek, Gaston county, North Carolina. His father and mother were Samuel and Lucy Forrest, brothers, Moses, Orange, Jerry, and Wart Forrest. He had also some sisters; one named Margaret Forrest. I desire that all the ministers in North Carolina read this inquiry from their pulpits, and also inquire at the same time for my guardians, George and Sally Hunters. Address his son, Bennett H. Forrester, Simpson's Chapel Valence street, between Camp and Chestnut streets, New Orleans, La.

Doubtless many of our readers have frequently noticed Drs. Starkey & Palen's announcements in these columns. Claims to most surprising cures in chronic diseases by the use of "Compound Oxygen" have been made, and many testimonials offered substantiating these claims. Now, without expressing any opinion one way or another, we deem it but just to Drs. Starkey & Palen, and fair to the public, to insert the following "card" from well-known gentlemen whose concurrent testimony in a matter like this will scarcely admit of a doubt or question:

We, the undersigned, having received great and permanent benefit from the use of "Compound Oxygen," prepared and administered by Drs. Starkey & Palen, of Philadelphia, and being satisfied that it is a new discovery in medical science, and all that is claimed for it, consider it a duty which we owe to the many thousands who are suffering from chronic and so-called "incurable" diseases, to do all that we can to make its virtues known, and to inspire the public with confidence.

We have personal knowledge of Drs. Starkey & Palen.

They are educated, intelligent, and conscientious physicians, who will not, we are sure, make any statement which they do not know or believe to be true, nor publish any testimonials or reports of cases which are not genuine.

Opinion of Eminent Dr. H. R. Walton, Annapolis Md.:

"Colden's Liquid Extract of Liebig's Beef and Tonic Invigorator is a most excellent preparation. It is par excellence, superior to cod liver oil or anything I have ever used in wasted or impaired constitutions, and an excellent preventive of malarial diseases." DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC.

A combination of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark and Phosphorus in a palatable form. The only preparation of iron that will not blacken the teeth, so characteristic of other iron preparations.

GENTLEMEN: I have used DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Diseases, Dyspepsia, and an impoverished condition of the blood, this peerless remedy, has in my hands, made some wonderful cures. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians, have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC is a necessity in my practice. DR. ROBERT [illegible]

ST. LOUIS, MO., Nov. 28th, 1881. [illegible] Avenue.

It gives color to the blood, natural healthful tone to the digestive organs and nervous system, making it applicable to General Debility, Loss of Appetite, Prostration of Vital Powers and Impotence.

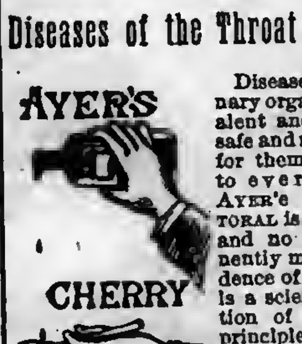
THE BEST REMEDY FOR Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.



AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

Diseases of the pulmonary organs are so prevalent and fatal, that a safe and reliable remedy for them is invaluable to every community. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is such a remedy and no other so eminently merits the confidence of the public. It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative virtues of the finest drugs, chemically united, to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results, which enables physicians as well as invalids to use it with confidence. It is the most reliable remedy for diseases of the throat and lungs that science has produced. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt and certain relief, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it without difficulty. In the treatment of ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergyman's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household, for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

The marvellous cures which AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has effected all over the world are a sufficient guaranty that it will continue to produce the best results. An impartial trial will convince the most sceptical of its wonderful curative powers, as well as of its superiority over all other preparations for pulmonary complaints.

Eminent physicians in all parts of the country, knowing its composition, recommend AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL to invalids, and prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proved its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

GOD CARES FOR ME.

I stood in the door at evening,
My heart was full of fears,
And I saw the landscape before me lie
Through mists of burning tears—
I thought to myself the world is dark,
No light nor joy I see;
Nothing but toil and want is mine,
And no one cares for me.

ward and insubordinate, and to settle nothing–but our own weakness and readiness to compromise with any resolute delinquent. This was deemed an unworthy, a traitorous, an impossible course. Better the hurt of a specific open wound from an honest conflict in righteous self-protection than that creeping, insidious, diffusive, corroding malady which villainously vitiates the blood and, undoing the fibers of strength and the bonds of life dissolves the members.

During the trial the defendant repeatedly sought to demoralize and stay the proceedings by threatening to arraign the prosecutor before the Civil Courts, to publish a book on the case and otherwise to create a wide-spread destructive scandal. But as every reasonable and honorable method of adjustment and reparation was rejected by him the trial went deliberately on to the end.

The attentive following of this case through all its phases and developments by the members of Conference afforded them more information on the nature and application of our Discipline, on the just and robust character of our organization than they could have otherwise obtained in many years. It this regard the trial was the occasion of a signal advantage. Substantial oak insensibly entered into the ecclesiastical frame of the Conference and invigorating iron was imperceptibly infiltrated into the ministerial blood of every man. The seriousness, obligations, and powers of the Conference were better apprehended; its responsible custody of the character of its members was far better understood; the obligation of ministers to deal faithfully with delinquent members and yet to give every one full opportunity for his defense before inflicting Disciplinary penalties was amply proclaimed; the moral dignity of the Conference, its capabilities of moral restraint and its possibilites of adaptation to the needs of the country, and for wielding public religious influence in the kingdom, were strikingly revealed and prophesied before all.

Soon after his expulsion, however Sig. Ravi brought a suit against [illegible] M. Vernon for defamation and public abuse, in having presented and prosecuted the bill of charges against him before the Annual Conference. Ravi granted the defendant the right to prove, in his defense, the facts alleged in the above-named bill of charges. Before the Court Sig. Ravi denied the competency of the Conference to try him, on the ground, as he claimed, that he had already withdrawn from the Church, he having placed a written withdrawal in the president's hands the first day of the session. Furthermore, he contested our right to exercise discipline [illegible] for offenses for which the individual is amenable to the civil law, repudiated the authority of our Discipline as "a foreign thing," of which Italians had no need, and to which they could not be made responsible; denied that he ever really belonged to our Church, that he had ever accepted our Discipline or acknowledged its authority, and of the same sort.

The defendant, a foreigner and director of a Protestant Mission, thus arraigned by an Italian before Judges belonging to the Roman Catholic State Church, was considerable at great disadvantage to maintain the right of his Church to [illegible] discipline, to explain its jurisprudence, to show that the case in question had been conducted in conformity with the law and usages; to make it clear that Sig. Ravi had really belonged to the Church, and well amenable to its Discipline; [illegible] to prove here the [illegible] in the bill of charges [illegible] to the Conference. Amid [illegible] grave disadvantages, and [illegible] it was [illegible] Vernon that was on [illegible] the Methodist [illegible] in Italy, and its [illegible] possibil- [illegible] the Courts [illegible] A large [illegible] traversed by [illegible] pretending to punish an Italian citizen and against Protestantism as imported, and as "a sort of new Jesuitism, which, with its eternal Bible, like a rising tide, noisily threatens the peace and tranquillity of the country;" and the Court was besought to erect a patriotic barrier against it. When the King's attorney came to speak, (he is presumably on the plaintiff's side,) his entire discourse was a dispassionate, clear and conclusive defense of the accused, recognizing fully the right and prerogatives of the Church, and declaring that of most of the charges made against Ravi in the Conference the proofs were luminous and abundant. So perfectly satisfactory was this discourse, that the defendant's lawyer deemed it needless to utter a word. The Court, after a few minutes' recess, returned and announced its sentence, entirely absolving the accused. The victory for the Church could not have been more complete; besides, a most important precedent was established not alone for Methodism, but for all Protestantism in Italy. A few brethren were nervous and doubtful of the justice, the impartiality of the Court, but the finding show how groundless were such apprehensions how just and delicate is the tribunal's sense of its high duties. The Court has indeed reflected honor upon the Italian Judiciary, and shown itself a worthy interpreter of the liberal Constitution and laws of this realm.

The Importance of Improving Your Time.

What an important subject! How many people spend their time in idleness! I must say that an idle head is a workshop for the devil. I can say much on this topic from experience. The fact is visible before us every day. Dear reader, can't you count many young men and women in your community who don't improve their time? I can. I am sorry to say that the young men and women of this town spend two-thirds of their time in idleness. What would be the result, were they to spend that time in study? They would ere long become learned and intelligent, and we would soon see them rising very fast to eminence as blessings to their country and most useful to our race. We are taught to work while it is day. I hope all of us will take warning and "stamp improvement on the wings of time." Let us see if we can't name a few characters whose names will ever live in the history of the world. Let us commence with Roger Sherman, whose father's circumstances were too poor to give him much of an education. What remained for Sherman to do? Why, improve his time, study diligently. We find him rising from the shoemaker's bench to a seat in the Congress of America. What elevated him to such an honorable position? Improving his time, is the answer. I might mention many names of men who have attained their qualifications by hard study. Can't we do the same? How many young men and women to-day are no benefit to themselves and no one else! Shall I say that they are ciphers in this world? Do not such people pass off the stage of life and are remembered no more? Why? Because they did not a particle of good in the world, and none were blessed by their influences. Probably in writing this article some reader will bear witness with me that our young don't improve their time. This effect arises from various causes. I've known parents to allow their children to go to school, or let it alone. I've known parents to allow their children to spend their time in Sabbath-breaking, roaming the streets, etc. How much information would be gained if one hour daily were devoted to study! But I've known children to neither work nor study. Why? Their parents allowed it to them. If we would ever be a race that will measure arms with other races whose advantages have been superior to ours, we must improve our time in something useful. There is no longer any excuse for not having time, for being enslaved, no schools to go to, etc.

The colored race have all the colleges in this State that they want. The best seminary of learning can do no more to you than to open its portals to you. It is with you whether you will be instructed and to what point you will push your [illegible]. Our good Northern [illegible] have come to our aid in the [illegible] element. Now, should we not improve our time, as the "great men" before us have done? Let me say then to you, my young friend, imitate them in piety, practice their virtues, so shall your end be joyous and your rest eternal.

This school of the Prophets entered upon another year's labor to-day, with a full attendance of earnest consecrated men, who, on entering the Christian ministry, want to be workmen that needeth not be ashamed. For several days the students have been coming in, and although my hand is already sore shaking hands with last year's acquaintances, I am anxious to grasp the hand of each brother whether I have seen him before or not. This morning I had the pleasure of a hearty hand-shake with that jolly good fellow, Rev. G. O. Richardson, of West Texas Conference. Although I never had seen him before, I felt that we were old acquaintances, and it seemed like shaking hands with a brother whom I had not seen for years. But you may imagine my surprise to find that he is a white man. In reading his articles in the SOUTHWESTERN, I had always thought he was a colored man.

We have several students from Norway and Sweden, and a few from England, Scotland, Ireland and Germany, are also represented. American students are here from all parts of the continent; from where the angry Atlantic lashes her ribcoast reefs, and where the placid Pacific chants her "lullabys;" from the frozen regions of Canada, and from the land of magnolias and palmettos of the sunny South—all come to drink at this fountain of knowledge.

I had hoped to see several of "our brothers in black" enter the school this year, but only one has put in an appearance as yet. He was sent here by the A. M. E. Conference to preach to the colored people of Evanston and Lake Forest, on Sundays, and pursue his studies in G. B. I. in the week.

I hope the Lord will move upon the hearts of some of our young men of Little Rock Conference to come to this school, and prepare for the lifelong work of the Christian ministry—a work that will task the best discipline and ripest culture to the utmost. "This is an age of intense mental action, when all men are thinking, and speaking, and writing," and the ministry should not be behind other professions, but rather should lead them.

A Mississippi Letter.

DEAR EDITOR:—I am a student of Rust University, Holly Springs, and subscriber to the SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE, and on my way back to attend school. I have taught during the summer, two months in the Southwestern part of Mississippi, and find quite a space for good, competent and Christian teachers, more so than any place visited by me as a teacher, and I have labored in six different counties in the State of Mississippi among my dear race. My school closed a few days ago with examination, exhibition and dinner. Such closing scenes for a school, they (the patrons) claimed to be ignorant of ever existing among their people, either within or without a town. I was glad to hear many fathers and mothers express a determination to educate their dear ones at any cost, such deliberations encouraged me to labor but the more for the good of my people, which I feel demands my support as much as any other, in the section of country visited by me for the first time during the summer just passed. Not only does the above duty reach the tutor in our day schools, but extends even to the one within the sacred stand. Within a few days after the opening of my school, a poor colored man was hanged not very far from my boarding house, probably a distance of two miles. He was hunted for two weeks like an old hare with a parcel of hounds at his feet, finally this colored man was found and shot with buck shot through and through, unable to walk, yet he was carried to the place where he swung, which is this way our so commonly called white friends of the South do the negro race. He was charged with having something to do with a white girl in whose family he labored. We condemn such actions all around and in doing so why not demand justice for all concerned; the girl of course, in order to conceal her guilt, wanted the poor colored man burned, and wanted all this done after he (the negro) had become enamored and lived with her for 3 years. The country was becoming much aroused about the time I left. The whites claimed there to be some Jack Turners. Oh heaven smile upon and tell us what will become of the colored race.

MR. EDITOR:—There are many precious souls who are entering into the kingdom of God by taking up their cross and following Jesus. The enemies of our grand old church in this part of the vineyard, are surprised to see those whom they declared to have no foundation, blessed more and more in the meetings. I mean by our enemies the Devil and the Baptists, because both hate the Methodists. While fighting the opposition we closed a meeting at Hopewell church with forty-six additions, and on September 3d, eight more followed. White people were present and asked for prayers. The whole neighborhood was revived. Some old sinners came forward and were converted.

Letter from Winona.

DEAR EDITOR:—We have just closed a two weeks meeting in which we had a square fight with the devil, 32 deserted his cause, came over, surrendered and are now marching under the banner of the Prince of Peace and keeping time to the music of:—

"There is a fountain filled with blood,
Drawn from Emmanuel's veins;
And sinners plunge beneath that flood,
Loose all their guilty stains."

We had with us Rev. H. L. Kennedy, of Crystal Springs, who is a faithful worker; also J. C. Hibbler, a young local preacher who is a student of Rust University, and one great of promise. I shall move on the enemies' works at another point. Pray for us that we may render some service in battling down the walls of error and a highway be exalted in the presence of all this people. Our people are beginning to handle a little money and we hope to be able to do something for the SOUTHWESTERN.

Why We Should Attend Church.

1. It helps ourselves. The church services give vigor to the best thoughts and purposes, strengthen our integrity, develop and solidify right character and feed the moral and religious part of our nature. We cannot afford to lose those sweetening and strengthening influences for a single week.

2. It helps the minister. Nothing is more disheartening to a minister than simple neglect. What sense is there in preparing a message for those who do not come to hear it? How can he preach with vigor to places empty of those who should fill them? The dullness of any service is often to be laid to the account of the absent ones.

3. It helps the church. A church lives on the devotion of its friends. Nowhere is this devotion so fully shown, so quickly felt, or so plainly seen, as in the attendance on the Lord's day. Every on in his place, and the church rejoices in a consciousness of strength and vitality, and goes forth with zeal and power to all its appointed work. With half the seats vacant, there comes a feeling of depression, and the church sinks into inaction.

4. It helps the community. The moral tone of any community depends largely on its churches and Sundays. If nominal church goers become negligent, the outside community will not go to church. The example of every neglecter of the Lord's day worship is so far an obstruction placed before the door of the church to keep others away. The community in general can never be persuaded to mount those obstacles and press in. But if each one will move from without the door to within the pew, the hindrances turn into helps. If the friends of the church will attend, strangers will be sure to do so.—The Alliance.

The Most Valuable Result of the American Common School.

BY THOS. HILL, D.D., PORTLAND, ME

You ask what I regard as the most valuable result of the American common school; by which, I understand something very different from asking what I regard as the most valuable result of education; it is a more limited question.

I reply, that the most valuable result of the American common school seems to me to be the unity which it is giving to our national character and life. The great problem of our national life is to make our collection of fragments from all lands into a solid conglomerate of valuable properties. Imperfectly as this has been done, one of the most efficient agents in doing what has been done is the common school. When a Massachusetts regiment, on its way to the front, halted in Phillipsburg, N. J., a private asked a looker-on, a young man of 24 or 25, for a match. The fellow replied in German that he did not understand. "From what part of Germany did you come?" asked Koch. The fellow replied that he was born and brought up in Phillipsburg. "Shame on you, then!" replied Koch; "go at once to school and learn English. Here am I, risking life to fight in defence of liberty and law, for you, native born and unable to read English. You cannot understand the politics of this country from our mother-German, nor even from purely English-English; the politics of a country can be properly understood only as they are expressed in the idiom of that country."

During the civil war, an intelligent, English-born citizen said to me: "Twenty-four hours after fire was opened on Sumpter, I felt utterly ashamed that I had left England to live with a herd of traders and mechanics without souls; but, in forty-eight hours more I was proud of my adopted country. I felt that the United States of America is the only real Nation on the globe,—the only Nation where the great mass of the people have a really intelligent interest in carrying out a high national ideal.

It needs no argument to show that, so far as this German and this English friend of mine were right, the common school is to be thanked for what has been gained, and to be intelligently sustained as the chief agent for further progress. For the highest results in elevation of character, and in advancing the real and permanent welfare of men, we must look still to the church; for the advancement of science, the progress of mechanic arts, the education of statesmen, and similar ends, we must look to colleges, professional schools, and universities. But, for giving unity to our national life, that the people of the United States may be one people, living harmoniously in pursuance of the high ends of maintaining liberty under law, defending the weak and the innocent from the criminal and tyrannical, we must look to a system of education for all classes, adapted to our institutions and to our people, sprung from our own necessities and experience, and jealously guarded against the influence of foreign ideas; in short, we must look to the American common school, as it is, and as it will become under enlightened discussion and conscientious, persistent efforts.
—N. E. Journal of Education.

The Christian Index, Atlanta, Ga., is in perplexity:

"And here is a puzzle for the wisest. If the negroes are not educated, they are not fit to be citizens of this republic; if they are educated, they refuse to do the only work for which they are qualified. Of course there are honorable exceptions, but we speak of the mass. We have always encouraged education, and yet, so far as we have observed, it has, thus far, done more harm among the negroes than good; whereupon we are somewhat bewildered, and do not know what course to take, nor what counsel to give."

Colored people are in this respect very much like other people. An educated white man is apt to assume that his education has qualified him to do things that an uneducated man cannot do. Human nature under a dark skin is not essentially different from human nature under a lighter cuticle. "There are diversities of gifts" to one as well as to the other. Education ought to lead to diversity of employments, and if it is worthy of the name, it will do so.—The Watchman, Boston.

National Local Preachers' Meeting

The following announcement by B. Shofield, Jr., President, and W. H. Kincaid, Secretary, speaks for itself:-

The twenty-fifth annual meeting of the National Preacher's Association, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will be held in the M. E. Church, at Parkersburg, W. Va., commencing Saturday morning, Oct. 21st and closing the following Tuesday night.

Delegates from all Conference, District and City Local Preacher's Associations, will be received, and where no regular organization exists, local preachers with proper letters from their presiding elder or pastor, will be accredited as delegates. Properly accredited local preachers of any branch of Methodism will be received as corresponding or fraternal delegates.

Essays and discussions upon important subjects will take place, in connection with the regular business, and special religious services; program hereafter. Fraternal delegates are expected from the M. E. Church South, and from Canada, and it is hoped other branches of Methodism will be represented. It is expected the usual railroad arrangement will be made and announced.

List of delegates should be sent at the earliest day to Rev. W. C. Snodgrass, pastor of M. E. Church, Parkersburg, W. Va., and homes will be provided. Also send duplicates of the names of ALL delegates to W. H. Kincaid, Secretary of the Association, Lock Box 367, Pittsburgh, Pa., to prepare roll.

Is It Right?

Is it right for men who profess and call themselves Christians to pray, "Lead us not into temptation," and needlessly expose themselves to the influence of drinks which have tempted and ruined thousands?

Is it right for men to ask God to "Give us this day our daily bread," and then support a system that licenses men to destroy the good grain by converting it into body and soul-destroying drink?

Is it right to build churches, chapels and schools, to help to save the people, and at the same time license men and women to open shops in which liquors are sold which will destroy the people?

Is it right to license a man to sell drink, which will make people drunk and then fine men and women for getting drunk?

Is it right to license men to make paupers and criminals, and tax sober and virtuous people to pay rates to keep them?

Is it right to derive a revenue out of a system which demoralizes and degrades the people?

Is it right for people to wish the temperance cause success, and at same time continue to drink and support the liquor traffic?

Is it right for any man or woman who wishes well for his country to stand aloof from the only certain cure for our national intemperance?

Is it right for a Sunday-school teacher to teach scholars to beware of the danger of the public-house with breath smelling of strong drink which comes from such places?

Is it right for a minister of religion to preach against drunkenness, while he continues to use the drink which alone produces it?

Is it right to admit into Christian Churches as members, liquor sellers, or persons in any way interested in the traffic, who, by their business, are constantly hindering the spread of the Gospel and leading professors of religion astray?

Is it right to do wrong and expect wrong to produce right?—John W. Kirton.

There are a good many people in the world who think that little sins do not amount to anything. There is a common disposition to avoid close scrutiny of acts that have a look of cleverness or shrewdness about them, through they may be grossly wicked in themselves and calculated to work irreparable mischief in the end. We doubt not that the man who was convicted of stealing the umbrella and sentenced by the Circuit Court to the penitentiary this week at first regarded it as a very small matter to borrow an umbrella and never return it, but the sequel shows that it amounts to stealing, and stealing is a criminal offense.

Scriptural Holiness.

That the Methodist Episcopal Church believes in the doctrines of justification and entire sanctification is seldom, if ever questioned. In the catechism adopted by the General Conference of 1852, "justication" is said to be "that act of God's free grace in which he pardons our sins and accepts us as righteous in his sight for the sake of Christ." Regeneration "is the mere birth of the soul in the image of Christ." It is by this act of God's grace that we become the children of God.

But "sanctification is that act of divine grace whereby we are made holy." To the question, "May every believer be wholly sanctified" (be made holy) "in this life?" there is this answer: "Yes; God's command is Be ye holy, for I am holy; and his promise is that if we confess our sins, he will "cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

In receiving preachers at the Annual Conference into full connection, among others, the following questions are asked: "Are you going on to perfection?" "Do you expect to be made perfect in love in this life?" "Are you groaning after it?" To answer all of these questions every preacher, who has ever been received into full connection into the Annual Conference, has answered "Yes." I am "going on to perfection." I do "expect to be made perfect in love in this life," and I "am groaning after it." Alas! we fear that too many are ever "groaning after it" but never reaching it.

To the question, "What is Christian perfection?" Mr. Wesley answers: "The loving God with all our heart, mind, soul and strength," and then adds: "This implies that no wrong temper, none contrary to love remains in the soul; and that all the thoughts, and actions are governed by pure love. As to whether this wonderful work of grace in the soul was gradual or instantaneous, he says, "Both my brothers and I maintained 1. That Christian perfection is that love of God and our neighbors which implies deliverance from all sin. 2, That it is received by faith. 3, That it is given instantaneously in a moment. 4, That we are to expect it, not at death, but every moment, that now is the accepted time the day of this salvation." "This" he says "is the doctrine which we preached from the beginning and which we preach this day. Indeed by viewing it in every point of light, and comparing it again and again with the word of God on the one hand and the experience of the children of God on the other, we see further into the nature and properties of Christian perfection." Perhaps there never was a period when there was so much said and written concerning scriptural holiness as now, and while it is true that a good cause can endure almost anything better than popularity, we do not think that the real friends of holiness have much to fear from this direction as yet. There is too much carnal clap-trap in [illegible] holiness, for with all the inconsistencies of the holiness people we have never heard it said of them that they encouraged excursions, [illegible] doll and baby shows, fairs and [illegible] where intoxicating liquors and tobacco were sold, under the [illegible] of raising money for the [illegible]. There is a benevolence that depends largely upon oysters [illegible] ice cream suppers for its support, but we have never known holiness [illegible] this counter [illegible] the devil.

Mr. Wesley thought and said that this doctrine of Christian holiness was committed to the Methodists as a sort of deposit which [illegible]

But it is well, perhaps, that they should know how far the spirit of Antichrist (for the spirit of caste is Antichrist,) can lead even an otherwise Christian gentleman. In bitterness of spirit, and horribleness of utterance, Mr. King stands alongside the best Bourbons of the South.

Here is his card:

"EDITORS AGE:—In view of certain occurrences and a misapprehension which exists in the minds of some, I desire to make the following statement through the columns of your paper.

"The First Methodist Episcopal Church in this city, of which I am pastor, is for white persons exclusively, and colored persons are not invited or expected to attend.

"E. H. KING.

"Birmingham, Aug. 22, 1882."

Upon this Zion's Herald thus comments:

We have heard of the uncivil and unchristian treatment of colored people in certain other white churches connected with our Southern Conferences, but never before of so open a declaration of the abominable caste spirit. If this is the temper of our "white work," so called, at the South, the money of New England, at least, will be devoted purely and simply to these discarded "colored persons." It is not for such an impotent result as this that we sustain our church in the Southern States. All of this the Methodist Church, South, will accomplish without our missionary money, leaving that for purposes more in accordance with the spirit of the Gospel.

God bless the Herald with additional subscribers, "a multitude which no man can number." May its Editor live a thousand years and his shadow never grow less. We say to Mr. King, if he wants real success with man and God, with all the church, and before all the people, he must abandon these "uncivil and unchristian" distinctions. There is only one right way possible. We must gird ourselves like Christian men, and stick to the right and do the right, because it is right. The preacher who lowers the standard of right and yields to the whims, passions and prejudices of men, for the sake of ultimately winning them over to the right, is sure to meet with defeat. There is nothing so sure of success as a calm, steady and bold adherence to the right. When Grant was at Vicksburg, the rebels sneered at him; the politicians in the North laughed at him; the press abused him; military men of high repute declared his schemes fanatical, and Banks was appointed over him. But, to-day the nation admires the man who had sense enough to choose the right, and will power enough to stick to it. The Methodist Episcopal Church is in the South to build churches on Christ, not color. This is the only right way, adhere to it, and our success will be sure, solid, steady, and will astonish both ourselves and our enemies. We have no objections to churches for white or colored, German, Spanish or French people, but we do most earnestly protest against churches from which any race, nation or color is excluded. Some of our readers may think we donate more space to this matter than it deserves. We think that the time has come when our brethren should cease to place more importance on the color of a Christian skin than on the state of his heart. God despises caste, and is hastening on the time of its utter abolition. He is advancing the hour when of all this unbrotherliness it shall be said that one who "——shall lift again

His hand against his brother, on his forehead
Shall wear forevermore the curse of Cain."

In the performance of Christian work few things are more necessary to success than courage. The man who is easily discouraged never amounts to any thing, no matter where you place him. The minister who is easily discouraged is sure to fail. About the most worthless man in all the community is a faint-hearted Methodist preacher. God has no use for the man or woman who is all the time saying "I can't." Who he wants and what the church needs is men who are not afraid to do what is right without regard to the frowns or the smiles of any or of all others. The servants of the Lord ought to be as bold for their Master, as the devil's servants are for their's.

The summer is over, the harvest nearly ended, and bountiful crops have been given to the people in most all parts of the land. We suppose that never in the history of the Nation has a more bountiful harvest been gathered than this year. The wheat harvest has been remarkably good. Across the Atlantic [illegible] all the countries of Europe, [illegible] Portugal, an un[illegible] harvest has been [illegible] present [illegible] thus far [illegible]

Political Assessment.

This is an extract from the platform adopted by the Republican State convention of Massachussetts, composed of over 1,000 delegates. We commend it to the campaign managers of the party in Louisiana, as eminently worthy of their consideration:

We unhesitatingly disapprove of any political assessments or demands for contributions under express or implied threat of removal from office as penalty for non-compliance, or under any other pretext whatever. The salary of the office-holder is his compensation for services, not a fund subject to draft for party uses. And we go further: A free government can be maintained only when the convictions and the choice of the voter find expression in his ballot, uncontrolled by fear or purchase. We view with serious apprehension the growing tendency of the times towards the corrupting expenditures of money to control nominations and elections to public offices. The peril to our institutions is extreme. Open bribery in legislative halls is not more dangerous or culpable. Reform prompt and thorough is demanded by every consideration of safety. No party deserves support except as it adheres to important and enduring principles, and we therefore urge the people so to select their candidates and so to govern their votes that these principles of the Republican party shall not fail to be enforced.

The New York Herald calls attention to a letter written by Mr. Webster while Secreeary of State in President Harrison's Cabinet, condemning the use of government patronage in elections, as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, March 20, 1841.—To the Hon. Thomas Ewing, Secretary of the Treasury—Sir: The President is of opinion that it is a great abuse to bring the patronage of the General Government into conflict with the freedom of elections, and that this abuse ought to be corrected wherever it may have been permitted to exist and to be prevented for the future. He therefore directs that information be given to all officers and agents in your department of the public service, that partisan interference in the popular elections, whether of State officers or of officers of the (Federal) government, for whomsoever and against whomsoever it may be exercised, or the payment of any contribution or assessment on salaries or official compensation for party or election purposes, will be regarded by him as cause for removal. It is not intended that any officer shall be restrained in the free and proper expression and maintenance of his opinions respecting public men or public measures, or in the exercise to the fullest degree of the constitutional right of suffrage. But persons employed under the government and paid for their services out of the public treasury are not expected to take an active or officious part in attempts to influence the minds or votes of others, such conduct being deemed inconsistent with the spirit of the Constitution and the duties of public agents acting under it; and the President is resolved, so far as depends upon him, that, while the elective franchise by the people shall be free from undue influence of official station and authority, opinion shall also be free among the officers and agents of the government. Similar letters have been addressed to other heads of departments. I have the honor to be, sir, your obedient servant.

DANIEL WEBSTER.

There are a number of ways of being strong. One feels strong in his muscle, he thinks himself able single handed to whip any man. But this is simply brute force. Others feel strong in a rifle, a revolver, or a dirk knife. But there is neither virture nor intelligence here. Others are strong in their bank accounts, men are sure to have friends while they are rich in funds. Some are strong in their family relations, they think that their family name will win respect, and admission into the best society, Others feel strong in their intellectual powers. But there is sure to come a time when none, nor all of these powers of strength can give satisfaction. Muscle, weapons of war, money, family name and connections, and brain power will be of little or no avail. There will come a time when only those who are on the Lord's side, who are complete in him, will stand and not be ashamed. All strength but the Lord's strength is weakness. But the weakest man on earth can have that without money or price.

An interesting telegram comes from London to the effect that members of the committee disapproving of Mr. Gladstone's Egyptian policy, having, with a view of discrediting his views of foreign politics, reiterated the charge that he sympathized with the South during the civil war in the United States, Mr. Gladstone replied through his secretary to an inquiry on the subject, that the statement attributing such sympathy to him is untrue and contrary to authentic facts, long ago made public. It is an historical fact that the only European power that recognized the Confederacy was the Popal government, and it has since given up the ghost as a temporal authority in the world's affairs, as has the Confederacy. The Sixth District Candidate.

The Concordia Sentinel praises the late consul to Bologne, and now regular nominee for Congress, Sixth district. To be sure that Democratic journal finds it necessary to interject some Bourbon sentiment, but its candor toward a political opponent is commendable. We hope the day will come when it will be recognized that public safety depends upon two well organized parties in a commonwealth, that men will differ on measures of public policy, and that charitable criticisms of public men are most in accord with purity of conduct:

If anything was wanting to show how determined the Republicans of Louisiana are to succeed in the coming Congressional race, their nominating Louis Trager, formerly of Concordia parish, and now of West Feliciana, as their candidate in the Sixth District, clearly shows it. There is no question but that Trager has a cleaner and better record than any Republican in the State. In fact, his character and conduct in Louisiana has always been like Cæsar's wife, above suspicion, and we are ever ready to admit that no Democrat in the State has a cleaner or better record than Trager, but we insist that while we admire Trager's past course, we detest the company he is now in. No matter if Trager has been preaching peace and good will among men, and no matter if he did counsel "patience, forbearance and humility" to the colored people, we say that while we like his sermon, we don't like the church he is preaching from. He is certainly in the wrong pulpit. A man with the superhuman energy of Trager; a man who has done so much to build up Louisiana as he has; one who has reclaimed to the plow more acres than any man in Louisiana, has no business in the company he is in. If Trager would act with the Democracy, we would be willing to accord him a front seat in our ranks, but as it is, while he may get a number of Independent and Greenback votes to swell his Republican votes, we doubt very much whether there will be many simon-pure Democrats who will vote for him—not because they do not admire and respect the man, but because, no matter how pure and honest Trager's motives are, and this we concede to him, he will not be able to do much in the bad company he will find himself in. We understand that Trager, in his speech of acceptance, referred to the Democracy of Concordia for his record. We shall not begrudge to give it to him We are not fighting honest and good men, even if they are Republicans, and we have no hesitation to say that when Trager was president of the Police Jury of Concordia, no one guarded our interests better than he did. We are ever ready to admit that Concordia never had a more efficient, faithful and honest officer than Louis Trager. In fact, the late Judge Norment, clerk of the Police Jury, has frequently asserted that Louis Trager had not even drawn his mileage and per diem as president of the Police Jury, and that as magistrate Trager had never charged a cent to anybody in a civil suit, and that he never sent a bill to the parish for criminal suits; and that when asked to draw his pay, he would say that he wanted the certificates framed to show his children that there was at least one Republican in Louisiana who never made a dollar while in office. But the more dazzling and brilliant the record, the worse it makes it for Trager to be in the dark company he is in. The man who while president of the Police Jury, and in the heyday of Radicalism, plunder and theft, had issued several hundred thousand dollars of bonds, and yet not a dollar to stick to his fingers; the man who, as a resident among us and in the neighboring parish for 19 years, has never been known to engage in any dishonorable act; the man who by his iron will and indomitable energy has risen, in spite of many, and to any other man, almost insurmountable obstacles, to become the largest cotton planter in Louisian, is not the man to associate with the bad element Trager's candidature will necessarily throw him in. Let us, however, caution our friend and Democratic nominee, Major Herron, that he will have no easy task to defeat his opponent. Louis Trager is not the kind of man to be easily overcome. We know Trager to be as brave and courageous as a lion, and that class of men have always the magnetism and attraction to draw brave and courageous men to them. In fact, we have heard that some of the best citizens have expressed themselves in his favor, and assured Trager a "fair deal;" so unless Major Herron gets an undisputable maority he will probably find his seat in Congress contested.

Our neighbor, the Southwestern Christian Advocate, of this city, gets happy over the fact that this editor is associated with Rev. D. A. Williams, a brother in black, in the editorial conduct of the People's Adviser, a temperance paper at Jackson, Miss. He thinks the millennium has come. Read: "Already we hear the new song, the prelude of the last grand chorus; the telescope is pitched right." Why, neighbor, we have been preaching with and to the colored people during all the years of our ministery. This no new song with us, but the old, old story.—N. O. Christian Advocate.

Ah, bless you, brother Galloway, for once you are mistaken; you tell us no news. Long before you were called to occupy the position you now fill with so much grace, we had learned that C. B. Galloway, D. D., was a minister of the Lord Jesus, who despised caste, and that during all of his ministery he had been preaching with and to the colored people, and we wanted to tell it to a class of readers your paper did not reach. That is all.

PERSONAL.

—The late General Warren died poor as well as broken-hearted. A subscription for the benefit of his family already amounts to $12,000.

—Zion's Herald prays that the days of George I. Seney may be many "to shovel out the gold that God shovels in," as during the past three years in Christian charities at the rate of a thousand dollars a day.

—John Dillon, in a letter announcing his retirement from Parliment, attributes the step to ill health, and says it will not be possible for him to take any part in Irish politics for the next few years.

—On our way to Kenner, Saturday, we chanced to fall in company with Col. R. H. Henry, of Brookhaven, Miss., editor of the Brookhaven Ledger, with whom we had a pleasant conversation. The Colonel is a tall, full chested, well proportioned man, with shining eyes, ruddy cheeks, and of course genial and, we judge in the best sense of the word, thoroughly progressive.

—Rev. Ross C. Houghton D. D., late of the First Methodist Episcopal Church in Cleveland, Ohio, has been transferred to the Southeast Indiana Conference and appointed to the Robert Park Church in Indianapolis, the largest Methodist Church in the West, having over 1,200 members and one of the finest houses of worship in the denomination.

—A postal from Rev. J. B. Ford, Cleveland, Tenn., informs us that he has resigned the office of General Agent of our Sunday School Union for the South, and taken a pastorate at Quincy in the Illinois Conference. We wish him success in his new field of labor, and note his departure from the Southern work with regret. He has been with us for these many years.

—Henry Todd, who lives in Darien, is the wealthiest colored man in Georgia. When a youth his master died and left him freedom. When the Confederacy fell he lost 20 slaves and some Confederate bonds. After the war he continued farming operations and engaged in the lumber business. He is now 65 years old and is worth $100,000 in goood investments. His example is a healthy one every way for the colored people of Georgia.—Savannah News.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

N. D. Bidwell, of Geddes, New York, sent the following letter to Rev. J. G. Vaughan, pastor of Ames M. E. Church, this city: "My class in Sabbath-school, the "Constant Workers," have contributed $5 for the benefit of Ames Mission. I am very glad to send this amount and wish we could do better. I pray that the Lord will greatly prosper your work in New Orleans."

S. Evans, St. John: "We have made improvements on the church to the amount of $110, all paid for. The church is out of debt and in a healthy condition. We have had a hard season financially, but will do all we can to raise the amount subscribed for the Gilbert Haven School of Theology. A grand fair will be given for the purpose on Oct. 7th, in Hahnville. We have a little band, but they are holding the fort."

W. P. Forest, Clinton: "In our protracted meeting 49 joined the church; 25 converted and back sliders reclaimed. Thirty-five are still at the altar."

Tennessee R. Jackson, Natchitoches: "A committee of sisters gave a festival and raised $58,85. Their names are as follows: Mamie Baggit, Emma Black, Enlena Mudrick, Virgininia Jarbsah, Corah Redman, Sarah Huston and Jane Mack. May God bless them."

MISSISSIPPI.

W. S. Love, Mount Pleasant: "Our work is greatly revived. A two weeks meeting resulted in 40 converts; on Sunday another was admitted and 3 back sliders reclaimed. Total additions 44. Our beloved pastor, P. H. Hill, is a faithful worker for Christ, and we are sorry the meeting was compelled to adjourn, because of illness in his family. Collections $13,60. Sabbath-school is increasing with an average attendance of 45."

J. Fullove, Durant: "Our protracted meeting commenced Sept. 3, and continued two weeks. Elder G. W. Barney was with us at the opening, and administered the Lord's supper to fifty. Our pastor P. H. Hill, and two or three home preachers conducted the meeting, which added forty to the church. Collected $13,60. I hope the day will come when every lonely cabin will be a house of prayer. We are improving spiritually and financially."

S. S. Teacher, Enterprise: "The Sunday-school held its first class meeting on the 17th, and it stirred up the church in general. The following was brought clear to my mind, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." The greater portion of the teachers are members of the church. We are trying in many ways to improve our minds, and have organized the Emancipation Historical Union Benevolent Society. It meets twice a month. We are not standing still, but rising steadily."

"W. E. Caraway, Shubuta: "Our protracted meeting just closed, added about 75 to the church; 25 of these were converted and 10 reclaimed. We are pleased with our pastor."

TENNESSEE.

E. M. Manson, Waynesboro: "When I came here the circuit was $70 in debt, but the Ladies Mite Society of Clifton, and the Literary Society of Waynesboro, have been doing all they could to relieve it. They have been very successful to date, and have reduced it to $16. On the 9th the Literary Society gave a festival and made $12,50 for the Waynesboro church. The Sunday-schools are moving up in their missionary collections."

B. James, Murfreesboro: "When I entered on my work last fall, everything seemed to be dark and gloomy on account of the drought of last year. The spiritual condition of the church at that time was dear too, of course the financial strength was dead with it. I commenced a protracted meeting Aug. 13th, and closed Sept. 4th, 1882. We had a good time, with 46 conversions, 35 joined the church; there are yet more who will join. On last Sabbath I baptized 19. The spiritual condition of the church is good and the financial strength is growing. I have the promise of all the benevolent collections by the annual conference."

Letter from Macon.

DEAR EDITOR:—Saturday, the 16th, was the birthday of our pastor, Rev. P. O. Jemison. The knowledge of this having reached the ears of some of our brothers and sisters, they made a plot to give him a storming, which was done at about 11 o'clock p. m. We took him as much by surprise as was possible so to do, and for one hour we made the parsonage merry. When we left for our homes it was not to sleep, for the occasion was one of no usual occurrence, and left an impression upon the minds of those participating that is not to be erased, Bro. Jemison has been with us now for nearly three years, and, it is from this fact that he is held in such high esteem by this congregation and the citizens in general of this city. We have found from this long association that he is worthy of the high standard that we give him. He has done so much for us, and has led us to do so much for ourselves, that we cannot with hold praise. We watch with sorrow the time swiftly passing, when in the short future he must leave us. We are loth to give him up, but we have the consolation of knowing that while we lose him some one else in the same cause will gain. Our church is in fine condition. The surprise birthday party was followed the next day with a collection of $20 10 for pastor, which was no little present itself.

Yours in Christ,

ALEX. GILLESPIE, Steward.

MACON, Miss., Sept. 20th, 1882.

San Antonio District.

MR. EDITOR—Learning from the columns of the San Antonio Evening Light, that quarantine would be put against Nuevo Loredo, on the 21st inst, at 9 A. M., brought me back to Austin, where I might enjoy the comforts of home and fireside one more week. While here, the death of Sister Carrie Madison has taken place. Sister Carrie Madison, was born in Hopkin Co., Texas, in March, 1848. She was raised up in Judge George Moore's family, who's wife, taught her to read. Shortly after the righteous emancipation, Sister Carrie, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Phillis Moore, moved from San Antonio, where they were set free, and left penniless by their rich master, to Austin, and have made this, their permanent home ever since. She was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, in 1867, and has lived consistent to that profession ever since. She was married to Charles L. Madison, August 11th, 1869, and has been his traveling companion and co-laborer in all his engagements, ever since. He entered the Ministry which caused her to leave Austin for awhile. They lived joyfully together fourteen years and fourteen days, and shared each other's successes and defeats. Sister Madison spared no time or means to add largely to her small store of book knowledge, and strove ever to be useful, which was her high ambition. She received instruction of Mrs. Judge Garland, and entered our Conference Seminary, and remained till its Professor left, after which she entered the Tillotson Institute, remaining till illness forced her to discontinue. She has at times taught in the day and Sunday schools. When Brother Madison was appointed by Bishop Harris, to Dallas, 1875, not to take charge of a church and congregation, but to build up one, he did so, most significantly, while Sister Madison was the sweet singer in this new Israel, and by her Christian influence and labor, built up a flourishing Sunday school which still lives, and continues to flourish, as the willows planted by the rivers of water. And some of her students have grown up to ripe man and womanhood, and beauty, and are among the lively members and Sunday school workers of the church at Dallas. "Yea, saith the spirit, they shall rest for their labors, and their works do follow them." Sister Madison will be remembered by the Sunday schools and churches at Columbus, Waco and Austin. A faithful worker in prayer meetings, camp meetings and grand revivals, to attend class was her chief joy; at these, she could speak for Jesus, sometimes she would get very happy, and shout "glory to God." The members of churches, Sunday schools and friends, in Waco District, will remember her as a loving, earnest, Christian co-worker, and, perhaps, are better acquainted with her as such, than any presiding elder's wife, who has had charge of the district. She has had very poor health for three years, in fact, Sister Madison has never enjoyed good health since marriage. Whatever else disturbed her good health, consumption finally took hold, and wrought destruction to her feeble body, baffling the best medical skill, at home and abroad. Just while she was passing away, Brother Madison said "Carrie, here are your friends, who have come to see you." She replied by saying, "Amen!" And thus passed sweetly away to her eternal rest in Jesus, thirteen minutes to 11 p. m., September 25th, being 34 years and six months old. Brother C. L. Madison had continued at her bedside for six long weeks, day and night. It mattered not who else was there, he was one of the number. May the Lord bless thee, my dear Brother, and sustain thee, in this hour of grief and bereavement. We all have reason to believe your loss is her eternal gain. Alas, my Brother it comes to us all. As the years rolls round and takes away the breath, at first we breathed, wherever we be, whatever we do, we are travelers to the grave.

Yours, in Christian love,

MACK HENSON.

Murfreesboro District Conference.

The district conference was held at Shelbyville, Sept. 6th, at 1 o'clock. Service was opened by a reading by Elder Key, and singing and praying by H. Primm and A. Phillips. Thirty-five members were present; E. Provine and S. P. Bell were chosen secretaries. The different committees were appointed and time fixed for meeting and adjournment. H. Brother was licensed to preach and A. Woods, a local preacher, was turned out of church. All local preachers and exhorters who failed to attend the district conference without a lawful excuse, were laid over until the next meeting at Murfreesboro. If the brethren want their licenses renewed, let them attend the conference. The reports from the presiding elder were good. The number of converts was 365; benevolent collections for the year are: Missionary $117,50; church extension 23,20; freedmen's aid $28,45; sunday school $3,25; tract society $5; education $4,78. The last night of the conference we had a missionary meeting, and raised $800,05; Judge Caldwell was with us and made a good missionary speech, and other brethren made short speeches. The conference organized a temperance society which will be called the Murfreesboro District Temperance Society.

From our Board of Education. —Special Notice.

All pastors, Sunday-school superintendents, or other persons having in hand moneys collected for this Board, whether for the Children's Fund or for the General Educational Fund, are requested to send the same to the Corresponding Secretary at 805 Broadway, during the current month of October, without fail.

The financial year of the Board closes at the annual meeting early in November, and it is desired to make at that time a full exhibit of what has been done during the year for the general cause of education in our Church.

Besides, the claims for aid to worthy students are at this time increasing beyond all former precedent, and the sooner collections reach the treasury the sooner they begin to earn means for that important end.

A REQUEST.

Our friends will be pleased to know that this Board is being remembered by persons desirous to leave their earthy substance to work for God and the Church when they have departed this life. Next following the legacy of Mrs. Broughton, of Canton, N. Y., heretofore announced, comes one of $15 from Miss Martha Young, of Lawrence, Mass. Miss Young died early, but having been a member of the Church from childhood, desired in departing to the sum of $50, which she had saved, distributed among the benevolent agencies of the Church. This, at her mother's request, was wisely done by her pastor, the Rev. E. C. Bass, who sent us the $15 named. In this way Miss Young has became enrolled among the early benefactors of this Board. She doubtless has a still brighter record on [illegible]

From Our Mission Rooms.

ARIZONA MISSION.—Rev. J. P. McIntyre, who has been doing good service at Tombstone, Arizona, informs us that, according to his observation, no longer ago than January, 1880, the date of his arrival on the field, the territory was "a mighty moral waste, the most neglected part of our land, and, in an ecclesiastical sense, Arid Zone, (the common interpretation of the name which means really "girdle of gold"); was no misnomer. Methodism had then done less than any of the other prominent evangelical churches for Arizona, and its outlay of missionary money continues to hold the same proportion. Both financially and spiritually, however, our societies which have sprung up in the field surpass all others. I venture the assertion that the records of the Missionary Society do not show a case of parallel prosperity, all the conditions being considered, the vastness of the field, difficulties of travel, long time influence of the Romanish church and smallness of the missionary appropriation. Rev. E. H. Adams, the superintendent, has exercised a wisdom and tact that has amazed us all, both in the expenditure of funds and in tireless devotion to the interests of individual churches at all points. He has wisely chosen his men, and they have done under his direction a work that compares favorably with the success of the pioneers of Methodism in the past. There are now in the various important towns, eight neat and convenient churches with comfortable personages in the more settled portions. There are also many preaching stations in the mountain camps where our local brethren do splendid work. The societies in general are out of debt, except a small balance in some cases due to the Church Extension Society, which has done noble service in this long neglected field. Credit is due to the superintendent for much personal assistance in furthering the financial interests of the different churches. The total membership of our societies will, I think, equal that of all other Protestant churches [illegible]."

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

FOURTH QUARTER. LESSON II. Oct. 8. The Passover. (Mark xiv, 12-21.)

The Passover was a feast by the Jews to remind them of the last night the Jews or Israelites passed in Egypt. They were slaves, and God took them away from their wicked king this way: The king would not obey God, so God punished him. He sent the death angel into every home in Egypt, and when morning came every house had a dead one in it. The angel did not go into the homes of the Israelites because there was a red mark on the door-posts. God told Moses to have all his people sprinkle blood on their door-posts, then go in, shut the door and be ready to march away, for God was going to make the bad king let them go. The death angel passed over every door that had this mark on in.

So the Jews always kept a feast called the Passover, to remember how God saved them that night. Jesus wanted to eat this feast with his disciples, so they made ready for it. Jesus was very sad, for he knew he must soon die, and now he tells them a very dreadful thing, "One of you will betray me." O what a message, but we know it was true. Judas did this very thing. Do we need a passover sign or mark to save us? Every heart needs a sign to save it from death for ever. It needs the sign of Jesus to make it safe. Death can never hurt a soul if Jesus has his name on it. Death will only take take the body, but the soul will go right to God, because the name of Jesus opens wide the gate of heaven. Jesus is our passover for ever.—Western.

A Boon and a Blessing Beyond Price.

If Compound Oxygen never effected a radical cure of any disease, but only retarded its progress, and made the invalid-life more easeful—gave "refreshing sleep to the sleepless, a new sense of vitality to the weak and nervous, freedom from pain to those who suffer," bringing sunshine and cheerfulness into sick rooms—it would be a boon and blessing beyond price. That it does all this and more, we have the grateful acknowledgment of thousands who have come under our treatment. Our Treatise on Compound Oxygen, its nature, action and results, with reports of cases and full information, sent free. DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, 1109 Girard St., Philadelphia, Pa.

There are stories, poems and sketches, the editor's jottings, and a literary record to interest the reader. For sale at newsstands.

The Westminister Review for July contains the following articles: "Canada as a home," in which the writer discusses the question, why is there so little emigration to Canada? "Camile Desmoulins;" "The Decay of Faith;" the article on Darwin shows a careful study and thorough understanding of the great scientific questions discussed by Mr. Darwin; "Kant's Moral Philosophy," a sequel to an article in same Review, on the same subjet, April 1881; "England's First Foothold in the East," Caroline Fox, John Sterling and John Stuart Neil; "Invention and patent laws." The Review contains a number of short and spicy articles on the following subjects: Theology, Philosophy, Politics, Sociology, History, Biography, etc. The Review is invaluable to the person who wishes to keep abreast of the current thought of the day, and is sold by booksellers and news dealers generally.

NEW BOOKS.

THE ANNALS OF A BABY. By Sarah Bridges Stihbens. T. B. Peterson & Bros, 306 Chestnut street, Philadelphia. For sale at Eyrich's Book store, 130 Canal street, New Orleans.

We have read this book with almost unmingled delight. There is a perfect naturalness in all the home scenes which it depicts. The young mother and father, the fat nurse, the grandparents, and all the young uncles and aunties, "at once photograph themselves on the mind, and become, so to speak, living personages whom everybody can appreciate and understand" who has had any experience with babies. We make no attempt to describe this charming book. We most heartily commend it to everybody. A more interesting work of its kind cannot be found.

A hole has been found in the Anti-Chinese bill big enough, as O'Connell would say, to drive a coach and four through. Last week a lot of Chinamen arrived in San Francisco, but, acting under the new law, the United State officers refused to let them land. They pleaded for exemption on the ground that they had not come here to begin a competition with the laborers of other races, being actors. The Secretary of the Treasury has decided that actors are not laborers, and the histrionic Chinamen have taken up quarters in San Francisco. This case ought to give the six companies a most valuable hint. —Pittsburg Dispatch.

Organs and Pianos.

The Mason & Hamlin Co. whose Cabinet Organs have long been the most famous in the world, have issued a new catalogue, adding a number of new styles to the more than one hundred they have made before. They now furnish an organ with sufficient power and compass for ordinary use, for $22,00, from which the prices increase by small additions to $500, or more.

They received last week an order for one of their largest organs, for the personal use of DR. FRANZ LISZT, of Pesth, Hungary, than whom there is certainly no more eminent musician living.

This Company have also commenced the manufacture of piano-fortes, embodying important improvements, which are said not only to improve this instrument in general excellence, but especially to add to its durability. Tests during the last two years are said to prove that they will not require tuning one-quarter as much as has been necessary in pianos without these improvements. The reputation of the Mason & Hamlin Co. is sufficient to insure that they will produce only the very best instruments.—Christian at Work.

DEATHS.

Sister Grass, a member of Union Chapel M. E. Church, New Orleans, died Sept. 20.

Sister Eugene Royal, wife of Rev. Royal, died Sept. 20. She was a faithful member of LaHarpe M. E. Church, New Orleans.

Sister Ann Harrices departed this life Sept. 19, after two year's illness, in the full triumph of faith. She was 50 years old, a faithful member of the Methodist Church. She left a host of friends to mourn her loss. REV. J. C. CLEMENS.

Benton, Miss.

Bro. George Chatman departed this life Sept. 14, being one of my early converts who recently embraced religion. On his deathbed he shouted in his last hours and bid the world adieu, saying he was going to Heaven. He fell asleep in the arms of Jesus. He had been converted unto Christ one month and three days. He leaves a father, mother, sisters and several brothers to mourn his loss. M. WHITE.

Daleville, Miss.

Brother E. L. Smith was born Sept. 1, 1860, and departed this life Aug. 11, 1882. He was sick a long time, but I never saw any one bear sickness with more patience in all my life. When any one asked him if he was ready his reply was, "I am just waiting on the Lord." He leaves a mother, two sisters and many relatives to mourn, but not as those who have no hope. We pray that the God of the sorrowing may comfort them. H. PRIMM.

Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Bro. Banks departed this life July 31, 1882. Bro. Banks has been a professor of religion eight years. A member of the M. E. Church, Shelby county, Tenn., St. John's Chapel; he was a class-leader, discharging his duties faithfully, and in his death the Church has lost an efficient member, his wife a dutiful husband, his sisters and brothers a kind friend. To them we say, prove faithful as Bro. Banks, you shall meet him in Heaven, and there give praises to God forever. Bro. Banks was a soldier in the last civil war, and has ever since proved a true friend to his race and country. He was forty years old. C. L. FIELDS.

The Representative Piano Manufacturers.

[From New York Observer.]

WM. KNABE & CO.—This firm is one of the oldest in the country. Their growth has been solid and steady, not an ephemeral upspringing, and their position, therefore, is unsurpassable and unassailable. They have relied upon the real merits of their Instruments, and avoided all Clap-Trap and trickery. The outcome is a business whose firm and steady prosperity is unequaled. The relative value of Pianos is pretty well-known, but a few brief words about the "KNABE" will be of interest. The tone combines volume and richness, with sweetness and purity, and evenness through the entire scale. With so elastic a Touch that the player can bring out the subtlest expressions without the pedals. In another quality yet this Piano is especially supreme—tenacity of holding Tune. Evidence of this is found in their extensive use in conservatories, where the severest of all tests is applied.

In case of a permanent vacancy elections are to be called immediaty. Hitherto the Chief Justice has been ex-officio Vice President.

The Reason Why.

The tonic effect of Kidney-Wort is produced by its cleansing and purifying action on the blood. Where there is a gravelly deposit in the urine, or milky, ropy urine from disordered kidneys, it cures without fail. Constipation and piles readily yield to its cathartic and healing power. Put up in dry vegetable form or liquid (very concentrated), either act prompt and sure. —Troy Budget.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

T. J. Johnson, Mansfield: "The third quarterly conference was presided over by myself on account of the illness of Elder Duncan. Two souls were converted in the meeting. This charge has passed through a glorious revival, resulting in eighty-three accessions, sixty-one converts, twenty-two backsliders reclaimed. At a union meeting at Shady Grove Church $37 was taken up; this is a good showing for a poor, yet a whole-souled Methodist people. The church is a small log house. An acre of land has been deeded to us by one of the brethren. The children gave a mission entertainment Aug. 19th, which realized $13 45. We will work for Haven University."

J. Hason, Columbus: "Our third conference attended by Elder Duncan, was a grand occasion. He came unexpected, but the people did the best they could; collection $5,30. Last July, by accident I lost my horse, but the brethren went to work and bought me another one. The membership is small, only 38, but they assessed themselves $3 each for the support of the pastor."

MISSISSIPPI.

Dunin Hatch, of Pittsboro, writes that he has bought five acres of land, and thinks the church he is building on it will be completed by October. As soon as the building is up, a society is to be organized and ready for the next annual conference. He is encouraged by the reports of work given by Brothers Shumpert, Snell and Gatewood. He has been a member of the M. E. Church since 1862, and has been striving ever since to do all the good he could. He is surrounded by Baptists, and expects some practical assistance from the leaders of our church to complete the work he is now engaged in.

H. Livingston, Athens circuit: "At Quincy 48 were added to the church during the protracted meeting. Our pastor held the quarterly conference, the elder being detained by sickness in his family. The ladies provided the conference with an excellent dinner. Our new church is painted and we will get a bell as soon as we shall be able to pay for it."

Moses White, Daleville: "The Lord has blessed my feeble efforts and labors, and has added eighty-two to my churches. Out of this number sixty-six were happily converted. I can thank the Lord and say that my churches are prospering greatly this year."

L. P. Brown, Quitman: "We are carrying on our revivals on the circuit with abundant success. Sixty-five have joined the church, forty-five of them converts. Men and women are praising God for their salvation. We built a church in DeSoto this year, and have 1100 feet of lumber for the church at Quitman. We have not forgotten our pledge to Shaw University; and we are still at work. Pray for our success."

TEXAS.

S. H. Horn, Liberty church, Morris county: "Our camp meeting on the Pittsburg circuit has just closed; we had a gracious meeting. The Lord was with us, twenty-two were happily converted. Twenty-... joined the church. My work is in a good condition, I have secured a ... lot for church at Hughes Springs."

... Harris, Schulenburg: "Our ... year has proven a good ... There have been seven ... and a fine sabbath ... N. C. Countee ... and Jack McNeely and D. ... the teachers."

... Huntsville: ... Pullam held my ... conference, and ... is ... district conference. On the way I looked upon large fields of corn; my people work mainly on the share system, and must wait until gathering time to realize from their crops. It is time to change this plan, and it can be done by the practice of more rigid economy. I found school houses filled with children. The conference was well attended. Elder Price aroused the bretheren to church duties."

Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," for all those weaknesses peculiar to women, is an unequaled remedy. Distressing backache and "bearing-down" sensations yield to its strength-giving properties. By druggists.

The "annual conference" to a Methodist minister is a season of greatest interest, being a standpoint for the retrospection—conflicts, successes, and defeats are reviewed in detail—and also for anticipation of work and reward in the future. Old friendships are renewed and new ones formed; and amid business involving matter of greatest consequence to the preachers and their families, social joy prevails. The fires of devotion are lighted anew, and burn with unusual brightness during the seasons of worship and fellowship, suggesting that final gathering when all faithful pastors shall reassemble, bringing their sheaves with them.—Western.

Don't Be Alarmed

at Bright's Disease, Diabetes, or any disease of the kidneys, liver or urinary organs, as Hop Bitters will certainly and lastingly cure you, and it is the only thing that will.

In Delaware and Kentucky the school tax collected from the colored people is the only appropriation for the colored schools. In Maryland there is a biennial appropriation by the legislature. In the District of Columbia one-third of the school money is set aside for the colored schools.

Liver diseases, headache, and constipation, caused by bad digestion, quickly cured by Brown's Iron Bitters.

The Western Recorder, which tells this, of course, true story, is a Baptist paper: "'Father,' said a fashionable young lady, 'am I a member of the church?' 'Yes, my daughter,' her father replied, 'you are a member of the church. I initiated you by having you baptized in infancy.' 'But, father,' she answered, 'I have no piety, never was converted, and I do not think I ought to be a church member.' 'The wheat and the tares are to grow together, our Lord tells us in the parable; and you are a tare, I fear, my daughter, only a tare,' replied the father. 'But didn't you say that you initiated me?' she asked. 'Yes' said he, 'I initiated you in your infancy; but why did you ask?' 'Because,' she answered slowly, 'the Bible says that the one who sowed the tares was the devil.' The old man groned, walked the floor, and made no reply.

Misery is a mild word to describe the mischief to body and mind caused by habitual constipation. The regular use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills, in mild doses, will restore the torpid viscera to healthy activity. Try them and be cured.

Hot Milk as a Restorative.

Milk that is heated to much above 100 degrees Fahrenheit loses for a time a degree of its sweetness and its density; but no one fatigued by over-exertion of body and mind, who has ever experienced the reviving influence of a tumbler of this beverage, heated as hot as it can be sipped, will willingly forego a resort to it because of its having been rendered somewhat less acceptable to the palate. The promptness with which its cordial influence is felt is indeed surprising. Some portions of it seem to be digested and appropriated almost immediately; and many who fancy they need alcoholic stimulants when exhausted by labor of the brain or body will find in this simple draught an equivalent that shall be abundantly satisfying and more enduring in its effects.—Phrenological Journal.

A Vigorous Growth.

Of the hair is often promoted by using Parker's Hair Balsam. It always restores the youthful color and lustre to gray hair, gives it new life and removes all irritation and dandruff.

How They Argue.

"Prohibition doesn't prohibit because men sell liquor and get drunk where prohibition exists," says the friends of the license.

Suppose we use the same argument in other matters; for instance: Christianity doesn't christianize, because there are sinners in the world.

Wisdom doesn't make wise, because fools are still to be found.

Cultivation doesn't cultivate, because weeds still come up in the field.

Education doesn't educate, because it doesn't exterminate the ... that persist in such ... as above.—West Vir...

There is now a gap of a little more than 600 miles between the approaching ends of the Northern Pacific Railroad, which is being closed up at the rate of nearly four miles a day. There are 816 miles of complete road between St. Paul, Minnesota, and Forsyth, Montana Territory, and 407 miles finished on the Pacific coast side, bringing that end of the line to Rock Island, Montana Territory. On the first of this month a daily line of four-horse stages commenced running between the two ends of the line, and by the first of October the schedule passenger time between Chicago and Portland will be reduced to eight days, which is less than the present time between the two cities by way of San Franciso. A force of 8,000 men is employed in pushing forward the road, and the whole line is expected to be completed and in running order early in 1883.—Pacific Advocate.

DR. JOHN BULL'S

FEVER and AGUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER.

AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

John Brown was not the man to guide the Republic or to organize an exodus, but he was subtantially right at Harper's Ferry. People who, untaught, try to sketch an object with a pencil are defeated by their over-knowledge of the object. The thing must be sketched as it appears, not as the experienced would-be artist knows it to be. Children, they say, have intuitive comprehension of perspective and succeed because of their artistic "innocence of sight." John Brown saw simply that men in Virginia were enslaving human souls, and in the name of God he treated the sin as it truthfully appeared, and not as politicians knew it. In the divinity of innocence he chastised the sin, and that dullard Wise hung John Brown in the name of all American dullards. The martyr to his convictions drew all eyes to himself as he hung by the neck, and, being lifted up he drew all men together to strike down the awful sin against God and mankind. During the war we slept one night in that engine house ot Harper's Ferry in which John Brown calmly challenged the wrath of all men who made base merchandise of human liberty. Next to Calvary, it is the grandest spot in the history of social redemption. John Brown with pure eyes saw God, and proceeded to voice the key-note of American emancipation. Men call him fanatic, but so miscall they all moral early-risers who proclaim daylight in advance of their fellows. Other dawns are coming and their prophets are deprecated as lunatics who disturb slumbers. In the grand history of human freedom as a unit, John Brown will stand out as, to this date, the central American figure—George Washington and Abraham Lincoln not excepted. The world's most enduring monuments are builded by the befriended poor to whom God vouchsafes both deliverers and the grace of gratitude.—Northwestern Advocate.

It is said that in some parts of Turkey, whenever a shop-keeper is convicted of telling a falsehood his house is at once painted black to remain so for a month. If such a law were enforced in this country, what a sable and gloomy appearance some places would present. Black paint we incline to think would go up in price.

Don't Get the Chills.

If you are subject to Ague you must be sure to keep your liver, bowels and kidneys in good free condition. When so, you will be safe from all attacks. The remedy to use is Kidney Wort. It is the best preventative of all malarial diseases that you can take. See advertisement in another column.

Dr Judson Smith says: China is open to evangelization to-day from the sea to the western mountains and to the northern wall. This is a most significant fact in view of the history of the past, a most thrilling appeal to Christian lands to come and reap the wide harvest of God. The present generation in China must perish in their sins if we, the Western Christians of this generation do not carry the gospel thither. Every province and city, home and heart, is accessible. What a tremendous duty rests on the men of this decade now in our seminaries and colleges and academies! What a solemn, what an inspiring call is this to us of these American Churches, to see to it that these men and means are abundantly provided for this prodigious work!

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER.

Pain in the right side, under edge of ribs, increasing on pressure; sometimes the pain is on the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder and is sometimes taken for Rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternating with laxity; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled; his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low, and, although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it.

If you have any of the above symptoms, you can certainly be cured by the use of the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS. When you buy McLane's Pills, insist on having DR. C. McLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, made by Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa. If you can not get the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, send us 25 cents by mail, and we will send them to you.

Information wanted of my mother, Martha Jackson, a mulattress who belonged to Judge Lomocks, in Fredericksburg, Virginia, and was sold in the year 1855. When last heard of was in Columbia, Mississippi, and keeping a millinery store. She had three sisters, (octoroons, viz: Serena Jackson, born February 13th, 1849. Henrietta Jackson, born September 5th, 1853. Louisa Jackson, aged about 24 years; all were sold with their mother in Virginia. Any information from above named persons will be thankfully received by a bereaved and affectionate daughter. Address, Mrs. Alice Rebecca Lewis, (Nee Jackson), 259 Peters Street, bet. Delord and Calliope, New Orleans, La.

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to see if my relatives can be found. I have a father, mother, and one full sister. Father was August Brown, sister, Louisa Brown, three half-sisters were Mary, Eliza, and Harriet Brown, two brothers were Joseph and George Brown. I was born in Maryland, and when eleven years old was brought to Tennessee. I remained there four years, and was taken to Missouri, and after being there two years came to Texas. I was brought to Tennessee by Jose Gamden, a speculator. Jesse Breese was my last owner. This occurred 1858 to 1866. I am about 39 years old. Address me at Roxton, Lamar county, Texas.

37-8t SARAH ANN LEWIS.

DEAR EDITOR: I desire to inquire for my sister Martha, who was sold from us when about seven years old to a man who lived near Bolivar, Tenn., named Tom Boyle. At that time we all belonged to John Green, except father, who belonged to Nat Woods. Father was Granville, mother Dollie, brothers William, Granville, and Richmond the baby, sister Laura. We all went by the name of Norman. Father belonged to Tom Norman, who lived at Whiteville, Hardeman Co., Tenn. Grandfather was Squire Norman, grandmother, Jennie Norman. Mother and all the children except Sister Martha are here in Texas. I desire to find her. Pastors, please read this to your congregations. Address, at Austin, Texas, her brother,

Satan seldom comes to Christians with great temptations, or with temptation to commit a great sin. You bring a green log and a candle together and they are very safe neighbors; but bring a few shavings and set them alight, then bring a few small sticks, and let them take fire, and the log be in the midst of them, and you will soon get rid of your log. And so it is with little sins. You will be startled with the idea of committing a great sin and so the devil brings you a little temptation, and leaves you to indulge yourself. "There is no harm in this;" "no great peril in that;" and so, by these little chips we are first lighted up, and at last the green log is burned. "Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation."—John Newton.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC

A combination of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark and Phosphorus in a palatable form. The only preparation of iron that will not blacken the teeth, so characteristic of other iron preparations.

GENTLEMEN: I have used DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Diseases, Dyspepsia, and an impoverished condition of the blood, this peerless remedy has in my hands made some wonderful cures. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians, have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC is a necessity in my practice.

Sarsaparilla

Is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, with the iodide of potash and iron, all powerful blood-making, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and in every way the most effectual alterative medicine known or available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ringworm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility.

By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruptions which contaminate the blood, and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates and enlivens the vital functions. It promotes energy and strength. It restores and preserves health. It infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair, who will give AYER'S SARSAPARILLA a fair trial. Remember, the earlier the trial, the speedier the cure.

Its recipe has been furnished to physicians everywhere; and they, recognizing its superior qualities, administer it in their practice.

For nearly forty years AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has been widely used, and it now possesses the confidence of millions of people who have experienced benefits from its marvellous curative virtues.

THE SUMMIT-FLOWER.

BY LUCY LARCOM.

Too close these giant hills their head uprear
From peak to base the unswerving outlines sweep
In awful curves; I follow them with fear;
They bear me down to yon abysmal deep,
Where storm-wind and black cloud for mastery fight,
And toss me, as their plaything, on the air;
The mountains crush me with their savage might;
Nature's rude strength is more than I can bear.

O little white flower on the summit born,
[illegible] you look into my eyes!
[illegible] do you feel forlorn
Among these grandeurs and immensities.
Vague, formless forms they; a life are you!
[illegible], and dear as near to me,
You whisper in my ear a promise true,
A faint, clear hint of immortality.

I touch your leaf with reverence, little flower!
I think of spiritual heights beyond your ken,
Where mightier movements of invisible power
[illegible] godlike grace the lives of men.
[illegible], while I watch you here,
[illegible] elements fierce your happy [illegible]

I think one [illegible] course of [illegible] was because [illegible] in nearly [illegible] itinerant and [illegible] probably the [illegible] to the ministry. [illegible] the call is [illegible] vacancies [illegible] and when [illegible] is afforded, is as much a [illegible] so far as the calling is [illegible] as the man who goes in- [illegible] I think there [illegible] preachers [illegible] so far [illegible] courses of study are concerned. For I believe the people in the back woods, [illegible] in the densely populated cities, should have nothing [illegible] the pure word [illegible] from the mouth of an or- [illegible] [illegible] Much [illegible] would be [illegible] work done [illegible] [illegible] Now if [illegible] license understand this and bring np these studies, traveling preachers will then have no tares to plnck out hut those planted by the personal identical devil. Now why is it that so few pastors feel safe in leaving the flock for a seasou in the hands of his local preachers; that so few congregations will atteud if they understand that a local preacher is to officiate; that so few of them are able to defend the church of their choice or give a reasonable answer as to the Methodist faith that is within them? Is it because they are dishonest? No, certainly not, for they are good men. Is it because they are not morally and socinbly agreeable to the community? No, because they stand high in the estimation of their frienda until they enter the pulpit. Then undonbtedly it must be because of their neglect of study and thorough preparation for the ministry. Now, I have heard of cases where the local preachers arrayed themselves against the pastor in every particular, instead of working with him. This is certainly sure signs of non-Methodistic, or probably I had better say no training, and ignorance of study. Now these things onght not so to be, and to my mind there seems bnt one remedy; and that is, that the law of the church should be carried out so that every applicant for license and every local preacher will understand that unless he does pursue this course, beginning with the first and passing through to the fourth year's study, that he can get no license or retain what he has already. Now we all know that the president of a district, or quarterly conference, who would sign or allow to be signed or renew any local preacher's license where the candidate did not study the books for that year, would be liable to action by the ensuing annual conference for maladministration. Some object and say it is too much to require these bretheren to bring up this four year's course of study, and that they will never need it any way. It seems to me that if I found myself making that kind of remark I should expect my friends to say I had failed to study and was afraid these brethren would catch up with me. Former slave holders, in some cases, objected to making their slaves study at night; because it was too much for them to work all day and then study at night. Does that make it right in our sight today? The man who dares hood wink these local preachers with this pretended tender feeling, will find when too late that ho is not only injuring the church of his choice hut doing his fellow-man incalculable wrong, and blasting all their bright prospects for future usefulness in the ministry. If every local preacher in the twelve thousand of our church had thoroughly mastered the course, candidates who knock at the conference door would be nerved for the fight and polished shafts in Jehovah's quiver, and ready to do battle for God from the day of enlistment, and would go ont to bless mankind. More local preachers would join the itinerancy if it were not they are afraid they can not fill the places to be given them. If the standard was lifted higher, more promising young and old men would join and stay in the field. The christianization of this world is laid on ns, brethren, for the angel of the Lord shows himself no more in human form, and God has yet many Elijah's hid in the mouth of the cave or reclining under the juniper tree, but we are expected to do the work ravens once did, and to encourage the way worn traveller by furthering him on his journey. We ought, it seems to me, by all means encourage these local brethren to take up this course of study and finish it, and then—

"As giants may they run their race,
Exulting in their might;
As burning luminaries chase
The gloom of hellish night."

A Trip to Chicago.

MR. EDITOR:—I desire to aay a word in your paper in regard to my trip to Chicago. I left New Orleans Sept 16th, at half-past five o'clock, in company with Prof. J. W. Bowen and Rev. T. G. Mongomery, (pastor of the First Street Methodist Episcopal Church in this city), by the way of the Jackson Railroad. Of the country throughout which we passed that night I am not able to speak, for two important reasons: 1st, it was dark and we could not see. 2nd, For most of the timo we were asleep. Next morning at 7 o'clock we were at Jackson, Tenn. So far as we could see, this looked like a delightful town, but as our stop was short, of course our view of the place was somewhat limited. During the entire day, onr ronte lay through the mountains of Tennessee. To the writer the scenery was perfectly dolightful, so tho hours of the day passed apiftly by. At five in the afternoon we had reached Cairo. Crossing the Ohio we found ourselves on territory never cursed with human slavery. Of Illinois we can say but little, as we crossed the State in the night. At eight o'clock next morning, the conductor cried ont Chicago. From the depot we walked to 57 Washington street, the Western Methodist Publishing House. Rev. Dr. Stowe, one of the agents was in. We told him who we were, and from whence we came; most cordially did the good Doctor welcome us to Chicago. He asked us many qnestions abount our work in Louisiana, and so far as we conld we answered hin. We were delighted with Dr. Stowe, ho seemed to us jnst like a brother.

While in the oily, we visited the court house, post office, the Palmer and Pacific hotels, the Exchange rooms where we saw on exhibition all manner of machinery; and snch works of art such as are never seen in the South. We also had the pleasure of forming the acquaintance of Hon. Mr. Brown, one of the largest dealers at the Exchango who seemed to take pleasure in showing and explaining to us the various institutions of the city. By other gentlemen we were taken to the Rooms of the Young Men's Christian Associntion, and were invited to take a seat with the Secretary. At all the churches we visited we were made welcome, and in no instance was it intimated to ns that said church was for white or colored people exclusively. Time would fail me to mention all the places of interest wo had the pleasure of visiting, Farlwell Hall, Lincoln's Park, and other places of interest to us. I cannot close this letter without making special mention of the hospipality of this great city. We had heard of the hospitality of the North, and wo expected much, bnt this went so far beyond our expectations that we are lost for language to give any proper iden of it. We return to New Orleans, to go about our work as a Methodist minister, but shall never forgot our visit to Chicago. Fraternally,

M. J. DYER.

Selt-Control.

A great many sins are laid to our warm and beantiful climate.

Men drink, because they must stimulate in this climate.

They are petulent and lack self control, because of the climate. They lack enterprise, because of the climate.

I snpposo it cannot be denied that a warm climate is enervating; but it would seem if people were slow and indolent they would certainly be good natured. However, this is not the case.

Nowhere in our country are people so easily excited, so easily made angry, as in the Sonth, and there must be some reason for it.

Every one's experience teaches him that when ho is half sick or debilitated from any cause, it is much more difficult to control his temper.

Some who are agreeable and good company when well, are perfectly unbearable when sick. Especially is this true of men.

Women, who have the care of little children and are sick so much more than men, are obliged to keep half-way good natured. Ask almost any wife and she will tell yon that she dreads to have her hnshand sick, for he is as "cross as a bear."

Impatience is one of the great temptations that humanity has to contend with; and the combat is [illegible] harder when we are physi- [illegible] temptations came after His forty days' fast, when he was "anhnngered."

Probably He could not have been tempted had not His physicnl system been first redneed and exhausted.

It was only through the flesh that temptation could approach Him.

Self-control is so rare among ns that a majority of men are not ashamed to get mad. At a little provocation they rave and swear with no apparent loss of self-respect. Whereas, in a community where self-control is the rule, people remain calm in public and give way to their temper in private.

I have seen young ladies spin their work baskets across the room because their sewing-cotton happened to get tangled, who, in society, were always as calm and sereno as a "morning in Jnne."

Men, smiling and affable away from home, crush and throw upon the floor a nicely ironed shirt becanso a button was missing.

Mrs. Browning has mentioned tho painstaking with which a wife embroiders a stool for her husband. He stumbles over it in the dark and says: "Curso that stool."

Those things tell badly, not only upon the individnal, but upon the children in families whero there are any.

Nobody takea the tronble to go masked before a child.

A mother tries to teach her child to be patient, and to show it the folly of getting mad at "things," aud to make it comprehend that the fault is in the little nnskilled hand rather than the blocks that make its honse tumble over. What can she say when the child anawers with triumph: "My papa does so. When things don't do to suit papa he kicks them over, and papa is a good man?" Shall she say: "I know that is papa's way, but it is not n good way;" and so teach the child a lesson of disrespect for its father?

How many mothers I heve heard say: "I try not to scold my children; my mother was an awful scold, and I used to think when I was a little girl that if I ever had a little girl of my own I wouldn't scold her."

No mother wishes to leave such a remembrance behind her; and yet so many, who seem to be exemplary mothers in other respects, lose their temper and scold for every trifling offence.

I am sure I am safo in saying, that no mother scolds when she has perfect control of herself; and the children know it, and they whisper among themselves, "Mamma is mad!"

"He that is slow in wrath, is of great understanding; but he that is hasty in spirit exalteth folly."

"He that is slow to auger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit, than he that taketh a city."

But people tell you that they can't help it. They havo a haaty temper which they can't control; when nsnally the fact is, they don't try.

A littlo resolution goes a great way, and a thing once conqnered is more easily conquered again. The feeling of self-respect which it gives a man to know he is master of himself, is worth trying for. A high temper is not a bad thing, if under control.

For Christians, especially, thero should be no excuse, believing as they do, that their strength is supplemented by a higher. They have tho promise that they shall not be tempted above what they are able to bear; that is, when they have borne all they can, assistance will come. Many fail because they depend npon the Lord to do for them what thoy can do for themselves. One who uses his own strength and then relies upon God for what more he may need, will never fall; and he has a feeling of safety and self-respect which on one else can have.

Years ago I was accustomed to drive a young horse which was not well trained, and was sometimes unruly. I knew his ways, and having always been able to manago him, was not afraid of him. At one time a friend of mine proposed that we take a drive. I was jnst recovering from a severe illness, and said: "I am so weak that should the horse run I couldn't hold him." My friend replied: "I don't know how to drive, hut in an emergency I can hold on! So I had my ride, feeling secure in the knowledge that was it needed there was a strength much superior to my own to supplement it.

So it may be with the Christian. Every day when he goes to meet the world he knows that he has only to do all he can, and what extra strength ho needs, will be given to him.

It is well to remember that the angels did not minister to Christ, until he had conquered the tempter.

New Orleans, La.

From Our Mission Rooms.

REV. J. M. REID, D. D,, Corresponding Secretary, sailed from New York with Alex. Reid, in tho City of Berlin, Saturday morning, Sept. 30, at 7 o'clock. He goes out in response to the request of the Board and at tho expressed desire of the India Conference, especially to visit onr missions in India. He expects also to reach Bulgaria in time for the annnal meeting.

THE GENERAL MISSIONARY COMMITTEE will assemble for its annual meeting on Monday, the 6th of November, at the Mission Room 805 Broadway, New York.

THE CHINESE MISSION SUNDAY SCHOOL IN NEW YORK CITY, Rev. James Jackson, Baxter, has been for some timo organized as a missionary society. Payment of two cents per week constitutes membership in the society. Tho money is collected every week, aud in this way more than $30 havo already heen paid into the missionary treasury. The school is increasing in interest; quite a number of new teachers having come in, which shows more attention to the work ou tho part of the churches. At the last monthly meeting, Rev. David Hill, a Wesleyan missionary, who has spont sixteen years in China, made n very interesting address. To the Chineso he spoke in their own languago, both of the temporal and apiritual advantages which they would derivo from faithful attendance upon the school. Mr. Hill ohserved that when he went to Hankow nearly 18 years ago, there were only a few Christiaus there; now the number is 2000, who are church members, and the whole city is covered with christian teaching. Mr. Hill apent nearly three years in the familiar regions of Shantung and Shansie, distribnting relief. It was estimated that between eight and ten millions of people died of starvation during that period. Many hundreds of reliable Christians have heen gathered in that field.

REV. S. P. CRAVER, of the Mexican mission, is unable for tho present to continue his work. He is in a critical condition.

Rev. J. M. Sibert and wife, of Moraflores, have recovered. Mrs. Barber is still ill.

BULGARIA MISSION.—Rev. S. Thoroff has been making a tour of the district assigned to his charge. It embraces the following administrative districts of the principality, niz: Nicopolis, Rakova, Vratsa, Berkovitza, Loni Palanka and Viddin. All these towns, which give names to the districts, were visited, except Nicopolis, which is inhabited mostly by Turks. At Rakovn considerable snccess was had in preaching. Twenty persons were present on the first occasion, and sixty the evening following. Half of them were village teachers from tho district, who aro taking a course of instruction in the town. All listened attentively to a sermon of threo quarters of an hour. "I have reason to believe," says the missionary, "that nearly half of those present took a real interest in the truths presented. I had an opportunity to talk with more than a dozen of them both before and after the preaching, and came to the conclusion that had we a preacher here, they would in a short time, take a stand for Christ. I shall visit this place oftener in the future. The "honest douhter" of whom I wrote before, feels more satisfied of the truth of Christianity, but is not yet ready to openly confess Christ. I find that the most intelligent people in the towus have an aversion towards the Bulgarian church, and talk openly against its superstitions. I feel that tho time has come for me to mako an effort to arouse the peoplo, by presenting to them the pnro doctrines of the gospel. But we greatly need more men—earnest self-sacrificing men—for this work. The chief towns in the Principality—Varna, Shumla, Silistra, Loni Palanka, Viddin, etc., still remain unoccnpied.

Where are you going to spend eternity? Have yon settled this question? It is the most important one of life. The matter should not be postponed, but settled NOW. To you eternity may dawn to-morrow. Then it will be too late to answer the question. "Behold now is the day of salvation."—Rocky Mountain Advocate.

The Crow Indians of Southern Montana.

REV. T. D. LEWIS, MISSIONARY.

This tribe, numbering near 4,000, is located on a Reservation south of the Yellowstone River, extending from East of tho Bighorn River westward to the Snow Mountains, and embracing an area of about 5,000 square miles. It is a fine grazing country, well watered, and has much good farming land along the streams. These Crows are a large and fine-looking people, of good natural abilities, very peaceable and friendly, and simple in their habits. Living as they do principally upon game, frequent moves are necessary, which is a hinderance to missionary work. The growing acarcity of game, however will soon necessitate n settled life, mnch to the advantage of all concerned. The Government supplies rations sufficient only for a few months of the year. A few of the older men are experimenting in farming a little. Housefurnishing and implements, with seed and rations, are supplied them, and it is hoped by another season the number engaged in agriculture will be greatly increased.

At tho Agency is a good schoolhouse, aad a new "Home" has been built, bnt great difficulty is experienced in securing children for the Home and school. The Crows love their children dearly, are very indulgent, and, not fully appreciating the advantages to come to the younger generation, in tho near future, by education, it is not to be wondered at that they should cling to the children nnduly. Notwithstanding this, the Agent has secured n nnmber of children, who are now regular in attendance at school, and are making commendable progress. Some, indeed, are quite bright. This is all under Government direction and snpport.

But little, if any, regular missionary labor has hitherto been bestowed among this people. There is not one Christian Indian in the three to four thousand of the tribe. They are living and groping in ntter darkness in this our land of Gospel light. They—as all peoples—must and do worship something. So to their dark minds the great sun, which dispels the darkness of night and hrings light and joy, appeals most forcibly as the ruler and king. To him frequent offerings are made of such things as wearing apparel or hits of cloth, etc. Self-inflicted penances are frequent, and at times the poor burdened heart will seek relief hy pouring out its grief far off alone in some secluded spot on the prairie. The soul of man instinctively cries ont after the living God—the Father of the race he from whom all hy sin have strayed.

Truly these children of the forest need instruction. Who will come to their rescue? Who will help sustain those who are devoting their time and strength to this glorious work of leading forth these our fellow-men, who are in darkness, that they may walk in the light as we are in the light?

We need a lady missionary, sent and sustained by the Woman's Home Missionary Society. Who will come? We are glad to respond to any inquiries as to opportunity for labor. The Indians of the Northwest regiou have been greatly neglected. Just now an effectual door is opened to us here; let us enter in good earnest. If tho lovers of mankind as man, without regard to race or color, could hut see these children of the plains as they come up step by step in school, and could feel the warm hand grasp, and see the smiling countenance of these our red brethren as they greet those whom they know to be truly their friends, there would be moro faith in and greater efforts put forth for their edncation and Christianization. This means their civilization and final and full redemption.

The Power of the Gospel.

Rev. Dr. J. W. Harmon, of New Orleans, but now in charge of the M. E. Church, Sonth, at Marion, Miss., on Sept. 14th, preached a thanksgiving sermon, from the text Prov. xxiii. We reprint the following extract from the Mississippi Methodist:

No my readers, philosophise as you may over the restraints of education, and the enlightenment of society, and the sturdy strides of science, and the restraints of the legislative chambers and the wisdom of the courts in the utterances of judicial penalties and their execution. Yet, nothing after all ever set agoing by human agency can reach and subdue the citadel of human passions—and yon may rest assured that the human heart garrisoned to fullness with all ungodliness aud trusting in its own self sufficiency, can never be stormed and captured by human power or human governments, or human legislation. No my hearers, only when christianity is universally diffused over the earth, then, and only then, will enduring peace come upon the face of all human habitations and subdue the violence of human passions. Then shall come the fulfillment of the prophecy, "nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

Not until the legitimate influence of tho gospel has fonud its way to tho human heart, and plucked up by the roots all the elements and principles of war; not until the law of love in tho gospel of Christ, has dethroned all the unholy ambitions of men; not until the false, the fictitious, and the guilty splendors of war, shall loose its halluciuations over men, and fail to capture the applause of the multitude; not until national pride shall be humbled, and the rulers are seated, and clothed in their right minds, at the feet of the Captain of our salvation; uot until those who control the political movements, and diplomatic correspondence of the world shall be brought under the law of Christ; then and not till then, shall peace become a permanent heritage of the nations.

All history does not furnish an example where literature, science, knowledge, or legislation, alone, or combined, ever saved any people from political coruption, bloodshed or anarchy. Let it be understood and acted upon, then, in all the legislative assemblies of the world, that the peace, the securities of the liberties, and the perpetuity of all governments must be built upon, and founded in the solid virtue of the people; and that virtue, based, not on mere knowledge, not on legislation or scholarship hut laid strong and deep in the solid religious faith and principles of the people. The fact is, the people have been very slow to learn, hut they are beginning to understand, that you may push forward your enlightenment until the acquirements of literature and science, and ligislation, and political economy shall be as familiarly known as the spelling book; and yet divorco religion and personal piety from this increase of knowledge, take away the Sabbath from the masses of the people, place no prohibition upon the manufacture and salo of intoxicants, and then yon will make the discovery, how very soon men high in anthority will throw off all restraints of public virture; then yon would make the mortifying discovery, that under all tho polish and gloss of refined and elegant society, there lurks all the malignity and deep depravity of the fall, and a miniature hell on earth would be.

Backbiting is the habit of dogs, and only mean dogs at that; it certainly can not be a characteristic of good Christians. And as for sanctified persons, we would naturally conclude they havo no teeth to use in this way; it were impossible that they could be found biting at the hack of a brother hy sly innuendo, hy damaging misrepresentation, by tale-bearing and gossip. So it would appear from what is required in tho Bible of Christians, and from what is claimed by all professors of sanctification. The Scriptures plainly forbid evil speaking, and all professors of perfect holiness assert that the blood of Jesus cleanses from all sin. But what are the facts revealed in practical life? We know that many converted persons are not saved from backbiting; it is a habit with them to do more or less of detraction; aud is it not a sad fact that even those who witness to the attainment of full redemption, are found sometimes nipping at the backs of their brethren? Their teeth are uot sanctified, at least not wholly. —Dr. A. Lowrey, in Divine Life.

From every part of tho State we are receiving encouraging news with referenco to the advancement of the interests of Methodism. New houses of worship are being built, homes for the pastors are being provided. In many localities the revivai spirit has prevailed during the entire summer. New classes have been formed, and thus the borders of Zion enlarged. The children are being brought into the Sabbath School and many of them into the Church. Methodism is aggressive, and especially so in Kansas. Less than ten years ago we had bnt one Conference, to-day we have four, each one of which is nearly as large as the mother Conference. This Conference year is yet hut a little over half gone, five of the best months in which to work yet remain. We not only rejoice in the fact that we have the evidences of an increased membership and church property, bnt also that there has been a corresponding growth in tho spiritual condition of the people. "Nearer, my God, to thee," comes welling up from hearts in city, village and open prairie.—Kansas Methodist.

What Next.

Under the term "Methodist Goats" the Texas Advocate, (M. E. Church South,) discusses the question how to keep them from jumping the fence. It suggests two ways: 1. Pull down the fence that divides the church from wordly amusements. 2. Shoot them as they jump, viz: administer discipline. Upon this question the editor says: "Some of our preachers believe that these goats ought to be shot when they jump the fence, so they shoot. Others believe that the fence ought to be torn down. Others believe that the fence ought to remain, and if the goats have a mind to jump, let them jump." The Advocate complains that while some pastors "permit card playing, dancing and theatre going, and their character passes unchallenged at conference, the presiding elders tell others if they do not take hold of these matters and kill the goats they will arrest their character at conference." The editor evidently believes in shooting the goats, and in answering the question, how to get all the pastors to shoot, suggests, that "whenever a pastor fails to shoot the jumping goats, let the annual conference shoot the pastor." We agree with the Advocate, "that the fence should not be removed; and that the question of amusements cannot be regulated by the conscience of the average Methodist goat." That conscience is no better than a chalk mark. But we doubt the use of "bird shot" or "buck shot;" they do not cure. We cannot make Christians out of "Methodist Goats" by the use of this material. The lion in his cage has an intense longing for his native lairs and liberty—hence the endless tramping from side to side of his cage. These "Methodist Goats" in the Church, but not in Christ, know that they need something, but what that something is they do not exactly know. They think that it is riches, a fashionable attire, card playing, dancing or theatre going; hence this almost endless effort to satisfy their immortal longings with fleeting bubbles. We think that these "Methodist Goats" need an old fashioned conversion to God. This most effectually takes away all hankering for the leeks and onions of old Egypt. The milk and honey of Canaan is a sure cure for garlics.

Another Church Burned Down.

The incendiary has reduced another one of our churches to ashes. This time it is in the pine woods, on Spring Creek, in the parish of Rapides, in this State. Both the dilapidated old church and the new one were fired and burnt to the ground the very night after the completion of the new building. Our poor people here, who, in the midst of many privations, labored so hard to erect this house of worship, which, in less than six hours after its completion, through their tears of sorrow, they saw consumed by the raging elements, certainly deserve the sympathy and aid of all good people. Our people and pastor, Rev. H. J. Wright, were very much discouraged, but they were not in that mood very long before they were made to feel that they had the sympathy of all the white, as well as colored people, of the neighborhood for miles around. The white people, nearly all of whom subscribed various amounts to help rebuild the church, assured Bro. Wright and the presiding Elder, Rev. A. E. P. Albert, both privately and in the open congregation, that they "scorned and abhorred the fiendish villainy which could have prompted any man in the committal of such a foul and diabolical crime." The suspected [illegible], a white man, seeing the [illegible] with which the deed is [illegible], and the fierce denunciations which meets it on all sides, [illegible] made a swift escape to parts [illegible].

Willful Slander.

Down at New Orleans our brethren of the Northern Church are running a paper called the SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE, which seems to be, just now, the advocate of a political party rather than a religious organization. We blush for Methodism as we glance at its columns. If our Northern friends want to run a campaign paper for a political party, let them do so, but not under the guise of a church paper.—Central Methodist.

The above editorial item appeared in an organ of the M. E. Church South, published at Cattlettsburg, Kentucky. It is not a criticism, but an assault. We properly and carefully designate it a willful slander, a violation of that commandment which says: "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." It will be observed that the editor of the Central Methodist claims to have glanced at our columns; for that reason we are justified in using positive terms. The SOUTHWESTERN, as is well known, has denounced the murder of Jack Turner, ballot-box stuffing, assessments, and other corrupt and wrong political methods wholly irreconcilable with Christian citizenship. The above assault cannot be sustained by the quotation of an article or a line from our columns, and none was attempted in this instance. It would not surprise us, and its motive would be equally clear, had it appeared in the Choctaw county Courier or the official organ of the South Carolina red shirts, but it could not decently appear in the columns of any professedly Christian paper.

Gen. McMillen, the Republican candidate for Congress in the fifth Louisiana District, addressed a note to Gen. J. Floyd King, the Democratic candidate, in which he expressed the opinion that a "discussion of the political questions of the day, devoid of personalities of a disagreeable character would be well received by the people of that district," and his readiness to meet him at such times and places as might be agreed upon. Gen. King in his reply said: "I regret very much that the position which I occupy as the candidate and chosen representative of the Democratic party, embracing the education, intelligence, property, morality and religion of the district, compels me to decline the proposed joint discussion," etc. It would be a waste of space to recapitulate Mr. King's so-called reasons for his declination. The intolerance of their spirit is sufficiently demonstrated by the quoted sentence. It is a matter of history that Gen. King was not elected to Congress from the Fifth District at any time but acquired a seat through notorious bulldozing and fraud. Men of his intolerant stamp are not wanted, and can do the public interests but little good in Washington. It is announced that not a dollar will be assessed upon any government officer for the benefit of Gen. McMillen's canvass, and he has opened it in a commendable way.

Free Speech in Alabama.

The following we clip from the Southern Star, of Ozark, in southeastern Alabama. The whites of Choctaw county, to get rid of Jack Turner, the Republican leader there, deliberately conspired for weeks, and voted away his life. Their compatriots at Autauga seem to have resorted to a less violent method to suppress a Republican canvasser, just as they might have done before 1860. Counseling negoes to vote is denominated "exciting them to sedition," in the Bourbon vocabulary:

The following in reference to the negro now in the Autauga jail for making insurrectionary speeches, is from the Prattville Signal. It is seen that he adheres to his statement that he is the emissary of certain Republican leaders:

On entering the jail we found a low, heavy set, black negro, about thirty years of age, with high forehead and very small hands and feet. He informed us that his name was Monroe White and his home was in Buffalo, New York. That he was sent from Washington by Republican politicians and ordered to report at Montgomery, Ala., to certain politicians who had work for him to do, and that he was ordered through this county and to make such speeches as he had done. In answer to a question, he unhesitatingly said that the following named men were his backers: George Turner, James T. Rapier, Jerry Haralson, Bowie Miller, Gus. Johnston, John Foster.

The above named persons, he said, paid him a salary to travel through the country and speak, and that these men told him his speeches would effect the Congressional elections this fall. That he wrote on the day previous to them that he was about to land in jail and that they must now come to his help. That he wanted to employ the lawyer in town who had the most influence with juries, as he was the lawyer [illegible].

[illegible] we have evidence that [illegible] chairman of the [illegible] Committee, and [illegible] who [illegible] and possibly create bloodshed in order that they may cause the old bloody-shirt to be again waved and thus keep up a perpetual strife between the sections? They can hire a poor, deluded negro to do what they dare not do themselves. They would sacrifice a few of them, no doubt, in order to carry a Northern District or two. It now seems evident that the negro who appeared in Shelby, and the one in Claiborne and other places, were but carrying out a plot concocted by George Turner and his co-workers of the Republican party.

Free Speech in South Carolina.

The Southern Christian Advocate, (M. E. Church, South,) of Charleston, S. C., in its "Views and Reviews," published this:

Says the News and Courier staff correspondent, writing up our Gubernatorial canvass in Winnsboro: "Major T. W. Woodward, county chairman, said that considering Fairfield was claimed to be the headquarters of the Greenbackers, she had done pretty well to-day. He announced amid tremendous applause that as McLane and the Greenback State ticket had arranged to speak here on the 25th instant, the day of the Democratic primary election, when they expected that the Red-shirts would be out of the way at the polls, the date of the primaries had been changed to one week later. This would leave the Democracy unoccupied on the day of the Greenback meeting. This announcement was received with a chorus of a thousand throats, exclaiming: 'We'll be there.'

And sure enough they were. It so turned out that McLane and Durham, the Greenback standard-bearers, couldn't be induced to risk themselves before the disorderly and furious crowd. They were scared away. Score this as about the best day for the Greenbackers and the worst for our side. It seems to be in order to insert into the Democratic Litany: From our friends, GOOD LORD DELIVER US!

The Christian Neighbor, of Columbia, S. C., another Church South paper, proclaims the truth with no uncertain sound:

Within certain necessary restrictions, all citizens of the State have the right of free speech, one as much as another, be his religious and political opinions what they may—one party as much as another. Any denial of, or opposition to, a lawful exercise of this right, coming from what source it may, deserves unequivocal censure and well-pointed condemnation. The recent insulting and violent denunciations at Winnsboro against J. H. McLane, candidate for Governor—collaring and kicking him—with threats and other demonstrations of intimidating tendency, was a discount on the civilization which is claimed by the people of South Carolina. If the conduct of the immediate actors in that shameful affair—drunk though they may or may not have been—is not endorsed by the better men and the leaders of the opponents of McLane and his party, ought they not to express their disapproval—their condemnation—of such proceedings in a way as unambiguous as was that of those fomenters of trouble and party strife?

We speak as we do without naming or caring for either or any party. Such conduct is a disgrace, and, if not generally and emphatically disowned and condemned, will be of much damage not only to the party thus more or less implicated, but to the political, civil, social and religious interests of the commonwealth. This is not, or ought not to be, a party question unless it be a party—an alliance of all parties—in support of freedom, law and order against terrorism, lawlessness and confusion. Let McLane or any other man give his views on the various interests of the State, and let those who think differently give their views; then let the people judge and vote as they think best.

The following incident in the career of one of the most highly esteemed clergymen of the M. E. Church South we commend to the consideration of all of our readers:

When Trinity Church, of Atlanta, Ga., was being built the congregation found it difficult to get money enough to meet their demands. Urgent appeals were made to all classes, and donations of all kinds were made, among them one subscription of $20 by a manly looking little boy. "How are you going to pay this, sonny," said one of the older men, too prudent to accept of doubtful subscriptions. "I will work it out, sir," said the boy, and he did, carrying brick and mortar on the old Trinity Church building which used to stand on the City Hall square. That boy has since risen to eminence, his eloquence as a preacher has filled the land, in the editorial field he has wielded a golden pen, he has but recently declined a seat in the College of Bishops in order that he might devote his talents to the youth of the land. That boy was none other than Atticus G. Haygood, D.D., president of Emory College. Right early did he begin to work for the church. He did his work well then, and has done good work ever since.

The Methodist has been purchased by Messrs Phillips & Hunt, agents of the Book Concern, and has ceased to exist. It was founded in 1860, under editorial management of Dr. George R. Crooks. For several years past it has been edited by Dr. David H. Wheeler, who was assisted recently by Dr. Daniel Curry. The Christian Advocate, Dr. Buckley editor, opens its columns for the free discussion of all [illegible] of interest to Methodists [illegible] that thousands of [illegible] Methodist will be [illegible]

The yellow fever at Brownsville seems to have exhausted itself for lack of material more than by quarantine. The town is said to contain during the healthy season of the year 5600 inhabitants. More than one-half of the population left upon the breaking out of the fever, leaving not over 2500 behind of whom 1901 have had the fever. But few, subject to the fever have escaped it. Fortunately however, the fever has been of a mild type, the death rate being only one in twenty. In Pensacola the fever continues nearly as bad as ever, over 1050 cases have been reported and over 100 have died. The death rate thus far being about one to to ten. Thus far the sanitary and quarantine regulations have kept the fever from New Orleans.

Tigerville, in the parish of Terrebonne, with a colored school population of between 150 and 200, has not had a colored public school in the ward in which it is situated, since 1876. This is no exceptional case however. We are reliably informed that in many of the most populous wards in the parishes of St. Landry, Avoyelles, Rapides, and other parishes of this State, public schools for colored children are seldom heard of; and where they do have them, the sessions hardly ever extend over three or four months in the year. The greater portion of the colored schools were shut and sealed, and have not been re-opened since the downfall of Republican government in Louisiana, after the election of 1876.

The Superintendent of Public Education of Louisiana, Mr. Fay, has enjoined the Auditor and Treasurer from issuing or paying any warrants for the State Universities in this city and Baton Rouge, including the one for people of color. The Legislature disregarded the Constitution by appropriating out of the free school instead of the general fund; and the Superintendent is right in endeavoring to save to the common schools the whole of the mere pittance which the Constitution intended to be exclusively devoted to their support. The Shreveport Standard and the Daily States uphold the action of Superintendent Fay, but Gov. McEnery questions his authority to institute this injunction suit, and intimated that it would have no standing in court. The free school fund steadily depreciates under the administration of the party in power, on one pretext or another, by error or intent, and public opinion is not strong enough to be potently heard in protest.

Dr. Buckley, according to the Advance, in the course of his lecture at Chautauqua, on "Cranks," brought out some curious facts. Read: "Much of the work on Cruden's Concordance was wrought out when its compiler was not in a safe condition to be upon the streets, and was as "complete a lunatic as ever lived;" that Adler's German Dictionary was compiled in the Bloomingdale lunatic asylum when its author was confined there; and also that many of the leading editorials of the secular dailies of New York city are actually written by patients in the Bloomingdale asylum."

To the above an exchange makes the following remarks: "No one who is in the habit of reading the many hurriedly-written and ridiculously-false editorial animadversions on current religious subjects, which make their appearance in the secular prints, will be disposed to call in question the last declaration."

D. L. Lewis Allen: "Your paper is a light to this region and will start many to New Orleans and other colleges As a local preacher I am trying to get the young people to take it. We have a good Sunday School and our children are getting so they can read your paper. We have five churches, two Methodist, in town."

Church Extension Meeting.

The General Committee of Church Extension will meet in the Church Extension Rooms, No. 1026 Arch street, Philadelphia, Thursday, November 2, at 3 o'clock, P. M. Anniversary meeting will be held in Tabernacle and Ebenezer Churches, Philadelphia, on Friday evening, November 3, addresses by the Bishop's and other members of the General Committee. On Sabbath following, the Bishops and members of the General Committee will assist the pastors of Philadelphia, and collections will be taken for this cause.

A. J. KYNETT.

The committee appointed to locate the "Southern Chatauqua" have decided on Monteagle Springs, on the line of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company's road, which intersects the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad at Cowan, 87 miles from Nashville and 64 miles from Chattanooga.

PERSONAL.

—At the recent session of Illinois Conference, Rev. H. O. Hoffman was tried for immorality, and expelled.

—Dr. McAnally, editor of the St. Louis Advocate (Church South,) has been furloughed for a brief rest by the committee in charge.

—The late Caleb C. Dickinson, of Hatfield, Mass., left about $100,000 for the founding a Charity Hospital at Northampton, Mass.

—Rev. A. E. P. Albert, desires his correspondents, in the future, to address him at No. 1956 St. Charles street, corner of Burdette, in this city.

—Rev. J. Matlock, of the North Ohio Conference, and his family, were the recipients of a most cordial greeting on their arrival at their new charge, West Salem. It was a time of feasting, music, and social greeting.—Western.

—We regret to learn that Rev. L. A. Rudisill, assistant editor of the Rocky Mountain Christian Advocate, Salt Lake City, Utah, being threatened with Bright's disease, will, by the advice of physicians, retire for a time from the ministry.

—Captain John Ericsson, whose name is familiar to the scientific world, completed his seventy-ninth year, July 31, and enjoys excellent health. He attributes this to temperate and frugal living, and regular habits of employment.

—Rev. Dr. Edward W. Blyden, president of Liberia College, is now in this country to collect funds and secure professors for the college, and to present the claims of Africa upon the direct descendants of Africans in the United States. He intends to make a tour among the colored people of the South, and will not return to Liberia for several months.

—Bishop Foss has spent the past month at Dr. Strong's at Saratoga. He says: "Under the skilful treatment of Dr. S., my improvement has been steady and marked, though from the nature of the case it could not be rapid." He has not preached since his accident, over seven months ago, although several reports to the contrary have been printed.

—Rev. Whitten S. Langford, was received at the recent session of the Indiana Conference on his credentials from the African Methodist Episcopal Church. He was transferred by Bishop Simpson to the Lexington Conference, and appointed to the city of Evansville, to organize a Church under the superintendence of Rev. E. W. S. Hammond. Subsequently, on the transfer of Rev. H. Cardozo to South Carolina, Mr. Langford was appointed to the charge of Wiley Church, Springfield.—Western.

—Rev. Dr. John S. Mitchell, of New York East Conference, died at Newburg on the 16th ult., aged eighty-two years. He entered the ministry in the Oneida Conference in 1823. He spent several years in the South, superintending mission work in North Carolina and Virginia, and as presiding elder in the North Carolina Conference. He retired from active work and took the relation of a superannuated preacher in 1875, after a long, laborious, and eminently successful career in the itinerant ministry.

—Captain E. B. Ames, only son of the late Bishop Ames, died at Mulley Hill Insane Asylum, near Baltimore, on the 24th ult., of consumption. He entered the army at the beginning of the rebellion, at which time he was a young man of unusual promise. Promoted from the volunteer to the regular service, he remained in the army until failing health, resulting from hard service, compelled his resignation. His insanity was caused by tubercles at the base of the brain. His mother survives, and an only sister, Mrs. Iliss, of Baltimore.

—The Methodist Advocate notices the resignation and transfer of Rev. J. B. Ford, our Sunday School agent for the South, with profound regret. Bro. Ford was stationed at Knoxville, by Bishop Clark, immediately after the war. He organized First Church and labored two years with great success. He was transferred to Illinois, but after a few years returned to Knoxville, and an elegant church building began in his first term was fully paid for, He served four years as presiding elder of Chattanooga district, and was then appointed Sunday School agent for the South. For six years, with zeal and eloquence he advocated the value and importance of Sunday School work, and he will be greatly missed from the field. He is now pastor of Trinity Church, Quincy, Illinois.

Henry M. Stanley, the African explorer, seems to have been outstripped in his African diplomacy, a Frenchman having been ahead of him in securing a treaty, by which France expects to gain control of the Congo country.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

Rev. Dr. Dean, President of New-Orleans University, has contributed $5 to Ames' Mission. The work of liquidating the debt of the mission is progressing steadily.

Mr. A. W. Moffat, lumber dealer on Crossman street, near levee, New Orleans, has donated to Ames' Sabbath school, lumber enough to build a nice feather edge fence 7 feet high back of the lecture room, for which all interested parties feel grateful.

At Wesley Chapel, New Orleans, Rev. A. Ross, assisted by Rev. G. Bell, on the 1st inst, administered the Lord's Supper to 224 persons.

Rev. A. J. Ford, writes: "We have raised all of our money $50, for the Gilbert Haven School of Theology." Certainly our people at Houma must take the banner, for while many other pastors are sending us word that they are going to raise the money, Bro. Ford is the first to inform us that it has been done. One bird in the hand is always worth two in the bush. At this time there are ten calls for men that do, where there is one for those who are going to do. In fact the men who are always going to do are of little value to the church." Bro. Ford also informs us that Rev. and Hon. Jordan Stewart, State Senator from Terrebonne Parish, a Baptist clergyman, has joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, being thoroughly satisfied that he can accomplish more for God in the Methodist church than in the Baptist.

D. Shelby, Alllen: "The funeral services for the late Rev. John Brooks, of Red Spring circuit, will be held at Allen, in Hayson Chapel, Oct, 29th. They will be conducted by Elder S. Duncan and H. T. Abbott. We desire as many pastors to come as possible."

MISSISSIPPI.

C. Foster, Fort's Bridge: "St. Luke's Church, Waynesboro, has about 65 members, and only one takes the church paper. The mail goes over the country at the rate of 30 miles a day, but they appear to be asleep."

C. L. Crump, Goodman: "My first protracted meeting at Spring Hill, added 33 to the church; of whom 10 were converts. One died at the mourner's bench, and we carried her to the grave next day. At Conparle City 40 were added to the church. At Georgeville, a new church has been put up and dedicated. We also have some lumber on the ground at Goodman, to put up a parsonage; this is my last year here, and I want to put up a house for some brother. I have also half of the money I promised at conference. Times have been hard. Our elder G. W. Barney, is beloved. We promised him $30, paid $19; promised pastor $275, paid $125. Business is looking up some now. People have given $2 per bushel for corn, now merchants will give them 50 cents per bushel. It is almost impossible to live at such figures."

B. H. Ferguson, Columbus: "I have been secretary of the Sabbath school for three years. It was on the decrease until the great revival of last April, at which nearly all of the larger pupils were converted. It is now in a pleasing condition, and we are always proud when the Sabbath day comes. Our pastor, Rev. L. L. Shumpert, is greatly enthused at its rapid growth. Church is in a lively condition also, and we contemplate another revival."

A. D. Payne, College Hill circuit: "We are glad to say that the spirit of the Lord was with us during our protracted meeting which has just closed; 48 were converted, 3 reclaimed and 47 were added to the church. Spiritually, the condition of the church seems to be good, but financially it is poor; but may be on an average with other circuits of like surroundings. Notwithstanding the many embarrassments, we are on the field and expect to stay. Pray for us brethren."

TEXAS.

W. McKenzie, Moscow: "We have some good people here, but no church. The lumber has been on the ground twelve months but they are too poor to build. We have worshipped in a log hut for two years. Some of the young people say they can wait no longer, and have paid the following sums, with which the frame will be put up right away: Glass Weggans $1 50; W. McKenzie $1 50; Luke Malail $1 50; Rose Ashley 75 cents; Frances Baker 75 cents; Fanny Brooks 75 cents; Dorcas Gain 75 cents; Mattie Dennis $1 50; Ellen Howard 75 cents; Swan Mayette 75 cents; Amy Duncan 75 cents; Lucy Duncan 50 cents; Sally Knight 75 cents; Turner Madison $1 50. I want to have the church up by November 30th."

D. W. Tucker, LaGrange: "My camp meeting has closed. There was a great concourse of people, two converts and many hearts troubled. Elder Moseby and Bros. J. T. Gibbons, Andrew Wilson and Isaac Kneese helped faithfully. Brethren, pray that I may be successful on my mission this year."

G. W. Manning, Butler: "Our church at Pine Top is doing finely, only times are very hard. About 35 souls have been added to the church this year, six came from the Baptists. Our beloved pastor, P. G. Brown, has labored faithfully this year."

Mason Reddick, Hockley, Texas, says: "I believe my work is prospering. I have received twenty-five members into full connection, fifteen on probation, baptized twelve adults and fifteen children. My people have paid me this year $180. Our presiding elders $22. We have built a new church at Cypress 16x22, and have on subscription $60 towards building a new church at Piney Grove. For benevolent causes we have collected $7 50. For the college at Houston, $35."

TENNESSEE.

James Williams, Mason: "We were truly glad to get the $5 from Rev. J. W. Pickett, of the Memphis charge; and the $2 from Rev. G. N. Johnson, of Fayette circuit, for which they have our thanks. Will others be kind enough to give us something to help pay that $200 debt, which we must settle by Nov. 15! All money should be sent to J. W. Williams, trustee, in care of Rev. L. M. Moores, box 38, Mason, Tenn."

A Letter From Holly Springs.

MR EDITOR: Our church, at this time, is in a very prosperous condition. We have received into the church during the year, forty members, of which number about twenty-five were converted during year.

School opened at Rust University a few days ago, and students both old and new are coming on each train to fill her walls.

Times are beginning to look livelier than a month ago. We are pleased to notice that the senior classis present with one exception. The brick work on the new building is completed, slating going on rapidly and every thing in a process of completion; by January the students can go into a building which defies competition in the State. An educational meeting was held at this place on the 24th ult., and the people manifested their interest in our university by coming out, and the house was filled.

Many who were deeply interested in the work and not able to give even the "widow's mite" came, anxious to see and learn what others would do.

Speeches suiting the occasion were delivered by Mr. W. H. Strickland, A. B., graduate of Rust University in the class of "81."

Mr. Strickland is loyal to his old school, his speech was short and very pointed and in direct keeping with the occasion, forcible and had the intended effect. Would that our whole church could have listened to this speech; it was well delivered and pleasant to the ear. He was followed by Prof. W. W. Hooper, and it is useless to say anything in the praise of him, for the whole conference and State could not feel other than that he did justice to the occasion. Professor spoke very forcibly of the evils which must occur through the neglect of education. Prof. Hooper is very busy in the interest of Rust University, in fact too much cannot be said in praise of one so well fitted for this work in which he is engaged.

Elder Bradford followed by saying that enough had already been said and he would only come behind to "push up the chunks," and he pushed them up nicely too.

We collected during the day $79 25, making in all since conference $101 25, the amount which I promised to raise, but I expect to double this before conference convenes. I hope the brethren will follow suit if they have not preceded.

Elder Bradford preached to an attentive audience Sunday night and administered the Lord's supper to about 160. The new railroad, in process of completion here, makes the town look forward to a brighter and more prosperous future. A new jail is also to be built here with a cost of about $1200, but it is hoped it will only stand as a monument of past evils. We learn that some of our young gentlemen (colored) of this city are to open a stock of family groceries in a few days, for the interest not only of themselves but our people. We are glad to learn this and hope it is not a mistake.

Should they open we hope that our citizens, friends and church will give them hearty patronage and encouragement, for it is only by entering the various businesses that we as a people can ever hope to measure arms with the other races.

We have had about $75 work on our parsonage, and before completion will cost about $100. Upon the whole we have had a prosperous year.

Fraternally yours,
S. A. COWAN.

Letter from Mandeville.

DEAR EDITOR:—I have just returned home after making my round. At Mandeville, in September, I witnessed an outpouring of the spirit, and preached to a crowded house. Thirteen came to the altar for prayers, among them gray-headed fathers and mothers who asked their children for prayers. On Monday night, three were received in full membership, and eight on probation. I was sorry to note that a great deal of sickness prevailed in Mandeville, something unusual. Several persons died during our stay there.

At Pearl River, we are glad to say that light is appearing. On September 24 we gave a basket meeting and realized $26 60. We had a glorious time. We invited the pastor and members of Pearlington, Miss., and they prepared to come, but could not get a captain to bring over the boat, and they were sadly disappointed. We received from the Baptist Church a local preacher. About ten miles from here we expect in five or six weeks to have a new church built. We have bought two acres of ground and have on hand about 2,000 feet of lumber, with money to get the balance. We have received a good many members, ready to go into the church as soon as finished. We expect to build about twenty-five yards from the line of the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad. A protracted meeting resulted in one convert and six on probation.

On the third Sunday in October we expect to have a baptizing at Mandeville, and respectfully invite brethren and friends to be present.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

FOURTH QUARTER. LESSON III. Oct 15. THE LORD'S SUPPER. (Mark xiv, 22-31.)

Last lesson told us that Jesus ate the passover with his disciples. When it was over, Jesus took bread and wine, and prayed, then gave [illegible] to all his disciples. He told [illegible] he would never eat with them [illegible], and told them to do this [illegible] he was gone in memory of [illegible] died for them.

[illegible] broke in pieces, and [illegible] of his body, [illegible] blood he shed [illegible] was the first Lord's [illegible] every one [illegible] belongs to his [illegible] do this to show [illegible]

[illegible] people take the [illegible] in church? Jesus [illegible] The text says: [illegible] as ye eat this bread [illegible] ye do show the Lord's [illegible] he come." Now when [illegible] it is in memory of [illegible] It reminds them of how he died for them.

[illegible] you want to take this Lord's [illegible] too? When you are sorry [illegible], and ask Jesus to give you a new heart, then you belong to him, and you are entitled to join his Church, and take this holy supper. But [illegible] is one thing you can do before you can do something in memory of him every day. You can love Jesus, and loving him will [illegible] you live right—keep your [illegible] mouth, hands and feet from [illegible] and this will show [illegible] and follow [illegible]

[illegible] Worth."

This is one of the books it will be difficult to lay down when once it is taken up for reading without going entirely through with it. It is full of good, moral and spiritual teaching. Its instruction is safe for the young; but it is a mistake to suppose that it is only suitable for the young. The mature in thought and years will find it full of interest to them and helpful to their religious growth and comfort.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Mr. Frank H. Cushing's articles on the Zuni tribe of Indians, with whose people he has lived for several years past, will appear in The Century Magazine, beginning probably with the December number. The illustrations will be from his own sketches, or from drawings made under his supervision. Mr. Cushing has been contributing to the Atlantic two papers on "The Nation of the Willows," the Ha-va-su-pai, a people living near the Zunis.

J. T. Trowbridge is to contribute the leading serial story to St. Nicholas during the coming year. It will be called "The Tinkham Brothers' Tide-Mill," and, like all of his stories, while neither unnatural nor overdrawn, will be vivid in style and exciting in incident. Many fathers, who are now subscribing to St. Nicholas for their children, will recall their own delight in reading his "Neighbor Jackwood" and "Cudjo's Cave."

People who, for any reason, are not able to go to Venice, are warned not to read the paper on that fascinating city, by Mr. Henry James, Jr., in the November Century. At the start, Mr. James professes himself a lover of Venice, and, from the Century announcements, we judge that the paper justifies the profession. It is said to be written in the author's most delightful and popular vein. Toward the last it takes on a poetic glow, in keeping with the wonderful Venetian light he describes.

Attorney-General Brewster, in his Albany address, intimated that the failure of the prosecution in the Star Route cases would lead many to doubt the present efficacy of the jury system itself. Mr. Brewster would have come nearer the fact had he not said that the fiasco would deepen that doubt in the minds of many. For many years there has been a growing feeling, among those most familiar with the workings of the jury system, that something better is needed. This aspect of the discussion—for there are two sides to the question—is earnestly and strikingly put forth in a paper which is to appear in the November Century, by Mr. Albert Stickney, a New York lawyer of reputation.

The Crime of Suicide, is the title of a timely discourse, by M. Rhodes, D. D., pastor of St. Marks' Lutheran Church, St. Louis, Mo. Price 10 cents. We shall probably have something to say on this general subject before long.

The October Wide Awake opens with a dainty drawing by Miss Mc Dermott, for a fanciful story by Susan Hale, entitled "The Hope Works." Many excellent short stories make this number a very entertaining one. There is a romantic chapter of "The Trojan War," the serial by A Boy, and a very exciting one of "Lost Among Savages," the Bornean serial, by David Ker. Arthur Gilman's Dictionary paper is useful and also entertaining; and Edward Everett Hale sends from Spain a very clear explanation of the Egyptian question. Prof. Sargent of Harvard College begins a series of Health and Strength papers for the boys; Samuel Wells, a series "Through a Microscope." Only $2.50 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine, for November number abounds with interesting and edifying articles, stories, essays, poems, etc. The editor, Rev. De Witt Talmage, has an admirable article, "Ought Christians to have any Fun?" Rev. Dr. [illegible] contributes one on the late Senator Hill, of Georgia; and there is a timely one, finely illustrated, on "The City of Alexander the Great." Among the profusely illustrated are, "Peterborough Cathedral, "Our November Walk," "The Knights of St. John and Jerusalem," [illegible] The charming serial, "Weighed and Wanting," is continued, and [illegible] short stories, sketches, [illegible] poems, etc., by popular writers. In the "Home Pulpit" is one [illegible] the editor's, "A Cheat Exposed." [illegible] Sunday-school Notes," [illegible] for tee Carions," [illegible] and Rhythms for the Little [illegible] The price is 25 cents a [illegible], or $3 a year, postpaid. A [illegible] copy will be sent by in[illegible] 25 cents to Frank Leslie, [illegible], 53, 55 and 57 Park Row.

Hon. J. Hendrick McLane, Greenback candidate for Governor of South Carolina, says the Charlotte Observer, was to speak at Winnsboro, and when the train upon which it was expected he would arrive drew up at the depot it was met by 400 men, all dressed in red shirts and mounted on horses. Each man had a pocket full of eggs and all were bent on turning McLane into an omelet on short order. It happened, though, that the object of their attentions was not aboard the train. He came on the train following, and on hearing how the crowd had prepared to receive him, he came on to Charlotte. A passenger who was on the train which was met by the red shirts says that some of the men rode their horses square up to the car steps, and each one held an egg in his uplifted hand, ready to hurl at McLane the moment he should appear. Red shirt brigades are being organized all over South Carolina, and the campaign is getting hot.

There is a real estate boom in the city of Mexico, where it is said there are 3,000 houses in course of construction. The facts simply are, that old Mexico has come in contact by her railway connections with a new and live nation. With her great resources there is no reason that she should not make wonderful strides in prosperity during the coming decade. It is the part of wisdom of the people of the United States to take advantage of the golden opportunity to benefit themselves while they are reviving the grandeur of the old civilization and adapting it to the new order. There never in the history of nations was any better opportunity for larger substantial mutual benefits than are now opening between the United States and new and old Mexico.—Inter Ocean.

the Kidney-Wort advertisement in another column, and it will explain to you the rational method of getting well. Kidney-Wort will save you more doctor's bills than any other medicine known. Acting with specific energy on the kidneys and liver, it cures the worst diseases caused by their derangement. Use it at once. In dry and liquid form. Either is equally efficient, the liquid is the easiest, but the dry is the most economical.—Interior.

STRONG FACTS!

A great many people are asking what particular troubles BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is good for.

It will cure Heart Disease, Paralysis, Dropsy, Kidney Disease, Consumption, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all similar diseases.

Its wonderful curative power is simply because it purifies and enriches the blood, thus beginning at the foundation, and by building up the system, drives out all disease.

Kidney Disease Cured.
Christiansburg, Va., 1881.
Suffering from kidney disease, from which I could get no relief, I tried Brown's Iron Bitters, which cured me completely. A child of mine, recovering from scarlet fever, had no appetite and did not seem to be able to eat at all. I gave him Iron Bitters with the happiest results.

Heart Disease.
Vine St., Harrisburg, Pa. Dec. 2, 1881.
After trying different physicians and many remedies for palpitation of the heart without receiving any benefit, I was advised to try Brown's Iron Bitters. I have used two bottles and never found anything that gave me so much relief.
MRS. JENNIE HESS.

For the peculiar troubles to which ladies are subject, BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is invaluable. Try it.

Mamma and Hattie being troubled by the goat, Fred concluded that he didn't want him, and sold him for a dollar, but he kept the wagon as he could harness the Newfoundland dog.

If the goat cost fifty cents, each twin paying half, and if Fred bought Ted's half for fifty cents and then sold the whole for a dollar, how much did Fred make, and did he gain more than Ted? Who knows?—Boston Watchman.

Cornelia Bell, Centreville: "The Sunday School is in splendid condition. Brothers Frank Hudson, W. Osborn, and Sister Mary Nelson seem to take much pleasure in it. Kinchen Bell preached an acceptable sermon on Sunday night. Brother Richardson is with us every Sabbath."

J. Richardson, Centreville: "On September 21st, I left here on a visit with Brother Henry Richardson, whose residence is on the lower part of Bayou Sale. We had a pleasant buggy ride down the bayou. The cane crops are splendid. On Saturday following, Emma Miller died, leaving a husband and two children, and I was invited to attend her funeral. Brother Osborn and I preached at the Baptist Church."

W. E. Williams, Moreauville: "I am pleased to hear of the movement in favor of prohibition in this State. Thousands are going down to drunkard's graves annually through the influence of intoxicating liquors. By prohibition the prospect for education will be brighter, and we shall have a better people morally. Since Rev. A. Hilton has been at work on this circuit, the prospect for a good church here is very bright."

Tennessee Jackson, Natchitoches: "I have organized an officers and preachers meeting, which assembles once a month. We have a missionary sermon from a local preacher. The first was by A. Wallace, after which we transacted business. The next will be preached by Louis Morton, of Asbury Church. The brethren say I shall not go to Conference this year with less than $50, but I want $100. The committee is composed of King Mickleberry, Louis Morton, Ambrose Wallace, J. P. Calvin, J. Shepard and George Duncan. The Sunday School is getting on finely, and on children's day we raised $7 40. We have just received an $80 organ."

In this issue appears a new advertisement of the DR. HARTER MEDICNE COMPANY, manufacturers of the justly celebrated IRON TONIC, endorsed and recommended by the medical profession. As a general tonic, and especially for Dyspepsia and General Debility, it has no equal, having been thoroughly tested and recommended as having virtues which no other tonic possesses. It is certainly a valuable remedy, judging from the satisfactory testimonials from prominent persons it has recieved.—Cincinnati (Ohio), Chris. Standard. I-t,

The Rev. Granville Moody, of the Cincinnati Conference, who bore the familiar sobriquet of "The Fighting Parson" during our civil war, was granted a superannuated relation, at his own request, at the recent session of that conference, on account of his advanced years.

When others are suffering, drop a word of kindness and sympathy. If they are suffering from a Cold, give them Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup; a few doses of this valuable remedy will afford instant relief, and a twenty-five cent bottle will cure the worst cough.

The Committee on Temperance of the Southern Illinois Methodist Episcopal Conference, in session at Mount Vernon, presented a resolution pledging the members to support no candidate for the Legislature who would not pledge himself publicly in favor of prohibition.

An Old Doctor's Advice.

It was this: "Trust in God and keep your bowels open." For this purpose many an old doctor has advised the habitually costive to take Kidney-Wort—for no other remedy so effectually overcomes this condition, and that without the distress and griping which other medicines cause. It is a radical cure for piles. Don't fail to use it.—Translated from the New Yorker Zeitung.

Austin Sheldon, the hermit of Pike county, Pa., desires to marry. He has proposed to several girls in his neighborhood, but they have declined, possibly because he declares that he will not quit the cave in which he has lived for forty years. This abode is twelve by fourteen feet, with a gravel floor. The furniture consists of four blocks of wood for chairs, a dry-goods box used as a table, a fire-place over which he does his cooking, and an old rickety chair in which he sleeps. He has not slept in a bed for years.

MR. EDITOR: I want to find out where my sister is. Her name was Pagia Clark, and she went by the name of Pagia Wilson, also Witley. She has three brothers, Charles, Isaac and Jacob Clark. The last time I heard from her she lived at Duncan Station, Clinton county, Arkansas. Charles Clark lives in Marion county, Texas. Address Rev. Geo. W. Norris, Marshall Texas.

MR. EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my husband's kinfolks. He left them in Farville, Prince Edward county, Va., sometime before the war. His mother was named Amy, and belonged to a man named Chetle. She was the mother of five sons and five daughters. His sisters, Martha, Sarah, Lucy, Priscilla and Caroline; his brothers were named Henry, Nelson, Peter, Monroe and the baby boy whose name he does not know, was drowned in the spring. His step-father was named Anthony Allman. Address Mrs. Martha Harbert, Alleyton, Colorado county, Texas.

DEAR EDITOR: I desire to hear of my father, Heny Phillips, who blonged to Dave Phillips. I left him in Sumter county, Georgia. He had a wife and three children at that time. Mother was Mazy, and the children named Isiam, Turner, Amanda and Matilda. My mother used to belong to Sydney Turner. My name at this time is Isiam Thomas. I desire also to hear from my uncles, I do not remember their names, but I think one of them was named Russell, and he belonged to Joe White.

I. W. THOMAS.

Muscogee, Indian Territory.

MR. EDITOR: I desire to obtain some emformation of my parents who lived in Coffeeville, Miss. My mother's name was Jennie Reddick, father's name Mason Sanborne, belonged to John Sanborne. My name is Mason Reddick because I belonged to Henry Reddick. Mother was sold to a Mr. Dodson. I was sold to John Sanborn.e My mother after being sold, married Jim Williams. My father when last heard of was at Oxville, Tennessee.

MASON REDDICK.

Hockley, Texas.

MR. EDITOR: Looking on your paper as the only hope that I have of my whereabouts ever being found out, I wish to say that I was brought from Lexington, Missouri, to Jackson, Miss., by a Dr. Patton, in the year 1861, and I left in Missouri, my mother, father, grandmother and grand-father. Mother was Eliza and father Samuel, both called by the name of Page; grandfather, Abraham Bell. I was Annie Patton, but I am now known by the name of Annie Blackly. My husband is Edmond Blackly. Address me at Enterprise, Clark county, Miss., in care of Rev. Henry Cawthorne.

ANNIE BLACKLY.

DEAR EDITOR: I desire to find my people whom I have not heard from since I left them. My grandmother, in Charleston, S. C., was Rosetta Thompson; mother, Maritana Thompson, is dead. She had but two children, the first is dead, I am the babe. My name, by marriage, is now Rosa Holloway. I desire to inquire around Clinton, Louisiana, for Maria, Jennie, Susann, Hester, Rachel, Jack, Bailey and Leonard. One man came from South Carolina with my husband, his name is Larkin Holloway, and when Clinton was taken in 1863, he went off with the soldiers. I was a refugee from Louisiana to Mississippi in 1863, and have been living in Scott county since. I was born in Charleston, S. C., Jan. 19, 1841. If any of my friends or relatives can be found, I would like to hear from, or about them. Address at Forest Station, Miss.

ROSA HOLLOWAY.

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to see if my relatives can be found. I have a father, mother, and one full sister. Father was August Brown, sister, Louisa Brown, three half-sisters were Mary, Eliza, and Harriet Brown, two brothers were Joseph and George Brown. I was born in Maryland, and when eleven years old was brought to Tennessee. I remained there four years, and was taken to Missouri, and after being there two years came to Texas. I was brought to Tennessee by Jose Gamden, a speculator. Jesse Breese was my last owner. This occurred 1858 to 1866. I am about 39 years old. Address me at Boxton, Lamar county, Texas.

37-8t SARAH ANN LEWIS.

DEAR EDITOR: I desire to inquire for my sister Martha, who was sold from us when about seven years old to a man who lived near Bolivar, Tenn., named Tom Boyle. At that time we all belonged to John Green, except father, who belonged to Nat Woods. Father was Granville, mother Dollie, brothers William, Granville, and Richmond the baby, sister Laura. We all went by the name of Norman. Father belonged to Tom Norman, who lived at Whiteville, Hardeman Co., Tenn. Grandfather was Squire Norman, grandmother, Jennie Norman. Mother and all the children except Sister Martha are here in Texas. I desire to find her. Pastors, please read this to your congregations. Address, at Austin, Texas, her brother,

38-3m REV. GRANVILLE NORMAN.

DR. JOHN BULL'S

Smith's Tonic Syrup

FEVER and AGUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER.

AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

A Natural Beverage.

A tree called the traveller's tree grows in Madagascar, and is so called from its always containing, in the most arid season, a large quantity of pure, fresh water, supplying to the traveller the place of wells in the desert. Being somewhat skeptical as to the truth of what he had heard, Mr. Ellis determined to see for himself. Coming to a clump of the trees, one of his bearers struck one of them with his spear, four or five inches deep, into the thick firm end of the stalk of the leaf, and on drawing it back a stream of pure, clear water gushed out, about a quart of which was caught, and all drank of it on the spot. It was cool, clear, and perfectly sweet. Such a tree, so valuable to the thirsty traveller, forms no bad emblem of the ordinances of grace prepared for the Lord's people in the wilderness of this world.—Clergyman's Magazine.

Will President Arthur show himself a second Jackson? Nullification more inexcusable than that which fifty years ago disgraced South Carolina, has broken out in Utah. Congress has absolute authority over that Territory as it has over the District of Columbia, and more absolute than the Legislature of any State has over its political affairs, Early in August Congress empowered Governor Murray to appoint certain officials to suceed those then incumbent by election, The Governor has made the appointments, and Mormons in office have refused to give up their places and their public property to his appointees. President Arthur's opportunity to proclaim the supremacy of law is only second in importance to that which Jackson availed himself of.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

 "Do boldly what you do at all. Boldly do we affirm that Kidney-Wort is the great remedy for liver, bowels and kidney diseases, rheumatism and piles vanish before it. The tonic effect of Kidney-Wort is produced by its cleansing and purifying action on the blood. Where there is a gravelly deposit in the urine, or milky, ropy urine from disordered kidneys, it always cures.

Gov. St. John, of Kansas, writes to an Eastern inquirer, under date of Sept, 14, that there is not a word of truth in the lately circulated report about suffering among the colored refugees in Kansas. He says: "While there are many among the colored immigrants, as well as the whites, that are poor, yet as a rule they are getting along well, and Kansas is abundantly able at present to take care of the few worthy destitute. Anybody enjoying good health, and who is honest, sober and industrious, can make a good living in this State."

A combination of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark and Phosphorus in a palatable form. The only preparation of iron that will not blacken the teeth, so characteristic of other iron preparations.

GENTLEMEN: I have used DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Diseases, Dyspepsia, and an impoverished condition of the blood, this peerless remedy, has in my hands, made some wonderful cures. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians, have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC is a necessity in my practice. DR. ROBERT SAMUELS.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair,

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

HYMN.

By the Rev. J. H. Martin, D.D., Pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, Ga.

How sweetly sounds the Sabbath bell!
Its peals like rolling billows swell;
It calls me to the house of prayer,
To pay my vows and homage there.

With joy the summons I'll obey,
And to God's temple haste away;
I'll to the mercy seat draw near,
Before His throne of grace appear.

There I will worship and adore,
Confess my guilt, my sins deplore,
And seek by faith His pardoning love,
Rich gifts and blessings from above.

Sweet Sabbath bell! sweet Sabbath bell!
Its [illegible] tones I love so well;
It calls me to the house of prayer,
To pray, and praise, and worship there.

The travels of James Bruce in the Nile region, and of Mungo Park on the Niger belong to the last century. To the latter region the African Association in England sent out Ledyard in 1788. Horneman and Houghton were lost. In the present century Clapperton, after long exploration of the Niger, 1821-27, and Denham, his companion, died there. Only Lander, who was Clapperton's servant, finally reached the mouth of the river, and was killed (1834.) The expeditions of Grey and Tuckey, (1816,) were both unsuccessful. Laird, Oldfield and Allen were on the Niger in 1833. The British expedition on this river to suppress the slave trade in 1841 was a failure. Baikie's expedition there, beginning 1854, covered several years. We make little mention of important work done by German and French explorers.

The new era of African exploration may be said to have begun with Barth's travels in North and Central Africa, (1844-1855,) though Krapf, accompanied by Rebman, had preceded him in East Africa. Richardson's travels in the same parts as Barth belong to about the same time. Barth visited the Niger. The London Geographical Society sent Burton to explore the sources of the Nile in 1857-59. He made, also, a more southerly expedition and discovered Lake Tanganyika, (1858.) Speke, who set out from Zanzibar, discovered the Victoria Nyanza, the highest source of the Nile, July, 1858. In company with Burton he also went westward as far as Ujiji and Lake Tanganyika. Speke and Grant (1861-62) in the same northerly direction. Coming out down the Nile they met Baker at Goudokoro, (Feb. 1863,) who proceeded on and discovered Albert Nyanza Lake, (March, 1864,) "the reservoir source of the Nile," with which the Victoria is connected by a river.

The travels and labors of Moffat in South Africa began in an early period of the century. Livingston, his son-in-law, was a missionary of the London Missionary Society to the Bechuanas. His first great expedition occurred 1853-56, northward in exploration of the Zambesi River. Having reached Loanda on the west coast, he turned and crossed Africa within the tropic of Capricorn; 1858-64 he more fully settled the course of the Zambesi, and following up the Shire discovered Lakes Nyassa and Shirwah. He started the Universities' Mission for this region. In 1865 he again set out for his last expedition, which ended in his death, May, 1873, in Central South Africa. Stanley's expeditions are presumably familiar. He explored Tanganyika with Livingstone in 1871. In his second expedition after circumnavigating Victoria Nyanza, in the spring of 1875, he went westward from King Mtesa's Uganda, and by the Albert Lake again to Tanganyika, (1876), thence up the Lualaba, which he demonstrated to be not a part of the Nile, but of the Congo. To the scene of his brilliant explorations on this river he returned, leading the King of Belgium's International Expedition, and now is again in [illegible], having penetrated 300 miles beyond Vivi, and succeeded in establishing fifteen commercial stations.

The International Association is [illegible] its stations westward from [illegible] to join the others. Here [illegible] are projected by the [illegible] the great lakes. There [illegible] trading steamers on the [illegible] the Shire and Lake Nyassa [illegible] trading company is sur[veying] [illegible] line of railway on the [illegible] the Wassaw gold [illegible] The French are moving [illegible] in survey of a [illegible] across the Sahara, and [illegible] toward Timbuctoo. the best work in this exploration has been done by missionaries.

For a map of African explorations, see Gospel in All Lands, May 11, 1882, and the four numbers for May for a general survey of Africa (74 Bible House, price, six cents a number.) The only magazine review article covering the ground in very recent years is found in the British Quarterly, October, 1880. See the Manual, April, 1882, for recent notes.

II. Missions in Africa. As missionaries have been pioneers, so the societies have not failed to follow the explorer, though the zeal in this work has not borne its due proportion to the energy of commerce. The societies, with a few independent missions, number thirty-four. The sum of Christian adherents is given by Dorchester (1880) at 518,000.

Among others may be chiefly mentioned the London Society, in South Africa and Madagascar, and now on Tanganyika; the Church Society, in Sierra Leone, the Niger, Victoria Nyanza, Upper Nile region; Wesleyans, on the Gambia, Sierra Leone, Gulf of Guinea, South Africa; Free Church of Scotland, in South Africa, the Zambesi, and Lake Nyassa; English United Presbyterians, Benin, South Africa; Rhenish Society, Damara, Namaqua, Cape Colony West; Berlin Society, South Africa; Livingstone Inland Mission, the Congo; English Baptists, the Congo; Methodist Episcopal, Liberia; the American Southern Baptists, Liberia, Lagos; American Presbyterian, Liberia, Cameroons, Corisco, and Gaboon; American Missionary Association, Sherbro, Mendi, and Upper Nile; American Board, Bihe and Umzila's Land; United Presbyterians, Egypt.

Other societies are doing important work. Many dictionaries and grammars of the languages are published, and numerous others are in preparation. How vast is the debt the Christian world owes to Africa! It is said that 50,000,000 slaves have been torn from the Continent—15,500,000 to North and South America—and for each slave secured Cameron reckons that ten villagers have perished. Superstition abounds in Africa, but the belief in a spiritual world furnishes a good seed-ground for Christian truth. Livingstone and Stanley speak hopefully of the African's religious future. There are special evidences on the west coast and in the south of degradation from a higher spiritual state.

Some books on mission work in Africa are "Personal Life of David Livingstone," by Wm G. Blakie; New York: Harper & Brothers; $3 50. "Twenty Years in Central Africa," by Henry Rowley; London: W. Gardner & Co. "Zululand," by Rev. L. Grout; Philadelphia: Presbyterian House, $1 50. "Ten Years North of the Orange River (1859-69)," by John Mackenzie, 12mo.; Edinburgh. "Christian Adventures in South Africa, by Rev. Wm. Taylor; New York: Phillips & Hunt; $1 50. "Adventures of a Missionary" (Moffat); New York: Phillips & Hunt: $1.

III. Our Work in Liberia. This was our first foreign mission, and it is to the credit of the Methodist Church that she responded with such heroic devotion, first of all, to the peculiar claims which Africa has upon our country. Twenty-two of our missionary force, beginning with Melville Cox, lie buried in the cemetery at Monrovia. The history is familiar. See Dr. Reid's vol. i., and the Manual, July, 1881, where a map may be found for enlargement. The statistics for 1881 show 2044 full members and 141 probationers. There are twenty-two ordained Liberian preachers and fifty-eight local preachers. The Church property is valued at $33,000, with $2000 paid the past year for building and repairs. In Monrovia we have an excellent stone church, seating 1000 or more. There are other stone and brick churches. Principal stations are Monrovia, Carysburgh, Millsburgh, Edina, Buchanan, Marshall, Sinoe, Cape Palmas, Robertsport, Clay, Ashland, Caldwell, Brewersville, White Plains. We somewhat surpass in number of members the Baptist Liberian Church. This Church has been for a long time without any white American missionary. The Protestant Episcopal Church has five white missionaries and 567 members. There is also a Liberian [illegible] The Northern [illegible] has 276 mem[bers] [illegible] is also at [illegible] African Methodist Church (of the United States.) Notwithstanding depressing features of our work, the membership has steadily grown. The Churches have been taught to support themselves. While formerly $20,000 or $30,000 was annually appropriated, the sum is now $4500. Miss Sharp, our only missionary, is now teaching a number of Kroo children in our Seminary building at Monrovia.

The school problem is an important one for the Mission. A primary school system is organized by the Government, but the schools sustained are mostly those of the Missions aided. Of these we have perhaps 20 kept in the homes of the teachers, who obtain a fair salary. The Monrovia Seminary was discontinued in April, 1880. The pupils numbered 160, about 40 being in academic course. There were students in the classics and Mr. Kellogg, who has had much experience in teaching in America, says he "never had a school that showed more progress." The pupils were eager for advancement. About 20 of them were adopted natives. This important work we are now leaving to others, though many of the ablest men of Liberia owe their education to our Monrovia Seminary. The Presbyterians have a good school, the Alexander High School at Clay Ashland, with 53 pupils. The Liberia College at Monrovia, founded in 1867 by the Colonization Society, occupies a large three-story brick building; is now under the presidency of Dr. Blyden, (an African,) and reports 8 collegiate students and 28 preparatory, all of whom pay their own expenses. Five are natives, Bassas, Congos and Kroos. Bishop Penick, of the Protestant Episcopal Mission, has a school, founded in 1878, at Cape Mount, which is successfully conducted on the industrial principle. All the boys work on the farm, and the girls within doors, thus paying their way, gradually bettering their condition. The pupils number over 100, about 30 being natives brought from 100 miles in the interior. It is believed that by this process of training native youth (which was Bishop Selwyn's success in the South Seas) Mission stations can be gradually advanced among the interior tribes. The Rev. David A. Day, of the Lutheran General Synod, has also a good school on the industrial principle, with 131 pupils, (64 being boarders and 28 natives,) in [illegible] 0, at Muhlenberg, opposite White Plains. Mr. Day has shown special kindness to our missionaries. A school for natives was organized by Mr. Kellogg 25 miles in the interior, but suspended. A like attempt was made by Mr. Osgood, at White Plains.

Our recent successful efforts to penetrate the interior are familiar. Some record of them will be found in late Annual Reports. See also the Rev. C. A. Pitman's Journal, The Christian Advocate, July 21, 1877; and Bishop Haven's articles, "Into the Heart of Africa," May 15, 22, 29, 1877. The great difficulty met with is the unreliability of the Chiefs, their superlative avidity for "dashes" or presents, and on failure of these, the exposure of a small missionary force to their rapacity. There is no powerful Chief or King to establish order in the country. Whether we must wait for commercial stations to go before us, or for the railroads inward from Liberia, which have been partly projected, is a serious question. Possibly American capital will do for Africa from this direction what other nations are accomplishing in other directions. Meanwhile, we have to pray for providential openings, for wisdom and spirit to direct most efficiently our Mission work. The example of remarkable Mission success in Sierra Leone is before us. The Church authorities have in contemplation some positive advance steps.

Pray for them and for Liberia in this fiftieth year of the founding of our first Foreign Mission there. Melville Cox sailed from Norfolk Nov. 6, 1882. Read the story in Dr. Reid's "History."

It is claimed that the Chinese use of opium is worse than the American's use of tobacco; but there are two sides to that question. When a Chinaman uses opium, he goes into a "den," and stays there until he has had his smoke out. No one but himself is contaminated by it. But the American is puffing his tobacco in everybody's face. He is not willing to be confined to a tobacco den. The opium-habit has its advantages—so far.—S. S. Times.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Walden Seminary.

So many letters have come inquiring about our school—the Walden Seminary—that I find it practically impossible to answer all. Besides, the information desired is so similar that a few statements through the SOUTHWESTERN will answer all:

1. "Is there room for all who come?"

Yes. We want at least 250 more.

2. "How are they getting along who are there?"

Doing well in their studies. None in the State progress so fast. In making their support none have failed to secure the necessaries of life.

3. "What are the chances for a poor student to get work so as to make current expenses?"

Very good. Little Rock has about 20,000 inhabitants, and up to date we have been able to get more homes for students than we had students to accept. But we do not mean that a student can get his board, a good bed to sleep in, a carpeted floor, and gaslight, and good wages besides; but we mean that if you want an education, you may get your meals for doing chores at some places, and that you may find where a bed and light and washing may be added. One young gentleman got a good place, but because he could not eat with the white folks, or something as good, but had to take his meals to himself, he said he could not bear that, and hence had to look for another place. But a greater than he, Rev. Dr. Gray, of the Little Rock University, lived on Irish potatoes and water for a week at a time, that he might secure an education. Can not those who, on account of their color and the sin of caste, are shut out of almost every door to future success, endure a little of the ills of life that they may acquire power to unlock these hard doors? We had two young men to quit last year, but they were of that class of young men usually known as "pretty boys." They could support a long brass chain tied a time or two across their front, with four or five jingling toys, and care more for the outside than the inside. They failed although they had excellent homes, where for making fires, and such like, they paid for their board, washing, etc. One of our preachers, with his wife, has come to school. She gets ten dollars per month for cooking, etc. He gets his board, etc., for helping her when he is not in school. I heard a brother say the other day he had just got his eyes open; that he could go to school for years and lay up money every week. Certainly he could! All a man or woman needs is faith and will. It is our faith that overcomes the world. I advise those young and old men, and those young and old women, who have written for information, to come and see, come and try. What others have done you may. I could sleep on a single blanket and live on bread and water for weeks, rather than be so ignorant I could not write a letter to my friends or read the paper, or God's blessed word. And before I would try to teach the gospel as a preacher when I could not read it, I would sacrifice every thing. Do not wait until January or Christmas; come now. Small houses with two rooms and a kitchen can be rented for five dollars per month.

Uttely, Backus Oliver, Ses McCurta, Hal Price, Tenner King, each 50 cents, Elizabeth McCurta, and Emmerly Price, each 25 cents.

We were pleased to notice Elder Shumpert's stirring appeal in the SOUTHWESTERN a few weeks ago. Let the other brethren fall in line and send in the collections rapidly during the next three months. The work on Rust Hall is progressing steadily and well. It is going to be a grand building, a credit to the conference if its members do their part, and something for every one who gives liberally to be proud of.

Very respectfully,

W. HOOPER.

From Cotton Center.

DEAR EDITOR: As the many readers of the dear SOUTHWESTERN have not heard from Cotton Center for a long time, I thought it would not be amiss for me to say a few words for encouragement. Thank God, Zion continues to move, and by the kind hand of Providence we have thus far succeeded in building up our work both spiritually and financially, and trust ere this conference year closes to have done a great deal for Christ and his cause, notwithstanding. I have met many oppositions and encountered many difficulties to our Church progress, but we have succeeded and conquered them all, and thank God for the victory. However, we have occasionally been visited by the Death Angel. In calling he has taken from us two of the heroines of Methodism around Cotton—Sister Mary Lewis and Daughter Lillie Berry, who left this world in the full triumph of faith, both of whom were members of our Church. It is true that we regret their departure from us and the loss of the Church in this world of two such true and tried heroines to their Master's cause; but there is still joy and consolation in the very thought that while we realize their loss to us it is heaven's gain, and they help make up the number of the heavenly choir.

Fraternally,

A. J. RICHARDSON.

From Our Mission Rooms.

THE THIRD MONTHLY MISSIONARY'S Letter to the children is now ready. It is from Rev. J. H. Messmore, of the India Mission. This is an autograph letter designed for all Sunday-schools which are organized as missionary societies, but is sent only on application of the superintendents to the mission rooms. Let the superintendents send in name and address.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS FOR ADDRESSING LETTERS TO THE MISSION ROOMS.—When such letter is sent, please do not fail to place at the head of the letter: 1—The name of your conference. 2—The name of your State. 3—The name of your county. 4—The name of post office. 5—The date. The omission of one or more of these items is often the occasion of failure to receive prompt replies to letters sent to the mission rooms.

BULGARIA.—Rev. J. S. Ladd and wife have accepted the new parsonage in Sistof, and seem to have been welcomed by the people, who inquired eagerly when a school will be opened. It is thought that a good self-supporting school might be in operation there in two or three years. The work on the building in Loftcha is rapidly advancing, a sufficient portion of it will be furnished and admit of occupancy by Superintendent Challis during the winter. "We have no reason to be discouraged," says our correspondent. Things don't move here in the East as rapidly as we could wish, but there is progress. Mr. Thoneoff, and Mr. Tickcheff, the converted priest, visited Silistra where some hearers were obtained and books were sold. The new church was to be opened at Sistof and a series of meetings held there in preparation for the annual meeting of the mission.

THE CO-OPERATIVE SYSTEM IN MISSIONARY MEETINGS, Atlantic District Des Moines Conference, has been well worked by the presiding elder, Rev. W. T. Smith, in the interest of our benevolent cause. We quote from his report at the recent Conference session. "Great care has been bestowed on the benevolent enterprises of the Church. ....While no single benevolence has been neglected, especial attention has been given to the missionary cause. For the past three years the co-operative plan, so universally adopted by the Wesleyans of England, has been observed in this district. Mass meetings, addressed by visiting pastors and leading laymen, have been held at every charge. The results have been highly satisfactory. The following comparative statement shows that the advance that has been made since 1879, which was was the last year under the old plan.

Year	From Church's	From S.Sch'ols	Total.	Average pr. Mem'r.
1879	$532 75	$46 65	$579 40	16¼ cts.
1880	753 45	125 06	878 51	29¼ "
1881	1367 75	131 68	1499 68	47 "

This year the receipts are $1,810. This will be an average of 54 cents per member. There has been no special or unusual strain in this work. The largest sum given by any one person in the whole district in three years is $20. We have no large cities or wealthy churches. The secret of the advance is the wider dissemination of missionary intelligence by these platform meetings and a more general giving by the people. But even now we have nothing to boast of. From special reports made by the pastors I am led to believe that not one half of the church membership has been reached. With a contribution from these delinquents, and all our Sunday-schools organized into missionary societies, we could easily reach an average of $1 per member.

It will be seen that in two years the missionary contributions in Atlantic district show an increase of 200 per cent. Mr. Smith thinks that the general adoption of this system would be a sure way to the $1,000,000 we wish to raise, and ought to raise, annually. The system properly supplements the disciplinary plan; is adapted to awaken and maintain popular enthusiasm on the subject, and has the advantage of securing its own continuance when once well established by educating both preachers and laymen for the work. The English Wesleyans succeed very largely by this means.

Wiley University Notes.

From the Home Visitor, the little University paper, at Marshall, Texas, we republish the following notes:

Thirty-seven have been converts on Wiley University charge this year.

Wiley University begins its annual session with good prospects. About ninety have enrolled their names since the opening.

Two small appointments have been added to the Wiley University charge. Upon one of these a house of worship is in course of erection. The brethren have worked faithfully and out of scant means are getting up a comfortable church. Zion M. E. church, we trust, will become strong and prosperous.

Rev. R. R. Roberts has built him a new house not far from the college. This looks as though he were going to camp here for a while. Would that other preachers would do likewise.

A number of students are electing the scientific course in preference to the classical.

Rev. G. M. Knapp has been elected by board of trustees professor of natural science and history, and Rev. Wm. Wesley principal primary department.

M. M. Murray has been elected to the Legislature of Arkansas. We are glad to have Wiley University represented in the legislative halls of this great State. We are informed that he will return to school for a short session before the convening of the Legislature.

During eighteen months of prohibition Kansas has made an increase in population of a hundred thousand, and Governor St. John declares that the increase is mostly "made up of the very best citizens we ever had come to our State."

Dedication at Live Oak.

On the 7th of October, I left home for Live Oak, or Bayou Du Lac, in Terrebonne parish. I was a little weary, but must needs go I was on the King's business, and no failure could be thought of. Christ chose all of his disciples while they were busy at work, either mending their nets, casting them into the sea, or sitting at the receipt of customs. No one was called in idleness or to idleness. Melancthon was wont to say, when he saw other persons possessed of wealth, "Let them take the riches; give me the work." God be praised, there is work to be done, and, God be praised, there are men and women who love to work. The angels are said to be "ministering" as working "spirits." Idleness is not among the beatitudes of heaven; it may be one of the tortures of hell. I crossed the Mississippi at Morgan's ferry, and took the cars at Algiers, and was soon whirling along at the rate of twenty-five miles per hour through a region of country where in the distance could be seen the great dwellings, the old baronial residences of the country gentlemen of the ante bellum days. when mules and Negroes were alike bought and sold and valued for the money they would bring in the market or work they could perform on the plantation. The engine kept pressing on; station after station was passed. There was sunlight all around, so the time fled without our noticing the hours. Houma was reached at noon, where the train made a halt, and here we found an immense crowd of people that had assembled at the depot to welcome Hon. W P. Kellogg, who with a band of music was on board the train and had come to Houma to attend a grand mass meeting. Bro. Ford met us at the depot. He believes in hospitality, and keeps an open house. Sister Ford had a good dinner in readiness. She is a splendid housekeeper and cook. May the Lord increase the tribe, and scatter them all around. Live Oak is twenty miles away, and must be reached; the road muddy, chuck-holes numerous, and slush to all human satisfaction. At a little past one o'clock, with Bro. Carr, who had come along from Terrebonne, I was seated in a buggy, two noble horses in the lead, and slowly driving along toward Live Oak; mile after was passed. At about six o'clock, through much mud and slosh, the faithful steeds delivered us to the home of James Johnson, where they have religion Sabbath and Saturday, indoor and outdoor. Bro. Johnson is a local preacher, and believes in head-religion, body religion, and soul-religion, and that they should never be separated. He and his whole house understand the art of making one feel at home. Benedictions on all such homes. Here I was, full ninety miles from home. A superficial examination of my clothes revealed mud-spots that no man could number, but most any many could rub them off when dry. I felt carefully in my pockets, and after diligent search discovered one dime and one nickel, all because I was an itinerating editor. A good supper and a night's sleep invigorated the body, but did not replenish the pocket. Early Sabbath morning we wore off to church. The children had gathered for the Sunday-school. Of course, I had to talk to and for them. At eleven o'clock, notwithstanding the slosh and mud, a good congregation had gathered, and the writer discoursed to them as best he could from Acts xi 25 Bro Ford exhorted and called for the collection, and considering all things the people responded well After the collection, the church was dedicated to the service of Almighty God, "for the reading of the Holy Scriptures, the preaching of the word of God, the administration of the holy sacraments, and for all other exercises of religious worship and service, according to the discipline and usages of the Methodist Episcopal Church." I… afternoon Bro. Ford preached an excellent sermon, full of instruction and cheer to the Christian. At night, Bro. Carr, to a large and attentive congregation, announced as his text, "Speak unto the children of Israel that they go for…" and like a scribe well instructed gave to each a portion in due season. To all present this was … of pleasure, and, I trust, of … to the old brothers and … who had lived many years … Du Lac it was a day of … joy and gladness … seemed to have a good … Bro. Armstead, and well … I would not … that I know … [illegible] hand. Let this brother continue to apply himself and make good use of his ability to work, and I need not attempt to tell the position he will occupy in ten years, nor the good he will accomplish. May the Lord give him long life.

Monday morning, long before the sun had lapped the dew from the grass, I was en route for New Orleans. And here at home I may say when God can be glorified, the Church helped, good done, and a hard-working brother cheered, I shall be ready for another trip.

Tidings from the Field.

The great Napoleon, in the flush of his victories and glory, when reminded that while man proposes God disposes, answered with presumptious emphasis that he both proposed and disposed. Contrary to this irreverent exception however, and, in full accord with the old adage and truism, I had proposed to commence my third quarterly round at Jeannerette, on the thirty-first day of August, but an overruling Providence decided otherwise, and I failed to commence at either the time or place. Failing to leave at the intended time, and having given the brethren timely notice of the changes in my appointments, on Saturday morning, September 9th, in excellent health and spirits, I left this city via the Morgan's La. & Texas Railroad for Holmesville, La., where the first conference of the third quarter was to be held. I was not long on the way, before I fell in with certain wayfaring men, whom from their speech and manners, I soon discovered to be either ex or present government employees. It was exactly so. One proved to be an efficient employee of the U. S. Mint in this city, who was on his way to his home in the turbulent third congressional district, to take part in the Kellogg ratification mass meeting in his parish, and the other was an ex-customhouse employee, who had been left out in the cold, without an office, and who had his ire aroused. He was going from his home in this city to wreak vengeance upon the Kellogg interest and all the ins, and to arouse the multitude for Beattie.

Since the Kellogg ratification meeting in his parish, I have again met this same U. S. Mint employee, He reports the Kellogg campaign a perfect triumph over all the machinations and conspiracy of the bolting Beattie-Darrall and Acklen-Democratic alliance; but what became of our very agreeable Beattie travelling companion, whether he was annihilated and buried in the ruins that mark the victories of the regular Republican nominee, over Beattie and Darrall's little shattered fortification or not, I cannot say. Perhaps he is numbered with the lost somewhere, if he was not, like the last rose of summer, "left blooming all alone with all his lovely companions dead and gone." After a short while spent with these two warring politicians, I was much gratified to fall in what was to me better company, the company of a brother minister, Bro. H. C. Armston, our faithful pastor at Live Oak, in the parish of Terrebonne. His conversation, the story of his struggles and success, were all calculated to warm up the heart and strengthen the will of any valiant soldier of the cross. We separated at Terrebone station. Here was the boundary line of the vast overflow that flooded that whole section of country last spring. But as one speeds along on this road, how different now from then; how much more gratifying are the sceneries now, instead of the waste places and desolation of the late overflow; the golden grains, the kingly fleecy staple, the ripening sweet and juicy sugar cane, all combine to enrich and cheer the heart of all. Gazing upon the abundant crops being harvested from these wide acres, that were so lately under water, all through this region on to Alexandria and above, and in the interior for ten or twenty miles on either side of the railroad, what feelings of awe and worship should overshadow us. How thankful we should be, to Him who fed us last and who feeds us still, for all His benefits! For surely the Lord is good and gracious, and every good gift and every perfect gift is from above.

With the exception of a pleasant though short sojourning from Franklin to Baldwin with our Chief Editor, whom I had overtaken at Franklin, the trip from Terrebonne to Holmesville was made with no particular occurrence of interest; other than the fact that, at Morgan City where lunch is served upon a counter, each luncher standing next to the counter, I was permitted to stand up with the other passengers to lunch, while at Vermillionville, where lunchers sit down to meal, I was invited to the kitchen. This invitation I indignantly refused to … I hope I never shall … accept such an invitation unconstrained. How blind and unreasonable is the prejudice that begins to relax by allowing a Negro to stand up at the lunch counter, but that obstinately refuses him permision to sit down at the meal table, with fellow travellers of a lighter hue! When will this land be thoroughly purged of the last stain besmeared by slavery? Has it not been sufficiently cleansed with the flood of the atoning blood of our martyred Lincoln and the thousands who fell in our late civil war? Have the scorching epidemics, the pestilence that walketh in darkness and the destruction that wasteth at noonday; the tears shed throughout this nation at the bier of our lamented Garfield; the drenching, wasting waters of the mighty Mississippi that extorted cries of anguish from a million homes, all been of no avail in the purification and perfect redemption of this nation? The Lord help us with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, and help us to pursue it to the full redemption of our land.

Arriving at Holmesville at 6:30 p. m., I was at no loss at the depot, as our pastor at this point, Rev. R. Anderson and that model steward of his, Bro. Wesley Coleman, were at the depot expecting us. A short drive brought us to——Bro. Coleman's house, where we refreshed ourselves with a good lunch that had been provided for us.

The quarterly conference having already assembled, we did not tarry here long, but hurried to the conference. How pleasant it was to meet such a conference! Here pastor and people were working in most cordial harmony. There had been no trials, no expulsions, and the conference had no complaints to hear, no appeals to try, and every question was disposed of with love and dispatch. The church and Sunday school were reported to be growing in grace and numbers. A protracted meeting of a few nights had resulted in a revival of religious interest in the minds of many, and twenty-five or thirty were crowding the anxious seat each night. Eight conversions were reported. The love feast on Saturday night after the quarterly conference, and the services of the Sabbath, were seasons of refreshing from the presence of the Lord.

A great many of our people were sick and four have died during the quarter, but these have gone triumphantly to their reward. Bless the Lord for the lively hope of meeting beyond the river! A.

Gen. J. Floyd King, Democratic candidate, has published an address to the voters of the Fifth Congressional District of Louisiana, very intemperate in language, and indicative of little faith in the work of overcoming a heavy Republican majority, without a desperate struggle. Thanks to bull-dozing he is to-day a Congressman; thanks to the rising and better sentiment of the South there is some show of disapproval of past methods of carrying elections; hence the increased vigor of Gen. King's appeal for a return to the next Congress. Men cannot consistently denounce political assessments and bossism, or assume the role of virtuous citizens, while engaged in robbing fellow citizens of political rights which they have repeatedly pledged themselves to respect. This has been done most shamefully in the Fifth District, and Gen. King has accepted the stolen honors without evidencing any pangs of conscience. His compatriots in Louisiana, during their supremacy in the past six years have had ample opportunity to prove their assumed superior capacity to administer the affairs of the State; and to-day the wreck of a once efficient public school system, the stain of a repudiation of public debt, a partial collection of revenues, premiums for tax delinquencies, election machinery unsurpassed for efficiency in defeating the popular vote, and a close corporation of power by a race and office holding oligarchy are the results. Their deeds have unquestionably not kept pace with their professions, and Gen. King might well have feared to offend the intelligence of even his thoughtful friends in his reckless abuse of opponents and popish assumption of infallibility for his friends. No American can truthfully claim for any party of his countrymen the exclusive possession of all "intelligence, morality and religion;" and those words coming from a sharer of the spoils of election crimes rise to the sublimity of impudence. Gen. King's reply to the courteous invitation of Gen. McMillen, to calmly and jointly discuss those issues of practical concern to all good citizens of the district may rightly be considered a confession of weakness. Such issues, and those alone, should control the canvass; all others are fraught with mischief. We suppose that Republicans will register and vote for the candidate of their choice, and not be deterred by the villainous intimation that by so doing they will endanger the peace between the races. Peace is obtainable by obedience to law, and a just regard for the rights of fellow citizens, and not by the direct appeal to base prejudices, and the passionate and stilted clap traps Gen. King has embodied in his address.

The Right Kind of a Canvaee.

A Times-Democrat special from Bay St. Louis, Miss., 14th inst., conveys intelligence in pleasing contrast with the intolerant attitude of Congressional candidates eclewhere. At that place Judge Van Eaton, Democrat, and Hon. John R. Lynch, Republican, had a joint discussion lasting three hours. Says the dispatch:

The debate was animated and humorous, and was a political novelty in being a fair, friendly and courteous debate between candidates of different races. The race issue was entirely sunk and ignored and both declared themselves in favor of a free ballot and a fair count. The debate was mainly on questions of tariff and taxation, and both candidates declared themselves in favor of reforming the tariff and taxpayers, but upon different politics. Van Eaton said that he is not for free trade nor for the repeal of the sugar tariff absolutely and at once, but he was for a tariff for revenue only. Lynch said he was for a tariff both for a revenue and protection—such protection as would encourage and aid the capital, labor and enterprise of our whole people. Several ladies attended the meeting, and good humor and good feeling prevailed. The audience was about equal in numbers, white and black. Lynch admits that Van Eaton has the inside track in the race, but expresses the hope that he may win the race nevertheless.

This is the right kind of a canvass. It appeals to the brains of voters and not their prejudices. Let us have more of this equity and fair dealing all over the sunny South, and a higher order of statesmen will be called to the front, and the harmony between the races be unbroken uy pestilent demogogues.

The Elections.

On Tuesday, Oct. 10th, elections were held in Ohio and West Virginia. The results were somowhat surprising. The anti-prohibitionists in Ohio rallied to the Democratic party, and enabled it to elect the minor State officers, and fourteen out of twenty-one Congressmen. In West Virginia, mainly on the tariff question, two Republicans were elected and broke a heretofore solid Democratic representation in Congress. Republicans also made gains on the Legislative ticket.

The following is the result of Congressional elections to date:

	48th Congress. Rep.	Dem.
Maine	4
Oregon	1
Ohio	7	14
Vermont	2
West Virginia	2	2
	6	16

It is probable that on the 7th of November next, there will be more surprises. The Republican prospect of carrying the State of Delaware for State officers, Legislative ticket and Congressman, and a United States Senator, is very fair, as large gains were made in recent local elections.

The most jubilant man over the result of the recent elections in Ohio is one of the leading Protestant clergymen of this city. And yet this election means unrestrained freedom in the traffic of intoxicating liquors; it means that there shall be no such institution as a civil Sabbath, a weekly day of rest in Ohio, and is the result of a combination of the worst elements in the State. The 15,000 saloon-keepers, with their patrons, and the anti-Sabbath element, all voted one way, and helped to secure the triumph that gave this clergyman so much pleasure. The election in Ohio may be a Bull Run defeat, nevertheless Vicksburg, Gettysburg, New Orleans, and Richmond are sure to come. In this fight there may be great intensity and varying fortunes, but no doubt as to the end. In dealing with evils God is in no haste; they yield slowly, till quick vengeance falls at last. Ancient and organized evils like slavery and the liquor traffic He does not displace at once. This world is the threshing floor of the Almighty, where iniquity is often employed to scourge, to excoriate, to annihilate its votaries. When He has reduced the pride of His foes, and tested the faith of His people, deliverance will come. Now and then a clergyman may join with the saloon-keepers, but these agencies will not prevail. They are to be swept on in the current, or buried in the bottom. The great forces of the age, the energy, the enterprise, the schools, the intelligence, the churches, the virtue, must prevail. They are riding on, conquering and to conquer. Doubt it who can. This seeming defeat in Ohio will hasten on and make more complete the final triumph.

The readers of the SOUTHWESTERN will be glad to learn that Bishop Peck has been able to attend his fall conferences, and has borne the labors imposed upon him better than was feared. At the East Ohio Conference he preached on Sunday morning an excellent sermon, which produced a deep impression. In one of his addresses at a recent conference he said: "In some parts of the country men who advocate holiness as a specialty would supersede the itinerant preachers in presenting this doctrine. They sometimes use very flippant words about the pastors, I suggest to you as pastors to make your own appointments, and not to depend on any visiting brethren to make up for your defects." We call these words of wisdom, and suggest to our brethren in the ministry that they cannot be too careful about allowing ministerial tramps, who are wandering up and down in the country, with no church relation, to enter their pulpits. Better let them pass along.

Rev. J. H. Owen, Huntsville, Alabama, asks through Zion's Herald for help. Brother Owen is not particular whether his helper be a lady or gentleman. They must be homeless, educated, in poor health, and willing "to teach two hours a day in exchange for bread." This is what we call philanthropy on fire. Is it best to make our institutions of learning in the South hospitals? It may be an act of mercy toward the invalids who would like to spend their winters in the South. But can they do the work that needs to be done? Any kind of helpless persons are useless here. We know of no part of the work that can be done by persons of incapacity or of indisposition. Give us men and women who have common sense, grit, grace, and able bodies. Persons with stooping shoulders, spare arms, flabby muscles and nerves, flat chests, whose lungs have never known a healthy inspiration, will be useless here.

In the Louisiana Conference we have a certain minister, and he is not an old Ephraim either, who is a perfect slave to his pipe. At the depots, on the streets, at the homes he visits, around on the church grounds, in his own house, in his bed, just before he goes to sleep, and before his eyes are scarcely opened in the morning, he has his pipe in his mouth, pulling away for dear life, it would seem, and puffing out at each stroke enough tobacco smoke to choke the life out of an ordinary mortal. We have often looked at that man and wondered how he managed to keep his pipe out of his mouth long enough to conduct the services of the church. Such a slave is a disgrace to the Methodist ministry. He should quit either the one or the other.

We learn from the Philadelphia Methodist that Dr. Fuller, editor of the Atlanta Methodist Advocate, has been in Philadelphia soliciting aid for the maintenance of his paper. We think that the Atlanta Advocate should have either a Christian burial or a respectable living. If the paper is needed, and there can be no question as to that, give it a strong and healthy existence. This sending around Dr. Fuller, or putting him in a position where he must go from city to city making appeals to the generosity of our people for aid to keep his paper afloat, is not a little humiliating. We cannot afford as a Church to take any back steps. We must push on in every department of our work. God bless Dr. Fuller.

The registration office is yet open for the registration of voters who have become eligible since the last election, to revise the list of voters who have removed from one part of the city to another, and to supply papers to such as have lost theirs. Only a few more days remain and the books will be closed. No patriotic citizen will fail to attend to this very important duty. The office is open every day (Sunday excepted), at the corner of Camp and Lafayette streets, from eight to two, and from four to six o'clock, p. m. If your registration paper is not all right, you had better see about it before the 28th instant, as the office closes on that day.

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, after delivering an address giving his reasons for differing with the churches represented there in matters of faith, closed by announcing his withdrawal from the Congregational Association. Mr. Beecher's withdrawal, while unlooked for, was not such a great surprise after all, for it is generally known that he has not been sound in his orthodoxy, but rather has been floating for some time on the uncertain drifts of doubts and skepticism. We join his Association in bidding him a long farewell. May the Lord save him, is our prayer.

The report of the grand jury of St. Mary parish, published in the Morgan City Free Press contains this statement: "We regret to say there will be no fall term of the schools this year, as it takes at least $1200 a month to run the schools, and the balance on hand in the hands of the school treasurer on the first day of October, was $698 69, just enough to run the schools two weeks, with no prospects of getting any school money until January—this is deplorable." Certainly it is; and the result is due to the unpardonable stupidity of the Democrtic administration of affairs in Louisiana.

PERSONAL.

—The son of J. Y. Gilmore, editor of the New Iberia Sugar Bowl, will receive his education at Cornell University, New York.

—Rev. Geo. B. Lynch, formerly a member of the Louisiana Conference is now in Texas, in charge of the St. Paul A. M. E. Church, of Houston.

—Ex-Vice President Wheeler is to be married to the widow of Surgeon General Woodworth of the Marine Hospital service who died in Washington, in the spring of 1879.

—Mr. H. Conquest Clark, formerly Kellogg's private secretary, and for several years private secretary to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington, has been appointed clerk to the Alabama Claims Commission.

—The Pascagoula Journal of Progress says: "Rev. C. B. DuBose, pastor of the Methodist church in this city, died of fever on the 12th inst. Another true Christian has been called from his work to do that of his Master in heaven."

—We see it announced in the Times-Democrat that Rev. Christopher E. Hunt has withdrawn from the Presbyterian Church, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. We understand that Bro. Hunt proposes to enter upon and devote his time and strength to the work of the Christian ministry. We certainly wish him a great measure of success.

—Rev. Dr. John Matthews, who was transferred last fall, from the Louisiana Conference of the M. E. Church South, to the Southwest Missouri Conference, and stationed at Walnut street church, Kansas, City, at the recent sitting of his conference, reported the largest missionary collection, something over five hundred dollars. All of our brethren in this city regard Dr. Matthews to be one of the grandest men in the Church South.

—A correspondent of the Christian Advocate says that the last time Bishop Hedding presided at the Erie Conference, he spoke in the conference love feast, and said: "For fifty years I never laid my head on my pillow to sleep without the witness of the Spirit of my acceptance with God, but once. I immediately arose and went on my knees, and never rose till I got it. So for fifty years I have went to sleep every night, knowing if I died I would awake in glory."

—W. J. Snively in a letter from Aberdeen, Miss., to the Central Methodist, writes of Bishop Paine, of the M. E. Church South: "The bishop's work is done, and he is calmly waiting on the bank of the river for the angel ferryman to row him to the other shore. He is very feeble and needs assistance in rising from his bed or chair, and in going to and from the dining room and sleeping apartment. That assistance is constantly and faithfully rendered by sister Paine, who watches over him with a mother's care. His mind is perfectly clear on all subjects, but he is too feeble to indulge much in conversation. I spent a night with him and his pleasant family, and felt refreshed in spirit by the holy atmosphere in which he lives. He is subject to frequent sinking spells, any one of which he feels may prove the last; but they give him no alarm nor anxiety of mind, as he is ready for the summons at any time; and yet, I understand, he talks of attending conference at Corinth in November, a distance of ninety miles from his home."

The annual fair of the colored people was opened at Raleigh, N. C., on the 10th by State Commissioner of Agriculture McGehee. Gov. Jarvis delivered the annual address, which was well received by the large crowds of blacks in attendance. Congressman W. R. Cox also spoke. The fair grows better each year. The exhibits are more numerous and better. The display of stock, products, etc., was fine.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

W. M. Brown, Sunday school Superintendent at Washington: "Our Sunday school is progressing finely. Our average attendance is ninety-eight. Our Sunday school gave an exhibition a few weeks ago which was a perfect success. All the children spoke well and not a blunder was made. Nothwithstanding the unfavorable weather, the house was crowded to hear the children. We are working to make our Sunday school one of the best on the La Teche district. Our scholars represent all ages from six and seven up up to sixty and seventy. Pray for our work."

The Young People's Literary Society of Ames M. E. Church held its second regular meeting in the church parlor on Tuesday evening, 10 inst. There were 24 members of the society present. The literary exercises consisted of a debate, vocal and instrumental music. After the literary program, refreshments were served. The evening passed off pleasantly and greatly added to the interest in the work of the society among the members.

Rev. Henry Green, writing from Washington, say: "Spiritually the church is getting on very well. We have just closed our three weeks protracted meeting, which resulted in eighteen conversions and reclaimed backsliders. Sixteen joined on probation. The first convert of this revival was one of the worst drunkards of Washington; he is now a sober Christian man." This is just like true conversion. The Christian Emmanuel's saves his people from their sins.

TEXAS.

W. H. Jackson, San Felipe: "Elder F. C. Moore, held the fourth conference at Mt. Calvary chapel. Rev. D. Atkins' report was a good one, showing an increase both in property and membership. There were 85 accessions, received for support $168 95, elder $41 50; four appointments, and building the fifth one; 24 full members, 50 probationers, 28 converts; four Sunday schools; rode 300 miles on horseback, walked 40; children's day collection $5 65; for benevolent claims $15." W. H. Jackson was recommended to the district, for recommendation to the annual conference, for the traveling connection. Silas Boulding for local license. J. S. Whitaker, of Hempstead, preached a noble sermon on Sunday. Elder's collection $13 20. Fenton Moore was elected delegate to district conference. Crops are good and are being harvested. We expect to meet all claims at annual conference."

G. W. Norris, Cypress circuit: "Elder W. L. Molloy held my quarter at Cedar Grove. The Elder preached to a large congregation, and administered sacrament to 54. At night every sinner in the house came forward and gave hand to the elder. Two joined; 16 were baptized. Elder's collection $10 10."

MISSISSIPPI.

J. P. Jordan, Enterprise: "The elder, J. W. Dunn, held our last quarterly conference for this year, on the Enterprise circuit; and preached an awakening sermon to a congregation of about 400, and administered the Lord's supper to about 65 communicants. Collection $27 05. C. W. Ivy, P. C., is doing good work here. He powerfully holds up the Methodist doctrines."

TENNESSEE.

Alex. Burdett, Friendship: "The church gave an exhibition in Price chapel. The Sunday school was present. I delivered the welcome address. Miss Mary Price delivered an essay on the beginning of the Sunday school. Elder Price spoke on the duty of parents to the school. Miss Ida Evans spoke on intemperance, literature and the SOUTHWESTERN. Bro. Ben Pope, of the Baptist Institute, on the great benefit of the Sunday school. Bro. James Macklin, on punctuality. The Ladies Mite Society, conducted by Mrs. H. E. Price, made $14 for the church."

W. Thompson: "I was ordered by Elder James Pickett, to take charge of the Springfield work, formerly in charge of D. Cooke. August 8th, the elder held the second quarter, and I was able to report the work as prospering. There have been three conversions, and two additions. Bank's chapel has a small membership, but I hope to bring it up. Bethel is drifting down but there are a few faithful brethren to aid me. That charge paid $8 40 this quarter, and has 54 members. Springfield has paid $39 75. I have filled all my appointments except one. I will bring up something on all benevolent purposes I think."

L. M. Moores, Mason: "When I came here I found a debt of $467 57. I have succeeded in getting it down to $200, that is, if we pay the $200 by the 15th of November, the district conference agreed to help us out. I hope they will stand to their promise. We have the only colored church in the place, and it is worth $1,000. If any one wants to use money for a good cause, let them send any amount they can spare to J. M. Williams, care L. M. Moores, Box 38 Mason, Tenn."

Letter From Jacksonport.

DEAR EDITOR: The church has been under the gracious influence of the Divine Spirit, all the conference year. We had a glorious revival in March, some fifty made a profession of religon and fifty or sixty joined the church. A few of the converts have backslidden, but others are still holding on and are faithful to the church. Those who joined under compulsion have backslidden, but it has happened to them according to the proverb. Last Sunday I received twenty-two in full connection. It was a feast of fat things to the soul. Our class meetings are very well attended, especially by the young people. We have a good church in Jacksonport, in fair spiritual condition; financially we are considerably behind. The town is three miles from a railroad station, but near enough to be deadened by one. We are now living in expectation of a railroad soon, but at present our people have no way to make money except to pick cotton. All the balance of the year they live from hand to mouth. Some bought homes when business was flourishing, but have since been compelled to give them up and go elsewhere to make a living. I have had a hard time. The people are willing to work, and are picking cotton, and collections are better. Last Sunday I raised $17 15. We hope to be able to raise all of our assessments, and have a good subscription for Walden Seminary. Rev. A. E. Carr, who was in charge at Newport has left, and the presiding elder asked me to supply the work at Newport. We have but few members, and they unable to do much for the church, but we have the church covered in, a pulpit, and partly seated, and are trying to organize a Sunday-school, and it seems hard work to do. The presiding elder will be here to hold our last quarter on the 28th, inst. And in connection with the Newport Quarterly Conference, he will dedicate the Newport church known as Emory's Chapel. We are praying for God's blessing on the Newport work. If ever a church was needed in any place, it is needed at Newport. We are praying and expecting a good time at the dedication.

Letter from Crystal Springs.

DEAR EDITOR:—While perusing the SOUTHWESTERN, I saw a letter from Winona, Miss., addressed to [illegible] and written by the Rev. A. K. Davis. He asserts in the letter, [illegible] when he took charge of the [illegible] Winona, Miss., Feb. 1, 1882, [illegible] in a very poor condition both spiritually and financially, and that there was a great want of organization, and anything [illegible] method in the management of church affairs generally.

He further stated that there was no house for the preacher nor could one be procured.

With all due respect to our brother in charge of the good work at Winona, Miss., I deem it justice to myself and a credit to the good people of Winona, to give our readers a short synopsis of that work [illegible] to 1882, during which [illegible] in my charge, then they [illegible] own [illegible] the statement made in our brother's letter. [illegible] I took charge of the church at Winona in 1879, the church was [illegible] sealed, nor was it properly [illegible] sufficient win[illegible] [illegible] We [illegible] the trustees of [illegible] and [illegible] purchase the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a pro[illegible] [illegible] our [illegible] to this [illegible] which [illegible] is pleased with our work, and we feel proud to know that we did our duty whether Brother Davis gives us any credit or not.

Plantersville Circuit.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Plantersville Circuit, Navasota District, Texas Conference, was held October 7, 1882. F. C. Moore, P. E., was on hand as usual with his good advice and encouragement.

This is not a new circuit, but like many others, I found it without building accommodations. Most of the members are renters. A few have small homes. They are not rich, but a willing people.

The usual disciplinary questions were asked.

Pastor reported three Sunday schools, 110 in attendance, seventeen added to the church during the quarter, and 118 during the year, eighteen baptized. All the branches of Christian work progressing. Bro. Du Pre, the local preacher, and exhorters reported good work. Class-leaders reported their classes growing in knowledge and grace, and the following collections:

Zeno Calhoun $30 15, Wash Robinson $25 15, G Robinson $34 50, N Chalman $18 85, H Davis $18 50, Betty Jones $9 35, John Robinson $21 50, C Calhoun $3 50, A. Miller $9 10, Manda Miller $17 75, Fortune Calhoun $7, I Simmons $3 35, Rosa Green $8, F. Miller $28 60, S Johnson $7 65, J. Felder $7 50, J. Mitchell $2 20, W. Johnson $3, G. Felder $3 60, Geo. Felder $3.

Trustees report $300 collected for building purposes. Collected since September 1, $292 20. On the third Sunday in September the people put on the table $182 for church building at Yarbor Station. At Stonem Station and Piney Church the trustees are collecting money to build. General prosperity prevails.

A club of thirty-four white citizens of Jeannerette has been organized in support of Senator Kellogg's candidacy. They say in formal resolution: "that while we do not mean anything derogatory to the other candidates, we believe that Senator Kellogg can be of more service to the district than any of those now presenting their claims before the people." The club is styled the "Democratic Kellogg Club."

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

FOURTH QUARTER. LESSON IV. Oct. 22. THE AGONY IN THE GARDEN. (Mark xiv, 32-42).

After the Lord's last supper, he and eleven of his disciples went out to the garden of Gethsemane. He knew he must soon die, and was very sad; so he told eight of them to sit there and watch while he went to pray. He took Peter, James, and John with him, and told them how sorrowful he felt, and said, "Watch with me." Then he went a few steps and fell down to pray. But they were tired and went to sleep. Jesus came and said, "Could you not watch with me an hour?" Then he went away again and again they slept. Jesus came a second time and told them to watch, and again he went alone and prayed. Jesus was in such trouble that great drops of blood came out like sweat. He asked God if he could save the world some other way, not to let him die on the cross, but he said, "Not as I will, but as thou wilt." When his praying was done he found them again asleep, and said, "Sleep on now; he that betrayeth me is at hand."

We think we would surely have watched, but we often leave Jesus alone when he needs us. Jesus needs us all the time. Sin watches all the time, and Jesus needs every one to watch to keep sin out of their hearts. Do you really love Jesus? Then show your love by watching what you can do to please him.—Western.

NEW BOOKS.

N. W. Ayer & Son's American Newspaper Annual for 1882, Philadelphia, contains a carefully prepared list of all newspaper and periodicals in the United States and Canada, arranged by States in geographical sections, and by towns in alphabetical order. In this list is also given the name of the paper, the issue, general characteristics, year of establishment, size, circulation and advertising rates for ten lines one month. In the United States the populations are from the census of 1880, and in Canada from that of 1881. It also gives the political majorities and the Greenback vote of States and counties at the Presidential election of 1880. Complete in all its departments, thorough in its details, giving just the information needed and only that—simply arranged, easily referred to, carefully compiled—it is, in fact, a model work of its kind. Price, $3, carriage paid.

J. T. Trowbridge's new story, "The Tinkham Brothers' Tide-Mill," written for St. Nicholas, is announced to begin in the November number of that magazine.

Consumption.

No longer in the list of "Incurable diseases." Send to DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, No. 1109 Girard Street, Philadelphia, for their Treatise on Compound Oxygen, and learn all about the wonderful cures which are being made in this dread disease.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Wilford's Microcosm (New York; Hall & Bros.,) for October, is filled with articles of a religio-scientific character, of some value to the student and general reader.

Our Little Ones for October, with choice stories and illustrations, edited by the famous "Oliver Optic" has been received. No better monthly, at the same price, is published. $1 50 a year.

Southern Cultivator for October is at hand, with its usual variety of interesting and valuable reading. In its colums are discussed everything pertaining to Agriculture, Horticulture, Stock Poultry, etc., by the best writers of the South. Send one dollar and fifty cents to James P. Harrison & Co., Atlanta, Ga., for a year's subscription to this standard monthly.

Charles Dudley Warner will discuss in the November Century the material and intellectual domination of "England," in which he will give due praise, it is said, to the commanding position of England in the modern world, and undertake to define the elements of English power. He will mingle some sharp criticism with the praise, and have a good deal to say about the relations of England and the United States.

The American Antiquarian and Oriental Journal for October, has a second paper on "Native Races of Colomia, S. A., by E. G. Barney; "The Cubit of the Ancients, by Charles Whittlesey; "Phonetics of the Kayowe Larynage," by A. S. Gatchel; "Antiquites of Nicaragua," by Dr. Earl Flint; "The Origin of the Architectural Orders," by Stephen D. Peet, editor; "Keltiberian Inscriptions in Spain," by Rev. W. Webster. Besides there is corespondence, editorial notes, linguistic notes, and a general review. Terms $3; Jameson & Morse, Chicago.

The Chautaquan, the official organ of the Chautaqua Literary and Scientific Circle, begins its third volume with its October number, which is now on our table, brimful of the choicest selections and original matter. "Sunday Readings;" "A Glance at the History and Literature of Scandinavia," by Prof. L. A. Sherman, Ph. D., "History of Russia," by Mrs. Mary S. Robinson," "Pictures from English History," by C. E. Bishop; "The History and Philosophy of Education," by Prof. W. T. Harris; "Music in Early Times," by Prof. E. E. Ayres; "Egypt and England," by Sheldon Amos. "Readings in Geology," by J. W. Dawson; [illegible] Questions and An[illegible] Geology, and [illegible] by A. M. Martin; and the account of the first commencement exercises of the C. L. S. C., together with the masterly address delivered by Bishop H. W. Warren, D. D., which is reported in full, are among some of the brilliant gems, in this casquet of pearls. The Chautauquan is published by T. L. Flood, D. D., Meadville, Pa. Price, single copies 20 cents; $1 50 a year post paid.

DEATHS.

Bro. Eli Gray, a preacher on trial in the Texas Conference, appointed by the bishop to Jacksonville Circuit, and afterwards changed by the presiding elder to Tyler, after suffering about four weeks, was called to his reward on high, Sept. 14, 1872. He leaves a wife, ten children and a host of friends to mourn his loss. Bro. Gray was received on trial by Bishop E. O. Haven at Houston, Dec. 1880. He was 50 years old, and for 30 years had been a Methodist. He was born in Alabama, came to Texas, settled in Shelby county, removed to Marshall, thence to Tyler. Bro. Gray died in full triumph of faith. He told his wife "My work will soon be done."

WALTER RIPETOE.

Tyler, Texas.

One of our probationers, the daughter of Greenbury Richardson, died, leaving a mother, sister and other relatives to mourn her loss. She suffered long, but believed she had found favor with the Lord and exhorted her playmates to follow her.

A. WILLIAMS.

Huntsvill, Texas.

Sister Synthia Atkins, wife of Rev. Daniel Atkins, departed this life Sept. 17, 1882, at the age of 39 years. She died in full triumph of living faith. She was a faithful member of the M. E. Church for twenty years. She said she was ready and willing to go, just waiting Jesus for to give the word "come." Bro. Atkins has lost a wife, two daughters and a son a mother, and the M. E. Church a good working Christian. Sister A., had been afflicted for a long time, yet she told Rev. Atkins to attend his ministerial duties. He was away when she died.

WILLIS H. JACKSON.

Pattison, Texas Oct. 9, 1882.

Sister Martha Taylor, aged 63 years, and a soldier of the Cross for 35 years, a member of our church in Pineville, La., left the shores of time for a blissful immortality in August, 1882. Eight grown children, and her venerable companion for 25 years, Bro. Wm. Taylor, are left to mourn her departure. Her death creates a vacancy in the Pineville church, which is not easily filled. Although she could not read a line, Sister Taylor subscribed and paid for the SOUTHWESTERN for seven years up to the day of her death. She took it, she used to say, to help the cause, and to preach to her visitors. Sermons she could not preach. May the Lord bless all of our churches, with many such untiring, zealous Christian workers, as was Sister Martha Taylor.

Rev. George Robinson, pastor of the Little African Baptist Church, at Kenner, La., died Sept. 7, aged 92 years. Father Robinson was a native of South Carolina, he was converted to God in 1828, and has resided in Jefferson parish, and been the pastor of the Little African Baptist Church ever since. Father Robinson was loved and respected by all people. He leaves four daughters and three sons, all members of some Christian Church. He rests from his labors and his words follow him.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT.

Sound Doctrine for the Sick. It would be as wise to attempt to regulate a chronometer with a pickaxe and sledge hammer, as it is to assail the obstructed and constipated bowels with abrading purgatives. That genial and healthful laxative Tarrant's Aperient, which relieves and tones the alimentary canal at the same time, is the safest and surest means of superinducing a regular habit of body, in cases of chronic constipation.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Sick Headache. For the relief and cure of the distressing affliction take Simmons Liver Regulator.

Malaria. Persons may avoid all attacks by occasionally taking a dose of Simmons Liver Regulator to keep the liver in healthy action.

Constipation should not be regarded as a trifling ailment. Nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels. Therefore assist Nature by taking Simmons Liver Regulator, it is so mild and effectual.

Biliousness. One or two tablespoonfuls will relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state, such as Nausea, Dizziness, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, a bitter bad taste in the mouth.

Dyspepsia. The Regulator will positively cure this terrible disease. We assert emphatically what we know to be true.

Colic. Children suffering with colic soon experience relief when Simmons Liver Regulator is administered.

Buy only the genuine, in white wrapper, with red "Z." Prepared by J. H. ZEILIN & CO.

Sold by All Druggists.

General Grand United Order of Brothers and Sisters of Love and Charity.

On the 18th of September, in the city of New Orleans, State of Louisiana, we organized an association to be known by the name and title of the "GENERAL GRAND UNITED ORDER OF THE BROTHERS AND SISTERS OF LOVE AND CHARITY," of the United States and the Great Republic of Liberia, for the purpose of relieving the sick and distressed, and drying the tears of the widow and educating the orphan, and to inculcate virtue among that class to which we belong.

The following named officers were elected: Bro. Graham Bell, General Grand Worthy Vice Superior Bro. Thos. J. Hill, Gen. Grand Worthy Vice Superior Sister Martha Hill, Gen. Grand Worthy Vice Superior Bro. Geo. D. Geddes, Gen. Worthy Treasurer.
Bro. Wm. H. Penn, Gen. Grand Worthy Scribe.
Bro R. B. Johnson, Gen. Grand Degree Master.

Appointed officers:—Sisters Lena Moore, G. G. W. C. Sister Anna Washington, G. G. W. A. C. Bro. Wm. Finney, G. G. W. Chaplain. Bro. John Smith, G. G. W. I. S. Bro. Wm. Alexander, G. G. W. O. S. Sister Elizabeth Carver, G. G. W. Marshal. Sister Hanna Tolever, G. G. W. A. M. Bro. Henry Hill, G. G. W. Messenger. Sister Elizabeth Byard, G. G. W. Messenger. Sister Annette White, G. G. W. Messenger. Sister Harriette Mabra, G. G. W. Messenger. Sister Mary Steptoe, G. G. W. Messenger.

Appointed General Grand Deputies: Bro. Frank Williams, Rev. M. J. Dyer, Bro. Henry Clay, Bro. Ben. Hale, Ezekiel Steptoe.

Have no fear of any of these diseases if you use Hop Bitters, as they will prevent and cure the worse cases, even when you have been made worse by some great puffed up pretended cures.

Hon. Mark Francis Napier will defend Arabi Pasha before the court-martial.

PLAIN TRUTHS

The blood is the foundation of life, it circulates through every part of the body, and unless it is pure and rich, good health is impossible. If disease has entered the system the only sure and quick way to drive it out is to purify and enrich the blood.

These simple facts are well known, and the highest medical authorities agree that nothing but iron will restore the blood to its natural condition; and also that all the iron preparations hitherto made blacken the teeth, cause headache, and are otherwise injurious.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS will thoroughly and quickly assimilate with the blood, purifying and strengthening it, and thus drive disease from any part of the system, and it will not blacken the teeth, cause headache or constipation, and is positively not injurious.

Saved his Child.

17 N. Eutaw St., Baltimore, Md. Feb. 12, 1880.

Gents:—Upon the recommendation of a friend I tried BROWN'S IRON BITTERS as a tonic and restorative for my daughter, whom I was thoroughly convinced was wasting away with Consumption. Having lost three daughters by the terrible disease, under the care of eminent physicians, I was loth to believe that anything could arrest the progress of the disease, but, to my great surprise, before my daughter had taken one bottle of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, she began to mend and now is quite restored to former health. A fifth daughter began to show signs of Consumption, and when the physician was consulted he quickly said "Tonics were required;" and when informed that the elder sister was taking BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, responded "that is a good tonic, take it."

ADORAM PHELPS.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS effectually cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Weakness, and renders the greatest relief and benefit to persons suffering from such wasting diseases as Consumption, Kidney Complaints, etc.

EARS for the MILLION!
FOO CHOO'S Balsam of
SHARK'S OIL.
Positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.
This Oil is abstracted from a peculiar species of White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as the Carcharodon Rondeletii. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese People. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1 per bottle.
HEAR WHAT THE DEAF SAY!
It has performed a miracle in my case.
I have no unearthly noises in my head and hear much better.
I have been greatly benefited.
My deafness helped a great deal—think another bottle will cure me.
"Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer can personally testify both from experience and observation. Write at once to Haylock & Jenney, No. 7 Dey street, New York, enclosing $1, and you will receive by return a remedy that will enable you to hear like anybody else, and whose curative effects will be permanent. You will never regret doing so."—Editor of Mercantile Review.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

J. S. Patterson, Bastrop: "On September 28th, Elder Duncan arrived and held the fourth conference. I met him with a buggy at Monroe and brought him here, where he was cordially welcomed. We raised for him $20 85. I have commenced the building of a parsonage."

MISSISSIPPI.

H. Cawthorn, Enterprise: "My work is in a prosperous condition. Sunday schools are doing well under M. Doby, superintendent. I have closed my protracted meeting with 20 converts, 4 backsliders reclaimed and 4 received from the Baptist church—in all 28 additions. Elder Dunn had a happy time with us, and we gave him $24."

A. D. Bean, Okolona: "Our preacher in charge, Rev. Cyrus Gates is not a strong preacher, but a genuine disciplinarian and Sabbath school worker. He has two local preachers to assist him, and they are battling in protracted meetings. There are many converts at all points."

P. Blue, Greenwood: "Owing to high water in the early spring, and the long illness of my wife in the summer, we were late in holding our protracted meetings. They are now over resulting in 68 additions to the church. Our congregations have been very large all the year and increasing. We have lost by death this year five members. Sister Isabella Doby died May 25; Brother James Beck, April 4, had served as recording steward; Sister Billie Green, April 9; Sister Martha Clark will be greatly missed. Elder Barney held our third quarter, but owing to illness could not preach on Sunday. We are glad he is better."

C. W. Ivy, Enterprise: "Elder Dunn held my third conference. Lord's supper was administered to about sixty. The brethren contributed as follows: Angeline Jordan, 50 cts.; Mary H. On the 2nd, Lord's supper was administered to 218 persons."

Rev. J. L. Massey, of Linden, lost his horse from botts when twenty-four miles away form home. He then borrowed a mule to drive to his appointments, and it dropped down from the same disease, leaving himself and wife in a buggy within one mile from church. He wants to know a cure.

Advice to Consumptives.

On the appearance of the first symptoms, as general debility, loss of appetite, pallor, chilly sensations, followed by night-sweats and cough, prompt measures of relief should be taken. Consumption is scrofulous disease of the lungs, therefore use the great anti-scrofulous or blood-purifier and strength-restorer, Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Superior to cod liver oil as a nutritive, and unsurpassed as a pectoral. For weak lungs, spitting of blood, and kindred affections, it has no equal. Sold by druggists. For Dr. Pierce's treatise on Consumption send two stamps. WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

George William Curtis in a letter asserts that Secretary Folger's ability and character are unquestioned, but the manner of his nomination was fraudulent; and believes the Republican voters in New York and Pennsylvania will repel the "unscrupulous cabals which bribe with public employment, and pay their way by filching from the public treasury."

Remarkable for overcoming diseases caused by impure water, decaying vegetation, etc., is Brown's Iron Bitters.

Make your home beautiful. You, we are talking to, who read this paper. You have "no money to spend," you say. We did not tell you to spend any. Your home can be made beautiful by a little labor. A few trees set out here and there to give their cooling shadows when the fierce sunlight falls. A few flowers yonder to brighten with their contrasting colors the green grass you should have here. A little whitewash on that fence and barn. All these cost nothing, or next to nothing, and they vastly add to the appearance of your place as well as to its comfort. Make your homes beautiful.—Exchange.

"I Don't Want a Plaster."

said a sick man to a druggist, "can't you give me something to cure me?" His symptoms were a lame back and disordered urine and were a sure indication of kidney disease. The druggist told him to use Kidney-Wort and in a short time it effected a complete cure. Have you these symptoms? Then get a box or bottle to-day—before you become incurable. It is the cure; safe and sure.—Knoxville Republican.

To Purify Water.

A large spoonful of pulverized alum, sprinkled in a hogshead of water and stirred around, will, after the lapse of a few hours, precipitate all the impurities to the bottom and make it as clear and sweet as fresh spring water; a pail full may be sweetened by, say, a teaspoonful to every four gallons. Another method of clearing and purifying water is to shell almonds, and having mashed them to a paste, stir them in water; they take with them all the impurity of the water to the bottom. This is more expensive than the alum, and also more effectual. A handful will cleanse a cask of water of forty gallons.

This world is full of worry and anxiety. Heavy care rusts one out in a few years. Young men under heavy business pressure become gray before their time. They break down in the prime of manhood because of the cares and burdens which they are not able to bear. "Be anxious for nothing," says the blessed book which reveals the Savior to us. "Cast your burdens upon the Lord, who careth for you," ought to be remembered and never forgotten by those who put their trust in Him. Here are wisdom, sunshine, hope and sweet peace such as the world has never known. The Lord will not forsake his children.—The Christian.

Smith's Tonic Syrup

FEVER and AGUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER.

AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

The latest bid for popularity is Mr. Blaine's proposal that the United States assume a part of the State debt of Virginia. It will have a powerful scattering effect in the not distant future. If Virginia will not pay her debts, and the United States Government assumes it, what would it amount to but a heavy premium on repudiation? It cannot be that so shrewd a politician as Mr. Blaine seriously believes in the probability of such a measure succeeding. There is not a Northern State that would listen to the proposal. MOTHERS READ.

GENTS:—About nine years ago I had a child two years old and almost dead. The doctor I had attending her could not tell what ailed her. I asked him if he did not think it was worms. He said no. However, this did not satisfy me, as I felt convinced in my own mind that she had. I obtained a bottle of DR. C. McLANE'S CELEBRATED VERMIFUGE (genuine). I gave her a teaspoonful in the morning and another at night, after which she passed seventy-two worms and was a well child. Since then I have never been without it in my family. The health of my children remained so good that I had neglected watching their ails as until about three weeks ago, when two of them presented the same sickly appearance that Fanny did nine years ago. So I thought it must be worms, and went to work at once with a bottle of DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE between four of my children, their ages being as follows: Alice, 8 years; Charley, 4 years; Emma, 6 years; John, 9 years. Now comes the result: Alice and Emma came out all right, but Charley passed forty-five and Johnny about sixty worms. The result was so gratifying that I spent two days in showing the wonderful effect of your Vermifuge around Utica, and now have the worms on exhibition in my store.

Yours truly, JOHN PIPER.

DO BATTLE FOR HUMANITY.

BY THE BARD OF NIAGARA.

Do battle for humanity;
Do battle for the truth!
Yield not a moment to the wrong
But fight for age and youth,
Till virtue's banner all unfurled
Shall wave o'er our polluted world.

Do battle for humanity;
With firmness, love and zeal;

a community, but has believed in them and helped to execute them; has not only been an attendant at church but an active and, perhaps, devout member.

Let him come to New Orleans. The open stores and saloons on Sunday, are a surprise to him; the crowds on the corners and in the coffee-houses shock him. He goes to church, perhaps his business is sight-seeing, or he may be a member of an "investigating committee;" at any rate he wants to see all he can, so as he leaves church he watches the people a little. He follows one, whom he has noticed as taking an active part in the services, and who seemed especially devout, he sees him enter a coffee-house only a few blocks from the church and order a drink. He turns away surprised and disgusted, Surely he thinks he must be a "sheep in wolf's clothing;" assuredly his church is not aware that he drinks!

He mentions it to a friend, a resident of New Orleans, who laughs at him for his scruples, and tells him that we do things differently here from what you do in your straight-laced town; and the more he observes the more he is convinced that they do things differently. Perhaps he concludes to make is home here, and little by little as he mingles with others, he begins to do as they do. Occasionally when he reflects he is ashamed of himself, and, perhaps, sorry, but the power of example is so strong that he continues yielding his principles till they are hardly recognizable. He will tell you as an excuse for his absence from church that a man who is confined to business during the week needs recreation on Sunday, that that was the design of the Sabbath. Moreover, if he has a little job of work that he wants done, Sunday is the handiest day in the week to do it. In short, "the Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath." He will quote St. Paul's advice to Timothy: "Drink no longer water, but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake and thine often infirmities;" and it is quite remarkable how many "infirmities" he will develop and how often they will need the "little wine."

There are only two ways in which he permits the dirt to gather in his house, and disease to spread in his body.

Nobody who has not experienced it knows how easy is this downward way. How easy it is to "fall away from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits." How easy to be "a partaker of other men's sins."

St. Paul knew and so he exhorted Timothy to keep himself pure.

There are hundreds of men to-day in New Orleans who would, had they kept themselves pure and uncontaminated by influence, and maintained the good character which they brought here, not only have saved themselves from the ranks of drinkers and Sabbath-breakers, but have helped others who have been influenced by them to have led clean lives also.

A man occupying not only a high position among our law-makers, but an official position in his church at home, comes here and secure in the thought that he is unknown, does as the Romans do, and is a disgrace to himself and his constituents.

Such things happen frequently. It is a pitiful thing to contemplate the weakness of poor human nature; but it makes us understand the necessity of the "line upon line and precept upon precept," which we find in the Bible.

A life of purity is the result of [illegible] strife, constant warfare [illegible] self and sin. Not only by [illegible] is the life rendered impure, [illegible] by words and by thoughts. [illegible] what James says: "If any [illegible] you seem to be religious, [illegible] bridle not his tongue, but [illegible] his own heart, this man's [illegible] is vain."

[illegible] the good house-wife, always [illegible] for accumulating dirt, [illegible] ready to put a thing out [illegible] place, must be the one [illegible] keep himself pure; he [illegible] on the look out for any [illegible] for where there is sin [illegible] be purity; the two [illegible] incompatible and cannot [illegible] place.

[illegible] better for our lives [illegible] of the mercy, [illegible]

Christ says: "But if you forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive you your trespasses."

This is expected and comes from head-quarters.

Now, a forgiving spirit is something more than not wishing our enemy evil, nor desiring to harm him; we must wish him well, and be willing to aid him in whatever tends to promote his welfare.

I think we may be sure we have forgiven an enemy when we can pray for him. I don't know what the experience of others may be, but I have found it impossible to pray for any one so long as there remained a shadow of animosity in my heart. Of course, the lips could utter the words of a prayer, but not coming from the heart—it was, consequently, not a prayer.

God has marked out the way, and He has made it straight and narrow, lying directly over self.

Color Line.

Recently we have noticed several articles in different papers and comments upon the published card in the Age from the pen of Rev. E. H. King, pastor of the first Methodist Episcopal Church at Birmingham, Ala., in which he declares that the M. E. Church in that city, of which he is pastor is exclusively, for white people. Rev. Mr. King makes no explanation for his ridiculous card, only that he says, "in view of certain occurrences and misapprehensions which exist in the mind of some." Will Rev Mr. King tell what had occurred that has called forth such a wicked and unchristian act, to draw the color line at the door of a Methodist Episcopal Church? Bro. King should be more explicit in so great and important a matter. What is the "Misapprehension that exists in the mind of some?" Do the colored people apprehend in Birmingham that they can worship God in a Methodist Episcopal Church built for white people exclusively? There is undoubtedly a great "misapprehension" somewhere, for this is the first time that we have ever seen it upon record that the old mother Methodist Church had one in her whole denomination built "exclusively for white people." If this be true, as one of our Bishops presiding at Mississippi Conference at Oxford said, when one of our presiding elders was representing one of our members of his district, that the whole circuit depended upon him, "Well the sooner the man or the church dies the better for the whole charge." So in my humble opinion the sooner Rev. M. King and his "exclusively white church" goes to heaven, or dies, the better for the whole denomination, for it stands for down right caste, and the M. E. Church does not tolerate anything of the kind. Or was that one particular church in Birmingham built upon that base, or is that the way that our "white work" in the South is to be carried forward hereafter? The moving of straws indicate the way the wind is blowing.

It may be that Bro. King assumes that inasmuch as the General Conference has allowed the annual conferences to divide on the color-line, that he has the same right to exclude colored people from the white church in Birmingham. If this is the position of Bro. K, Mr. Editor, is he or is he not justified in excluding colored people from his "white" church? There is something dark in this inhuman and unchristian treatment of the colored people by some of the leaders of our "white work" so called in the South. We want more light.

It is also very noticeable that the Methodist Advocate at Atlanta, Ga., has had nothing to say upon the subject, but perhaps that able editor is only waiting and watching the result, for it is quite strange that that paper should be silent when such an outrage as this is being perpetrated upon the colored members of the M. E. Church.

Will Rev. Mr. King, of the "First Methodist Episcopal Church in Birmingham of which he is pastor," please explain his position, and be a little more explicit in statement of his reasons for excluding colored people from his church? Fraternally yours,

J. M. SHUMPERT.

Pro Rata Distribution.

BY REV. L. M. HAYGOOD.

The financial plans of our church are acknowledged equal to, if they do not surpass, any plans of any religious organization in this country who collect money only for the purpose of carrying out the commands of the blessed Master. In fact, to my mind it appears plainer each time I think over it that the plan of prorata distribution in our church guards the interests of every preacher in the church from the Bishop down, and its very make up goes to show that men of God inaugurated it. By the proper understanding and execution of this plan, no conference, district, circuit or station will have (if any desire it) the privilege of supporting the bishop, as such, and neglect the presiding elder, or support the P. E. and refuse to contribute means for the support of the pastor, but understand it to mean that the money raised for the support of the ministry, shall be divided between the bishop, presiding elder and pastor, and that each shall receive such proportion of the whole as his part is of the whole, no more no less. The law of our church considers every congregation under the watch care of three pastors: the presiding Bishop, elder and pastor in charge. This is just as it should be for it is beneficial to all. My attention was called to this subject by hearing an official member say: "Well, they have sent Bro. B. back as presiding elder and we do not intend to give him any salary, for he does not do as we wish him to do, and he preaches so much about duty that we are tired of it," and then he is always wanting us to "remove the old land marks" and take the discipline for what it says, and we've never been used to it. The minutes of a certain annual conference attracted my attention also to this subject. If this matter of pro rata distribution is properly observed there will remain no necessity for complaints coming in as they do of deficiencies in the salaries of bishops, presiding elders or pastors.

The discipline plainly declares that the amount apportioned to each pastoral charge for the support of the bishops, shall be a pro rata claim with that of the stationed preachers and presiding elders, and no such preacher or presiding elder shall be entitled to his allowance except to the extent to which the claims of the bishops are met by the station or district with which he is connected; that in all cases the presiding elder shall share with the preachers in his district in proportion to what they have respectively received; but if there be a surplus of money raised for the support of the preachers in one or more circuits or stations in his district, he shall receive such surplus; provided he do not receive more than his allowance. This I understand to have been enacted that no bishop, presiding elder or pastor would receive his salary according as he pleased or displeased the congregation while doing his whole duty as a minister of the Lord Jesus. Now, from the above I learn that in no conference, district, station or circuit is the bishop entitled to all his salary unless there be no deficiency for ministerial support from that conference, district, station or circuit. And what is here said of one is meant for all the three, so that no presiding elder is entitled to all his salary at any one place, unless the bishop and pastor's whole claim is met. Applied as well to the preacher as the others, so he is not entitled to his entire claim unless the bishop's and presiding elder's claims are met in full of all demands. There will be charges that will not support the pastor because they love the presiding elder so much better, or it may be it will not support the presiding elder because they love the pastor and he is more popular. Now to meet such cases I think is the object of the pro rata distribution. plan and if not for this it indeed does much good in this direction as well. Of course any such actions as above stated would not only be unjust, but if persisted in, after proper information as to duty in the case, would be open rebellion against the law of the church and would be dealt with accordingly. If the people, over whom we watch and for whom we labor do not understand this matter, it is high time. If this enactment is right and just, then it should be adhered to by all. Suppose no such law existed, and I was presiding elder and came up to [illegible] with my entire salary from [illegible] preaching place in my district, and the pastors in my district were not able to get to conference on account of having, received only one-fourth of their salaries, and their wives and children needing the comforts of life—would such be right? Or, suppose the pastor should come up to conference with all his debts settled, wife and children comfortably situated, and all the year he had been neglecting to call attention to the subject of presiding elder's salary, and had in every way discouraged the people when desirous of giving money to pay the presiding elder's salary, could that Brother expect to enjoy the aid of the Holy Spirit or receive the warm grasp of his defrauded Brother's hand? Most assuredly not. Such handling of money and actions would not only be deleterious, but unchristian-like and a thrust under the fifth rib of our system of itinerancy. To say such actions could be performed by none save an enemy of our presiding eldership, does not palliate the crime or exonerate the criminal. Picking up the minutes of a certain conference, we found in one district $2829.65 estimated for pastors' salaries, and $359 for presiding elders, and $15.75 for bishops. Out of these amounts the pastors received $1878.40; presiding elders $362, bishops $11.35; leaving a deficit for pastors of $951.25. Presiding elders receiving $2.25 more than the salary estimated, while the bishops came out $2.85 behind. In another district we find estimated for pastors $3769; for presiding elders $369; for bishops $80. Received by pastors $1668; presiding elders $334; bishops $70. Leaving the pastors $2101; presiding elders $35, and bishops $10 behind. In another district we find pastors' salaries estimated at $4801.80; presiding elders $613; bishops $69.50. Received: pastors $4123.30; presiding elders $555; bishops $40.40. Leaving the pastors a balance of $678.50; presiding elders $58; bishops $29.10. Now this is not for the purpose of criminating any one, but simply going to show one of two things, viz: that the law in the case is not known, or else not observed. Suppose it is disregard for law, (which we are unwilling to admit) then the time would soon come when a preacher, presiding elder, or bishop, would be acceptable and receive his salary only when he bared his neck to the yoke of those in his congregation who would hold the bag. Then he would not dare lift up his voice against theatres, horse-races, circuses or the dreadful liquor traffic. Now it must all come from an irregular unmethodistic mode of raising these collections. I think of but few districts that will make better showing than the above. Now, I think there is no law laid down in the discipline that should not be observed, however much to us it may seem they need to be altered.

Columbus District—West Texas Conference.

DEAR EDITOR.—I am too busy to write much or often. I am traveling this immense district with a team; this gives me less time than I would have if I could travel by railroad.

My work begins at Lockhart, thirty miles south of Austin, and to-day I am near the Lynnville Bayou on the border of Brazos county.

I find your old friends—the Boons—to be earnest Christian men. They are opening up a large plantation, and are raising this year immense crops of cotton and corn. They are also doing something in the way of raising stock. I wish all the colored people were as thrifty and enterprising as they are.

Whenever I pass this way I am entertained by Mr. John Matthews, a member of the M. E. Church South, a merchant and stock man, who makes me welcome as long as I can stay with him.

When I am in this region I divide my time between his place and the Boons.

Our work in Maltagorda county and Wharton county is very young and feeble, but it is very hopeful. We are making a severe effort to build a church in Wharton, not so much to shelter the Methodists we have there, as to reach the people that are not religious at all, The Church Extension Board have made us a donation of $250 00 from the McCabe fund raised especially for frontier churches. With this help we hope to get a church 23x45 feet inclosed so we can use it.

This has been a year of unusual [illegible]ty in this district.

[illegible] District Conference held at Oakland the first week of September, the preachers reported more than 500 conversions since the last annual conference, and there have been several meetings held since and a good many conversions, making the number at this date about 600. The best part of the work is, the preachers are learning how to do careful pastoral work, so that nearly all these converts will be saved to the church and to the cause of Christ.

Porter in his "Hints to Self-Educated Ministers" says: "He is the best disciplinarian who holds the most believers to the cross and the church." I have seen pastors who seem to enjoy the weeding out process as much as they did the gathering in process, and by their reckless manner of handling converts a large portion of them never come into full connection.

The Sunday school work Prof. G. O. Richardson did for us at District Conference is bearing fruit all over the district. Even in this remote corner they are getting the help necessary to make a Sunday school profitable. The new songs Mrs. Richardson taught us at District conference are ringing over nine counties. Pray that God may bless our workers and our work.

G. W. RICHARDSON, P. E.

CANEY, October 14, 1882.

Sunrise Around the World.

Morning dawns on the isles of the Pacific where the palm-grove, the coral-reef, and the lagoon are to be seen. Westward it moves, irradiating at once Australia and Japan, the gold-diggings of the Briton, and the summer gardens of the Tycoon. Next Java seas and Chinese waters reflect the morn; the one studded with spicy isles, the other teeming with ships of antique form. On it goes, lighting up the populous cities of China, the shrines of Siam, and the temples of Burmah, until the tops of the Himalayas reflect the first rays of coming day. Brighter grows the light upon its lasting snows, and wide it spreads on either hand, o'er ocean's waves and Tartar land, until jungle and city, deep defile and Hindoo temple, are flooded with the light of day. Onward still it moves, over Afghanistan and Persia, until the snows of Ararat are suffused with a crimson glow. Brighter grows the light, until surrounding seas reflect the day, until the camel's shadow is projected on the sand, and the mosque and the minaret are revealed on Zion's hill. Onward still it advances in ceaseless march, illuminating the classic shores of the Mediterranean, and spreading far away to Caffre hut and Lapland burrow; embracing at once Zambesi and Nile valleys, Grecian Isles, and Russian steppes. At length the Alps are all aglow, and the shadows of night chased from the valleys. Darkness retires from the scene, and reveals the rolling Rhine, the plains of France, and the hills of Spain. The British Isles, too, are all in view,—the greensward of England, and Scotia's rugged strand. Having lighted up the Old World, westward it moves to seek a New. The waves of the Atlantic are irradiated from pole to pole. Ten thousand sails mirrored on the deep, or rocked by the tempest, reflect the day. A New World comes in view, from the shores of the Amazon to Labrador; wide savannas, emerald isles, populous cities, mighty rivers, and pine-clad hills, embrace the day. On marches the morn over fertile plains and dark primeval forests, over the banks of the Amazon, the windings of the Mississippi, the net work of railways, and the waters of the great lakes, until beyond green savannah and rolling prairie it glows on the snows of the Andes, and the tops of the Rocky Mountains, where the condor trims his plumage, and the grizzly bear skulks to his lair. Down the mountain-side it pours, until Chilian cities and California sands are mirrored in the waters of the Pacific. Again its march is o'er the deep, until, amid the beauteous isles where day began, it resumes its glorious course of sunrise round the world.

"O'er many an ancient river, O'er many a palmy plain;"

A meeting of wool growers was held at San Antonio, Texas, to organize for the defeat of Hon. John Hancock, a free trader to Congress. They declared that his defeat was of national importance, and the producers of nearly 10,000,000 pounds of wool marketed in San Antonio annually, could not prosper after the removal of a protective tariff.

"Rapid Transit Lager Beer Saloon."

Such are the words which are placed above a down-town saloon in this city. What a terrible significance they have! "Rapid Transit" indeed, from respectability to ruin, from health and happiness to disease and death, from what might be a heaven here to a hell hereafter. Easy travel is it along the downward road with a swift and pleasant gliding motion, but what a terminus! Could the end be seen, how few would be the passengers along its sin stained way! One is reminded of the vision of the dreamer, who saw a bridge stretching over a broad, dark stream, with here and there a trapdoor, down through which ever and anon the unheeding passenger fell—fell from the bridge of life into the rapidly rolling river of death, and not of death alone, but eternity. Surely this is one of the largest traps. Never are its hinges still, but one victim after another falls through, struggles hopelessly with the roaring torrents, and is swept away to join thousands of unwary ones who have preceded him.—Ex.

The Providence Journal took exceptions to the late address of Rev. A. D. Mayo before the Social Science Association, in behalf of National Aid to Education, on the ground that the South practically denies suffrage to the negro voter, whether educated or uneducated, and the North should not be taxed to support their schools. Our contemporary should put on his spectacles and read the bills now before the two houses of Congress. He will learn from these, first, that it is proposed to appropriate, not solely Northern money, but funds gathered from the general sources of revenue of the whole country, of which the South is an important section; second, that this money is for the elementary education of whites as well as blacks, for public schools; and if the great crowd of ignorant white voters down South can be properly educated, they will probably outgrow any habits of political prescription in which they now indulge; third, that if the colored people could be elevated by education to a fair degree of intelligence, there would be no reason for suppressing their vote, and they could be trusted to hold their own against the wiles or oppression of corrupt politicians, with which both the great parties are amply supplied; fourth, that the debasement of the franchise in the South is no greater, and not half so dangerous, as in many of the great cities of the North, which are ruled by abominable rings, and plundered as by a gang of highway robbers; and finally, that the people of the South, who are entreating Congress to grant this aid, are not the ballot-stuffing and bull-dozing gang, but the better class in all these States, who deplore such crimes and seek the aid of the Government to educate their section above them. Even Rhode Island would not allow an Agassiz or a Garfield to vote unless he possessed a hundred or more dollars in real estate. Massachusetts forbids all men who cannot read and write and pay a poll-tax to vote. To refuse aid for the education that will reform the political corruption of a section till that section is politically regenerated, is a good deal like the doctor refusing to write a prescription till his patient has recovered his health by special interposition of the will of God.—N. E Journal of Education.

If you want to succeed in the world, you must make your own opportunities as you go on. The man who waits for some seventh wave to toss him on dry land will find that the seventh wave is a long time coming. You can commit no greater folly than to sit by the roadside until some one comes along and invites you to ride with him to wealth and influence.—John B. Gough.

The Texas Advocate says: The editor left last week for Tennessee, where he was, on the 3rd inst., united in matrimony with Mrs. Jennie Vaughn, of Gallatin. The Doctor carried with him the best wishes of his many friends, who have prepared a welcome for him and the gifted lady whom he has chosen. Pro tem. predicts that the readers of the Advocate will discover a new inspiration directing in the future the Doctor's always ready and fertile pen."

Education and Suffrage.

Benjamin F. Butler, a gentleman distinctly remembered in New Orleans, is the nominee of the Democratic party of Massachusetts for Governor. The general qualification for suffrage in that State is the usual age (twenty-one years), a residence of one year in the State; and in the town or ward six months, and the payment of a State or local tax within two years. The Constitution also says that no person shall vote or be eligible to office who is unable to read the Constitution in the English language and to write his own name. The classes cut off from suffrage are those who cannot read the Constitution in English, write their own names, or pay a poll tax. General Butler now appears before the people demanding the abolition of all educational qualification for suffrage. How many people there are in Massachusetts who cannot read and write we are not able to say. It is said on good authority that quite a majority of the illiterates are women and that ninteen twentieths of all the illiterates are of foreign birth, and that most of them are either Irish, or French Canadians, and Roman Catholics. These illiterates are "responsible for full three-fourths of the pauperism, crime, and youthful vagrancy of the Commonwealth." Thus the good people of the Bay State are compelled to pay the cost of the shiftlessness, crime and general demoralization always associated with ignorance. This restraining clause in the Constitution may be a little hard upon the illiterate, but certainly it cannot be said that it throws any obstacle in the way of gaining the qualifications for suffrage, nor that they are unreasonably hard, so it cannot be said that there is any injustice to the illiterate. What we need through all the South is a similar constitutional provision and legislation. Every town is enjoined by law to support an elementary free school for all classes of children for six months in the year. "Every town of five hundred families must support a high school with Latin for ten months in the year, and every town of four thousand people a high school where in addition Greek and French, and the higher branches of a thorough academical education are taught. Any town or city violating these provisions may be prosecuted, fined in a sum twice the amount it ever raised by school tax, and from five hundred to a thousand dollars for [illegible] to elect school officers."

While Massachusetts has no State university her school system is giving to twenty thousand young men and women something better than what is called a college course in half of the States of the Union. Indeed, in no State are the facilities for thus obtaining any sort of education for which the child has the capacity more abundant. The poorest child in the Commonwealth has the run of the whole free school system, so there can be no excuse for illiteracy, every person has abundant opportunity to learn to read and write. In addition to the above, every parent or guardian is [illegible] to send a child to some school twenty weeks in the year from the age of six to fourteen, unless educated at home. No child under ten years of age can be employed in any manufactory, mercantile, or mechanical occupation, and no youth under fourteen unless [illegible] twenty weeks schooling each year. Thus the State makes [illegible] provision for the education of every child. The qualications for suffrage are simple and at every [illegible] door. The charge of injustice to the illiterate cannot for a [illegible] be sustained. The chief [illegible] to this constitutional [illegible] as to the literary qualification for the elective franchise [illegible] from the Roman Catholic [illegible] clergy, and a class of [illegible] demagogues, who hang [illegible] like reeking, festering [illegible] displace this constitutional provision would not be [illegible] a looking forward to a [illegible] future, but backward to [illegible]. [illegible] D.D., [illegible] Church [illegible] Miss.,

[illegible] Person [illegible] 1798.

[illegible] Franklin, Alabama, and remained in this position 19 years. He was a member of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church five times. At the Conference of 1844 he was chairman of the committee who reported the monstrous plan of separation. He was an active member of the Louisville convention in 1845. At the first General Conference of the M. E. Church, South, at Petersburg, Virginia, he was elected and ordained bishop, by Bishops Soule and Andrews. Bishop Paine was an able minister, a great lover of the doctrines and discipline of his church, a real Christian gentleman. As a presiding officer, he was prompt, dignified, firm and genial. At the last General Conference held in Nashville, last May, after reading an appropriate address he announced his retirement from the work of the ministry. After the close of the conference the Bishop loved and respected by all of his colleagues in the Episcopacy and brethren in the ministery, retired to his home in Aberdeen, where, surrounded by loving friends he has been waiting for the boatman to take him over. He was buried in the cemetery, Odd Fellows Rest, Saturday morning, Bishop McTyeire officiating.

Tidings from the Field.

Coming from Holmesville, where the guns seemed to be rightly adjusted against the common enemy, and arriving at Booneville in time to conduct the services on Sunday night September 10th, and to hold the conference next morning, it was pleasant indeed, on examination of our companies here, to find them all well drilled, under strict advancing marching orders, and really going forward, in spiritual and financial conquests for the church. Too much cannot be said in favor of our officials and members here. This year has witnessed almost a constant race among them; each striving to outrun the other in the work of building up our Zion. The noble contention for the mastery, manifested by these brethren, is so very charmingly dressed up in Christian loveliness, that one is easily persuaded to believe that it is but the manifestation of a lively faith. On quarterly meeting Sabbath, the leaders headed their classes in a contest to see which classes would contribute more liberally toward the payment of debts of the church, with the following results:

Class No. 1—$13 75; class No. 2—$4 35; class No. 3—$2; class No. 4—$3 05; class No. 5—$1 35; class No. 6—$7; class No. 7—$5 40—Total $36 90. Grand results for the season! A church, composed so largely of open-handed and freehearted people, cannot help from growing. And it does grow. It is growing, spiritually and financially. The Sunday-school also is growing, in numbers, in interest, and in influence. Pastor and people are lovely and loving. Bro. Thompson says he has no fear of not having his $100 for our Gilbert Haven School of Theology. When the cotton bolls open, he will get the money. But pleasant as it was to meet these brethren in their devotional exercises, in their interesting quarterly conference, and in their hospitable homes, duties, which never conflict, called elsewhere, and on Tuesday morning September 11th, in company with Bro. Stephen Green, a local preacher of our church here, I started through the woods for our work on Bayou De Glaise. Bro. A. Hilton, our self-denying and persevering pastor here, in a Baptist community where our church has few friends and less members, amid the most formidable obstacles and the greatest discouragements, is patiently laying the foundation deep and broad for the future growth and expansion of Methodism in these parts. It is true, we have scarcely a handful of members here, but these few are assisting to unfurl the blood-stained banner, and in the spread of scriptural holiness; and like the leaven in the barrel of meal they are reaching out, and already beginning to exert a healthful influence upon the community. These results, Bro. Hilton says, are largely due to his Sunday-school, and the aid of the SOUTHWESTERN. These, under God, are his trusted instruments with which he hopes to widly open the way for our church on Bayou De Glaise. And the way is opening; for whereas at the second quarterly conference we scarcely could get any one to come over to our church, at this, the third quarterly meeting, our temporary church building was crowded to suffocation, with as many [illegible] outside of the doors [illegible] quietly and devotion[illegible] to the services. [illegible] of the meeting [illegible] bership here, but we can boast, in proportion to the membership, of having the largest Sunday-school and the the largest list of subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN, on the LaTeche district. Mr. Ravillier, a friend of our church, has donated an acre of land upon which to build, and the Church Extension Society, that strong helping hand in this field, has appropriated $200 for this work, and under a favorable Providence our work on this Bayon will soon be permanently established in the work of saving sinners and diffusing light in this benighted region. The next point of observation was at Cheneyville. Here Bro. Sparks leads our forces; and right faithfully has he applied himself to the task of strengthening the weak places in his line of defense, but the results have not proven quite as satisfactory as was desirable; but nothing daunting he persistently continues his efforts. This charge is comparatively weak, hence the greater need for faithful and courageous officers and leaders, men, who like Joshua have been divinely taught to be strong and of good courage, and who having the presence of the Lord with them are neither afraid or dismayed. This indeed, is the great element of success for pastor as well as people, anywhere. Without it there are constant bickerings, jars and confusions, all to the great detriment of the cause of Christ, which we would advance. At Avoca, about fifteen miles above Alexandria, on the right ascending side of Red River, Bro. Wade Hampton is doing yeoman service for the success of our work. This is another one of the new openings which we are trying to occupy. A lot has been donated to us, the frame of a building 25x35 has been reared; 20 members and 40 Sunday-school scholars have been gathered; and future expansion is assured. The signs of the time are encouraging, and with renewed hope and vigorous energy we hope to accomplish much good work in this section.

The Louisiana Lottery.

We are indebted to a friend for a copy of the Weekly Press, of Baton Rouge, containing a paper signed "X," on the "Louisiana Lotterp, its position in State politics." We summarize it.

"X" says that Truth (another Baton Rouge paper) complains that the Northern press, uninformed, are continually intimating that Louisiana politics are compassed by a Lottery concern; and it denies that it is an issue in State or national politics. "X" asserts that this is absurd, as the discussion has been going on for years, not only in the press of the North, "but in every department of the State and Federal government, as well as by the press of the South. The Truth itself has again opened the political discussion by taking issue on the lottery question with those members of the Legislature who favored the passage of bills to charter more lotteries, and for having voted to continue the lease of the Slaughterhouse charter, and other alleged monopolies, after having voted to abolish the lottery company, and makes direct charges and insinuations against them by saying they "had a scheme to further, an axe to grind, a bill to pass and probably a quid pro quo to realize," and whose hypocrisy "is too transparent for popular gaze. * * It goes a step further by making it a party question in this canvass. It says "that every prominent office holder in Louisiana is charged with being in affinity with this concern."

Truth having asserted that "the alleged lottery domination" is a "calamity doing great injustice to men of unsullied record," "secretly mooted and clandestinely used to impair the Democracy of the State," X concludes that it is calumny to charge the office holder with being in affinity with the concern, but not so to "charge and insinuate that members of the Legislature designated by it are venal, corrupt hypocrites." Truth admits that the lottery is immoral.

Says "X": "The Supreme Court of the United States in a recent lottery case held that these institutions belong to the police power of the State, and that the people themselves cannot bargain them away, much less can a State Legislature barter them off. These powers are always under the control of the Government, and can be exercised at any time to preserve and improve the morals of its citizens. There are no vested rights in a lottery charter, and the Congress of the United States in the exercise of its constitutional powers has passed stringent laws closing its mail against all lottery schemes, with heavy penalties against those who violate them."

The Louisiana State Lottery [illegible] by a Republican [illegible] and the charter was repealed [illegible] Legislature of 1879. It has never been rechartered, says "X," the Constitution of the State has not done it, and the courts cannot legislate it back into existence, "and it remains a bogus fraud, blazing its infamous effrontery before the world, a stigma upon the fair fame of Louisiana. In defiance of the postal laws of the United States, and with consent of the Postmaster General, it monopolizes the U. S. mail, to the exclusion of its kindred schemes—the Kentucky and other lotteries—which are prohibited from carrying on their business through the mail. It is time that the people all over the State should rise up and demand of its public men pledges that they will use all lawful means to strike down this hydra-headed monopoly. The lottery question was sprung upon Mr. Ellis even in his nominating canvass. This gifted Congressman met the charge openly and honestly, and his vindication was complete."

The views of "X" are certainly interesting, and we cordially approve of his appeal to the people of this State. It was asserted that the Lottery defeated the renomination of Hon. E. W. Robertson for Congress from the Sixth District: now, we are informed that Mr. Ellis was confronted by its influence. How long will the good people of Louisiana submit to this offensive monopoly?

Free Speech in Mississippi.

A recent dispatch from Canton, Miss., announced that a Hill (Republican) meeting had endorsed Barksdale (Democrat) and deprecated Hill's candidacy. The Vicksburg Herald comments: "After a gentleman from Canton explained to us a number of red shirts took a hand, we didn't think it so curious. In all soberness we advise that no bulldozing or fraud be attempted anywhere."

Says the same paper:

AN OUTRAGE.

We did hope this campaign would end without it being necessary to make any complaint of the conduct of extreme and reckless men. It seems we are to be disappointed. We have heard mutterings and rumors from various quarters and are quite certain some things have been done t at good citizens cannot countenance. We hear that it was impossible for Judge Alcorn to speak at Fayette by reason of disgraceful interruptions by tin-pans and other noise-producing things. Judge Alcorn is a gentleman, a Southern man, an ex-Confederate, and entitled to free speech, no matter how much he may differ in opinion from others. If he was only the most ignorant person, not a Southern man, not a Confederate, he would still be entitled to free speech.

Worse than the above we are reliably informed a gross outrage was offered Register Bruce when he spoke in Jackson. A package of finely pulvarized pepper was thrown at him. Had it struck him it would have filled his eyes, and if it had bursted near him, he would have had to cease speaking.

We have put a very mild phase on the information given above. If the facts are not as stated, nothing will give us greater pleasure than to make a correction. If they are as stated, we appeal to those instigating them to desist. The effort to suppress free speech and to defraud the ballot can only end, in the long run, in injury. The time has arrived when Southern men to attain the highest prosperity, have only to be patient and just.

And again:

Why did you publish that? The Herald was asked that question yesterday. Reference was made to the Bruce speaking at Jackson and the Alcorn attempted speaking at Fayette.

When matters of public interest are to be concealed, there is something wrong. We believe the readers of newspapers want to know what is going on, and we publish such news as we can collect. If the occurrences referred to were right, why conceal them? If they were wrong, how can similar ones be prevented in future more effectually than by publishing them to the world?

Because Democrats do wrong, or commit blunders, it does not follow that it is sound Democracy to conceal, condone, or countenance them. It is surely not Democracy to prevent free speech. On the contrary, we think no greater harm can be done the National Democratic party, than can be accomplished by a few selfish, reckless Southern men in preventing free speech and defrauding the ballot.

We call special attention to the advertisement of a night school at the New Orleans University. We understand that the leading teachers, including the President, will teach alternately; so that every one who attends will have the most thorough instruction. While this school will not be a substitute for the day school, yet for those who are compelled to labor, it offers an excellent opportunity to acquire a knowledge of such branches as will be of great benefit both in business and in social life. Let those who see this notice and advertisement, call the attention of their friends to it, and urge them to avail themselves of so favorable an opportunity, for we are informed that unless a good number attends, the school will not be continued beyond Christmas.

Prin er's Ink.

We believe in the proper use of printer's ink. But it seems to us that the Rev. E. H. King, Birmingham, Alabama, when he announced through the public press that the Methodist Episcopal Church of that city was not intended for colored people, and that they must keep away, "an announcement," says Zion's Herald, "so brutal and unchristian that we do not recollect ever having seen its parallel;" and Rev. John F. Spence, D.D., President of the East Tennessee Wesleyan University, in his attempt to defend this Alabama monstrosity, have made a bad use of printer's ink. We know of no two men in the Methodist Episcopal Church who are more surely, and, we trust, sincerely, to regret their sin and folly than Rev. E. H. King and John F. Spence, D.D. The Methodist Episcopal Church is not in the South to promote a gospel of caste and disunion. Churches are built in the East and West, in the North and South, for Christians, for corporate bodies to worship in. But the pastor of the Methodist church in Birmingham is the first to declare that the house of God was not open to colored people. Unfortunate man! The Methodist Episcopal Church cannot stand in the South on his platform. The Christian Advocate, New York, demands that the church be "purged from the stain and stigma of this thing."

Whatever may be said by the political enemies of Alexander H. Stephens, governor elect of Georgia, we think that one, and perhaps the great cause of his popularity, is his intense interest in the common people. His constant efforts to promote their welfare have endeared "the old man eloquent" to them. They believe he is their friend, and have faith in him. We look to his governorship hopefully, to his administration as an era in which the educational institutions and measures of the State will receive a healthy impetus.

PERSONAL.

—Thanks to Rev. H. J. Wright for copies of Alexandria, La., papers.

—Senator Jonas is assisting Gen. J. Floyd King in his Congressional canvass.

—Hon. Morris Marks, collector of internal revenue, made a pleasant call this week.

—The California Conference invited Bishop Hurst to make his home on the Pacific coast.

—Dr. Fitzgerald has resumed editorial charge of the Nashville Advocate, after a long illness.

—Herbert Spencer has failed to regain his health in this country, and will return to England next month.

—J. Y. Gilmore, editor of the Sugar Bowl, called last week. Few newspaper men are more industrious or enterprising.

—Hon. W. P. Miles leaves South Carolina to take charge of a large sugar planting interest in Louisiana.—Charleston Advocate.

—The Kentucky Military Institute has given the degree of Doctor of Divinity to the Rev. J. P. Nolan, of the Missouri Conference, Church South.

—Bishop Foss was present with Bishop Harris at the New York Preacher's meeting. Dr. Sayre says his return to work must be slow and cautious.

—Rev. Samuel Davage of Wesley Chapel, this city, has returned from a sojourn in Shreveport and vicinity, much benefited in health and ready for vigorous pastoral work.

—James E. Evans, D. D. of North Georgia conference, M. E. Church, South, has been appointed commissioner for the theological school of the Colored M. E. Church of America.

—Col. Ralph Plumb, a wealthy citizen of Streator, Ill., and now mayor, has just built a large and handsome school building; furnished and fitted it at a cost of over $40,000, and presented it to the township.

—Mrs. Dunton, a missionary of the Women's Home Missionary Society, from South Carolina, we learn from the Western, has been delivering addresses in Cincinnati and vicinity in behalf of the work in the South. She has made an excellent impression.

—The printers of Meridian have contributed money sufficient to erect a nice marble stone over the remains of the late John A. Jacobs, an old printer, who was crushed by the train a short time since.—Mississippi Methodist.

—G. W. Shelby, a student of Wiley University, has taught school in Sabine parish, La., and recently at Allen, La. He proposes to return to Wiley, and seems to be deeply impressed that he has a duty to perform in the uplifting of the people. He asks for Christian prayers in his behalf.

—We are glad to announce the appointment of Rev. A. H. Gillet, of the Michigan Conference, as agent of the Methodist Sunday-school Union for the South and West. Presiding elders holding district conferences as ministerial associations will do well to confer with Bro. Gillet. His address is Cincinnati, Ohio.

—The sudden and unexpected death of Rev. Thomas Guard, D. D., pastor of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church, Baltimore, Md., is announced. Dr. Guard was one of the most brilliant pulpit and platform speakers in our church. He was a native of Ireland. The preachers of Baltimore and Philadelphia have made special and appropriate expression of their sorrow.

—The Columbia, S. C., Christian Neighbor says the death of Dr. J. W. Parker, Oct. 11, has cast a gloom over the community. He was born in Philadelphia in 1803, and graduated in medicine. In 1836 he was elected Superintendent and Physician of the Lunatic Asylum, which position he held until 1870; but in 1876 he was elected assistant physician, which position he held at the time of his death. He was a consistent Christian and a faithful Methodist.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

ARKANSAS.

H. H. McAllister, Clarendon: "Our work is growing in Monroe county. In addition to Saulsburg I have Clarendon the capital of the county. Clarendon has grown wonderfully since the Palmer road has been built here. Great field for Methodism. I stop at Saulsburg."

MISSISSIPPI.

W. M. Gatewood, Walthall: "The people are picking cotton, and will soon be better off. Have had 69 conversions on the work this year. We have three acres of land properly deeded, at Walthall, and one at Bellfontaine; at Greensboro we have two acres. At Walthall we have 5000 feet of lumber, at Bellfontaine 6000: The trustees at Greensboro have asked for some aid from the Church Extension Society."

J. J. Harris, Columbus; "Protracted meetings on the Columbus circuit have been closed, and the result was 23 conversions and 7 additions. The presiding elder visited us at Moore's chapel, and preached to a large congregation. The young men of Military chapel have presented the pastor with a fine hat. The ladies said they would not be outdone, and during the contest the pastor will be well clothed."

LOUISIANA.

The Sabbath school of Ames M. E. Church gave a concert in the auditorium of the church, Sabbath evening October 22. In preparation for the event the young people of the congregation decorated the pulpit and altar with flowers and evergreens. The exercises consisted of sacred music, recitations by the children, and short addresses by a number of clergymen and others. The audience was large and appreciative, the collection liberal

Letter from La Teche.

MR. EDITOR:—I am at home again and well, thank God. The Lord has been very gracious and is smiling on His work here. Brother Lyon, our pastor, is vigorous, hopeful, progressive, and seeking to save the lost. The church grows under his care. Professor Wells is at his post, always a faithful and successful teacher. It is a hopeful sign, a fact encouraging to God's friends, that so many young men are rising up among us, who, in their education, are learning and have learned to build up, not to destroy. The work of destruction requires no talent, only reckless purpose. Upbuilding, edification, requires a diversity of talents trained to skillful work. Thank God for good workers.

La Teche Seminary is opening the fall session with a good outlook. The Orphans' Home, will, in a few days, present a scene of renewed activity in the work of finishing. The writer of this note arrived at home only yesterday; but work will soon be resumed. The last four or five mouths have been spent in the North, recuperating health and working for this dear cause. The few mouths to come will show its good results. The day of usefulness for hands of colored singers is not yet past. No entertainments are more acceptable to the Christian public than those given by a company of genuine people of the African race, with a Christian spirit, and under discreet management. The original Fiske Jubilee Singers are still traveling and singing. The Tenesseeans, who were originally organized under the auspices of our Freedmen's Aid Society, and who raised for it about $14 000, are still traveling; although they are not under the auspices and control of that society. The University Singers of New Orleans are also traveling, and I believe successfully. No such company is now more popular than the Seminary Quartette and La Teche Children, who are expected to reach home ere the opening of winter. This mode of raising money—i. e. by concerts—for a benevolent object, has its disadvantages and drawbacks. But what kind of human action has not its weak points? Perhaps this business of concerts has as few as any. You will allow one that has experience thus to speak. An agency for money raising that pays its own way, not discounting the liberality of the people for expenses, certainly commends itself to favorable regard. The Seminary Quartette and La Teche Children have now been well introduced to the public, and it is to be hoped that if they should renew their travels in the future they will be found very successful.

We enjoy always the visits of the SOUTHWESTERN, and are looking forward with pleasant anticipations to the editor next official visit.

May your shadow ne'er grow less, Mr. Editor. We've had brown bread and baked beans with lots of your old friends in New Hampshire, who all bade us give us give you a good shake of the hand for their sake. Now, then, here goes a pen-shake, and when you come this way we're in for something more.

Truly, W. D. GODMAN.

NEW BOOKS.

The Conversation of Children, By Rev. E. P. Hammond, M. A. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 & 12 Dey street, New York. Price 30 cents.

The City Temple Pulpit, Sermons with lectures on Homilties by Joseph Parker, D. D. N. Tibbals & Sons, 124 Nassau street, New York. Price $1 50.

Dr. Parker is one of England's famous preachers and authors. The book before us is full of suggestive points for ministers and teachers, and affords some of the best religions reading to thinking men. Most heartily do we commend this book to our preachers. It is handsomely bound. Send orders to N. Tibbals & Sons, 124 Nassau street New York.

Purgatory; Doctrinally, Practically and Historically Opened. By William Barrows, D. D., with an introduction, by Alexander McKenzie, D. D. American Tract Society, 150 Nassau street, New York. For sale by W. D. Skillman, 90 Camp street.

Here is one of the most interesting and instructive books that we have read. The theme is one of general interest, but seldom treated with any detail. Its study and wide circulation can but be productive of great good as it will bring men to carefully consider the teachings and promises of the Word of God.

Driftstock: Or Life on the Frontier. By Miss L. Bates. American Tract Society. For sale by W. D. Skillman, 90 Camp street. Price $1.

Those who have read Miss Bates, former books need not be told how clearly and sincerely and thoughtfully she writes. She is evidently a reverential believer in revealed and experimental religion, and always writes upon a subject that has some immediate and practical relation to society, and insists upon right living, and right acting; and that to follow Christ was not to lose a particle of true manhood. This is eminently a religous book, and can be read by a child or adult with religious benefit.

Happy Hours With Our Little People, American Tract Society, 150 Nassau street New York. For sale by W. D. Skillman, 90 Camp street. Price $1.

The little people will find this book a rare feast. It is profusely illustrated and hansomely bound. It will form an elegant present during the holidays for children.

Mamedo: The Palm-Land Maiden. By Rev. R. H. Nassau, M. D. American Tract Society, 150 Nassau street, New York. For sale by W. D. Skillman, 90 Camp street. Price 90 cents.

In this charmingly told story, we have the habits and customs of Equatorial Africa clearly described. The author says that "almost all the incidents here narrated occurred under his own observation." The characters are natural, the scenes described true. We have read few books with more satisfaction. To any of our readers who seek for information as to the habits and customs of Equatorial Africa we commend this book.

My Girls: By Lida A Churchill. V. I. F. Series. Boston: D. Lothrop & Co. Price $1 25.

This bright and well written story will be read with genuine pleasure by all lovers of the better class of fiction. The four girls who are equally its heroines are four young lady telegraph operators in a large railroad office. At the time the story opens they are discharged from their positions and are discussing plans for the future. Each one has her peculiar dream. One, who has already written for the press, yearns for a literary life; another, who is possessed of a passion for music, dreams of fame and competence won through means of her voice; a third aspires to the platform as a public reader, while the fourth is content to trust her fate to the future, and take what comes. The result of their talk is a decision to go to New York together, to pursue their studies in the various directions alluded to, and a month later the little party of friends is established in a comfortable room, where they begin housekeeping under difficulties, but in the gayest spirits imaginable. The history of their experiences, their disappointments, trials, and triumphs, is fascinatingly told, and the reader who once takes up the volume will hardly lay it by until it is finished.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The American Agriculturist for November is at hand. We never scan its pages without wondering at the marvelous cheapness of the valuable information to be found within its pages. New York, Orange Judd & Co., $1 50 per year.

The Advocate of Bible Holiness for October is an unusually attractive and valuable number. The Bible Reading by D. Steele D. D., is worth the year's subscription. Published by McDonald & Gill, 36 Bromfield street, Boston. Price $1 per year.

Wilford's Microcosm for October is on our table. This is a monthly, devoted to the discoveries, theories and investigations of modern science in their bearing upon religious thoughts, edited by A. Wilford Hall, Ph. D. This magazine from the start has been a great success. It is a valuable periodical to those who are fond of speculative philosophy. Address Hall & Co., 23 Park Row, New York.

The North American Review for November presents an unusually diversified table of contents. "English views of Free Trade," by the Hon. John Welsh of Philadelphia, is a clear and forcible exposition of the differences between the economic situation of England and that of the United States, and of the considerations which make Free Trade imperative for the former country, if she would retain her position as the world's workshop. Joseph Neilson, Chief Judge of the Brooklyn City Court, writes of "Disorder in Rooms," a subject of profound interest to good citizens, and more especially now in view of certain recent occurrences. Dr. Wm. A. Hammond, ex-Surgeon-General of the U. S. Army, offers "A Problem for Sociologists," the problem being to determine the degree of responsibility before the criminal law, of persons affected by certain forms of insanity. "The Industrial Value of Woman," by Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, is a very able reply to an article recently published on "Woman's Work and Woman's Wages." "Advantages of the Jury System," by Dwight Foster, formerly a Justice of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, is a grave and learned defense of an institution which it is becoming the fashion to belittle and decry. The remaining articles are, "Safety in Theatres," by Steele Mackaye, actor and playwright; a symposium on "The Profession of Journalism," by Rev. Geo. T. Rider, and a symposium on "The Suppression of Vice," by Anthony Comstock, O. B. Frothingham and Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

FOURTH QUARTER. LESSON V. Oct. 29. JESUS BETRAYED AND TAKEN. (Mark xiv, 43-54.

Our last lesson told us about Jesus at night in the garden. Just after he told the disciples it was too late for them to help him bear his sorrow, they saw Judas coming with a crowd of men. The dim moon gave some light, and although it was near morning, it was still gloomy in the garden; but they knew Judas. He was one of their band, but the crowd were strangers, not friends, because they had swords and staves or clubs.

When they come nearer, and the little band can see them well, for they come to them, and Judas kisses Jesus. Judas does this to show them which one was Jesus, and as they know they crowd around and hold him. Judas, one of the disciples, has brought these men to take Jesus prisoner. It shows us what sin can do. Judas could even kiss the Savior he had been with so long, when by his kiss he gave him to enemies. One of the friends of Jesus drew a sword and struck one of the wicked crowd, but Jesus, who could do all things, only asked them why they came to catch him with swords, as if he was a thief and robber. Then all his disciples fled or ran away. They were afraid. May be if they had been awake with him and heard him pray, they might have been strong enough to go with him all the way even to the cross. They missed a great deal of help by that sleep, just as we all do now. Every time we wander away from Jesus we get weak, and one sin makes us ready for another.

The crowd take Jesus away from the garden to the palace of the high priest. He goes alone, not a friend with him, but Peter follows him afar off. The night is gone now, the day breaking, and Jesus is alone, with not one friendly face to cheer him on this his last day on earth.—Western.

J. CAMPBELL, P. E.

Oct. 18th, 1882.

To the Preachers on the Austin District.

DEAR BRETHREN:—The General Missionary Committee has made an earnest appeal for an advance in our missionary collections; and I think our corresponding secretary has furnished each of you with a letter to that effect. Now, the amount that was apportioned to our conference to raise this year is $575. This amount has been divided among the four districts. Our part is $143.75 I have divided this equally among the churches to raise, and it is so small that I know if you try you can get it. The crops are good and there is no excuse; if you fail this year you had just as well ask the conference for a location, for you will never succeed. Also, our conference school collections. Only four brethren in the whole connection have sent in anything. It is very nice to stand up in the conference and make promises, but it is much nicer to do what you say. As treasurer, let me ask you to send your money here, and to me, in time for me to make out my report. Remember, I will have cabinet work to do this year, and will not have time to receive this money at the conference; and if I had nothing else to do I would not want to receive the school money in Columbus when we need it here in Austin. Please send the money here and don't wait until conference. I desire the preachers on this district to meet me in Columbus, in the M. E. Church, at 9 o'clock, A. M., on the 6th day of Dec., 1882, as the conference will meet on the 7th. Brethren, please be there, I want to help you with your reports. My wife has gone home as you have seen from the papers; and I tell you, brethren, I have lost a help-mate in my work, as well as a loving and true wife. Pray for me. Your Brother in Christ.

DEATHS.

Bro. Wm. Cabrell died in full faith last March. Bro. Ned Hicks, aged 80 years, passed away ready and willing. Sister Silvia Marshall died Oct. 8th, a true member of the church. Her little grandson died Oct. 4, aged 10 years, a member of the Sunday school. Sister Dorcas Berryhill passed away Aug. 10th, aged 70 years. Metia Steen died in June; Mary Bufkin in April.

WM. GATEWOOD.

Walthall, Miss.

Sister Hopey Henderson was born March 10, 1855, and died April 10, 1882. She was married to Mr. Theodore Henderson July 1, 1876, and from this time to the day of her death, she lived a faithful member of the church. A husband and two children mourn her loss.

A. R. CARNES.

San Antonio, Texas.

We are sorry to record the death of Sister Maria Coleman, who departed this life Oct. 6th, 1882. She was formerly a member and stewardess of the A. M. E. Church, and was highly appreciated. During our great revival in March, Sister Coleman was one in our band that fought bravely in the battle at Bayou Goula M. E. Church, saving souls for the Master. At our sec. quarterly conference, having resigned from her church, while Eder Dale was present, she came forward for admission, was gladly received, and was elected steward of our church by the conference. During her short stay much good was done. She leaves a husband and four children to mourn her loss; while the church and her many friends lament sadly; for who will be able to fill her place and do the good she has done? Then we are satisfied that she lived all her appointed time and waited till her change came, which took place in the 40th year of her age.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT.

Sound Doctrine for the Sick. It would be as wise to attempt to regulate a chronometer with a pickaxe and sledge hammer, as it is to assail the obstructed and constipated bowels with abrading purgatives. That genial and healthful laxative Tarrant's Aperient, which relieves and tones the alimentary canal at the same time, is the safest and surest means of superinducing a regular habit of body, in cases of chronic constipation.

The Secret of the universal success of Brown's Iron Bitters is simply this: It is the best Iron preparation ever made; is compounded on thoroughly scientific, chemical and medicinal principles, and does just what is claimed for it—no more and no less.

By thorough and rapid assimilation with the blood, it reaches every part of the system, healing, purifying and strengthening. Commencing at the foundation it builds up and restores lost health—in no other way can lasting benefit be obtained.

I have been a great sufferer from a very weak stomach, heartburn, and dyspepsia in its worst form. Nearly everything I ate gave me distress, and I could eat but little. I have tried everything recommended, have taken the prescriptions of a dozen physicians, but got no relief until I took Brown's Iron Bitters. I feel none of the old troubles, and am a new man. I am getting much stronger, and feel first-rate. I am a railroad engineer, and now make my trips regularly. I can not say too much in praise of your wonderful medicine. D. C. [illegible]

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS does not contain whiskey or alcohol, and will not blacken the teeth, or cause headache and constipation. It will cure dyspepsia, indigestion, heartburn, sleeplessness, dizziness, nervous debility, weakness, &c.

EARS for the MILLION

FOO CHOO'S Balsam of SHARK'S OIL,

Positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.

This Oil is abstracted from a peculiar species of White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as the Carcharodon Rondeletii. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese People. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1 per bottle

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TENNESSEE.

B. F. Whitley, Sparta: "Elder Key held our fourth quarterly conference, and preached to a large congregation. 94 partook of the Lord's supper. Collection was $15. Spent five days in preaching, and had one convert; several others came forward to be prayed for. The last night we took up a missionary collection of $6. All committees are at work, and we are trying to have all monies ready by conference time. The elder devoted a good deal of time to visiting, and was welcomed by the people by whom he is highly esteemed. The elder and I were out on Cumberland mountain, looking over the country, and we met a boy about 13 years old and an old woman about 60 years old. The boy said he was never in Sunday-school or church in his life. We need more teachers and preachers, school houses and churches to look after the rising generation. We must send more men to the field."

G. W. Marsh, Bellwood: "I have held four protracted meetings, had 35 converts, and 23 joined the church. Times have been very hard, but are looking up. Elder Key held my fourth conference and preached for us."

LOUISIANA.

J. Richardson, Centerville: "There is some feeling among the people about the church we want to build at the station. They say it will break up the church in the village, but the people at the station are going ahead in their efforts to pay for the land. A benevolent society, of church members and sinners, lost its funds $217, by a defaulting treasurer. This has caused some excitement. The society is a hindrance to the church."

MISSISSIPPI.

Rebecca Bufkins, Greensboro: "We have prospered this year as never before. Bro. Wm. Gatewood is opening the doors that have been closed upon us for so many years. On the circuit he is now building three beautiful churches, to be accomplished soon, and they are in nice condition."

Jane Coffey, Sunday-school superintendent, Greensboro circuit: "We have five Sunday-schools, with an attendance of 300; have bought books to the amount of $37. The schools are well drilled, and Rev. Wm. Gatewood has done his whole duty. The three new churches are at Bellefontaine, Walthall and Greensboro. The whites have been very kind to us under Bro. Gatewood's pastorate. The Sunday-schools have sent $7 25 to Rust University this year."

O. Tolson, Hickory circuit: "Please allow me to say a few words in regard to our third quarterly conference held here by J. W. Dunn, P. E., Oct. 14 and 15. He gave a beautiful lecture, after which administered sacrament to [illegible]. Presiding elder's collection $12 50. We had a glorious time, at night during the lovefeast. I have had a great revival at all of my churches. Conversions at Wesley Chapel 22, backsliders reclaimed 9, [illegible] of the Baptist Church, probationers 22. Our last quarterly conference held by our presiding elder will long be remembered by the vast audience present. Our Sabbath-school in the morning was large and interesting, and all were much pleased at the address of the presiding elder. At 3 o'clock Rev. S. A. Steel, pastor of the M. E. Church South, in this city, preached an able, interesting sermon. About 200 communed at the Lord's table. At night our presiding elder preached an interesting sermon, after which 40 were received into full membership. It was a beautiful sight to see such a large number in front of the altar taking pledge to conform to the rules of the M. E. Church. The right hand of fellowship was extended to them in the midst of shouts and praises to God. Our people are much enthused, not only at the spirituality of our church but they are going to build a brick church in addition to the sum already collected, and last Sabbath we raised $61. Truly we can say the Lord in answer to prayer is blessing our Zion in this part of the vine yard."

Nature's Sluice Way.

The kidneys are nature's sluice-way to wash out the debris of our constantly changing bodies. If they do not work properly the trouble is felt everywhere. Then be wise and as soon as you see signs of disorder get a package of Kidney-Wort and take it faithfully. It will clean the sluice-way of sand, gravel or slime and purify the whole system. Druggists sell it, both liquid and dry, and it is equally efficient in either form.—Independent.

Put heart in your work, whatever it is. If it be the lowliest, simplest little task, it will be ennobled by your doing it well and cheerfully, and taking real pleasure in it.

By contracting a severe Cough and Cold, I was compelled to give up my daily work and keep to the house. A neighbor recommended me to try a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup; it was procured and used; to my astonishment relief was instantaneous.

In countries where malaria is prevalent, or where the climate is subject to sudden changes—should be found in every house Brown's Iron Bitters.

In Lancaster, S. C., they have had another of those remarkable colored political riots, in which six negroes were killed, but not a white man injured. In the adjoining county a bona-fide, old-fashioned, Ku-klux, red-shirt rifle club broke up an independent Greenback political meeting with yells and pistol firing, and a violent attack upon the speakers. Evidently these are among the final spasms of a conquered but not destroyed barbarism.—Zion's Herald.

DR. JOHN BULL'S

Smith's Tonic Syrup

FEVER and AGUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER.

AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

All kidney and urinary complaints, especially Bright's Disease, Diabetes and liver troubles Hop Bitters will surely and lastingly cure. Cases exactly like your own have been cured in your own neighborhood, and you can find reliable proof at home of what Hop Bitters has and can do.

Satan's Kindling Wood.

Beware of cigarettes. Says a correspondent of the "Rural New Yorker:" I have tried cigarette smoking, and have examined cigarettes, wet and dry. I find opium and fenugreek in them to such an extent that the smoking of one or two would narcotize me, although I am an old smoker. In closely observing ardent smokers of cigarettes, I have observed the effect of the opium in the eyes and its unmistakeable operation on the nervous system, and in other ways have seen the ruin the use of the fashionable cigarette is bringing upon men and middle-aged men, too. That there is misery and death in the use of the cigarette as now made, I challenge any man to deny. No person who habitually uses them, as now prepared, can long be healthy, especially in the nervous system, nor can such persons long have good sight, appetite, or physical comfort.

$1,500 a year can be easily made at home working for E. G. Rideout & Co., 10 Barclay street, New York. Send for their catalogue and full particulars.

Autumn is the best time to clean fruit trees, and indeed all plants, from scales and insects. Now the fruit trees can be handled with less liability of breaking buds and spurs than in the spring after the buds have begun to swell, and the work will be as effective now as then. Use strong soap-suds of whale-oil soap. Apply it with a stiff brush, and do not continue the washing to the trunk, but go over all of the small branches and everywhere on the tree where scales are found.

A LETTER FROM GERMANY.

SIEGEN, January 9, 1882.

Very esteemed sirs:

The praise your Liver Pills have called forth here is wonderful. After taking one and a half boxes of your genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, I have entirely recovered from my four years' suffering. All who know me wonder how I, who, for so many years, had no appetite and could not sleep for backache, stitch in my side, and general stomach complaints, could have recovered.

An old lady in our city, who has suffered for many years from kidney disease, and the doctors had given her up, took two of your Pills, and got more relief than she has from all the doctors. Yours truly,

J. VON DER BERG.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar-coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid with the impression: McLane's Liver Pill.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signature of C. McLane and Fleming Bros. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently, but of same pronunciation.

If your storekeeper does not have the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, send us 25 cents, and we will send you a box by mail, and a set of our advertising cards.

Ague Cure

Is a purely vegetable bitter and powerful tonic, and is warranted a speedy and certain cure for Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and all malarial disorders. In miasmatic districts, the rapid pulse, coated tongue, thirst, lassitude, loss of appetite, pain in the back and loins, and coldness of the spine and extremities, are only premonitions of severer symptoms which terminate in the ague paroxysm, succeeded by high fever and profuse perspiration.

It is a startling fact, that quinine, arsenic, and other poisonous minerals form the basis of most of the "Fever and Ague Preparations," "Specifics," "Syrups," and "Tonics," in the market. The preparations made from these mineral poisons, although they are palatable, and may break the chill, do not cure, but leave the malarial and their own drug poison in the system, producing quinism, dizziness, ringing in the ears, headache, vertigo, and other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure. AYER'S AGUE CURE thoroughly eradicates these noxious poisons from the system, and always cures the severest cases. It contains no quinine, mineral, or any thing that could injure the most delicate patient; and its crowning excellence, above its certainty to cure, is that it leaves the system as free from disease as before the attack.

For Liver Complaints, AYER'S AGUE CURE, by direct action on the liver and biliary apparatus, drives out the poisons which produce these complaints, and stimulates the system to a vigorous, healthy condition.

We warrant it when taken according to directions.

MR. EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my mother and father. I left them when I was a boy about ten or twelve years old. Mother was Nancy, father Joe Foster, sister Franky Foster. She was sent back home and I was sold. I had a brother who was sold before I was named Ingeire Foster, and cousins Frank and George Foster. I was born in Richmond, Virginia. I do not know what year. Mother had seven or eight children. I am about thirty-four years of age, and have a wife and eight children. My masters were Dick and William Smith. They all lived in Hanover county, Old Church post office. Address me at Waynesboro, Miss. C. FOSTER.

MR. EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my mother and six children. Oldest brother was Amos Lacey. I left him and sister Mary in Houston county, Texas. Mother had four children with her. George, Ellen, Robert and James. Mother was Jane Burtipt. Brother Amos' wife had two sons by a previous marriage—Harvey and Edmond. Brother Amos had three girls—Ann, Virginia and Catherine. They belonged to Bill Long, on Brazos river, one mile from Waco. Bill Barrett bought me from Bill Long in March, 1853. Last owner was George Merrit, father was Robin Lacy. Mother's second husband was George, and he was killed by the Indians while in the field plowing. She had a wen on her right eye. Address me at Resor Station, La., care of Jack Henderson.
ELIZABETH HENDERSON.

MR. EDITOR: I wish to see if my wife's relatives can be found. Her name is Margaret Foster. She belonged to George Kippert. Her sisters were Flora and Suion. MR. EDITOR: I wish to inquire for my people. Oldest brother was Isaac. I came next and am named Harriet. I was sold in Clinton, Jones county, Georgia. Brothers were Luck, Austin, George and Sam. Sisters, Mary Ann, Lucinda and Caroline. James White bought me in Clinton, when I was about thirteen years old, and carried me to Elbort county. Mother was Fanny Wyche, father Jack Dunn. At the time I lived two miles from Blountsville. Master was Peter Wyche. Address me at Waelder, Texas. HARRIET WYCHE.

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to see if my relatives can be found. I have a father, mother, and one full sister. Father was August Brown, sister, Louisa Brown, three half-sisters were Mary, Eliza, and Harriet Brown, two brothers were Joseph and George Brown. I was born in Maryland, and when eleven years old was brought to Tennessee. I remained there four years, and was taken to Missouri, and after being there two years came to Texas. I was brought to Tennessee by Jose Gamden, a speculator. Jesse Breese was my last owner. This occurred 1858 to 1866. I am about 39 years old. Address me at Roxton, Lamar county, Texas.
37-8t SARAH ANN LEWIS.

DEAR EDITOR: I desire to inquire for my sister Martha, who was sold from us when about seven years old to a man who lived near Bolivar, Tenn., named Tom Boyle. At that time we all belonged to John Green, except father, who belonged to Nat Woods. Father was Granville, mother Dollie, brothers William, Granville, and Richmond the baby, sister Laura. We all went by the name of Norman. Father belonged to Tom Norman, who lived at Whiteville, Hardeman Co., Tenn. Grandfather was Squire Norman, grandmother, Jennie Norman. Mother and all the children except Sister Martha are here in Texas. I desire to find her. Pastors, please read this to your congregations. Address, at Austin, Texas, her brother,

Ex-Secretary Evarts tells a delightful story at his own expense about a small donkey which he sent up to his country-seat for the use of his children. One of his little daughters, going out with her nurse to admire the animal in its paddock, was sorely distressed when the donkey lifted up its voice and brayed dolefully. "Poor thing! Poor thing!" exclaimed the sympathetic child—but suddenly brightening up, she turned to her nurse and said: "Oh! I am so glad. Papa will be here on Saturday, and then it won't feel so lonesome.'

In the United States District District Court Judge McKennon denied a trial to Joseph R. Black, Thomas A. McDevitt and Christian Price, convicted of star route conspiracy, and sentenced McDevitt to pay a fine of $500 and be imprisoned for one year and Price to pay a fine of $100 and be imprisoned for six months. Sentence of Black was deferred.

"Presumption begins in ignorance and ends in ruin." On the other hand, the production of Kidney-Wort began wise caution and scientific research, and its use ends in restoring shattered constitutions and endowing men and women with health and happiness. "My tormented back" is the exclamation of more than one poor hardworking man and woman; do you know why it aches? It is because your kidneys are overtasked and need strengthening, and your system needs to be cleansed of bad humors. You need Kidney-Wort.

Worth Knowing.

For burns, wet saleratus and spread on a cloth; bind this on the burned part, and in a few hours it will be well.

Vinegar will remove the disagreeable odor of kerosene from tinware.

Ants that frequent the houses or gardens may be destroyed by taking flour of brimstone half a pound, and potash four ounces; set them in an iron or earthen pan over the fire until dissolved and united; afterwards beat them to a powder and infuse a little of this powder in water; wherever you sprinkle it the ants will die or flee the place.

Hot alum water is the best insect destroyer known. Put alum into hot water and boil until dissolved; then apply hot water with a brush to all cracks, closets, bedsteads, and other places where insects may be found. Ants, bedbugs, cockroaches and other creeping things are killed.

Cockroaches can be destroyed by using smooth glazed china bowls partially filled with molasses and water. Set the bowls against something by which the insects can get in; they will not be able to get out.—Housekeeper

The case of Jack Turner affords another illustration of the necessity of a sixteenth amendment to the Constitution. The item we gave last week from the SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE states that the acting United States attorney telegraphed that the government could not protect private citizens. That is in accordance with decisions of the supreme court. The Constitution does not meet the case or authorize the necessary legislation by congress. State governments are expected to protect all citizens, and where they do not do so there is no remedy but in flight from that state or self-defense. As matters now stand, the colored people are obliged to submit to mobs and murders, flee from the country, or defend themselves and take the consequences. This is a horrible state of things for any civilized land and may lead to bloodshed any day. There ought to be "centralization" enough in the government to protect the lives and property of its citizens. Not to do this is contemptible. Protection is the guaranty of peace.—Atlanta Methodist Advocate.

DR. HARTER'S

A combination of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark and Phosphorus in a palatable form. The only preparation of iron that will not blacken the teeth, so characteristic of other iron preparations.

GENTLEMEN: I have used DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Diseases, Dyspepsia, and an impoverished condition of the blood, this peerless remedy, has in my hands, made some wonderful cures. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians, have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC is a necessity in my practice. DR. ROBERT SAMUELS.

WHILE THE DAYS ARE GOING BY.

There are lonely hearts to cherish,
While the days are going by;
There are weary souls that perish,
While the days are going by;
If a smile we can renew,
As our journey we pursue,
O, the good we all may do,
While the days are going by.
Going, going by, while the days are going by;
Do all the good you can, while the days are going by.

There's no time for idle scorning,
While the days are going by;
Let your face be like the morning,
While the days are going by;
O, the world is full of sighs,
Full of sad and weeping eyes—
Help your fallen brothers rise,
While the days are going by.

All the loving links that bind us,
While the days are going by;
One by one we leave behind us,
While the days are going by;
But the seed of good we sow,
Both in shade and shine will grow,
And will keep our hearts aglow,
While the days are going by.

A Pastor's Address to His Members.

BY REV. L. E. SPRINGER.

My Dear Brothers and Sisters—Will you not do what you can towards [illegible] a deep and extensive revival of religion in our community? "We are laboring together with God." God's design of grace was not fully met in your personal salvation. To be saved is but a suitable preparation for life; to be an active agent in the salvation of others is the real mission of life. "No man lighteth a candle and putteth it under a bushel, but on a candlestick, that he may give light to all that are in the house. Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works [be brought under the influence of your holy [illegible] and influence,] and glorify your Father which is in heaven," in their own conversion, and subsequent consecration of service.

Every one has a possible influence; and [illegible] are unfaithful [illegible] whatever motive [illegible] possession of that [illegible] endowed [illegible] into their [illegible] them to [illegible] no gifts [illegible] individual possession [illegible] in soul saving [illegible] the divine [illegible] in the full [illegible] saving grace in your [illegible] The sinners of this [illegible] the saints of [illegible] perish. [illegible] cannot be [illegible] of others [illegible] your voice [illegible] moral influence [illegible] is lessened [illegible] must [illegible] measure— [illegible] and kind [illegible] the [illegible] to be [illegible] In such [illegible] loss [illegible]; they [illegible] the Sunday-school by your presence and hearty participation? Can you not regularly attend the general services of public worship, and earnestly, and devoutly join in the exercises? Can you no make religious calls on your neighbors, and learn the personal religious condition of all within your social reach? Can you not converse seriously with the unconverted when suitable opportunities offer; and seek to make those opportunities? Can you not let them feel the direct influence of your prayers; and that there is a tender, gentle, yet intense earnestness on your part for them which cannot rest without their conversion? Can you not, at least, cordially invite, and, by persistence, secure their attendance at the place of prayer, and the house of God? Can you not watch for indications of the movings of the Holy Spirit on their hearts, and follow them up by personal effort? In your social correspondence, can you not drop a few words for the Savior, or enclose a leaflet, tract, or clipping, which, like an arrow of love may find a way to the heart? Can you not strengthen the hands, cheer the heart, and heartily co-operate in the plans of your pastor? Can you not plead for him at the throne of grace with that "fervent effectual prayer" which "availeth much?" Can you not be active in altar work during revival meetings.

Surely in some, many, or all of these ways you can help to promote a revival. If you have not the tact and ability of others in these directions, do not excuse yourself; for the same would be true of every person but one in each community. Do what you can. God does not ask your services with the abilities of another, but only with your own.

What can you do? Ask God! Talk with him so earnesly and frequently over this matter that you shall absorb his Spirit and become possessed of his mind. Ask him; not with a secret dread to know, and reluctance to do, but count it the highest possible privilege, and the grandest possible honor to "save a soul from death." Joyfully enter every door of opportunity and privilege which He shall open to you.

Is not the need great? Are there not large numbers in this community who are practical atheists? living as though there was no God, and they have no souls? heeding nothing of the awful verities of eternity, and caring but for the present? self-will or passion their only impulse, and pleasure, or sordid gain their sole life's object?

And are there not among the unsaved those in whom you have a special interest?

Husband! Wife! You are, let it be hoped, walking pleasantly with your companion hand in hand in the pathway of this life. Are you also walking heart in heart in the King's highway to eternal life? O believing wife, God hath commissioned thee to save that unbelieving husband! O believing husband, God hath commissioned thee to save that unbelieving wife! You once won that companion's love for yourself; can you not now win it for Jesus? Besiege that heart with the burning ardor of celestial love till you shall be "no more twain, but one" in Christ.

Parents! Where are those children with whom God has entrusted you? Their permanent habits and principles are now formed; are they heavenward?

Hasten, parent, and give yourself no rest till by every every loving means in your power you have led them to Jesus. Let them live in the atmosphere of your prayers and pleadings till they are awakened and won. Mothers! You once consented to labor in pains till your sweet babes were born, and rejoiced in their love. Now that they have come to moral accountability, can you not—will you not—enter the holier pains of soul travail till they shall be "born again," and become your perpetual joy through time and eternity?

Young people! Are your parents, or either of them, unconverted? You have received the sacred gift of life from them; will you repay your debt of ingratitude by bringing them to the spiritual life. Are [illegible] or social compan- [illegible] ought you [illegible] of joy- [illegible] other. You must draw your comrades to Christ, or they will draw you into the world.

O for a mighty revival which shall move this entire community and save all classes. It is largely for you to say whether, or not, such a revival shall come. The blessed Trinity, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, and all the angels are ready, if you are. Beloved, be moved not only to readiness, but anxiety, by the priceless value of a soul. Think of the glories of heaven that soul may gain or lose. Ponder upon the unspeakable woes of hell that soul must endure or avoid. Watch with the agonized Savior amid the gloom of Gethsemane, as that soul's load crushes its Redeemer to the earth and forces the blood, like sweat, from his brow. Follow Jesus to Pilate's hall and Calvary, and witness the supreme effort which God makes to save that soul. Place yourself by the great judgment seat of Christ, while your friends and loved ones come forth one by one to receive an eternal and irreversible award. Do this again and again in prayerful thought, till your heart shall well nigh burst in its aching to save some of the lost now around you.

Hasten, friends! There is little time to lose. The world is aggressive. It is already alluring with its soft snare of pleasure and folly; leading by its silken threads of fashion; and binding by its golden chain of greed. Hasten! Habits crystalize, and indifference deepens. Hasten! The days are passing, and the precious moments are swiftly slipping through the hour glass of life. Sudden removals, unexpected accidents, unwelcome diseases, and death will soon cut off some opportunities. Hasten to improve them while they still are open. Let every member say: "At least one soul for Jesus this season!" A doubled membership would be a mighty revival, and thrill all heaven with joy.—Lamp of Life.

From Our Mission Rooms.

CENTRAL CHINA MISSION.—Revs. G. Woodall and T. H. Morley, reinforcements for the Central China Mission, arrived at Chinkiang, Sept. 5, and Rev. J. H. Worley reached Kinkiang, Sept. 8. Mr. Woodall's address is, at present, Chinkiang. Mr. T. H. Worley's address is Yangchoo, care of Rev. M. L. Taft, Chinkiang. Mr. J. H. Worley's address Kinkiang.

The Annual Meeting of the Mission closed, Sept. 10, after an encouraging session. The school work which is so important seems to be well manned for the present necessities. Rev. C. F. Kapfers, according to the report of the superintendent, has made rapid progress in the language during his eight month's residence in Kinkiang. He has already been able to conduct services in Chinese.

DEATH OF MRS. M. WILCOX.—We are grieved to learn that Mrs. Wilcox died at Kinkiang, Aug. 27. "Mrs. Wilcox," says Rev. J. R. Hykes, "was a most estimable Christian lady. She endeared herself very much to us all, and we feel that we have lost a dear friend. She would have made a good missionary worker, but who shall say that her missionary career of only six short months is a failure. Brother Wilcox is very much broken by the sad bereavement."

PROVOKING THE CHINESE TO GOOD WORKS.—It seems that the Chinese officials, of Kinkiang perceiving the influence which the medical work of the mission exercises over their own people, have just opened an oppositiou hospital, under native management, in one of the city temples. In the proclamation they have issued calling for subscriptions, they say, "The foreigners by their hospitals, schools and other charitable institutions are rapidly stealing the hearts of the people." The influence of mission schools is evidently appreciated, for during the past years the Mandarins have on their side opened no less than eight free schools.

REV. DAVID HILL.—Missionary of the Wesleyan Society in Central China, who has spent twenty-one years in that service, has issued a very interesting pamphlet entitled "Mission Work in Central China. A Letter to Methodist Young Men." This is an appeal to Christians and particularly to Methodists in England, but we wish it [illegible] by every young man [illegible]. It is an urgent appeal from one whose heart is engaged, whoso labors have been abundant, and whose mind is awake to the measureless claim of China in many ways upon Christian endeavors. Mr. Hill is able to conduct this work, and he has gladly done it, at his own charges. He addresses among others the great number of Christian young men, lawyers, who have means at their disposal and desire to give their best service to Christ, calling upon them to consecrate their lives to the perishing millions of China. There is abundant work for them in the schools, in the hospitals, in various forms of evangelistic effort.

The Wesleyans have two missions in China, that in the Canton province, and this one in Hupeh, six hundred miles and more up the Yangtse, a province which borders at the north upon Kiangsi, the original field of our own Central China Mission.

We have one station, Hwang-Mei, within the province of Hupeh. Hankow is the great commercial city. The Wesleyans have somewhat expanded their operations in this province, "but," says Mr. Hill, "there are sixty counties in Hupeh still unoccupied, and twenty millions of souls still unreached, and yet the task which is here set before the Methodist people of England, of covering the province of Hupeh with a network of tract distribution and evangelistic visitation, carefully, prayerfully, consecutively laid, which by the power of the Spirit of the Truth, would enclose in the great Gospel net such a multitude of fishes as would require our brethren from the other boats to haul them in—this surely is not an impossible task." "We are well able," he continues, "in the name of the Lord to go up and possess the land. And if the work of Christ in China is to be prosecuted with business-like earnestness—if the house of the Lord, like every other house, is to be "builded through wisdom" and to be "established by understanding,"—if the sons of the light are to be as wise for their own generation as the sons of this world—if we really intend as far as in us lies, to make it a success, if our prayers are really to mean anything, and if the baptism of God's Holy Spirit, promised long, and ready now, is not to be sought in vain, then must we humbly, manfully, confidently face these our responsibilities."

Will the young men of Methodism in America heed these words? Will they remember with steady and anxious though believing prayer our own Central China Mission, and the great Yangtse River on which, in different regions, far inland and toward the sea, we are seeking to unfurl the standard of the cross of Christian sacrifice and labor? Will these young men who are looking out upon bright prospects in life, with means in hand and ability to achieve for their own pleasure—will they look upon China, its hundreds of millions in helpless heathenism, and "reckon," according to the spiritual arithmetic of the Apostle Paul, that no life's prospects can begin to compare with those of a career which measures up to the grand opportunities of an entire consecration for the salvation of China?

A MILLENNIAL RAY.—I am in receipt of the following remarkable letter from the West, which I wish all the churches to read:

"DR. FOWLER, DEAR SIR: I herewith enclose you a draft on New York, for $350, a personal contribution to foreign missions. It is the widow's mite, or rather both of them, for it is all I possess and is the result of several years of careful economy. I have for some time had a strong conviction that I ought to place this in the mission field, and the 'Go work in my vineyard' has come home so forcibly to me that I cannot pray 'thy kingdom come' until this money is on its way, and I have the satisfaction of knowing that I have done what I could to that end. I would suggest Japan or China, but of course you will know when it is most needed and where it will do the most good. May God prosper this work and hasten the time when 'His will shall be done in heaven as it is on earth.'"

And let us pray that the spirit embodied in this letter and the draft may soon become contagious.

C. H. FOWLER

Adversity links men together; prosperity is apt to scatter them.

Letter from Corinth.

MR. EDITOR: Please give space for a few facts concerning our work at this point. I was appointed to this charge by Bishop Foss, in 1881. I found the church in a dilapidated condition. I soon learned the great cause of the sad condition of the church was the division among the members. And my first effort was to secure a unity of feeling among the members, which in the course of about two or three months was accomplished, and then I went to work to build up, and my efforts were wonderfully blest.

My first sermon preached here was "Behold how good it is for brethren to dwell together," and it seemed to be a lasting discourse, one that has followed our people until the present time. During the first year of my work the Lord did abundantly bless our efforts, and resulted in the conversion of 112 souls, which were added to the church. I also found some little indebtedness hanging over the church and we went to work and paid that.

On entering my charge, the stewards levied a salary of $400 for the minister, and by the time we held our third quarterly conference they had the last dollar of it paid.

Allow me to say concerning our beloved presiding elder, J. M. Shumport, who was also appointed here by Bishop Foss, that he has won the love and confidence of the people at this point, by his prompt attendance, and love for the work which the Lord has called him to do; and his intelligent and kind manner of presiding over his people. The district conference saw fit to levy a salary of $60 for him, which was promptly paid at his last quarterly meeting of that year. We closed the year by saying our collections and expenditures were $375, which was principally raised by small envelopes for contributing purposes.

Now we enter upon another glorious year's labor for 1882. On my return from conference, I was gladly received and heartily welcomed by members and friends of the church by an elegant pound party given at the parsonage. We moved on slowly for a short time, and then entered into a protracted effort which resulted in 49 conversions, which were added to the church, also eight by recommendation. By this time our quarterly meeting came on, we had a quarterly collection of $63, at a single collection. We then moved on with glorious results, until the next quarterly conference, when we were able to make another excellent report. Our presiding older preached an able sermon on Sunday, which was listened to with profound interest, and at night the Lord's Supper was administered to 163 souls. The results of this quarterly meeting were so wonderfully felt that we entered into another protracted effort, which resulted in the conversion of 47 souls which were also added to the church, making a total of conversions 96, and 111 additions to the church. We then went to work to repair our church building which was in a very bad condition.

We had it to raise and put new pillars under cover and weather board, made a gallery in front, which adds a great deal to the appearance of the building, and after we had accomplished this work we had it insured for $1000, all of which cost the church $2 50, which was raised by the members and friends of the church, colored and white of this place.

We now wish to enroll the names of the contributors which we believe will add much to our future success:

George Gillem, $7 90; Matilda McDonald, $2 95; Harriet Brown, $3 25; Parileo Wilford $2 15; George Wilson, $3 35; Lottie Wilson, $3 30; Jeff Williams, $1 40; Mary Williams, $2 25; M. J. Letter from Laredo.

MR. EDITOR: Allow me, through your columns, to make a brief statement of my work at this place during the past year. I came here about eleven months ago, and found the field anything but inviting. There was not a member in town, neither was there a church edifice. The place was wicked beyond description. My lot has been a hard one. Hindrances have not been few. I have had to rent a house for worship during my stay here, at twelve dollars per month, raising the money as best I could. My board bill has averaged one dollar and seventy-five cents per day for the last eleven months. My wife by washing and cooking, myself by catching at work here and there, have managed to meet these obligations alone. The people have helped us very little. They have given us about twenty dollars during this year. I received from the missionary fund this year only one hundred and ten dollars. My family numbers five. With all my efforts brought to bear upon them, the people will not attend church. I have tried every known honourable means to raise money to support church and pastor, but have sadly failed. I have given festivals, but these have failed on account of the great disorder generally attending them, often ending in fights.

There are now connected with our church fourteen Mexican and four colored members. These are mere nominal members, professing Christianity without possessing it. Mexicans might be induced to join our church by the proper means. We must give them a house of worship that is respectable, and pay a man to give his entire time to laboring among them. This is what the M. E. Church South is doing. They ask the Mexicans what is the Society North doing for them? why they do not join the Southern church where they can get help? And the Mexican, looking upon our church, knows the argument produced is a good one. All these things I have had to contend with this year. The minister of the M. E. Church South tells the Mexicans that if they join the Negro church they will not be respected. The colored population is very small. If the church is built up it must be by the Mexicans, and they can be drawn in only by holding out to them sufficient inducements. I have done all I could under the existing state of things. Could have done much more had I been properly assisted by the conference. I hope you will give space to my statement, Mr. Editor, so that my brethren in the ministry may have a knowledge of my work.

LAREDO, Texas, Oct. 16th, 1882.

Fanciful and facetious titles for sermons are a great—are they a growing?—evil. Sedate and sober minds see in them an under-strata of vanity and conceit in the heart of the minister, and at the same a distrust of the supreme power of the plain gospel, They are a veneering so thin that the rotten wood beneath is not wholly concealed. They are too serious for play and too trifling for earnestness. There is nothing in all the apocryphal legends more ficticious than the feeble evangelical prattle that is rolled off so glibly under their guise. They are the deceptions of the stage amidst the solemnities of the pulpit; a play on the assumed ignorance and vanity of the people. "Preach the Word."

During the last ten years the population of British Burmah has increased thirty-six per cent. by means of births, and the cultivated area of land has increased more than sixty per cent. Thus it will be seen that the United States is not the only country in the world that is pushing forward marvelously.

The Negro and Fraternity.

We take the following from "The Presbyterian Journal:"

The Rev. Sam Park case which was settled by the Atlanta Assembly will be remembered. The question involved really was whether a man could be ordained to the ministry and yet not be a minister with the rights of a minister in Presbytery. A narrow majority of Memphis Presbytery decided that ordination necessarily conferred the rights involved in ordination. We remember that those who opposed Mr. Park's right were profuse in commending his course on the personal matter involved. But now he has given an important vote. Memphis Presbytery has sustained the Atlanta Assembly's Fraternal Relations action by a vote of 14 to 13. Mr. Park was one of the 14. And this is the way in which the Southwestern Presbyterian comments, first through a correspondent: "From this it will be seen that Sam Park's vote turned the scale!" And then editorially: "It will be seen that the colored brother, Sam Park, who figured so prominently in our last Assembly, has not suffered his newly-acquired rights as a co-equal Presbytery to be buried in a napkin. Sam is represented as an ignorant person, but he has a vote. And he proposes to put his vote where he thinks it will do most good. In the present instance, it is utilized to neutralize the vote of thirteen white men." What would such a fling be called in a political paper? What is it in one professing the Spirit of Jesus Christ?

Rev. Sam Park is doubtless a good Presbyterian. His vote to sustain the action of the Atlanta Assembly on the question of Fraternity, shows him to be no schismatic. Here, he was true to his God, his church and his country. His voice and vote were for peace, fraternity and union. He did not care to keep in remembrance the struggles and hatred of twenty years ago. He may be as the Southwestern Presbyterian charges, "an ignorant person," but, perhaps this is more his misfortune than his sin. Here, he may be more sinned against, than sinning. He did, however, use his acquired rights properly. He did not lay them away "in a napkin," he voted and saved the Memphis Presbyterians from going against the action of the Atlanta Assembly, on the question of establishing fraternal relations with the Northern Church. His "vote turned the scale." We are sorry to see that the vote of Rev. Sam Park so disturbs our neighbor. But, after all would it not be a little more Christlike to bury all those old war passions and prejudices of past time and press forward towards real practical fraternity? But why speak of Rev. Sam Park, as "Sam Park," or as "Sam?" Is he not a brother clergyman with rights co-equal with the rights of every and all other members of the Memphis Presbytery? We say to Rev. Sam Park, spit on your hands, hold on, keep climbing, press for education, fraternity and equal rights in Church and State. The iniquity of caste will soon [illegible]. Man, not his skin, brotherhood, not blackhood, nor whitehood, is God's text, and will soon become the text in all the churches. "Hold fast," brother Parks, "whereto you have attained."

Forgive and Forget.

"[illegible] is nothing smells so [illegible]" said Louis XII "as the dead [illegible] of an enemy." He could never [illegible]. Revenge was so sweet [illegible] was never heard calming [illegible] of men. He de[illegible] in blowing up, in [illegible] setting on fire those [illegible] somewhat akin to this [illegible] spirit of Rev. C. L. [illegible] of Greenville, Alabama, [illegible] a recent communication to [illegible] Christian Advo[illegible] North, says:

[illegible] to say that I [illegible] forgotten. [illegible] may seem, I [illegible] side. The [illegible] our enemies, [illegible] renees [illegible] brother [illegible] and be re[illegible] is [illegible] right[illegible] who has [illegible] on [illegible] him he [illegible] there[illegible] encourage[illegible] again.

[illegible] were in [illegible] mistreated, [illegible] is not [illegible] forget [illegible] together [illegible] North say:

[illegible] Let us be [illegible] and wider than that at which seperated Dives from Lazarus.

In striking contrast with the above is the following from the pen of Atticus G. Haygood, D. D.:

Is it not the right thing for us who remember the struggles of twenty years ago to lay away in the grave that rarely waits for it our wrath? Who supposes that our children will excite themselves about our war? Who that is not heathen in his instincts will try to inspire his children with the passions of a past or passing time? Religiou will rebuke our children if they denounce the children of those whom their fathers fought. Is it religious for us to indulge feelings which will be irreligous in our children? I cannot so make out the case.

I have in my desk a memorandum of a twenty-dollar gold piece given me in May, 1882, at the General Conference in Cincinnati by a preacher known and honored throughout the land, a member of a Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. It was given to aid in building a monument to the memory of that apostolic man, Lovick Pierce, of blessed memory. The memories of 1844 and 1848 did not restrain him. They did not restrain me. Why should they?

God bless, and multiply the tribe of Haygoods.

Vagaries of the Terrebonne Times,

"Tigerville, in the parish of Terrebonne, with a colored population of between 150 and 200, has not had a colored public school in the ward in which it is situated since 1876."

The above editorial paragraph which appeared in our columns a week or two ago seems to have had the effect of awakening up our confrere of the Terrebonne Times. Behind the editorial pronoun he thinks he recognizes this item of news as "emanating from the fertile brain of the Rev. A. E. P. Albert, (colored) assistant editor of the SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE, whose hobby is, and always has been, to 'get the bottom rail on top.'" He no sooner thinks he recognizes him than he shoots off a whole column of heavy lead at our assistant, but, thanks to the fact that it was all cold lead, misdirected and without momentum, our assistant survives it all. The editor of the Terrebonne Times does not contradict the correctness of our paragraph, but seeks to palliate it by charging that the "colored people had for ten years the exclusive use of the public school fund," therefore now the colored people have no reason to complain "if the white people, after supporting the colored schools for ten years, should desire that their own children should reap some benefit from the schools supported with their money." This is certainly far from the truth, and no one ought to know it better than the Hon. H. M. Johnson, the editor of the Terrebonne Times, who served as President of of the school board of the parish of Terrebonne for the greater portion of those "exclusive ten years." But we most emphatically deny that in the parish of Terrebonne or any other parish of this State the colored people did at any time have the "exclusive use of the public school fund," and we challenge Mr. Johnson to produce the facts and figures to the contrary. The next palliative pill he offers is that, at any rate, the white people alone contributed to this fund. While "not a dollar of that fund was paid in taxes or otherwise by the colored people." How absurd is this position! Who is so ignorant of the most simple axioms of political economy as to deny that the producing laborers in any country, are after all, the real burden-bearers of all the machineries of government? The poorly paid and often cheated colored laborers of Louisiana are no exception to the case. Like the editor of the Terrebonne Times, we would urge upon every man, white as well as colored, the sacredness of his duty to pay his poll tax. This we urge upon the colored people as a sacred duty, but not because we at all incline to the heresy that the colored people pay nothing "otherwise" to the support of all the departments of the government. To the charge that "corrupt public officials under the Warmoth and Kellogg administrations" stole any portion of the "poll tax that was collected" we plead ignorance. Editor Johnson should know as he was an "official" under one or both of these administrations. Again we quote, "We most emphatically deny that there has been any partiality shown by the school board in favor of the white population." But why deny so emphatically? Why not let facts and figures furnish the emphasis?

Give us the number of white children of school age and of colored children likewise; the number of schools open for the whites, and the number for the colored, the length of the session for the white [illegible] and also of the colored [illegible]. Let such facts furnish the [illegible] to whether the school [illegible] ity or not. We [illegible] against "The [illegible] A.

E. P. Albert attributes the closing of the colored schools, has been brought about by the colored people themselves, led by just such as himself, the height of whose ambition is to be placed on a footing of social equality with the whites." Again, our friend Hon. H. M. Johnson (made Hon. almost exclusively by colored votes) is at fault. It was white men's greed for office that annihilated the Republican party in Louisiana; white men, just such as the Hon. Mr. Johnson, men who found the negro a very useful animal upon which to ride into office, especially such fat ones as the Recorder's office, and into the Legislature, but a most contemptible creature when he got tired of being ridden and expressed a desire to ride some himself. Let it be published to the nation, that it was the unwillingness of the negroes to continue to do all the voting, while white men got all the offices, that killed the Republican party in this State. If their desire to share in the distribution of the offices, as well as in doing the voting, is an encroachment upon the borders of social equality, the more of it the better.

Since Mr. Johnson takes the privilege of advising us to "show less of prejudice," etc., we would softly remind him that, in any man who has been honored solely by colored votes as he has, modesty is a very becoming trait of character.

Tidings from the Field.

Nature, with her mighty magazines, crowded with tremendous active force, balances all matter, keeps the stars and dazzling planets like panting coursers, steadily in their tracks, binds all the universe with the mighty cords of gravitation, cohesion and chemical affinity, shatters the flinty rocks, and melts the most obdurate metal, but fails to change sinners or make the slave of sin a saint. With Rev. Joseph Hart, who sang over a hundred years ago, we can, with as much fervor and truthfulness now sing:

"The rocks can rend; the earth can quake;
The seas can roar; the mountains shake;
Of feeling, all things show some sign
But this unfeeling heart of mine."
"Thy judgment too, which devils fear—
Amazing thought! unmoved I hear;
Goodness and wrath in vain combine
To stir this stupid heart of mine.'

Human prisons, chains and fetters also may be added to subdue the rebellious sinner's vicious heart, but all in vain. Nothing but divine power subdues it. It melts and changes only under the searching influence of the purifying fire of the Holy Ghost. This graciously abundant power is as available and efficient as ever; and the church is the divinely appointed representative of this superhuman and miraculous force.

In Alexandria, our church is no degenerate sprouting of the true church, but is a genuine representative of this living power. The evidences thereof are felt and seen in the songs of praise, in the fervent prayers and in the liberal contributions of her membership. This last expression I emphasize, because all good Christians and earnest Methodists firmly believe in the quantity and quality of that religion which unties the purse string, throws open the purse, and that pours out the shekels of gold and silver, some upon the ordinary comforts of life, some in the brain, and no small portion in the contribution box, God's receptacle for our material offering in his service on earth. Neither is this contribution box to be despised, because it is a mighty shaft in the thunderbolts of that power which shall, eventually, purify the ballot-box, banish forever among men, the cartridge box, and usher in the glorious millenium of deliverance and eternal peace.

The Sunday school, with the lambs of the flock, is not neglected and is doing well. Bro. Morant, our pastor here, certainly, has reasons to be thankful for the degree of prosperity with which the Lord has crowned and blessed his labors.

At Pineville, our brethren under the pastorate of Bro. Henry Johnson, rejoice in many spiritual and financial successes. They have thrown down their old box church, and are putting up a neat and substantial frame building 25x40, which when completed will reflect great credit upon pastor and officers, and which will be worthy of our good people "over the river." The joint quarterly meeting of the Alexandria and Pineville charges, held in Alexandria, September 17 and 18, was a benediction to all. Our people here are alive over the thought that they are to entertain the next Annual Conference; and Bro. Morant assured us that he was preparing and planning for "big doings." The next points visited were Spring Creek and Stuart's Chapel. These are, comparatively, young and weak points; affording much work, and small pay, in worldly gains, but promising a rich spiritual harvest. Bro. Wright is our faithful itinerant on this work. He works, and waits upon the Lord, and although his support from the church is small, he and his devoted family have neither hungered or thirsted. Our church on Spring Creek being burnt down, as has already been published, we held our quarterly conference and services in the woods under the pines; and a grand time it was, for white and black came out in large numbers, and the Lord blessed us with His presence.

Next night, Wednesday, September 20, was spent at Stuart Chapel. Here too the work is upward, under the dawn of a brighter future. On this work Bro. Wright has a certain friend who keeps an open house for wayfaring Methodist ministers. He is not a church member, but he ought to be. His name is Hector Turner. God bless Hector Turner; may he become a Christian and live many more years to entertain way-faring heralds of the cross. After many hard travels, exposures, protracted sessions of quarterly conferences and a variety of services, Thursday morning, Sept. 21, when I took the train at Lamourie Tank for Opelousas and the remaining circuits and stations on my district, I was completely broken down, and sank under the prevailing malarial influence, with sore throat, chills and fever, and a heavy, dry and hacking cough. Arriving at Opelousas, Bro. Luster and his missionary spirited wife did all that they could for my relief and comfort, but all to no effect. The miasma was deeply seated and mild treatment did not avail.

The quarterly conference was held under difficulty, but I could not rally sufficiently to preach on the Sabbath, Sept. 24. The church and Sunday school were progressing quite satisfactorily. Bro. Luster was at work making some necessary repairs and beautifying the church, to the pride and satisfaction of his people. At Washington, on Sunday night, Sept. 25, I barely ventured to attend the services but could say but a word or two. Our meeting was graciously blessed, however, and resulted in 14 accessions and 4 conversions. Father Green is an old veteran, who both knows how and delights to storm the enemy's fortification. The church and Sunday-school are prospering.

The quarterly conference was held here Monday night Sept 25, under the almost forbidding condition of my health. Still I hung on hoping to recover sufficiently so as to finish my third round, but it was impossible to continue.

Bro. Luster attended for me at Flat Town and Waxia, while the other brethren were requested to hold their own conferences. And I returned home for medical treatment Wednesday, Sept. 27. Thus, in this trip, in my unexpected early return home, as well as in my late going on this round, I am again forcibly reminded that while man proposes, God disposes. A.

The Central Methodist, M. E. Church South, is right when it says: "A half dozen cold facts are worth a bushel of bombast." Give us some of the "cold facts" showing that the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is "just now the advocate of a political party, rather than a religious organization." The SOUTHWESTERN calls for the 'facts,' whether "cold" or hot. We expect, however, that Brother Meek is much in the condition of a certain man who refused to attend church, as he alleged all the preachers did nothing but preach politics. A good deacon of the Congregationalist church, for whom he was at work, after a great amount of talking, persuaded him to attend church one Sabbath. The preacher announced for his text the following: "If the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear." He preached a plain, practical and searching sermon. The deacon supposed of course that his man would be pleased, since he claimed to be very pious. On his return home, he asked him how he liked the sermon. "Not at all, sir," was the short and abrupt reply. "It was as I told you it would be, all politics from beginning to end." "No, no," said the deacon, "there was not the least allusion to politics in the sermon to-day." "Yes sir," said the man; "the text was politics, the prayers and all was nothing but Republican politics." "How so," asked the deacon. "The text was, 'If the righteous scarcely be saved, where will the ungodly and the sinner appear.'" "Yes, I know that was the the sermon, and I know, too, what he meant. He meant, if the Republicans are scarcely saved, where will the Democrats and Copperheads appear." (That is a question that we would like to have Brother Meek answer.) The facts were that he was looking through political eyes, and hearing with political ears; and no matter what he looked at or heard, he saw and heard politics. Our Bro. Meek is a Methodist preacher, who understands the art of application. We leave that with him. In the meantime we wait for the "cold facts."

The East Tennessee Conference.

This conference, composed of the former colored membership of the Holston Conference, was organized in 1880 at Greenville, by Bishop E. O. Haven. It held its third annual session at Morristown, Tennessee, from the 11th to 16th instant, Bishop M. Simpson, presiding. There are now 20 traveling preachers; 29 appointments; 54 local preachers; 421 probationers; 2,454 full members; 3 parsonages, worth $625; 40 churches, valued at $21,415; 69 Sunday-schools; 273 officers and teachers, 2,991 scholars; total expenses of schools this year, $149 14; number of scholars converted this year, 431. The pastors received from the people for their support, including presiding elders, $4,192 14; and from the missionary society $2,000; total, $6,191 14; raised for the bishops, $24 55; for conference claimants, $10 06. There are two districts. A conference seminary at Morristown has three teachers and near 100 students enrolled, from which it is hoped to be able to supply more and better preachers and teachers for our work and people.

The conference was kindly cared for by the people of Morristown. The M. E. Church, South, was opened to the Bishop on Sunday morning and was crowded to overflowing.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate writes thus earnestly on "lip loyalty:"

We find "lip loyalty" in several Christian denominations. Social and family attachment, do much in determining church relationship. There is too little of calm investigation and profound conviction on this subject. Church members become a prey to proselyters, because theirs is a mere denominational lip loyalty. If they remove to a place where the church of their early choice is weak—lacking social prestige and popularity—they are ready to enter the door of another if in so doing they can "get into society." We believe in the loyalty of principles, and have little regard for those disciples who esteem it a small matter to change their denominational name and associations. There are members who are a constant menace to the church; if we don't do certain things they will leave. Many a true pastor has suffered, both in flesh and spirit, listening to imaginary grievances and sinful threats. If there was more good neighborhood between denominations this class could easily be exterminated. But shame on the proselyting spirit! these complaints are encouraged, and made a ground of appeal to come and join their church.

The proceedings connected with the presentation of flags to the Upper Seamen's Bethel, New Orleans, Rev. Dr. A. J. Witherspoon chaplain, on the evening of July 3, 1882, have been embodied in a printed pamphlet of sixty-four pages, which will be sold at twenty-five cents per copy, the proceeds to go to the Bethel. A representative of this ADVOCATE was present on that very interesting occasion, and listened to the representatives of foreign governments, as in generous rivalry they vied with each other in honoring the time, the place and their respective countries. It afforded a good lesson in geography and patriotism which will long be remembered.

The President has issued a proclamation setting apart Thursday, Nov. 30, as a day of public thanksgiving.

The Commissioner of Indian affairs in his annual report says that the Indians are making favorable progress in civilization.

PERSONAL.

—Gen. Cyrus Bussey and family have returned to the city after a short absence.

—Dr. J. B. Burroughs, of Liverpool, N. Y., has contributed $5 to Ames Mission. "Go thou and do likewise."

—Rev. Dr. J. W. Rush has been elected editor of the Alabama Christian Advocate, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of the late Dr. Christian.

—Rev. J. L. Massey, of Linden circuit, Tennessee conference, has lost three horses from the botts within one month, and writes that he will have a hard time to get ready to meet the annual conference.

—While in Opelousas recently, our assistant was pleased to meet a genial old friend, Chas. W. Duroy, Esq., formerly of Terrebonne parish. He has opened a law office in Opelousas. We bespeak for him much success.

—That eminent, devoted, and useful Methodist layman, the Hon. W. C. DePauw, of New Albany, Ind., last week (Oct. 17) made a donation of $300,000 to Asbury University at Greencastle, Ind., and will arrange in his will for a further endowment. The whole amount of his gifts will be about $1,000,000.—N. Y. Advocate.

—The Rev. David Terry, the venerable Recording Secretary of our Missionary Society, is in a very feeble condition. He has been for some time confined to his house, and lately shows special signs of fast waning strength. During all these months his mind has been actively interested in the progress of Missions everywhere.—N. Y. Advocate.

—A correspondent of the London Christian World draws attention to the fact that Sir Garnet Wolseley was a Sunday-school scholar, in his boyhood, at Harold's Cross Sunday-school, Dublin, and points to the excellent record in attendance which he made. It was there that he gained his reputation of being up to time.

—The son of the late King of the Limba Territory, Western Africa, is at present in England under the care of the Rev. J. Booth, a Wesleyan missionary. The young prince is said to be about 16 years of age; an intelligent and consistent Christian youth. His uncle, the Regent, has engaged to build a new chapel at his own cost for the Wesleyan Missions.

—At the solicitation of the Board of Bishops of the A. M. E. Zion Church, Rev. J. H. McFarley has taken charge of the Star of Zion, as editor and business manager. It is published at Salisbury, N. C. The Board also heard Rev. J. C. Price relative to his labors in England in behalf of Zion Wesley Institute, and elected him principal of that institution. Session commenced on the second Monday in October.

—The papers announce the sudden death of Charles A. Whitney, Esq., president of the Morgan Steamship and Railroad Company. Mr. Whitney was born in the State of New York in 1825. In 1867 he came to New Orleans and took the position which he filled at his death. In all of his private relations, Mr. Whitney was an honorable man, a true husband and father. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife, three sons and two sisters.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

There are few Sunday-schools in or out of this city doing a better work than the one connected with the First Street Methodist Episcopal Church, Brother Y. H. Campbell, Superintendent. We have never heard more delightful singing in any school North or South. Sabbath was their day for the missionary cause. Earnest speeches was made by Brothers Price and Bardwell. We are confident that this school will send up to the next Conference a good report.

TENNESSEE.

Jesse P. Price, P. E.: "The members and pastors of West Tennessee District will please send in the money subscribed to pay on the debt of the Mason Church, at once, to Mr. J. W. Williams, in care of Rev. L. M. Moores, P. C., as early as the 12th of November, anyhow. HELP, Brethren, help!"

Notes from Nashville.

The State convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, held an interesting session in this city on the 22d and 23d inst., and completed their organization. There were some sterling addresses made by elect ladies from Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Charleston and Memphis. This is the first meeting of the convention, and though there were not many delegates present, there were enough to show that deep interest is felt in many parts of the State in the total suppression of the liquor traffic. Tennessee will be redeemed from the curse of this terrible business. The ladies of this Union are about to open a temperance coffee house or restaurant in this city, where meals can be had at reasonable prices without the necessity of going into a bar room, or being surrounded by the fumes of beer and tobacco. The Central Tennessee College has opened with a good attendance in all departments, and the need for more room to accommodate students, has been felt for some time, and is likely to be felt more this year than ever. Rev. C. Pickett, in charge of Nashville circuit closes up his first year with two new churches projected. There is room for them. Clerk Chapel under the pastorate of Rev. L. M. Hagood, will have a good record for conference year. The outlook is that there will be advances made all along the line in the reports at conference. J. BRADEN.

NEW BOOKS.

Empirical and Rational Psychology. Embracing cognitions, feelings and volitions. By A. Schuyler, L. L. D., President of Beldwin University, and Professor of Philosophy and Logic.

This book is not merely a compilation, but the product of years of careful research and thought. The author has succeeded in preparing a work not only adapted to the use of colleges and high schools, but to the general reader who may desire to understand the facts and laws of mind, it will prove a valuable instructor. The author divides his subject into parts, and each part is carefully and fully treated: Part 1, treats "Cognition and the Intellect." Part 2, "Feeling and the Sensibility." Part 3, "Volition and the Will." The volume is well bound. Published by Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio. Price, $1 40.

Gems of Illustration: From the sermons and writings of the Rev. Thomas Guthrie, D. D. Arranged under the subjects which they illustrate, by an American clergyman. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 and 12 Dey street New York. Price $1 50.

It is seldom that we take more pleasure in noticing and commending a book than we do this one, gathered from the writings of Dr. Guthrie, who for years stood at the head of the gifted and popular preachers of his day. His sermons and addresses abound in illustrations. Few have ever equaled him, and we know of none who have surpassed him in the beauty and force of the illustrations employed. In the book before us we have a storehouse of the choicest anecdotes, comparisons and illustrations, gathered from the numerous volumes he has written. It is frequently said, that it is the story told, the illustration used, that becomes the nail to fasten the truth, so it tingles in our ears, and burns in our consciences to the saving of the soul. We take pleasure in commending this volume to all, but especially to clergymen and all other religious teachers.

How to be Weather-Wise: A New View of Our Weather System. With Illustrations. By Isaac P. Noyes. 12mo, pp. 51, price 25 cents. Fowler & Wells, Publishers, 753 Broadway, New York.

This is a brief and plainly-written explanation of the causes of changes in the weather, based upon the system of the United States Signal Service. Mr. Noyes shows how simple a matter it is to observe weather signs, when the principle involved in weather movements is understood. Everybody, he claims, can observe the weather himself and be his own weather prophet, and in good, square English he indicates the way. Let those who would know How to be Weather-Wise, send 25 cents in stamps, to the above address, and secure this interesting work.

Six Lectures on Light. By Prof. John Tyndall. (Illustrated.) Price, 15 cents. J. Fitzgerald & Co., 30 Lafayette Place, New York.

As a popular expositor of science, Professor Tyndall holds the very first place, and this work is admittedly his masterpiece. A subject of no little difficulty and abstruseness is hear treated by him in a style which for clearness of expression and grace of diction challenges the admiration of all lovers of "English undefiled." The work forms a valuable addition to the popular Humboldt Library of Science. For sale by Geo. Ellis.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Under the caption "A New Profession for Women," the November Century will have a paper on the important work of the Bellevue Hospital Training School for Nurses. This enterprise, which has been the parent of the many similar schools in the larger American cities, originated in the mind of Miss Louisa Lee Schuyler, of New York, in 1871, being more remotely the outgrowth of the Sanitary Association, and of Miss Nightingale's labors in English hospitals. The demand for the services of the nurses graduated at the Bellevue school is said to be largely in excess of the supply,—a fact which would indicate that the profession is fairly on its feet. The interesting account of the founding and progress of the school, in The Century, is illustrated, and a large portrait of Florence Nightingale is printed as the frontispiece.

Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine, for October, contains a rich repast of splendid reading matter: Adolphus; A comedy of Affinities; Tunis; The Ladies Lindores—Part VII; In the British Museum; The Erskines and their Kinsfolk; Nottingham Lace; its history and manufacture; Urbs Roma Vale—Part II; The story of James Barker—A Tale of the Congo coast;" and last but not least, an interesting paper upon "The situation in Egypt. Published by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., New York, at $3 00 a year; single numbers at all news stands, 30 cts.

The Boston Musical Herald, for October, has sketches of American musical biography and history, and an interesting article on hymns and their authors. Price 15 cts—$1 50 per year.

Rev. Charles P. Wellman, of New London, Conn., has commenced the issue of a monthly, bearing imprint of Atlanta, Georgia, called The Temperance Brotherhood, to be devoted to the interests of Good Templars, especially among the colored people of the South.

my debilitated condition. I continued to take it; the sickening sensation departed and I was able to retain food upon my stomach. In a few days I noticed a decided change for the better as also did my wife and friends. My hiccoughs ceased and I experienced less pain than formerly. I was so rejoiced at this improved condition that, upon what I had believed but a few days before was my dying bed, I vowed, in the presence of my family and friends, should I recover I would both publicly and privately make known this remedy for the good of humanity, wherever and whenever I had an opportunity. I also determined that I would give a course of lectures in the Corinthian Academy of Music of this city, stating in full the symptoms and almost hopelessness of my disease and the remarkable means by which I have been saved. My improvement was constant from that time, and in less than three months I had gained 26 pounds in flesh, became entirely free from pain, and I believe I owe my life and present condition wholly to Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, the remedy which I used.

Since my recovery I have thoroughly re-investigated the subject of Kidney difficulties and Bright's disease, and the truths developed are astounding. I therefore state, deliberately, and as a physician, that I believe that more than one-half the deaths which occur in America are caused by Bright's disease of the kidneys. This may sound like a rash statement, but I am prepared to verify it. Bright's disease has no distinctive symptoms of its own, (indeed it often develops without any pain whatever in the kidneys or their vicinity), but has the symptoms of every other known complaint. Hundreds of people die daily, whose burials are authorized by a physician's certificate of "Heart Disease," "Apoplexy," Paralysis," "Spinal Complaint," "Rheumatism," "Pneumonia" and other complaints, when in reality it was Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Few physicians, and fewer people realize the extent of this disease or its dangerous and insidious nature. It steals into the system like a thief, manifests its presence by the commonest symptoms, and fastens itself upon the constitution before the victim is aware. It is nearly as hereditary as consumption, quite as common and fully as fatal. Entire families, inheriting from their ancestors, have died, and yet none of the number knew or realized the mysterious power which was removing them. Instead of common symptoms it often shows none whatever, but brings death suddenly, and as such is usually supposed to be heart disease. As one who has suffered, and knows by bitter experience what he says, I implore every one who reads these words not to neglect the slightest symptoms of Kidney difficulty. Certain agony and possible death will be the sure result of such neglect, and no one can afford to hazard such chances.

I am aware that such an unqualified statement as this, coming from me, known as I am throughout the entire land as a practioner and lecturer, will arouse the surprise and possible animosity of the medical profession and astonish all with whom I am acquainted, but I make foregoing statements based upon facts which I am prepared to produce and truths which I can substantiate to the letter. The welfare of those who may possibly be sufferers such as I was, is an ample inducement for me to take the step I have, and if I can successfully warn others from the dangerous path in which I once walked, I am willing to endure all professional and personal consequences.

At the residence of the bride, Greenwood, Miss., Oct. 1, Mr. Noah Batchelor to Mrs. Docie Tyler. Rev. P. Blue officiated.

DEATHS.

Sister Sarah Hines, died at Spring Creek, Louisiana, Sept. 26. She was a faithful and true Methodist, imbued with the missionary spirit. Her loss is deeply mourned. H. J. WRIGHT.
Alexandria, Oct. 22, 1882.

Sister Maria Lyons, lost a little babe in September. Brother C. Cook, lost his oldest boy aged three years, Oct. 13.
Fairfield, Texas. R. WEAVER.

Sister Charity Jackson, wife of James Jackson, one of our local preachers, died June 4th, in full triumph of faith. She was a member of the church for about ten years, and leaves a husband and six children. R. MCALPIN.
Evergreen, Miss.

Another faithful servant of the church has gone to rest. Sister Martha Clark, departed this life Sept. 30th., and on Sunday Oct. 1st., her remains were brought to the church, followed by a long procession of white and colored friends, to listen to her funeral. The members of the Tabernacle, of which she was a member, then took possession and conveyed her body to place of burial, and deposited it in the earth where it will rest until the resurrection morn. She was the wife of Brother Elia Clark, one of our exhorters and class leaders. She leaves a husband and six little children to mourn her loss.

It Has Done Wonderful Things for Her.

So writes a daughter of the effect of Compound Oxygen on her mother, a lady in her sixty-ninth year, about whose case, when submitted to us for an opinion, we wrote discouragingly. After the first Treatment had been used up, this report was made: "You perhaps remember that when you gave her (my mother) your advice, you said that you did not think her case as hopeful as a majority of your patients, so that you cannot always tell in advance. It has done wonderful things for her, and I would have been glad if you could have witnessed them. At the time she commenced taking the Oxygen, she did not think she could live very long. She was feeble, very much depressed in spirits, a victim of extreme nervous prostration, with no special sign of disease, beside. Life was almost a burden to her, so dark and dreary looked the whole world. To day she is cheerful, with more strength and seeming vitality than most persons of her age—sixty-nine. After a busy forenoon, she has gone a quarter of a mile to make calls." Our Treatise on compound Oxygen, containing large reports of cases and full information, sent free. Address DRS STARKEY & PALEN, 1109 and 1111 Girard Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Small Things.

A holy life is made up of a number of small things. Little words, not eloquent speeches or sermons; little deeds, not miracles, nor battles, nor one great heroic act or mighty martyrdom make up the true Christian life. The little constant sunbeam, not the lightning; the waters of Siloam, "that go softly" in their meek mission of refreshment, not "the waters of the river, great and many," rushing down in torrents noise and force, are the true symbols of a holy life. The avoidance of little evils, little sins, little inconsistencies, little weaknesses, little follies, little indiscretions and imprudences, little foibles, little indulgences of self and flesh; the avoidance of such little things as these goes far to make up, at least, the negative beauty of a holy life.—Dr. Bonar.

SEEK

health and avoid sickness. Instead of feeling tired and worn out, instead of aches and pains, wouldn't you rather feel fresh and strong?

You can continue feeling miserable and good for nothing, and no one but yourself can find fault, but if you are tired of that kind of life, you can change it if you choose.

How? By getting one bottle of BROWN' IRON BITTERS, and taking it regularly according to directions.

Mansfield, Ohio, Nov. 26, 1881.
Gentlemen:—I have suffered with pain in my side and back, and great soreness on my breast, with shooting pains all through my body, attended with great weakness, depression of spirits, and loss of appetite. I have taken several different medicines, and was treated by prominent physicians for my liver, kidneys, and spleen, but I got no relief. I thought I would try Brown's Iron Bitters; I have now taken one bottle and a half and am about well—pain in side and back all gone—soreness all out of my breast, and I have a good appetite, and am gaining in strength and flesh. It can justly be called the king of medicines.
JOHN K. ALLENDER.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is composed of Iron in soluble form; Cinchona the great tonic, together with other standard remedies, making a remarkable non-alcoholic tonic, which will cure Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Malaria, Weakness, and relieve all Lung and Kidney diseases.

Liver, Kidney and Bright's Disease.

A medicine that destroys the germ or cause of Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Kidney and Liver Complaints, and has power to root them out of the system, is above all price. Such a medicine is Hop Bitters, and positive proof of this can be found by one trial, or by asking your neighbors, who have been cured by it.

Conference Notices.

To the Members of the Tennessee Conference.

DEAR BRETHREN: The next session of the conference will convene in Brownsville on the 23, prox. The session will be held in Key Chapel. The classes for examination will meet in the church on the 22d, at 10 o'clock, A. M. Brethren will report at the same place to be assigned their places of entertainment during the conference session. If the members of the conference will have their benevolent collections and statistical reports ready on the first day of the session, it will facilitate business. It is desirable that the members of the Endowment Association be ready to pay their subscriptions, or at least the interest on them, up to the meeting of the conference. The arrangements made with the railroads for reduced rates will be published soon. J. BRADEN, Sec.

J. CAMPBELL, P. E.
Oct. 18th, 1882.

To the Preachers on the Austin District.

DEAR BRETHREN:—The General Missionary Committee has made an earnest appeal for an advance in our missionary collections; and I think our corresponding secretary has furnished each of you with a letter to that effect. Now, the amount that was apportioned to our conference to raise this year is $575. This amount has been divided among the four districts. Our part is $143.75 I have divided this equally among the churches to raise, and it is so small that I know if you try you can get it. The crops are good and there is no excuse; if you fail this year you had just as well ask the conference for a location, for you will never succeed. Also, our conference school collections. Only four brethren in the whole connection have sent in anything. It is very nice to stand up in the conference and make promises, but it is much nicer to do what you say. As treasurer, let me ask you to send your money here, and to me, in time for me to make out my report. Remember, I will have cabinet work to do this year, and will not have time to receive this money at the conference; and if I had nothing else to do I would not want to receive the school money in Columbus when we need it here in Austin. Please send the money here and don't wait until conference. I desire the preachers on this district to meet me in Columbus, in the M. E. Church, at 9 o'clock, A. M., on the 6th day of Dec., 1882, as the conference will meet on the 7th. Brethren, please be there, I want to help you with your reports. My wife has gone home as you have seen from the papers; and I tell you, brethren, I have lost a help-mate in my work, as well as a loving and true wife. Pray for me. Your Brother in Christ.

J. H. SHUMPERT, P. E.

Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic.

This medicinal preparation is one out of a thousand of the patent kind placed before the public which has what it claims, "intrinsic merits," and does afford relief in deseases like dyspepsia, general debility, and many kinds of disorders peculiar to females. It has received the endorsement of hundreds of people of good standing throughout the country, and should it sometimes fail to effect a cure, it may be taken without deleterious results. It has become a staple medicine with druggists. One or two bottles, used in season, may save a heavy bill from the family physician.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

S. Priestley Union Chapel, New Orleans: "On the 22d the classes rallied together for the purpose of raising money to buy chandeliers, as our audience room up-stairs is finished. We raised $120. We will soon have our work completed for this conference year. On Nov. 4, we will have a sociable for the purpose of getting our carpet and chairs. On Nov. 6, we will have a union love feast for the last time, down-stairs. On Nov. 12, or second Sunday, our first services will be held up-stairs. All our sister churches, and friends are invited to take part in the services. Lord's supper will be administered at night. Union Chapel is finished. Come and see."

MISSISSIPPI.

J. C. Skinner, Roebuck: "I closed my protracted meetings Sept. 30, the result of which was 42 converts, 4 backsliders reclaimed, 6 came under our watchcare, 4 joined from the Zion M. E. Church, and one from the Baptist. Bro. Samuel Harris, a deacon, and Bros. R. Roberts and A. D Garner, local preachers, did much good during the battle. Elder Barney has been with us twice during the year, and the brethren turned out nicely. Collections were fair. I closed up all the churches on the circuit on account of the small pox that has broken out on the Tallahatchie River, six or seven miles above Minter City."

A. D. Bean, Okolona: "Our people in the country, as a general thing, are under the iron heel of ignorance. Long prayers, vain words, and hoodu dances are prevalent, with rare exceptions in all of our country churches. Our periodicals, tracts, catechisms and discipline are sadly neglected, while I can say well done for the country school teachers. In every family, with few excepections, some of the younger members can read and write intelligently. The work of our preachers holding country charges is yet to be done. Have you taught them that wilful ignorance is a great sin? There are eighteen year old students under you, brethren, have you taught them to take one of our church papers? The families belonging to church especially should make their children read to them during their leisure hours. Some of them know their names are Methodists, but know little about the laws of the church; some hardly know she has a paper in existence. Let us circulate the papers and catechisms among the people."

TEXAS.

J. R. Carnes, San Antonio: "Our fourth quarterly conference was held by elder Mack Henson, and it passed off nicely. Class leaders reported favorably respecting their classes. On Sunday the elder gave the Sabbath-school a fatherly exhortation, which all seemed to appreciate. He preached in the afternoon and at night. The people love to hear him. Sacrament was administered to 116. Love-feast was a grand one. Collection for elder $30 55; total for year $118 10. The Sabbath-school is growing."

T. Parker, Marshall: "Our district conference met at Paris, Aug. [illegible] a large number of the members present. Notwithstanding the [illegible] this year the reports were favorable, and [illegible] souls were added at every appointment. [illegible] are laboring hard to raise the benevolent collections, and [illegible] nearly completed their [illegible] school enterprise was [illegible]. Our church [illegible] at this point [illegible] by [illegible] and

T. Moore, and a group of the conference and also the church photographed. It is one of the most complete and neatest churches on the district. Bro. Moore has done a great work at Paris."

D. W. Tucker, Lavernia: "During our last quarterly conference, Rev. Mack Henson, presiding, we had a glorious time. The spirit of the Lord seemed to be revived among the people. During the conference we took up subscriptions for the church to the amount of $158 25; we have on hand $188 30. On the following Monday a trustee meeting decided to commence to build on the first Monday in December."

Robert Weaver, Fairfield: "I have had a good time at this place this year, in the saving of souls for Christ. Four left the Baptists and joined us, and I have added 76 members. We are in debt yet, but hope soon to be out. I am working night and day for Wiley University, and will do all I can until the last hour."

Fear Not.

All kidney and urinary complaints, especially Bright's Disease, Diabetes and liver troubles Hop Bitters will surely and lastingly cure. Cases exactly like your own have been cured in your own neighborhood, and you can find reliable proof at home of what Hop Bitters has and can do.

Truth will ever be unpalatable to those who are determined not to relinquish error, but can never give offense to the honest and well-meaning; for the plain-dealing remonstrances of a friend differ as widely from the rancor of an enemy as the friendly probe of a physician from the dagger of an assassin.

Don't Die in the House.

Ask druggists for "Rough on Rats." It clears out rats, mice, bedbugs, roaches, vermin, flies, ants, insects. 15c per box.

The Aberdeen Baptist Association took strong ground on the temperance question, and in favor of prohibition, at its last session in Verona, Miss. The vote in favor of prohibition was unanimous. An opportunity was given to the large audience present to vote on the prohibition clause in the committee's report on temperance, and every man, woman and child in the house voted for it but three.—Mississippi Methodist.

An Old Lady's Testimony.

An old lady writes us: "I am 65 years old and was feeble and nervous all the time, when I bought a bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic. I have used little more than one bottle and feel as well as at 30."

Herbert Spencer says that a man's conversation is a sure index to his mental capacity.

A Good Offer.

The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company has just issued an illustrated treatise, "The Heart of the Continent," describing the wonderful growth of the Six Great States. The book is beautifully printed, and numerous engravings of high merit adorn its pages. Any one sending their name and address with two three cent postage stamps will receive a copy by return mail, by applying to PERCEVAL LOWELL, General Passenger Agent, Chicago.

American Bible Society.

The stated meeting of the Board of Managers was held at the Bible House, October 5.

The Committee on Agencies presented the report of colportage for August. One hundred and twenty-three colporteurs, in Alabama, Dakota, Florida, Georgia, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, West Virginia, and Wisconsin, rendered 2960 days of service. They visited 34 498 families; 5193 of these were found without a copy of the Bible in their homes, and 3864 of these, besides 1862 destitute individuals, were supplied. The colporteurs sold 15 073 copies of the Scriptures, of the value of $5810 54, and distributed gratuitously 4148 copies, of the value of $1135 19 Twenty-four colporteurs, in addition to those now at work, had been commissioned during the month of September.

The Committee on Distribution recommended grants in books to the value of $13 700, chiefly for the the United States and Territories, and their recommendations were adopted.

During September 17,274 copies of Scriptures, of the value of $6183 20, were sent to colporteurs engaged in the fourth re-supply of this country. This work is now fairly inaugurated, and will be extended as rapidly as suitable persons can be found to engage in it. In view of its expansion the Board made an appropriation of $10,000 in books for this department of the Society's work during the present month.

The Committee on Finance reported that the receipts of the month were $32 960 80.

"Magnificent promises sometimes end in paltry performances." A magnificent exception to this is found in Kidney-Wort which invariably performs even more than it promises. Here is a single instance: "Mother has recovered," wrote an Illinois girl to her Eastern relatives. "She took bitters for a long time but without any good. So when she heard of the virtues of Kidney-Wort she got a box and it has completely cured her liver complaint."

The small deficit in your preacher's salary is a small thing to you, but it is not so to him. He needs every dollar—see that he gets it.

Buchupaiba.

Stinging, smarting, irritation of the urinary passages, diseased discharges, cured by Buchupaiba. $1, at druggists. La. Depot, I. L. LYONS, New Orleans La.,

Elephants swim better than any other land animal. In India they have been known to traval in water for six hours without touching bottom.

Why Wear Plasters?

They may relieve, but they can't cure that lame back, for the kidneys are the trouble and you want a remedy to act directly on their secretions, to purify and restore their healthy condition. Kidney-Wort has that specific action—and at the same time it regulates the bowels perfectly. Don't wait to get sick, but get a package to-day, and cure yourself. Liquid and dry sold by all Druggists.—Germantown Telegraph.

The Republicans in Ohio favor the taxation of the liquor traffic, which is another form of license. Of course prohibitionists could not support them. They went far enough to offend the liquor interests, and not far enough to please the temperance party. The party that was to spend so much strength in dodging has no strength left.—Milwaukee Statesman.

DR. JOHN BULL'S

Smith's Tonic Syrup

FEVER and AGUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER.

AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

FOO CHOO'S Balsam of

SHARK'S OIL,

Positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.

This Oil is abstracted from a peculiar species of White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as the Carcharodon Rondeletii. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese People. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1 per bottle.

HEAR WHAT THE DEAF SAY!

It has performed a miracle in my case.

I have no unearthly noises in my head and hear much better.

I have been greatly benefited.

My deafness helped a great deal—think another bottle will cure me.

"Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer can personally testify, both from experience and observation. Write at once to Haylock & Jenney, No. 7 Dey street, New York, enclosing $1, and you will receive by return a remedy that will enable you to hear like anybody else, and whose curative effects will be permanent. You will never regret doing so."—Editor of Mercantile Review.

MR. EDITOR:—I want to find my two brothers and two sisters, Albert and Peter Washington, Delia and Ann Washington. They were sold away from the city by Andrew Jones. Mother was Phœbe and father Charles Washington. I now live at No. 384 Melpomene street, corner of Freret street, New Orleans, La.

RICHARD WASHINGTON.

MR. EDITOR:—I wish to hear of my brother, Christopher Burke, whom I have not seen since the war. His father was Ned McConnieo. We were four in number, Mary, Julia, Jessie and Stephen Burke. Address me at Holly Grove, Monroe county, Arkansas.

STEPHEN BURKE.

MR. EDITOR:—I desire to inquire for my brother Frank, and sisters Jenny, Harriet and Sarah. They all belonged to Gus Perry in North Carolina, and he moved to Texas. They were all in Texas when last heard from. I was sold from them and bought by James Yarborough. Mother was Milly and father Simon. I was the younger brother. Address me at Moreauville, Louisiana.

ISAAC WILLIAMS.

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to see if my relatives can be found. I have a father, mother, and one full sister. Father was August Brown, sister, Louisa Brown, three half-sisters were Mary, Eliza, and Harriet Brown, two brothers were Joseph and George Brown. I was born in Maryland, and when eleven years old was brought to Tennessee. I remained there four years, and was taken to Missouri, and after being there two years came to Texas. I was brought to Tennessee by Jose Gamden, a speculator. Jesse Breese was my last owner. This occurred 1858 to 1866. I am about 39 years old. Address me at Roxton, Lamar county, Texas.

37-8t SARAH ANN LEWIS.

DEAR EDITOR: I desire to inquire for my sister Martha, who was sold from us when about seven years old to a man who lived near Bolivar, Tenn., named Tom Boyle. At that time we all belonged to John Green, except father, who belonged to Nat Woods. Father was Granville, mother Dollie, brothers William, Granville, and Richmond the baby, sister Laura. We all went by the name of Norman. Father belonged to Tom Norman, who lived at Whiteville, Hardeman Co., Tenn. Grandfather was Squire Norman, grandmother, Jennie Norman. Mother and all the children except Sister Martha are here in Texas. I desire to find her. Pastors, please read this to your congregations. Address, at Austin, Texas, her brother,

38-3m REV. GRANVILLE NORMAN.

The coming holidays will be more generally observed than any for many years, and we would remind our readers that a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will prove a most acceptable holiday present.

Freddy, sitting by an open window one evening, was earnestly gazing at the stars, when he suddenly asked, pointing up at them, "What are they, mamma?" Mamma being very busy, only answered, "They are God's lamps, darling." With another look, practical Freddy remarked, "Takes lots of matches."

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER.

Pain in the right side, under edge of ribs, increasing on pressure; sometimes the pain is on the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder and is sometimes taken for Rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternating with laxity; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled; his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low, and, although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it.

If you have any of the above symptoms, you can certainly be cured by the use of the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

THE BEST REMEDY

FOR

Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

Diseases of the pulmonary organs are so prevalent and fatal, that a safe and reliable remedy for them is invaluable to every community. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is such a remedy and no other so eminently merits the confidence of the public. It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative virtues of the finest drugs, chemically united, to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results, which enables physicians as well as invalids to use it with confidence. It is the most reliable remedy for diseases of the throat and lungs that science has produced. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt and certain relief, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it without difficulty. In the treatment of ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergyman's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household, for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

The marvellous cures which AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has effected all over the world are a sufficient guaranty that it will continue to produce the best results. An impartial trial will convince the most sceptical of its wonderful curative powers, as well as of its superiority over all other preparations for pulmonary complaints.

Eminent physicians in all parts of the country, knowing its composition, recommend AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL to invalids, and prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proved its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC.

A combination of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark and Phosphorus in a palatable form. The only preparation of iron that will not blacken the teeth, so characteristic of other iron preparations.

GENTLEMEN: I have used DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Diseases, Dyspepsia, and an impoverished condition of the blood, this peerless remedy, has in my hands, made some wonderful cures. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians, have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC is a necessity in my practice. DR. ROBERT SAMUELS, ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 26th, 1881. 2106 Wash Avenue.

THE LOVEDALE INSTITUTE of the Free Church of Scotland Mission in Kaffraria has become celebrated as a most successful school for the natives. The aim at Lovedale are to train teachers and preachers, and a limited number in various arts of [illegible] years, but it only partially covered the ground; several stations, with 2,000 Christians, 6 European and 9 native clergymen being still directly connected with the Society. In 1882 the Society has but two European and thre native clergymen all of them engaged in the work of higher education, and its expenditure is less by £3,000, [last reported expenditure, £3,234.] The native Church, besides maintaining, with some help from the Society, the clergy, schools and all other agents and agencies of its 15 parishes, carries on the Society's former Missions in the Bullom and Quiah territories and the Isle of Tasso, employing two missionary clergymen and 7 evangelists and schoolmasters. The Wesleyans have 18,655 attendants upon public worship, 5,717 full members, with 660 probationers, 30 Sabbath-schools, and 24 day schools with 4,188 pupils. They have 35 chapels and 21 other preaching-places, 11 missionaries and assistant missionaries, and 148 local preachers. The remaining Christians of Sierra Leone are [for 1881] Lady Huntingdon's Connection, 2,717; Baptists, 400; Roman Catholics, 369.

STEAMER ON ST. PAUL'S RIVER, LIBERIA.—Dr. E. W. Blyden, President of Liberia College, who is now in this country, says that, besides other things, he has the following object in view in the interest of Liberia: "We wish to get a river steamboat of moderate size for the accommodation of passengers and the conveyance of freight to and from the seaboard to different points on the St. Paul's River as far as the present head of navigation or rapids, about 20 miles from the coast. To carry out this project a company of Liberian citizens has been organized at Monrovia to raise means for the construction of a boat. One-half of the necessary $6,000 has been subscribed there." Liberia was founded as a colony under the auspices of the American Colonization Society in 1822, in an expedition conducted by the Rev. Jehudi Ashman. It was proclaimed an independent Republic July 26, 1847. The civilized Liberian population is now estimated at 18,000. The boundaries of the Republic, besides this, embrace about 700,000 natives. The whole number of natives with whom the Government is more or less connected by treaty or occasional intercourse have by some been estimated at toward 2,000,000. The extent of the Republic may be said to be 500 miles along the coast with an average of 50 miles inland. The principal native tribes in order [illegible] to south are the Veys, the Pessehs, the Barlines, the Bassas, the Kroos, the Grebos, and the Mandingoes. The last-mentioned are a numerous, intelligent, and enterprising people, found on the whole eastern frontier, and extending back into Soudan. They are largely Mohammedans, having schools and mosques in every principal town. They can speak and write the Arabic language, and are glad to obtain the Scriptures in that language. Next of interest to them are the Veys at the north, who have much intercourse with the Mandingoes and the interior [illegible]. They have invented an alphabet for themselves. The Kroos are an intelligent, manly [illegible]. They extend about 70 miles along the coast, and are the sailors of West Africa. The population of Monrovia has been stated at 13,000. It was named at its founding after James Monroe, then President of the United States and a patron of the colonization movement. A Sceptical Estimate of Righteousness.

"Then Satan answered the Lord, and said: Doth Job fear God for nought?" etc. Job 1. 9. 11.

Satan expresses an idea we often hear expressed by men. It is a common notion that prosperity is favorable to righteousness, adversity fatal to it.

This whole book is designed, among other things, to contradict it.

I. As a matter of fact prosperity is not favorable to righteousness. Men in their prosperity are apt to forget God. The rich classes in society are not eminently pious. Each class has its own peculiar temptations.

II. Satan wofully ignorant of the nature of righteousness. How many have been foiled in proceeding on this principle against a human soul! How often has he seen storms of adversity sweep over a life threatening to wreck its righteousness—but behold the integrity of the soul appears only refreshed, reinvigorated—nothing but the evil in it swept away. Perhaps Satan was but just learning this lesson, and if so, I think he would vary his tactics, and employ prosperity where he once thought adversity most efficacious. Perhaps he is morally and constitutionally incapable of appreciating the motives of the righteous. True righteousness may be something utterly incomprehensible to him, as it seems to be to sinful men.

III. Satan's readiness to depreciate. He is justly called the Accuser. Where he cannot destroy a reputation he will nibble at it. Vile slanderer that he is, he cannot resist the temptation to insinuate depreciation. I suppose if Job had been a poor man he would have alleged poverty as the cause of his righteousness—anything better than giving him credit for it!

This is the way of all slanderers. Some of you who can never see any good in anybody may recognize your prototype in this history!

IV. Satan reveals that selfishness is the creed of sin. Disinterested acts—disinterestedness in any shape—far beyond his comprehension. Profit, gain, selfish advancement—these only appear as forceful motives to him. A blind man can better comprehend the splendor of an evening sunset, or the beauty of the rainbow, than Satan can understand self-denial, self-sacrifice, or disinterestedness.

God's relation is based on the very principle which to Satan appears incomprehensible. No wonder he is sceptical about it.

We may remark that this same scepticism appears among sinful men. Living for self, they cannot understand how any one can consent to deny self for God. But it is a glorious principle if we can act upon it.—Southern Pulpit.

Letter from Corinth.

MR. EDITOR: I take pleasure in sending a report of my work on the Corinth circuit during the past year. This Corinth Circuit under my supervision has five churches. The first, or Concord church, has added forty-five members to its number during the past year, and I have succeeded in erecting a large commodious church for the better accommodation of its increasing membership. On the whole, the Concord church, has done better during this year than it has ever done before. The Lord has truly been with us. The Tuscumbia Church has succeeded in erecting a fine new building and eighteen converts have been added to its number. The Mount Zion has added six new members to its number, and is said to have a greater degree of religious enthusiasm among its members than ever heretofore. The Sand Hill Church is in a flourishing condition, six new members have been converted to its number, and many more are seeking the love that passeth all human understanding. At this church many Baptists attend, partake of the Lord's supper, and extend the right hand of fellowship with perfect good feeling. I note this with pride, as it marks the decline of religious bigotry, which so fetters the cause of Christ among men. The Fifth Church under my supervision is the Mount Olive Church; of it I can say but little encouraging. It moves slowly, but with the help of the Lord I hope to bring it up to the standard of the more prosperous churches [illegible]. To sum up the [illegible] circuit as a whole I [illegible] say two new churches have been built; seventy-six souls have been brought to Christ, and forty-four of these I have baptized. We have had no church trials, and but one death, that being a happy one.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

From Little Rock Conference.

The opportunities for the M. E. Church within the bounds of the Little Rock Conference, are many. The fields are broad and the cry comes up from all over the land, for that preaching which gives no uncertain sound. It is true that strong opposition is to be met on all parts of the ground. An opposition well entrenched with its walls of defence thrown up, and its forces manned to the best of the abilities of its leaders. But the common rank and file of the enemy are sick of their burden. The old, old, cry, "been baptized in the water" with a sing song tune to it, does not feed the soul; and the repetition of its music has spoiled its charm. Walking about in John's shoes, up and down the Jordan, with fingers in the ears, mumbling and whining out something which nobody can understand; and brawling with a deafening voice, jumping over the pulpit desk, pounding the Bible, and shouting that an angel has touched me, are becoming a little monotonous. The old hurrah that we must have a colored church, a colored pastor, presiding elder, bishop, etc., has to some extent lived its day. Many of the children of yesterday, in reading to-day, have passed through the public schools, and while the grade of their knowledge is low, yet they can read and often they ask, why? The man of God must be able to answer these whys. Brethren let us awake to the importance of the hour.

The chance for our success grows brighter every day. Every victory you win, gives you advanced ground on which to stand in the next contest, and makes more certain the favorable result of the next struggle. You have no time to whine around about appointments, for we have none but good ones in the conference. Souls are too precious and opportunities too promising for us to stand around the "market" afflicted with the terrible malady of "can'ts." No other ministry in the State is rising faster. No other is gathering in more souls in proportion to number. No other is building churches of the grade you build, so rapidly as you. No church people in the land struggle harder than yours, for knowledge and character, and none succeed and rise as fast or so high as they. No denomination furnishes her men with as many books and helps on as easy terms, as yours. No church comes so liberally to help the poor people you serve to support their ministry as yours. None lavish on her poor, needy societies with such faith, the money to build churches, and secure houses of worship as does yours, through the Church Extension Society. And none open doors of knowledge, in building schools of high grade like your church through the Freedmen's Aid Society.

Thus the Missionary Society, the Church Extension, Sunday School Union, and the Freedmen's Aid Society, all come to your side, with Christ, to help you to carry the strongest breastworks of the foe and plant your banner on the ramparts of the enemy. Near four thousand dollars from the Church Extension alone, have come to our help within the bounds of the Little Rock District during this conference year, to aid us in securing houses of worship. What is our plain duty? Is it not to apply ourselves to our work most heroically? Certainly. No ground should be lost, no time wasted, no sword should be sheathed, no armour unbuckled, no doubt, no hesitation should lodge in any breast; but we should follow something like the following:

1. With unfaltering faith love God and our fellow men. 2. Love our grand old church and bring the people into her sheltering and blessed fold. 3. Apply ourselves to our studies, master every book in the course of study, and add to that many more. 4. See that our people take and pay for the SOUTHWESTERN, and that they supply their houses with books from our Book Concern. 5. Persuade every man, woman and child, we can, to go to Walden Seminary and secure an education. 6. Take the benevolent collections. There has been too much negligence on this, in the past. You remember the discipline makes it your duty to cause a sermon or some other address to be delivered, and a collection to be taken in every society of your charge for 1st, the missionary cause, 2nd, the church extension, 3d, the Freedmen's Aid, 4th, Sunday school union.

Do you not see that by working your committees on these various causes, and by preaching or lecturing on these societies' work, you could raise every dollar assessed to your charge? Do you not see that the people, if well informed on these subjects, would delight to give something to help such a grand church as theirs, to spread the blessed gospel over all the world? 7. Let us have 25 accessions to our conference at its next session and as near as possible preach the gospel to every creature.

Letter from Marshall.

MR. EDITOR:—I wish to state some facts concerning my work and toils at Marshall. So far it is gaining ground. I have been made to rejoice this year by seeing many saved in the Ebenezer. We have added 93 up to this time, and expect the other seven by conference to swell the number to one hundred. Baptised 71. Nearly all ready for full connection now.

We have had the presiding elder with us promptly at every quarter, and witnessed many a good result. Our university is being crowded with seekers after education, and our Professors, Davis and Webb, and Sister Coe, are persevering. The latter is superintendent of our Sabbath-school. These teachers have the good will of all who live hereabout. After the Ebenezer Sabbath-school divided its scholars between the college and Centenary; it has had an average attendance of eighty. Sister J. R. Coe is doing a good work, and is a light in our world.

We have built a tower costing about $40; paid the presiding elder, $42; the pastor, $300. Children's day collection was $4, and I have raised already $54 of benevolent money. I am sorry to say that I have not done much work on the church this year, on account of some indebtedness, $200, which threatened it. We have succeeded in paying up, and once more feel free though we had a bitter time. We can, therefore, go on with repairs without changes. We ask the prayers of all companions in tribulations for Christ's sake.

Woman's Mission Work in Texas

DEAR EDITOR: During the second session of the Navasota District Conference the brethren kindly made arrangements for a W. H. M. meeting. Sister L. Cole, and several brethren addressed the meeting.

The resolutions adopted by the conference make it the duty of every member of the conference to sanction the work of the W. H. M. Society.

The meeting was a very interesting one, and many gave tangible proofs of their sympathy. The presiding elder gave an account of a young woman who died in Brenham jail without a friend near, proving the great need of such help as only woman can give in the near approach of death.

The meeting did a great deal of good by awakening interest in the minds of many; who saw the need of such an agency, but knew not how to take hold of the work.

One female said she learned more at the meeting than she had done all the time she had been in the church (several years).

Rev. J. L. Smith, who has taken great interest in the Society, said he meant to talk about it, and laid down a dollar to enable him to talk a year, several followed until eleven and half dollars were raised

Permit me to say to the friends, do not let the fire go out, but keep the matter constantly before your people, until we have funds in hand to make our work felt.

I have been asked to organize an auxiliary and to open a mission school, I expect to do the former before the annual conference.

Respectfully, yours in Christ,
ISABELLA HOWELLS,
C. Sec. W. H. M.

Death's Master.

A Christian woman was dying of internal cancer. She was attended by a Romish nurse, who was very much astonished at the calm patience and peace of the poor sufferer. A friend of mine called to see her one day. The door was opened by the nurse.

"How is Mrs. Blank to-day?" inquired my friend.

"She is very ill, sir," was the reply.

The nurse then gave the following details: Last night she was seized with violent pain and I thought she was dying. I said to her:

"You are dying; shall I send for a clergyman to prepare you for death?

"O, no," she said; "I want no minister, for I am ready to die at any moment."

"But," I said, "are you not afraid to die?"

"No, indeed, not a bit," she replied.

"Tell me why you are not afraid to die, when you have not been prepared by your clergyman nor received the rites of your church," I said.

"Because," she replied, joyously, "I belong to death's Master. I am a poor sinner saved by grace."

The Law of Newspapers.

It is an unwritten law, well understood in journalism, that no editor is under the slightest obligation to give a reason for his acceptance or non-acceptance of a manuscript. He is not called upon to write a private critique on the article to the author of it. His acceptance or rejection is an absolute and unquestionable fact. Among amateur writers this does not appear to be understood. All sub-editors and reporters understand that it is an unjustifiable impertinence to ask the managing editor his reason for publishing or not publishing any matter submitted to his judgment. Outside writers and aspiring amateurs rarely seem to comprehend this truth, and their transgressions are largely from ignorance rather than intention. The nature of editorial work requires absolute power of decision, in order to preserve the unities of the journal the editor conducts.—Boston Traveller.

Arabi Pacha's friend Abdul Kerine Pacha El Zuhar who will visit America to make the requisite preliminaries for the emigration of Arabi's followers, is one of the best educated gentlemen in the east, having translated the New Testament into Arabic, and written in French the last book that ever appeared against polygamy. He is the owner of the prettiest little palace on the Nile at Cairo, moves in the best European society, and is on friendly terms with the King of the Belgians, the Prince of Wales and other noted persons. For a number of years he has been a professor of Greek and vice-president of the Cairo University, in which town he is as well known for his thorough-bred Arab horses as he is for his learning.

The following despatch from the private secretary of Gov. St. John was read in some of the pulpits in New York and Brooklyn: Topeka, Kansas, Sept. 29, 1882. The saloons in this city all closed their doors to-day. The saloon men make an unconditional surrender to the Citizens' Committee of fifty, agreeing to pay all costs of suits pending in the courts and discontinue business in good faith. Prohibition prohibits in Topeka. God reigns and the government still lives.

W. H. WARD.

The secret of ministerial success is to the same interest in God's work that men take in secular enterprises. It ought to be carried in our thoughts by day and by night and become an ever-conscious burden, a burden in some sense such as Christ bore for us and which makes negligence impossible. Nothing less than zeal and concern of this kind, sustained by God's grace, give those large results that satisfy the soul, and win the entire confidence of men who feel their need of Christ, and look to the minister as the guide to a better lise.—Central.

Something About Fans.

Kan Li was the first lady who carried a fan. She lived in ages which are past, and for the most part forgotten, and she was the daughter of a Chinese mandarin. Who ever saw a mandarin, even on a tea chest, without his fan? In China and Japan to this day every one has a fan; and there are fans of all sorts for everybody. The Japanese waves his fan at you when he meets you, by way of greeting, and the beggar who solicits for alms has the exceedingly small coin "made on purpose" for charity presented to him on the tip of the fan.

In ancient times, among the Greeks and Romans, fans seem to have been enormous; they were generally made of feathers, and carried by slaves over the heads of their masters and mistresses to protect them from the sun, or waved above them to stir the air.

Catherine de Medicis carried the first folding fan ever seen in France; and in the time of Louis XIV. the fan was a gorgeous thing, often covered with jewels, and worth a small fortune. In England they were the fashion in the time of Henry VIII. All his many wives carried them and doubtless wept behind them. A fan set in diamonds was once given to Queen Elizabeth upon New Year's day.

The Mexican feather fans which Cortez had from Montezuma were marvels of beauty; and in Spain a large black fan is the favorite. It is said that the use of the fan is as carefully taught in that country as any other branch of education, and that by a well known code of signals a Spanish lady can carry on a long conversation with any one, especially an admirer.

The Japanese criminal of rank is politely executed by means of a fan, which he must receive with a low bow, and as he bows, presto! the executioner draws his sword and cuts his head off. In fact, there is a fan for every occasion in Japan.—Harper's Young Folks.

Without an Enemy.

Heaven help the man who imagines he can dodge enemies by trying to please everybody! If such an individual ever succeeded we should be glad of it—not that one should be going through the world trying to find beams to knock and thump his head against, disputing every man's opinion, fighting and elbowing, and crowding all who differ from him. That again, is another extreme. Other people have their opinions—so have you; don't fall into the error of supposing they will respect you more for turning your coat every day, to match others. Wear your own colors, in spite of the winds and weather, storms and sunshine. It costs the vaccilating and irresolute ten times the trouble to wind and shuffle and twist than it does honest, manly independence to stand its ground.—Patriot

Bishop Asbury, having been compelled to spend a night in a log cabin standing in a western wilderness, in which night had overtaken him, found himself in very rough company. The cabin was a sort of desert tavern to which many hunters and others resorted, and was the scene of many carousals. The good Bishop prayed with them however, and kept them by his reverend presence within bonds of decency. In the morning the landlord approached him with a bottle and a glass and offered him a little whiskey. "Nay," replied the Bishop, "I make no use of the devils tea."

What is my influence? Are the people who have most to do with me better people or worse people on account of my relation with them? I saw the pestilential Campagna of Rome planted with the eucalyptus tree. In some way its waxy leaves counteract the malaria. No man, Christian by profession or, man of the world, will dispute the statement that there are moral influences in our society that poison the atmosphere like the exhalations of a swamp. Well, what am I to this tainted world—a eucalyptus tree, or a poisoned one. In one word, what is the moral effect of my influence?—Bishop Cheney.

The Hope of the Christian.

One of the greatest blessings bestowed on man by the Giver of every good and perfect gift is Hope. "It is the light-house which sheds its rays upon the ocean of life—the rainbow in the cloud of trouble." It is the inspiration of all human endeavors, giving courage to endure as seeing that which is invisible, and rest in the midst of its painful toil. All men have hopes, but their hopes are as different as are their moral natures, and as the ends which they pursue. The enemies of the cross of Christ have their hopes. The men whose affections are centered on self have their hopes. The hopes they cherish are as unsubstantial as the shadows they pursue, and are destined to overwhelming disaster. "The hope of the hypocrite shall perish." "The hope of the wicked shall be as the giving up of the Ghost." The men whom this world calls wise and prudent, who spend their days and waste their energies in the pursuit of pleasure, fortune, power, applause, renown, and other "lying vanities" of earth, which dance before them only to decieve them, and thus entice them along day after day, and year after year, till they are completely lost in the morass of sin, tumble into hell before they are aware of it. But the hope of the Christian is sure; it beams forth upon his path like an ever rising sun, "shining more and more unto the perfect day." There are joys of memory, and pleasures in the passing hours to the child of God, but the hope of being fully and finally delivered from sin and all of its consequences, fills the heart with a joy that is "unspeakable and full of glory." Those who have no hope in Christ, drift hither and thither the mere prey of every gale of passion, and lie at last wrecked upon the shores of time. But the hope of the Christian is sure and steadfast, like an anchor in the crevice of a rock. We may not always see the rock, it may lie hidden beneath the waves of trial and distress, but the anchor holds and we need not fear the wind or overwhelming waves. Anchored to the Rock Christ, the Stronghold, we are safe. "The expectation of the wicked shall perish, but the righteous have hope in death." Death reveals to the wicked the fatal nature of those strong delusions by which they were led astray. But to the Christian death brings a welcome release from all the bitterness of earth, and ushers him into the midst of the paradise of God.

Dr. Fuller and the Birmingham Iniquity.

One woe passeth away, and another cometh. The terrible war inaugurated to perpetuate the existence of slavery ends in its overthrow, the accursed system perishes, root and branch, forever. But the masterpiece of Satan, the iniquity of caste is inaugurated. Rev. E. H. King, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Birmingham, Alabama, published the following card:

Editors Age: In view of certain occurrences and a misapprehension which exists in the minds of some, I desire to make the following statement through the columns of your paper:

The First Methodist Episcopal Church in this city, of which I am pastor, is for white persons exclusively, and colored people are not invited or expected to attend.

E. H. KING.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 22, 1882.

Referring to this card, the Advocates at New York, Cincinnati, Pittsburg, San Francisco, New Orleans and Zion's Herald, Boston, said in substance, that it was one [illegible] disgusting manifestations of caste they had ever met [illegible]. The Western Advocate, Cincinnati, in a second reference to it, [illegible]

It [illegible] general condemnation [illegible] press in the North, and [illegible] papers pick it up as [illegible] roll and retort. Well, [illegible]

The Birmingham iniquity, so [illegible] condemned by the religious [illegible] press at the [illegible] Dr. Fuller, Editor of the [illegible] Advocate, Atlanta, Ga., [illegible] of nearly four columns, [illegible] to defend. He says that [illegible] employed an "irresponsi[illegible]" (a bad thing for [illegible] pastor to do), a "nui[illegible]" (Still worse [illegible]). This evangelist [illegible], says the Doctor, [illegible] of our church, [illegible] the colored people [illegible] into it. (We [illegible] in the Methodist Church [illegible] in the ministry [illegible] to [illegible] these circumstances, Mr. King published his famous card, aimed, we suppose, at Rev. Mr. Harris, pastor of the A. M. E. Church in Birmingham, and his presiding elder, but we fear that—

"Like the strange missile that the Australian throws, Which, when unskilfully used, returns and kills him who hurls it," this card will harm Mr. King a hundred fold more than it can Mr. Harris, and his presiding elder. To them it is as the fly on the horn of the ox. To Mr. King and Dr. Fuller it will prove a festering thorn.

See how unwisely Dr. Fuller talks:

These designing African preachers with the help of the so-called "evangelist" have made quite a stir over the card of brother King by having it published in numerous papers North and South with such comments or insinuations as they choose to make. Our own papers have taken up what proves to be an African howl against the Methodist Episcopal Church and uttered astounding words. It is a matter of surprise and grief that many of our editors have been so far misled, directly or indirectly, as in this case by cunning tricksters and a so-called "evangelist."

But here the Doctor is mistaken. It was not the "designing African preachers" who made the "stir." That card of Mr. King's was so "uncivil and unchristian" in its wording and spirit. It, not the "African preachers," stirred these men to utter what he calls "astounding words." Nor is this a mere "African howl." It is the earnest protest of the Methodist Episcopal Church against the sin of caste. Dr. Fuller is quite wrong in saying that these men were "misled by cunning tricksters and a so-called evangelist," who, he says, is "sadly lacking in good sense." We are confident that Dr. Fuller's attempt to defend this Birmingham iniquity will not be accepted by the Church. Our schools and colleges are open to men and women of color. Middletown has graduated a number. Wilbraham has had them among her scholars for more than a generation. They sat at the table with the whites in the days of Dr. Fisk. A young lady, afterwards the wife of Bishop Burns, boarded with the principal, Dr. Raymond, sat at the same table, and was treated precisely as one of his own family. There is equality and fraternity in our seminaries and colleges. There should be in our churches. Christ came to save men, and those whom he saved became brethren—one in Christ. We build churches, not for races exclusively, but for men. Race churches tend to make men enemies. Better advertise that all sectional issues and prejudices are to be left outside, and laid aside. Society demands this, the material interests of the country demand it, the educational and intellectual progress of the people demands it; but above all, and first of all, the religion of the Lord Jesus requires it. We deprecate strife among brethren. We know that caste is harmful to men and hateful to God; and so long as we have a voice, and can use the pen, we shall do the best we can to hasten on the time when caste and all its wicked and sinful prejudices shall perish.

Useless Sympathy.

There is what we call a vast amount of useless sympathy expended upon persons who are starting in life with little social or monetary help. Those persons are most to be congratulated, who, in early life, have to tussel with adverse circumstances. John Ruskin sets it down as one of his calamities that in early life he "had nothing to endure." A petted and dandled child makes a weak and insipid man or woman. Early cudgelling in the school of adversity, and little experiences in the hardships of life, tend to make people thankful and happy in old age. Most of the men who sit strong in their social, financial, political and religious elevations are those who did their own climbing. It has been said that: "Misfortune is a rough nurse, but she raises giants." We say to our young people, we know some of the influences that keep them back and down, but do not for a moment succumb to them. No person can afford to beg their way to fortune. Better a hundred fold to be without it, unless we achieve it. Be sure difficulties will come, but do not sit down, overcome them, and march on to victory. God helps those who help themselves.

The claims filed with the board designated by Congress to audit the claims arising from the illness and death of President Garfield, sum up thus far to $82,820 39, with more to add, as the claims of Dr. Hamilton and Dr. Boynton have not as yet been presented. The Religious Telescope referring to this, says: "Not many persons could afford to die at these rates."

If you have not paid for your paper prepare to do so soon. Hand [illegible] to your pastor, or [illegible] to this office by [illegible] letter.

The Methodist Quarterly.

The Methodist Quarterly Review for October has been upon our table for some days. In every respect this number is creditable to the editor and publishers. The Quarterly, as now conducted, meets the wants, not only of the clergymen but also of a large class of intelligent laymen.

This number opens with an article on John McClintock, D.D., LL. D., by Rev. W. H. Milburn, in which is portrayed the character, attainments and labors of one of the best scholars, educators and writers Methodism has ever produced. Mr. Milburn speaks of him as the "prince of Methodist preachers that have appeared in my time." As a specimen of choice English this paper has no superior in the Quarterly.

The second paper, by Rev. John J. Richmond, is on "Florida, its People and Productions," and gives a vast amount of information about the State. John Randolph, of Virginia, once called it a "land of toads, snakes, alligators, and all unclean things," and, at the same time, with great force added, "If I were doomed by my God to spend an eternity in Florida, I would thank Him to commute the sentence and send me to hell." However, Bro. Richmond's article may induce some to go to the sunny land.

Rev. C. L. Field presents the third article, which is his fourth and concluding paper on the topic, "Jesus, a Total Abstainer," and which must, we think, satisfy the thoughtful reader that Dr. Crosby and others of his school who have asserted that Jesus used fermented wines at the Last Supper, ought to yield that point.

Whatever Daniel Wise writes is worth reading. The fourth paper is on Charles James Fox, and is in his best style. In this article, Dr. Wise portrays the entire career of this distinguished statesman and orator.

The next article, Life and Times of Madame De Stael, by Ross. C. Houghton, D.D., is well written.

Those who love metaphysics will doubtless be pleased with Prof. Gardy's criticisms of Professor Bowen's Metaphysics. For ourselves, we prefer, at present, to agree with both of the Professors.

Those who read Dr. Whedon generally understand him. His criticisms of Mr. Beecher's recent article in the North American Review on "Progress of Thought in the Church," is a specimen of forcible writing, peculiar to the editor.

Every Methodist preacher ought to send immediately to Phillips & Hunt, 804 Broadway, New York, or at 32 Natchez street, New Orleans, La., and subscribe for the Review. Price, $2.50.

The Wesleyan Christian Advocate (M. E. Church South) is not at all pleased with the comments of the Independent on the separate race schools of St. Louis, which the Independent thinks should be abolished, and asks:

"Does not the Independent know that the antipathy between the white and colored races is one of instinct, and not of prejudice, and that the race instinct is stronger in the blacks than in the whites, because less under control of reason?"

To which the Independent replies:

"Certainly we do not. We know the contrary. We know it is an antipathy of prejudice, and not of instinct. The evidence is all about you. "Would the editors of the Independent send their little girls to such a school as is above asked for? Certainly, we would. We do. It is the custom hereabouts and has been for years. The present writer more than thirty years ago went to the same school with colored children in Massachusetts."

Why not, since colored and white men sit side by side in nearly all of our legislative bodies? When men come to believe that God has made of one blood all nations of the earth this devil of caste will be banished from all communities.

A lie is a lie, whether told in the pulpit, pew, coffee-house or brothel; whether uttered by a bishop, priest or clown. South says, "There is nothing so universally decried and withal so universally practiced as falsehood; that most of the things that have the mightiest and most controlling influence upon the affairs and course of the world are neither better nor worse than downright lies." A lie is a lie no matter how pious the lips that utter it, or graceful the language in which it is framed. So truth is not the less true though uttered in an ungraceful, awkward form. There is a wide distinction between truth and falsehood, whether winsomely or repulsively uttered. A lie artistically uttered is a lie all the same. The truth ungracefully presented is true nevertheless. It is an awful mistake to suppose that God gives the slightest sanction to any mixing of truth with falsehood. Fire and brimstone is the allotted portion of the liar.

[illegible] attempts have been made by persons engaged in the liquor interests to show that Jesus made intoxicating wine at the marriage of Cana, that he not only made wine but that he made enough to keep all Cana drunk for some time. So frequently have they referred to this that some temperance people are afraid to expound this passage, for they say: "If Jesus made wine and gave it so freely to the people to drink, are we safe in urging total abstinence from wine?" That Jesus could have made intoxicating wine no one for a moment questions. But can it be shown that he made one hundred and twenty gallons of any such compound as the dyed and drugged liquid abominations of to-day which so many people drink under the name of wine? If this can be shown then we confess that temperance people may well be alarmed for the foundation of their cause. But we insist that the burden of proof is on those who undertake to show it. Till this is done temperance people can rest.

The Universities in this city have opened this year with the most favorable indications, promising very flattering results. Leland university (Baptist) is filling up rapidly; while our own school, New Orleans university, and Straight university, under the American Missionary Association, have already matriculated an unprecedented number, for this period in the school year. On a visit to Straight university last week we were agreeably surprised to meet in the chapel, in their morning devotion, something over 225 regular university students, without counting the twenty-five or thirty law-students connected with the institution. At the rate at which students are still coming in, the president thinks that the school will not register less than 450 scholars this year. The following is the very efficient corps of theachers: Rev. W. S. Alexander, D. D., president and professor of mental and moral science; W. J. McMurtry, A. M., professor of Latin and Greek; Miss Florence A. Sperry, B. S., teacher in normal department; Miss Mary M. Jewett, teacher in normal department; Miss Catherine T. Plant, teacher in intermediate department; Mrs. R. C. Hitchcock, teacher in second primary department; Miss Flora L. Austin, teacher in primary department; Miss Thirza Miller, teacher of music.

Every Methodist church official should subscribe for the SOUTHWESTERN.

To us it is a matter of little importance whether in this world the Baptists outnumber the Methodists, or the Methodists the Baptists. We have studied the doctrine and discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and so far as we understand them, embrace them with all our heart. To some of our readers, however, this question of statistics seems to be of great importance. For their benefit we give the latest, they are taken from the official reports of the Methodists and Baptists. Daniel Dorchester, D.D. of New England is our authority. Here are the figures for 1881: Methodists in the whole world, 5,069,109; Baptists, 2,938,673; Methodists in the United States, 3,775,753; Baptists, 2,452,878. Those interested can cut this out and keep it for reference.

The brightest congregations take the most copies of the SOUTHWESTERN and pay for them, too. The congregations who are "too poor" to take the church paper, are like the man who cut off his own nose to spite his face.

The colored population of this State pays out thousands of dollars each year for halls. Would not combination soon put a stop to this bleeding wound, and turn this drainage into the pockets of our people.—The Missouri Itinerant.

This, alas, is too true of our people of this State also. The enormous rentals paid out annually by all the colored lodges, chapters, commandaries tabernacles, clubs and societies, is a shameful commentary upon their business sagacity.

Remember that the paper is promptly stopped at the expiration of the time of subscription.

The Niger Mission of the Church Society has at its head Bishop Crowther, who was sixty years ago rescued from slavery. He is now 74 years of age, and carrying on his work in full vigor, having recently visited England. This is a purely native Mission—a Mission of native converts to natives. It reports 11 stations, 12 clergymen. 451 communicants and 1,599 adherents, and shows, says Dr. Christlieb, "that Africa must be won chiefly by Africans."

PERSONAL.

—The wife of Gen. Lucius Gartrell died in Atlanta recently.

—We thank A. P. Albert Esq., for late Wasington (D. C.) papers.

—Jonathan S. Haskell, has severed his connection with the Methodist Episcopal Church.

—A. Bronsott Alcott, of Concord, Mass., was stricken with paralysis, and is now in a critical condition.

—Miss Frances E. Willard was re-elected President of the Woman's National Chrisaian Union by acclamation.

—Dr. Daniel Curry belongs to a long-lived family. Till the other day, when one died at 76, there were six brothers living, whose ages ranged from 83 down to 68, and one sister, the oldest of the family, who is now 85.

—The late Charles Whitney, president of the Morgan Railroad and Steamship Company, was also an active member and President of the New Orleans Sanitary Association. It is suggested that a handsome circle at the head of Canal street, for public use and ornamentation, be set apart and named after him.

—Louis Kossuth, governor of Hungary, recently celebrated his 81st birthday. Exactly 33 years ago he was condemned to death as a traitor. There is scarcely a principle of government for which he contended in his so-called treason, that has not been since conceded to Hungary. He has lived to see the results of his work, and his prophecies written into histories, and himself counted a hero.

—Thaddens A. Walker Esq., the son of Rev. Geo. Walker of the Austerlitz St. Baptist church, who graduated from the classical department of Leland University, May 25, 1881, left this city last week for Raleigh N. C., where he enters upon the study of medicine. We congratulate Mr. Walker upon his commendable determination and perseverance, and wish him ample success, both in the study and later practice of the chosen profession.

—Geo. T. Ruby Esq., formerly editor of the New Orleans Observer, and at the time of his death, editor of the Republic, died in this city, aged 41 years, on Tuesday the first instant, and was buried on the second. George Thompson Ruby was a native of New York, and was liberally educated in Demerara, British Guiana, South America. He filled, with credit, several political positions under the State and National governments, both in Texas and Louisiana; and his intelligence and gentlemanly demeanor secured him honourable distinction. But it was as a journalist that Mr. Ruby particularly distinguished himself. In death he lays down a ready pen, which he never failed to use effectively in the advocacy of what his convictions led him to believe, was to the interest of his country or his race. "Peaceful be his silent slumber."

—The record of Brigadier General McKenzie reads: Second Lieutenant Engineers, 17th of June, 1862; Brevet First Lieutenant, 29th of August, 1862, for gallant and meritorious service in the battle of Manasas, Va.; First Lieutenant Engineers Third Michigan, 1863; Brevet Captain Third Michigan, 1863, for gallant and meritorious service in the battle of Chancellorsville, Va.; Brevet Major, 4th of July, 1863, for gallant and meritorious service in the battle of Gettysburg, Pa.; Captain Engineers, 6th of November, 1863; Brevet Lieutenant Colonel, 18th of June, 1864, for gallant and meritorious service before Petersburg, Va.; Colonel, Second Connecticut Artillery 10th of July 1864; Brevet Colonel, 19th of Oct., 1864, for gallant and meritorious service in the battle of Cedar Creek, Va.; Brigadier General of Volunteers, 19th of Oct. 1864, for gallant and meritorious service in the battles of Opequan, Fisher Hill and Middletown, Va.; Brevet Brigadier General, 18th of March, 1865, for gallant and meritorious service in the field during the war; Brevet Major General Volunteers 31st of March, 1865, for gallant and meritorious service during the war; mustered out of volunteer service Jan. 15, 1866; Colonel of Forty-first Infantry 6th of March, 1867; transferred to Twenty-fourth Infantry 15th of March, 1869; transferred to Fourth Cavalry 15th of December, 1870. Brigadier General McKenzie was born in New York, and was appointed at large.

—Major General John Pope was born at Louisville, Ky., March 16, 1823. He gradnated at West Point among the first in his class. His record reads: Brevet Second Lieutenant Topographical Engineers, 1842; Second Lieutenant May 9, 1846: Brevet First Lieutenant, Sept. 25, 1846, for gallant and meritorious conduct in the several conflicts at Monterey, Mexico; Brevet Captain, Feb. 23, 1847, for gallant and meritorious conduct in the battle of Buena Vista, Mexico; First Lieutenant Topographical Engineers, March 3, 1853; Captain, July 1, 1856: Brigadier General of Volunteers, May 17, 1861: Major General of Volunteers, March 21, 1862: Brigadier General United States Army, July 14, 1862: Brevet Major General, March 13, 1865, for gallant and meritorious service at the capture of Island No. 10. Mustered out of the volunteer service Sept. 1, 1866. General Pope has a brilliant war record, having aided, subsequent to the capture of Island No. 10, in the capture of Corinth and afterward had charge of a successful expedition south of that point. He was then transferred to the Department of the Potomac, participated in the second battle of Bull Run, and rendered distinguished service in the Shenandoah Valley. He has been up to the time of his promotion commanding the Department of the Missouri, with headquarters at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

Memorial services of the late Rev. James Hayward, and his deceased wife, will take place at Mount Zion M. E. Church, at 3 P. M., Sabbath, Nov. 19.

A new choir has been organized in First Street Church, and are taking lessons every week. The organ is brought into active use.

G. J. Rogers, Plains:—"On Oct. 22d, I gave a basket meeting, and we had a fine congregation. The Rev. John Qualls, of Jackson, preached for us. We raised $37."

The following contributions have been received by Bro. H. J. Wright, towards building his church on Spring Creek, Rapides parish, La., which was destroyed by fire on the 30th August, 1882, for which he returns thanks. All other contributions will be acknowledged through the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE from time to time. Bro. Wright's postoffice address, Alexandria. The * indicates the help from white friends. Rev. J. F. Marshall, $1; Sallie Madison, $1; *Rev. F. G. Hocutt, $2; Jeff Davis, $2.50; Moses Brown, $2.50; Ann Johnson, $1; *M. F. Gordy, $[illegible]; *Marion Squires, $2.50; *J. B. McRight, $1; Letta Johnson, $1; Harvey Ellington, $3; Robert Kemplin, $1.50; Rev. A. E. P. Albert, P. E., $2.50.

ARKANSAS.

A preacher in Arkansas practiced the habit of greeting the brothers and siters with a holy kiss. On meeting a married sister from Tennessee he offered the usual salutation, whereupon the lady remarked she would see her husband about the kissing before accepting. That is right; let us put a stop to this kind of business.

TENNESSEE.

J. Kirby: "Henderson Circuit closed its fourth session with glorious results. The Elder visited all the preaching places, and on Sunday he talked to the Sunday-school. We have two converts and many mourners at the altar for prayer. Our pastor, T. Woods, is beloved by all. We raised for the elder $18 45, and the other collections were all good. Joining Bro. Wood's work is a place known as Lexington, and the people want our church there. They have seen and heard some of our preachers and they incline to the old Church. The Baptists have one church earn this place."

J. J. Barr, Gardner Circuit: Our conference closed its fourth quarterly session Sept. 29 and 30, with grand results. Our beloved elder, J. P. Price, arrived on Wednesday night, and preached at all of my preaching places with much power of the Holy Ghost, and Saturday our conference was a pleasant occasion. Our elder's explanations about how to manage the church affairs was as good seed sown in good ground. Men went away saying, we can see how to do better for the church another year; and on Sunday, his talk to the Sunday-school, and our love feast, will be long remembered. Around Gardner's, his sermon on Sunday was listened to with marked attention and it went to the souls of all the people; four were converted at the close of his sermon, and seven joined the church, and during the meeting nine professed faith in Christ. This is forty-two joined the church this year. Rev. J. M. Hall is here teaching school and was made assistant preacher, and is doing much good. Raised for the elder, $18; for mission, $3."

S. P. Bell: McMinnville has indeed enjoyed a visitation of the Spirit of the Most High. In a series of meetings recently, which lasted three weeks, we witnessed the conversion of nineteen precious souls, including both small and great, from the hoary-headed mother of sixty down to the Sunday-school scholar of 10 years. Also, we have had a glorious time at our little church in the country. A nice day-meeting resulted in the deliverance of 12 souls. Our fourth quarterly meeting was held on the 14th and 15th. Rev. H. W. Key, our beloved P. E., preached an excellent sermon. Notwithstanding the hard times and high prices of things, all of our benevolences are in excess of last year; the claims of the P. E. promptly met, and all things seem to be working together for good. Pray for us."

TEXAS.

W. H. Moseby, Seguin:—"My fourth conference was held at Mount Pleasant church, by elder Henson. Reports were good, showing an increase in property and membership. Sixty-eight accessions. Support of pastor, $135.50; elder, $46.50. A parsonage has been built in Seguin; have raised $160 for building and improving. Sunday-schools are in good condition."

MISSISSIPPI.

C. P. Head, Clinton:—"We closed a protracted meeting of several weeks, in which we had some success. Eight conversions, four backsliders reclaimed. Rev. H. Henderson, of New Hope circuit, and Rev. J. W. Parks, of Jackson, rendered good service. Elder D. A. Williams held the third quarterly conference, and preached to a large congregation with great acceptability. Collection, $11.

P. Harris, Rosemeath:—"The poor people after the high water, and in the swamp, have suffered a great deal this year. There has been much sickness, and of the deaths the largest number were children. Many died for the want of attention, as the people had not the money to call the doctor or buy the medicine. Sickness is now rebating a little. I have had intermittent fever for three months and had to depend on my local preachers to carry on the meetings. They worked well. Total additions this year 64; four deaths recorded. A sinner who died in our neighborhood was in the habit of carrying on a protracted meeting whenever the church did; also, of going through the form of administering the sacrement at the same time. He used whiskey for the purpose and called his men up to the table to receive it. In the last night of this wretched attempt, God would not suffer him to carry it out. He had gotten the elements, took a drink before supper, and after supper died immediately without speaking a word, as he sat in the chair before the fire. Our church is progressing spiritually and is improving financially. My two churches have paid me $55.30 this year, and a good part of that has gone for medicines. Sunday-schools are in a medium condition."

Letter from Austin.

MR. EDITOR:—I am home only for three days, as my next point is Gonzales, and this will be my last visit home until conference is over. As the lower border of the District is to be visited, I turn my face Southwest to complete the fourth tour. The District is in better condition now than this time last year. The brethren are succeeding most grandly, getting their benevolent collections; also the conference school money. The people are encouraged to give since learning that the trustees have decided to begin building on our new site in January, 1883. Church building is progressing grandly. At Biddleville, our new church is complete with exception of paint and ceiling and a few new benches; means are being gathered for that purpose. Bro. J. C. Mays at Cuero and Bro. J. T. Jacobs, at Pleasanton are pushing to completion their new buildings. We have assisted Bro. H. Christmas at Hondo to raise by subscription this year $106, and D. W. Tucker, at Pleasant Grove, to raise $183 30 for building purposes. These brethren, and all visited in this tour, feel certain to get all other collections to be raised by them. Nearly everybody has abundant crops, and are succeeding in gathering. The fields are white to harvest, especially the cotton fields, which have the appearance of snow capped mountains and snow covered valleys. The rich, fleecy substance is in such abundance that one could easily lay down between the rows, and shake the stalks and bury themselves with the abundant product. And more of this belongs to colored farmers this year, than any year since the emancipation—and raised too on their own land. These are facts, whether our papers mention them or not. A few more years of virtuous liberty, and peace will tell its own story of the thrift and acquisitions of the Negro race of this great union.

Yours fraternally,

M. HENSON.

A Cabinet council was held in Vienna to discuss measures of relief in view of renewed floods in the Tyrol. The Governor of the Tyrol attended the council. It is believed that the damage will reach 15,000,000 florins.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

FOURTH QUARTER. LESSON VII. Nov. 12, 1882.

JESUS BEFORE PILATE. (Mark 15: 1-15.)

Jesus before Pilate is what our lesson is about. Pilate was the Roman governor. He alone had power to kill Jesus, so they bring Jesus to him. It is early morning, and the poor tired Savior stands all alone before his cruel enemies. They all cried false things about him here, but again he said nothing. Jesus knew they were anxious to kill him and would not answer their wicked stories against him. [illegible] It says, "He is despised and rejected of men." They hated him. Not one single friend could be seen in the crowd around him. Pilate wondered and knew that he was innocent. He wanted to set Jesus free, but he wanted to please the people, too. Now, Pilate had the power to set one prisoner free on this day, so he asked if he should set Jesus free. There was a wicked robber in prison named Barabbas, and when he offered to set Jesus free, they said, no, they wanted Barabbas set free. They wanted a robber and murderer released, and cried out to crucify Jesus. Sin made them choose this bad man, and sin made them reject Jesus. Pilate gave them their choice. He took Jesus and had him beaten with a [illegible] They only did this to slaves. The whip had three lashes, and had nails or balls in the ends to cut the flesh. Jesus bore this, and then was led away to the cross. When sin comes near you to make you cross, or to say untrue things, remember this lesson. You hurt Jesus now when you do not love and follow him. He died for you and wants you to remember all he bore. If you remember it, you will not let sin lead you away from such a Saviour.—Western.

DEATHS.

One of the members of the West Texas conference, Rev. Jackson Johnson, departed this life October 1st. Brother Johnson was born on the 4th of April, 1845, in Harwood county, Missouri; was brought to Texas by Captain Bolden in 1852, settled at Austin, Texas, and remained there until emancipation. He removed from there to San Antonio, from there to Indianolia and from Indianolia to Victoria in 1870. In 1873 he was converted at the camp meeting September 12th, under Bro. Carper. Brother Johnson had two years before his conversion been engaged in our Sunday school work; he joined the West Texas conference in 1875 at Austin, and was appointed to the Victoria circuit, and from there to Goliad and Corpus Christi. In 1870 he took a supernumerary relation. His health continuing bad he was granted a superannuated relation in 1881. Brother Johnson did all he could for his church and the cause of our common Lord and Master, until too weak to say anything. In the spring of this year he went to San Antonio for medical treatment. He told the church good-bye and to meet him in heaven. After going to San Antonio and and finding that nothing would do him any good, he went to Manor, near Austin, to his brother's to die. On Sunday night, October 1st, between 9 and 10 o'clock he called his brother to him and told him that all was well, that he saw angels standing by his bed; and then passed off in a shout. So died a good Methodist, another hero has fallen from our ranks, but while we have lost him, heaven is his eternal gain. While all who knew him may weep, which is natural, let us remember his last words: "Tell all my brethren I am gone on, and to meet me over there."

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral wonderfully increases the power and flexibility of the voice, enabling public speakers to speak clearly and without fatigue. If people who are troubled with colds would take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral before going to church or places of entertainment, they would avoid coughing, greatly to the comfort of both hearers and speakers.

"Do not grasp at the shadow and lose the substance." Kidney-Wort is able to convert you from a shadow of your former self into the substance of established health. Said a sufferer from kidney trouble when asked to try Kidney-Wort for a remedy. "I'll try it, but it will be my last dose." It cured him and now he recommends it to all. If you have disordered kidneys don't fail to try it.

Sir Robert Christison,

BARONET, M.D., D.C.L., LL.D., F.R.S., Physician to Her Majesty the Queen, President Royal British Association, Professor at the University of Edinburgh, etc., says:

"The properties of this wonderful plant (the Coca) are the most remarkable of any known to the medical world. From repeated personal trials, I am convinced that its use is highly beneficial and tonic."

PROFESSOR DUNCAN CAMPBELL, M. D., LL.D., F.R.S., President Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons, Member General Council University of Edinburgh, etc., etc., says:

"Liebig Co's Coca Beef Tonic has more than realized my expectations."

PROFESSOR JOHN M. CARNOCHAN, M. D., Surgeon-in-Chief N. Y. State Hospitals, Professor Surgery N. Y. Medical College, Ex-Health Officer Port of New York, etc., says:

"My patients derived marked and decided benefit from the Liebig Co.'s Coca Beef Tonic."

PROFESSOR F. W. HUNT, M.D., LL.D., Honorary Member Imperial Medical Society of St. Petersburg, Russia, Professor of Practice of Medicine, etc., etc., says:

"Liebig Co.'s Coca Beef Tonic is far superior to the fashionable and illusive preparations of beef, wine and iron."

PROFESSOR H. GOULLON, M.D. LL.D., Physician to the Grand Duke of Saxony, Knight of the Iron Cross, etc., etc., says:

"It gives more tone than anything I have ever prescribed."

The N. Y. Medical Times says:

"We have prescribed it with the most satisfactory results."

It is invaluable in Dyspepsia, Biliousness, and Liver Affections. PRINCE NICOLAS TSHERBATOV, Flag-Officer Imperial Russian Navy, St. Petersburgh, Russia, says:

"It is a most excellent tonic."

GENERAL FRANZ SIGEL says:

"It benefited me very much. Too much cannot be said in its praise."

PROFESSOR C. A. BRYCE, M.D., LL.D., editor Southern Clinic, says:

"It is really a wonderful reconstructive agent, building up the system and supplying lost nervous energy. For broken-down constitutions it is the agent."

PROFESSOR H. R. BENNETT, of Fitchburg, President Massachusetts Surgical Society, says:

"The best tonic to build up a broken-down constitution from long-standing uterine disease is Liebig Co.'s Coca Beef Tonic."

It is invaluable in all forms of debility, nervous affections, nervous and sick headaches, piles, neuralgia, and catarrh.

"As a counteractant to debilitating influences—such as malaria, biliousness, languor, impaired digestion, etc.—the Liebig Co.'s Coca Beef Tonic is unequalled," says Professor F. W. Hunt, M.D.

[illegible]

PROFESSOR J. G. LeHARDY, M.D., President State Medical Society of Georgia, Member Athenee Royal de Bruxelles, etc., etc., says:

"The results obtained by me from its use in my practice are indeed flattering."

It is unequalled in Female Sufferings, Epilepsy, Rheumatism, and Disfiguring Eruptions. Its use preserves the teeth.

It embodies the nutritive elements of the muscular fibre, blood, bone, and brain of carefully selected, healthy bullocks, dissolved in a guaranteed quality of sherry, and combined with the Coca (which is recognized as the most powerful tonic now known) and other valuable invigorating ingredients. It will reconstruct the most shattered and enfeebled, reinvigorate the aged and infirm, and infuse new vitality into sickly children and infants.
